Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Green arrived from Forest River, N. D., Saturday morning, and are at present staying at the Grand View. Mrs. Green was formerly Miss Nellie Coppner, and the couple was married last Thursday at the home of the bride's parents at Forest River. The people of Red Lake Falls will extend congratulation to the worthy couple.

It has been decided that town clerks are not disqualified by their holding such office to serve also as assessor in the same town. The question was raised for the first time this year, and was of considerable importance in that nearly a score of assessors would have been disqualified had the ruling been the other way, and successors would then haue been appointed by the county auditor.

The Great Northern has been having more trouble with its conductors, and as a result of a recent investigation fourteen ticket-punchers on the Dakota division have been given six months' lay-off, and the dose is to be repeated twice each year. The difficulty seems to be that the conductors did not keep an individual cash account and neglected to turn in sundry and divers cash fares.

H. W. Lee, attorney for Miss Bertha Pederson, has commenced action in the district court to enforce collection of a certificate of deposit issued by the First State Bank of St. Hilaire in favor of Chas. G. Rapp. Miss Pederson claims that Mr. Rapp gave her the certificate a few days before his death, while O. F. Post, administrator of the estate, says she obtained possession illegally. The paper was not endorsed, and for that reason the bank refused payment.

Hon. W. I. Nolan, who gave an entertainment at the opera house Suturday evening and visited friends in the city over Sunday, is one of Bob Dunn's strongest supporters in Hennepin county, and says the chances are largely in Dunn's favor in that city. It is generally conceded that if Bob carries Minneapolis the fight is over, and there will not even be a roll call at the state convention on the governorship. Mr. Nolan is a candidate for renomination as a number of the legislature, and does not appear to be worried about the outcome.

Mrs. Peter Emard died very suddenly shortly after midnight Sunday morning at her home a mile east of town. Mrs. Emard had been in town the day previous and appeared to be in perfect health. A few minutes before her death she awoke and told her husband she was going to die, and immediately lost consciousness, passing away in few minutes. The funeral was held Tuesday morning from St. Joseph's church and the remains interred in the cemetery east of town. Mrs. Emard's maiden name was Morrisette, and has been married about twelve years. She was about 35 years of age, and leaves a husband and family of small children.

Hon. W. I. Nolan, the popular Minneapolis humorist, entertained a large audience at the opera house Saturday evening, and everybody was satisfied with his effort. Mr. Nolan is developing as an entertainer, and his selections were better than when he was here a year ago. After the opera house entertainment the Knights of Pythias gave a "smoker" at their hall in honor of Mr. Nolan to the members of the lodge and a few invited guests. Remarks were made by a number of the members, and Mr. Nolan filled in the balance of the time with his inimitable stories. A pleasing feature of the opera house program was the music by the band orchestra. Prof. Onstad also favored the audience with a violin solo.

DAUGHTERS OF THE REVOLUTION

THE THIRTEENTH ANNUAL CONGRESS OF SOCIETY MEETS AT WASHINGTON.

SESSIONS TO CONTINUE THROUGHOUT THE WEEK

Over 2,000 Delegates, Alternates and Visitors in Attendance—Wife of Senator Fairbanks Delivers Address of Welcome.

Washington, April 19.—The thirteenth annual continental congress of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution convened here Monday with over 2,000 delegates, alternates and visitors in attendance. The sessions will continue throughout the week. Mrs. Charles W. Fairbanks, wife of the senior senator from Indiana, presided.

After prayer by the congress, led by the chaplain general, and the singing of the "Star-Spangled Banner," Mrs. Fairbanks delivered her address of welcome, in which she pictured the work of the society, recounted the progress of the memorial hall project and the plans for the dedication of the hall at this meeting. Mrs. Maria Purdy Peck, of Iowa, in responding, referred to pioneer achievement in the west and the importance of the Louisiana purchase and the Lewis and Clark expeditions and regretted that no monument had ever been reared to the memory of the author of the declaration of independence.

The credentials committee reported a total of 40,206 members, 687 chapters, 30 national officers and 273 delegates.

WILL ADJOURN NEXT WEEK.

Congress Sets Probable Date for Closing of Session—In the House.

Washington, April 19.—Congress will adjourn one week from next Thursday unless something unexpected arises in the meantime to cause republican leaders to amend their plans. After frequent conferences between Speaker Cannon and republican members of the ways and means committee, representing the house, and republican members of the senate committee on appropriations the decision has been reached to close the work of the present session April 28.

The conference report on the fortifications appropriation bill was agreed to by the house Monday, which then, under a special order, took up a bill amending the law relating to taxation in the District of Columbia. It was opposed by Mr. Baker (N. Y.), who characterized it as violative of every democratic principle.

A conference agreement between the senate and house was reached Monday which disposes of all matters in dispute on the army appropriation bill. The section proposing promotion of retired officers was amended to provide for an advance of one grade to all officers below the rank of brigadier general who have had creditable service in the civil war and retired on account of wounds or disease incident to the service or on account of age or after 40 years' service.

Military Operations Ended.

London, April 19.—The British operations against the Mad Mullah of Somaliland ended with the Mullah's escape into Italian territory recently. In the house of commons Monday War Secretary Arnold-Forster said the Mullah had sustained very severe losses in men and animals and that his forces were routed and driven out of the protectorate. The Mullah is now practically without any following and therefore it had been decided to discontinue military operations.

May Purchase Liner.

New York, April 19.—Despite official denials the World Hamburg correspondent asserts that negotiations are under way for the purchase of the great liner Deutschland by the Russian government. The vessel, which is lying in at Krautsand, on the lower Elbe, has been visited by a committee of Russian gentlemen, the correspondent adds, and examined particularly as to her engines and coal capacity.

Bank President Arraigned.

New York, April 19.—Charged with misappropriating $200,000 of the funds of the suspended Federal bank, David Rothschild, former president of the institution, Monday was arraigned before a magistrate and held in $25,000 bail for examination April 20. Rothschild was taken back to the [illegible] to await bail.

HUNT ARRIVES AT NEW YORK

GOVERNOR OF PORTO RICO ON WAY TO WASHINGTON.

Says Conditions in the Islands Are Encouraging—Knows Nothing of Appointment.

New York, April 19.—Gov. Hunt of Porto Rico arrived here Monday on the steamer Ponce from San Juan. He will remain in the United States about two weeks. Gov. Hunt said he had not heard of his appointment as judge of the United States district court of Montana and Wyoming and would say nothing about his intentions in regard to the appointment. He will spend considerable time in Washington in connection with his official duties and in any event will return to Porto Rico at the end of two weeks.

Speaking of conditions on the island Gov. Hunt said:

"Just at present a strong effort is being made to promote a market in the United States for Porto Rico by preparing for an extensive exhibit at St. Louis. Coffee will be the feature of the island's exhibit, though tobacco, fruit and cotton will be well displayed. Americans are planting oranges quite extensively. The groves are doing well and investors feel encouraged. Cotton is attracting attention, too, and bids fair to be very profitable. There are no pests to endanger the cotton. American capital is finding its way into Porto Rico and conditions are generally encouraging in all respects. They will be greatly improved, however, if we can better the markets for coffee by securing reciprocal trade advantages with Spain. This we hope may be done before long.

"The coffee crop will be about normal this year for the first time since the hurricane and if a slightly higher price can be had for the crop planters will be able to relieve their estates of part of their old mortgage debts and will be satisfied.

"Public affairs are in excellent condition. It is probable that the value of the exports of the current fiscal year will exceed the value of imports by a million dollars. Trade with the United States increases rapidly and will continue to grow as the sugar, tobacco, fruit and cotton are being extended."

DEMOCRATS IN SESSION.

Confusion Reigns at Opening of New York State Convention at Albany.

Albany, N. Y., April 19.—The democratic state convention to elect delegates to the national convention and to nominate electors at large and presidential electors was called to order here Monday afternoon. Great confusion resulted from orders which had been given to keep the doors closed until the last moment. The result was that when the doors were opened at three minutes before two o'clock the crowd burst in with a yell and a rush. In three minutes the top gallery was filled with a stamping and shouting mass of men and boys. In the galleries were a number of Hearst banners and a running fire of shouts and comments was maintained by the gallery crowd.

While the delegates were assembling a rumor gained circulation that Senator Hill and the Parker forces had partially decided that between the sessions of the convention they would inform the Tammany people that they would concede choice of Charles F. Murphy in the delegation at large to the national convention.

Order was finally secured and Former State Senator George Raines, of Monroe county, was introduced as chairman and he delivered a speech to the convention.

Octogenarian Weds Again.

New York, April 19.—In the presence of his son, eight grandchildren and four great-grandchildren, James S. Van-Court, a rich resident of Mount Vernon, in his eighty-sixth year, and three times a widower, has been married to Mrs. Louisa Pines, 40 years old. The wedding was solemnized at the home of the son, who is 57 years old, and, like his father, has been married four times.

Shoe Factory Burned.

Brockton, Mass, April 19.—The large shoe factory of L. M. Reynolds & Co. was burned Monday. The loss is estimated at $100,000 and the insurance $82,000. The fire followed a terrific explosion which wrecked a part of the factory.

Submarine Boat Raised.

London, April 19.—The submarine boat "A 1," which was run down by the steamer Berwick Castle March 18, near the Nab lightship, resulting in the loss of her crew, numbering 11 officers and men, was raised Monday.

AWFUL DISASTER ON A BATTLESHIP

THIRTY LIVES SNUFFED OUT IN POWDER EXPLOSION ON THE MISSOURI.

FURTHER CALAMITY NARROWLY AVERTED

Presence of Mind of Capt. Cowles Alone Saves Entire Ship and Crew from Destruction—Catastrophe Occurs Near Pensacola, Fla.

Pensacola, Fla., April 15.—Later and more accurate reports of the catastrophe to the United States battleship Missouri while at target practice off Pensacola, Wednesday, give the total number of dead as 30, of whom five were ship's officers. All but one man of the aft turret, where the firing was in progress, perished.

List of the Dead.

Lieutenants, W. C. Davidson, J. V. P. Gridley, E. A. Weikert; midshipmen, W. E. T. Neumann and Thomas Ward, Jr.; boatswain's mate, J. K. Peterson; seamen, W. J. Bogard, O. N. Souder and E. R. H. Alison; ordinary seamen, C. Rice, C. J. Killen, J. Gedris, J. F. Kennedy, H. P. Starr, J. C. Nunn, C. H. M. Franks and J. T. J. Donnelly; landsmen, H. S. Cherbarths, B. J. Milligan and J. M. Roach; electrician, T. F. Rowlands; gunner's mate (second class), A. Smith; chief gun captain, T. E. Braun; marine private, W. L. Shipman; apprentices (second class), J. C. Hardy and P. R. Castler.

O. B. Moe, a second class apprentice, was wounded.

Cause of Disaster.

According to Lieut. Hammer's statement, the Missouri had fired three shots with a precision which spoke well for her equipment and the accuracy of her gunners, and the fourth shot was being loaded in the 12-inch left-hand gun in the aft turret. The first section of the charge had been placed and the second was being rammed home when the gases from the previous shot ignited the powder. There was a dull detonation and the entire turret was instantly enveloped in flames. A few seconds later a louder report from the handling-room indicated that the ignited charge had dropped below, where, coming in contact with four charges of powder, all exploded. The four charges had been conveyed to the handling-room, ready to be hoisted above. It is estimated that they aggregated 1,600 pounds.

Expert turret officers of the vessels in port say that the explosion was the result of a blow-back, known as the wind blowing the flames back from the muzzle of the gun, and through the open breech, thus igniting the powder charge being hoisted.

Further Calamity Averted.

The danger of a spreading conflagration was imminent. If the flames had swept to the powder magazine the Missouri would undoubtedly have been demolished and the loss of life would have nearly equaled that on board the fated Petropavlovsk at Port Arthur. Such a calamity was averted by the prompt action and presence of mind of Capt. Cowles. Five quarters were instantly sounded and the magazines and handling-rooms of the battleship were flooded with water. Before the blaze was extinguished Capt. Cowles led a rescuing party to the aft turret, where it was found that one man alone out of 35 survived. Cap. Cowles snatched up the wounded bluejacket and bore him to the deck.

Seamen Are Buried.

Impressive ceremonies were conducted over the graves of the seamen Thursday afternoon at the national cemetery at the navy yard. The Missouri moved down the harbor in the morning to a point near the yard and at noon the 26 bodies were brought ashore. At two o'clock the funeral procession moved to the cemetery where hundreds of officers and blue-jackets were present and the remains were interred. The bodies of the five dead officers are being held here awaiting advices as to the burial or shipment home.

Last to Receive Commission.

The Missouri is the very latest of the big battleships to go in commission. The flag was hoisted on her in December last, at Norfolk, by Capt. Cowles, brother-in-law of President Roosevelt. She collided with the Illinois off Pensacola a few weeks ago and has had very little firing with her big guns. In fact, the nine or ten rounds which had been fired from each big gun was in the course of official trials and she is now going through her first regular target practice.

President Makes a Contribution.

Washington, April 15.—The president has contributed the sum of $100, and the secretary of the navy a like sum, as the nucleus of a fund for the relief of the dependent next of kin of the enlisted men who lost their lives in the disaster on the Missouri.

The president accompanied his check for $100 with the following letter to Secretary Moody:

"My Dear Secretary—May I send through you this contribution, to be used for the dependent kinsfolk of the enlisted men who have just been killed on board the Missouri? Under the conditions of modern warfare, in order efficiently to prepare for war, risk must be run, similar in kind though not in degree, to the risk run in battle, and these men have died for their country as much as if the ship had been in action against the enemy.

"Sincerely yours,
"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

The Boomer's Way.

The man who deals in real estate
  Has quite a flow of speech;
He warns you e'er it is too late
  To jump into the breach
And buy a farm or corner lot
  That's bound to rise in price
And make you wealthy on the spot
  If you take his advice.

The bargains that are on his list
  Are really quite a snap;
A chance for profit will be missed
  If over them you nap.
They're always certain to advance,
  Perhaps a hundredfold,
And you are missing one grand chance
  By letting them get cold.

The crops his farms are bound to raise
  Of hay and rye and wheat,
Of oats, potatoes, clover, maze,
  Cannot on earth be beat.
The town lots that he has for sale
  Are spacious in extent,
And if you buy you cannot fail
  To turn an honest cent.

The man who handles western land
  Turns loose his silver tongue
And of their merits fair and grand
  Leaves nothing left unsung.
The streets with milk and honey flow,
  But when you go to choose
More likely you will find this so:
  They run with woe and booze.

Worse Than a Flood.

"Talk about your high water," said Simon, who had just returned from a trip to the metropolis. "I ran against a case in New York that was worse than anything I ever saw out west."

A JOYOUS EYE.

I am a most sedate young man,
  Opposed to all flirtation,
But ever since my life began
  I've met with castigation,
Because I have a wicked eye
  Beyond my own controlling.
Where'er I go, where'er I fly,
  It constantly is rolling.

For it will shut and then will ope
  All of its own volition,
And with adventures make me cope
  In spite my opposition.
I meet a maid upon the street;
  Her face is quite attractive;
On her I think my eye to treat,
  And, lo, it grows most active.

It opes and shuts and gayly winks,
  Its actions are contagious,
For she at me then wildly blinks
  In manner most outrageous.
Her escort then perchance sees this
  And on me quickly pounces,
And, thinking something's sure amiss,
  My person soundly trounces.

Though maids be here and maids be there
  I dare not look on any;
My eye will flirt with maidens fair
  And does not care how many.
And so through life I sadly fly;
  My eye does the flirtation.
It gets the sport, forsooth, while I
  But get the castigation.

Both barbers rose hastily to their feet and stood, each by the side of his chair, expectant.

The customer, who certainly looked like a man who would never think of refusing to give a tip, stood hesitating between the blandishments of the tonsorial artists.

With the instinct of fair play strong upon him, the customer took a coin from his pocket, twirled it in the air and said:

Your Heart

May Be Weak. One Person in Four Has a Weak Heart.

One of the surest signs of a weak heart is shortness of breath after exercise. Your heart is not able to pump the blood fast enough to your lungs.

Some of the other symptoms of Heart Trouble are: Pains in the Side, Back and Shoulder; Fainting or Weak Spells; Dry Cough; Swelling of Feet and Ankles; Cold Feet or Hands.

No one can afford to allow a weak heart to go without medicine, because weak heart means poor circulation, and poor circulation means weak lungs, stomach, liver, kidneys, etc.

If, therefore, you suspect heart trouble, begin taking Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure. The Heart Cure will do you good, as it is a splendid tonic for the blood and nerves, and will revitalize your entire system.

Finally, remember, Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is sold under a guarantee that the first bottle will do you good. If it doesn't—your money back.

"I was afflicted with heart trouble for three years. I would be apparently all right, and without a moment's warning would fall as though shot. The attacks were frequent, and a terrible dread possessed me, as I never knew when or where, nor under what conditions I would be attacked, and whether I would survive them. I consulted and was treated by some of the most eminent physicians of the state. Not finding relief from this source, I began taking Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, and began to improve at once. I used ten bottles, which entirely cured me, as I have not had an attack for five years."—MRS. JOHN DRESBACK, Leipsic, O.

JAP ATTEMPT TO LAND IS REPULSED

CZAR'S LAND BATTERIES FORCE TORPEDO BOAT FLOTILLA TO RETIRE.

MIKADO'S ARMY READY TO LAND IN MANCHURIA

Big Fleet of Transports Sighted Near Port Arthur, Which City Has Not Yet Fallen—Late Details of Five Days' Bombardment.

St. Petersburg, April 19.—An attempted landing by Japanese troops on the shores of Korea bay, between Port Arthur and the Yalu river, April 12, was frustrated by the Russians. A Japanese torpedo boat flotilla scouted the shores of the bay but was received with such a heavy fire from land batteries at Taku Shan, Ching Tai Tse, Tchanhe and Bedzine that it retired.

Vice Admiral Togo's flagship then recalled nine transports which were on the way to land troops. A squadron of ten warships protecting the transports withdrew with them. The Russians have 20,000 troops concentrated at Taku Shan.

Fleet Headed for Kinchou.

Tientsin, April 19.—From several sources reports have been received here saying that a Japanese fleet of over 70 transports is heading for Kinchou, north of Port Arthur.

Port Arthur Has Not Fallen.

Port Arthur, April 19.—Since the bombardment of Friday all has been quiet here. Viceroy Alexieff has hoisted his flag on the battleship Sevastopol.

The above dispatch indicates the falsity of dispatches received on Saturday that the battleship Sevastopol had been destroyed, and that Port Arthur had fallen.

Says Japanese Cruiser Was Lost.

St. Petersburg, April 19.—A dispatch from Port Arthur says several eyewitnesses assert that a Japanese cruiser was lost outside Port Arthur April 12 by striking one of its own floating mines.

Recovering from Depression.

St. Petersburg, April 19.—The authorities here are recovering from the depression which followed the last week's disaster. They seem imbued with new and feverish energy. The greatest activity prevails. The public is more aroused than at any time since the war began and now is thirsting for revenge. Russ' extra bulletin boards are constantly surrounded, although little fresh news is posted.

The vivid eye-witness picture of the torpedo-boat fight and the Petropavlovsk disaster transmitted from a Russian correspondent of the press under date of Liaoyang, Manchuria, Sunday night is reprinted here and is the talk of St. Petersburg and of official and private circles, being the first connected account published. It also contained the first definite information that Vice Admiral Makaroff was at his post on the bridge when the explosion occurred. Besides, it put at rest all doubts as to where the ship was struck. She went down bow first, as the Victoria did, and exactly as Makaroff's own model did when during a lecture which he delivered in 1894 he demonstrated the instability of heavily-armored ships and the impossibility at the time of a disaster, by collision mats or otherwise, of restoring the equilibrium of such steel monsters.

The admiralty still lacks definite data as to the cause of the catastrophe, although the talk of a boiler explosion and submarine boats continues. The public shows an indisposition to accept Vice Admiral Togo's version that his mines were responsible. Members of the naval staff frankly admit that they do not know the cause of the disaster, but some of them already are inclined to admit the probability that the enemy's avowal is true.

Five Days' Bombardment.

Tokio, April 19.—The official report of the recent attacks by the Japanese fleet on Port Arthur states that the action commenced on Monday, April 11. The bombardment was resumed the following (Tuesday) night at midnight. The Japanese destroyers sunk a Russian destroyer and narrowly missed capturing another. The battleship Petropavlovsk, the report says, struck a mechanical mine which had been submerged by the Japanese prior to the attack. The fleet reopened the attack April 14 and continued the bombardment until 1:30 p. m. the next day (Friday). In this action the guns of the cruisers Kasuga and Nisshin, which were purchased from Argentina before the outbreak of the war, were found to work satisfactorily. The Japanese loss was two men slightly wounded. Some slight damage was sustained by the Japanese ships. This since has been repaired. The Japanese fleet, the report declares, maneuvered among the enemy's mines without sustaining any damage.

Togo Reports.

Admiral Togo's report covering the naval action outside of Port Arthur which resulted in the sinking of the Petropavlovsk and the injury to the Pobieda is as follows:

"The fourth and the fifth destroyer flotillas, and the fourteenth torpedo flotilla, and the Keryo Maru reached the mouth of Port Arthur at midnight of the 12th, and effected the laying of mines at several points outside of the port, defying the enemy's searchlight.

"The second destroyer flotilla discovered at dawn of the 13th one Russian destroyer trying to enter the harbor, and after ten minutes' attack sunk it. Another Russian destroyer was discovered coming from the direction of Laotishan and was attacked, but it managed to flee into the harbor. On our side no casualties except two seamen on the Ikatsuchi slightly wounded.

Lured to Destruction.

"There was no time to rescue the enemy's drowned crews, as the Bayan approached. The third fleet reached outside of Port Arthur at eight a. m., when the Bayan came out and opened fire. Immediately afterward the Novik, Askold, Diana, Petropavlovsk, Pobieda and Poltava came out and made an offensive attack.

"Our third fleet, hardly answering and gradually retiring, enticed the enemy 15 miles southeast of the port, when our first fleet informed through wireless telegraphy from the third fleet, suddenly appeared before the enemy and attacked them.

Petropavlovsk Strikes Mine.

"While the enemy was trying to regain the port a battleship of the Petropavlovsk type struck mines laid by us the previous evening and sunk at 10:32 a. m. Although another ship was observed to have lost freedom of movement, the confusion of the enemy's ships prevented us from identifying it. They finally managed to regain the port.

"Our third fleet suffered no damage, and the enemy's damage beside above mentioned was probably slight also. Our first fleet did not reach firing distance.

"Our fleets retired at one p. m., prepared for another attack. They re-sailed April 14 toward Port Arthur. The second, the fourth and the fifth destroyer flotillas and the ninth torpedo flotilla also joined at three a. m. and seven a. m. No enemy's ship was found outside of the port. Our first fleet arrived at the port at nine a. m. and discovered three mines laid by the enemy, and destroyed all.

"The Kasagi and Nisshin were dispatched to the west of Laotishan, and made an indirect bombardment for two hours, it being their first action. The new forts on Laotishan were finally silenced. Our forces retired at 1:30 p. m."

Attributed to Heavenly Aid.

In concluding his report, Admiral Togo says: "The fact that not a single man was seriously injured in these successive attacks must be attributed to his majesty's glorious virtue. The officers and men proved gallant and did their utmost in the discharge of their duties, despite many things that seemed beyond human control.

"The ships freely moving over the enemy's ground without suffering any damage must be attributed to heavenly assistance."

FLAMES CAUSE A PANIC.

Fire Attacks Hospital at Indianapolis and One Woman Loses Her Life.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 19.—While the city fire department, reinforced by companies from the suburbs, was being taxed to its utmost fighting the Occidental hotel fire Sunday morning, an alarm was turned in from St. Vincent's hospital. When the first fire company arrived one life had been lost and several were seriously injured in the panic that followed.

Harriet Leahy, an old employe of the hospital, leaped from a window on the fourth floor, and when picked up was dead. In the rear, men and women were making ropes of bed clothing, by which they escaped to the ground below. Katherine Beach, less fortunate than the rest, lost her hold and fell from the third floor and is now in a critical condition from internal injuries sustained.

Several other nurses and attendants were more or less bruised in their endeavor to escape from what they thought was instant death.

Owing to the fireproof construction, the actual loss to the building will not exceed $1,000.

There were no additional deaths from the effect of the fire at St. Vincent's hospital up to noon Monday, but several of the patients who were carried out of the building and who had been operated upon but a few hours before, were in a very serious condition.

SETTLEMENT IS REACHED.

Iowa Coal Miners and Operators Sign Two Year Agreement at Des Moines.

Des Moines, Ia., April 19.—The coal operators and miners signed an agreement Monday under the terms of which Iowa mines will be operated for the two years dating from April 1 last. The scale was finally ratified by the miners' branch of the joint conference by a vote of 139 to 119.

The scale provides for a reduction of five cents on screened coal, three cents on mine run coal, a minimum of $1.80 for day laborers working on top and of 5.55 per cent. for all other grades of labor, while the price of powder remains at two dollars per keg. The scale is signed for two years and is the first biennial scale to be made in Iowa. The miners returned to work Monday.

Still Preparing Decision.

St. Paul, Minn., April 19.—No decision was handed down by the United States circuit court in the motion of E. H. Harriman and W. Pierce, for leave to intervene in the settlement of the Northern Securities company's affairs. Judge Sanborn said that the decision would be given on or before Thursday, April 21. The decision is in course of preparation.

Fatal Carelessness.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 19.—Guinani Bellimo, a foreign laborer in the Nixon mine of the Pittsburg Coal company at Heidelberg, near Carnegie, Pa., is supposed to have dropped a light, which exploded a charge of powder in the mine Sunday night. He paid the penalty with his life, and nine other miners, all foreigners, were injured.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

How We Grow.

Minnesota's leading cities have made substantial growth during the past three years, according to statistics just compiled by the census bureau showing the population based on estimates for the different cities during the years since decennial census of 1900.

The total for the six leading cities during 1901 was 470,000 and in 1902, 478,779, and during last year the total was 487,477.

Some of the leading cities made substantial gains during these years and the population statistics now show that St. Paul has advanced from 163,065 in 1900 to 172,039 in 1903. Minneapolis gains from 202,718 to 214,112. The growth of St. Paul has been steady each year, jumping up about 3,000 each since her decennial census in 1900.

Duluth has made a gain of about 5,000 during the three years, and is now given a population of 57,897. Mankato has increased from 10,599 to 11,127. Stillwater has made only a slight gain. Her total in 1900 being given at 12,318 and in 1903 at 12,636. A gain of nearly a thousand is noted in Winona, the total in 1900 being given at 19,747, and in 1903 the population was put at 20,167.

The growth of all these cities has been steady during each year since 1900.

The most interesting fact in connection with the growth of St. Paul is that it has thus far since 1900 gained practically in the same ratio as during the period from 1890 to 1900, and if the same ratio is continued the population in 1910 should be more than 200,000.

All Kinds of Ore.

Excitement incident to the mineral discoveries at Swanville is at its height. The rush of prospectors to the hills is well under way, and not a train comes into the station without leaving several strangers who have been attracted by the rumors of the presence of precious metals in hills and streams in the neighborhood.

At Irish creek and vicinity the country is being searched for gold and silver, strong evidences of which have been found. One man who has been at work there for several days has found quantities of the finest gold dust and small nuggets in the sand of the bed in the stream, and has had them on exhibition in the village a day or two. It also has been determined that bedrock lies only about twelve feet below the surface of the ground there and this is taken as a good indication.

Killed by Clothesline.

A clothesline is attributed as the primary cause of the death of Joseph Hammerschmidt, who died at his home, 442 Blair street, St. Paul. His parents refused to permit Coroner W. A. Miller to make an post-mortem examination on the ground that the clothesline was the cause of his death, and the coroner acceded to the wish of the relatives.

Mr. Hammerschmidt ran into a clothesline in the yard of his home last Christmas and fell backward, striking on the back of his head. He complained of pains in his head after the accident. He had attended a funeral the day he died. He returned to work in the afternoon and in the evening complained of pains in his head. Dr. Carl Wirth was called and decided that the patient had hemorrhage of the brain. Hammerschmidt died soon afterwards.

Business Boy.

John Hirstrio of Eveleth, who is only ten years old, has created quite a disturbance in Duluth railroad and pulpwood circles. This child in years transacts business with them like a man of years' experience. He is a Finlander, and his father is a pulpwood contractor who operates on the Mesaba range. The little boy comes to Duluth and contracts for cars, sells and receives the proceeds from the pulpwood and performs all the other business details relating to such transactions. He goes to hotel and registers like a veteran. Mr. Hirstrio remains at camp directing the work of cutting the pulpwood and loading it on the cars, and his ten-year-old son does the rest.

Typhoid Fever.

Dr. H. M. Bracken, secretary of the state board of health, has prepared a special report showing that there were 360 deaths from typhoid fever in Minnesota in 1903, an increase from 314 in 1902. The largest number of deaths occurred in Minneapolis, where 101 persons succumbed to the disease, as compared with sixty-four in the previous year.

The table bears out the fact that St. Paul is one of healthiest large cities in the country. There were only eighteen deaths from typhoid fever in the capitol city, a decrease of eight in 1902. Duluth had forty-one deaths in 1903 and thirty-two in 1902.

EFFECT OF A SURFEIT.

The man who owns a candy shop
Don't spend time eating candy
And munching nuts and drinking pop
Because the stuff is handy;
Somehow for such things he don't care
When he has plenty and to spare.

The saucy miss with twenty beaus
Is not in haste to marry,
And when one ventures to propose
The question she will parry;
She doesn't care to wear a ring
When she has several on the string.

The baker who has buns galore,
Perhaps enough to burn,
Does not consume a gross or more
With charming unconcern;
He passes by his rolls and cake
And orders up a juicy steak.

And thus it is along the line
With every one, I guess—
The luxuries for which we pine
Are not those we possess.
We turn away to other joys
Like children from their Christmas toys.

A Convenience Lacking.

"The Germans do not use the hyphen in making long compound words as we do."

A Waste of Money.

But it adorns a tail.

Worst Kind of Sign.

"Is it unlucky to break a looking glass?"

"Yes, if you are in a strange place and have not your pocketbook along."

Not Possible.

"Mamma, why is it there will be no marrying in heaven?"

"There wouldn't be men enough to go around, my dear child."

The Hunter's Weakness.

When a hunter kills a rabbit,
Oh, let him have a care
That when he comes to tell the tale
His friends don't find the rabbit frail
Has grown into a bear!

It is tough to ask for the hand of a girl and get the old man's foot instead.

Although Fourth of July is some time away, the doctors should busy themselves looking for the toy pistol germ.

Going to congress is a habit of which the voters have no trouble in breaking a man when they try.

An enterprising flirt can make a hero look like 30 cents.

When a man gets a raise in salary he is just that much ahead until his wife finds it out.

When a man's word is as good as his note look out for the note.

When a man with one wife marries another in haste he is apt to repent in the penitentiary.

It pains a man to part with a carbuncle, though he may not esteem it as his friend.

Whistler and His Model.

James MacNeill Whistler once owed a female model $5 for sittings. She was a Philistine of the Philistines, who knew nothing of her patron's fame and was in no way impressed with his work. One day she told another artist that she had been sitting to a little Frenchman called Whistler, who jumped about his studio and was always complaining that people were swindling him and that he was making very little money. The artist suggested that if she could get any piece of painting out of Whistler's studio he would give her $50 for it. Although skeptical, the model decided to tell her "little Frenchman" of this too generous offer and selected one of the biggest and finest works in the studio. "What did he say?" asked the artist who had made the offer when the model appeared in a state of great excitement and looking almost as if she had come second best out of a scrimmage. "He said: 'Fifty dollars! Good heavens! Fifty dollars!' And he got so mad—well, that's how I came in here like this."

Henley's Sufferings.

In fifty-four years of his life—he was born in 1849—W. E. Henley never knew what a day's perfect health meant. When little more than a boy he was attacked by a disease which necessitated the amputation of one foot. He was told later by the doctors that the sacrifice of the other leg was necessary were he to live. The fame of Dr. Lister had reached Henley, and, penniless and almost friendless, he determined to try Edinburgh infirmary. Thither he traveled third class in physical suffering such as few have known, and when he reached the infirmary his whole possessions amounted to a few shillings. His confidence in Lister was justified and his leg was saved. He was and remained a cripple, but neither hopeless nor helpless. His astounding nimbleness under these conditions suggested to Robert Louis Stevenson the physical sketch of John Silver.

The Red Sea.

Here is an interesting theory: What made the Red sea red? The blood of locusts. Read a few lines from Exodus: "And the locusts went up over all the land of Egypt and rested in all the coasts of Egypt; very grievous were they. Before them there were no such locusts as they, neither after them shall be such. For they covered the face of the whole earth, so that the land was darkened. And the Lord turned a mighty strong west wind, which took the locusts and cast them into the Red sea. There remained not one locust in all the coasts of Egypt." The Red sea today is no more red than any other sea. Its reddening was temporary.—New York Press.

What Is Gossip?

There has been complaint from the beginning of history that women are "curious." What is curiosity? It is the uneasy appetite of an ill fed mind. People fully educated and fully employed are not curious. Civilized woman has inherited the mental growth of man and then has had to confine that enlarged capacity to precisely the same field of activity which was sufficient for a squaw. Women have been accused for centuries of a tendency to "gossip." What is gossip? It is small talk about other people. The tendency to this vice is a reaction from the persistent presence of our own affairs.—Success.

Eugene Field's Sarcasm.

Eugene Field was once presented to a "sister poet," to whom he tried to say pleasant things. At last the lady inquired condescendingly, "Do you ever write yourself?" "A little," replied Field modestly. "And what did you say your name was?" "My name is Field—Eugene Field." "I have not heard of you before, Mr. Field," said the lady, with oppressive frankness. "No, madam," said Field, "nor I of you; but you might at least have pretended you had, as I did. Good afternoon."

The Nebular Hypothesis.

The nebular hypothesis survives in name, but with connotations indefinitely diversified. Regarding the modus operandi of cosmic change there is no consensus of opinion. That there was in the beginning a solar nebula all are agreed, but whether it was gaseous or pulverert, whether it shone with interrupted or continuous light, how it became ordered and organized, how it collected into spheres, leaving wide interspaces clear, the wisest are perplexed to decide.

His Position.

"Say, Chimmie, see dat man gettin' on de car? Dat's the postmaster general."

"Aw, he ain't no soldier general. He's de man wot hands out letters at de general delivery windy."—Kansas City Journal.

Insects Used For Medicine.

The cochineal insect is in some cases recognized as a medicine and at one time had a reputation for wonderful virtues. Honey and wax, often used in pharmacy, are insect products, while galls, used in medicine for the astringent properties and the gallic and tannic acid they furnish, are also the work of insects.—London Tit-Bits.

Duchesse de Berry at Dieppe.

Dieppe boasts of being the most ancient of all the "bains de mer." Henri III. repaired thither in 1578 "to bathe in the sea in order to cure certain ailments from which he suffered."

For a long time the Dieppe baths were reported to be efficacious in cases of hydrophobia. When Henry IV.'s little dog Fanor, had been bitten by a big dog, supposed to be mad, it was dispatched to Dieppe in charge of a groom of the chamber, "pour etre mouille dans la mer," and Mme. de Sevigne relates that some ladies of the court who had been bitten by a mad dog went there in 1671.

It was, however, the Duchesse de Berry who popularized Dieppe. She went there regularly from 1824 to 1830 and once took part in a really remarkable ceremony of inauguration on the beach. While cannon thundered and bells pealed and bands played she publicly entered the water, led by the hand by the "royal medical inspector of the baths," who was attired in evening dress with kid gloves. One would give a great deal for a snap shot of that performance.—Pall Mall Gazette.

The First American Bible.

In 1663 the first Bible printed in America was published in Cambridge. It was unlawful to print an English version of the Scriptures, that right being a monopoly enjoyed by privilege and patent in England. The one printed in Massachusetts was Eliot's famous "Indian Bible," and, although 1,500 copies were struck off, they are quite rare and "sealed books," as the tongue in which they are written is literally a "dead language," the tribe and all who had a knowledge of the dialect being long extinct.

Eliot's work is unique, being at once a monument to his piety, perseverance and learning. Its literary successor was Newman's "Concordance of the Scriptures." This was compiled by the light of pine knots in a log cabin in one of the frontier settlements of Massachusetts. It was the first of its kind and for more than a century was admitted to be the most perfect, holding its place in public esteem until superseded by Cruden's, which it suggested.

Uncovering the Past.

"All right," says the rich father, after the count has stated his terms. "I'll let Sadie marry you and agree to turn over to you $1,000,000. Now, let's get fixed up properly. Suppose we say $1,000 down and the balance at $2 a week?"

Here Sadie bursts into tears and leaves the room.

"Now, ma," says the rich father to his wife, "what on earth's the matter with that girl?"

"Well, I don't blame her at all, pa. It seems as if you never could keep from betraying the fact that we are of plebeian origin."

"What have I done now?" asks pa.

"Why, you talk as if you were buying the count from an installment house."—Judge.

Enough.

A New York man says that one of the most pathetic remarks he ever heard was made by a youngster who belonged on New York's east side. The little fellow was taken to Coney Island on an outing conducted by a charitable organization. He went down on the beach and stood for several minutes watching the waves rolling in. As far as he could see there was nothing but water, and the expanse of waves and whitecaps fascinated him. Heaving a deep sigh, the little fellow remarked, "Well, this is the first time I ever saw enough of anything."

Birds Flee Disease.

Professor Mascart has reported to the Paris Academy of Sciences that his observations proved the truth of the statement made by ancient writers that birds flee from cities and countries that are threatened with pestilence. He has found that birds that live in large cities, particularly sparrows and swallows, fly away when serious epidemics begin.

Thief River Press: There is one more good Indian. Frank Cobanness passed to the happy hunting grounds last Friday after a short but strenuous campaign waged against the fearful odds of Thief River fire water. Cobanness who had been drinking heavily on Thursday started for his home in the evening but upon reaching a point a short distance above the sorting gap he sat down on a stump. Here he was found the following morning by a number of his friends, he being then more dead than alive, and brought back to the city for attendance which however availed nothing and he shortly passed away. The man was a big strapping fellow and was well known around town, he having been for a number of years keeper of the half way house on the way to the Red Lake Agency.

If you have had the grip or feel "run down" from any cause you will find a sure health restorer in Cole's Bludbilder. It is a purely vegetable blood purifier and perfect spring tonic. $1.00 by all druggist.

Thief River Press: The talk of a Sunday train on the Great Northern is being taken seriously by the residents of the three towns and it is quite likely that the service will be established before the expiration of many weeks. With the opening up of good weather the train would certainly pay the company, as many people from Crookston and other neighboring towns would come to Thief River on a holiday just to see a good town, to look over the reservation in the immediate vicinity and to inspect the railroad work which will soon be under course of construction on both the Soo and Great Northern. Red Lake Falls residents are, of course, not so interested in seeing the new service go into effect for the reason that they already have a Sunday mail, but Thief River and St. Hilaire would be greatly benefited and if a petition were to be circulated every man, woman and child would sign.

VIEWERS' WORK COMPLETED

Estimated Cost of the Judicial Ditch in Red Lake and Polk Counties is $38,411.90.

The viewers of the judicial ditch running through Johnson, Equality and Garnes townships completed their work Tuesday afternoon and filed their report with Judge Watts at Crookston. The viewers are Ed. L. Stowe, of McIntosh; Joseph Pigeon, of Brooks, and Olaf Tande, of Garnes.

According to their figures 38,400 acres in Polk and Red Lake counties are directly affected and assessed for benefits while as much more in those two counties and Norman county are indirectly affected by the proposed ditch which is in Polk and Red Lake counties and empties in the Lost River.

The estimate of Engineer Ralph on the cost of the ditch was $33,064.83, but this did not include an emergency fund. There will be a date of hearing set in connection for the recording of objections to the assessments made by any of the property holders affected within a few weeks, following which the contract for the construction of the ditch will be let.

A Suicide Epidemic.

Fergus Falls Journal: Glenn Davison, cashier of the Farmers Savings bank at Fenton suicided Saturday by shooting himself. More than fifteen Iowa bankers have suicided since the epidemic started last fall. Speculation has led to the wrecking of their banks, and suicide seems to be all the rage in that state.

JOHN BAPTISTE QUESNELLE.

An Old and Respected Resident's Earthly Labors Ended.

John Baptiste Quesnelle, an old resident of the county, died Saturday night at 11:25 at the home of his son, Evangelist, after an illness of about ten weeks from catarrh of the lungs and bladder. The funeral was held Monday morning from the Terrebonne church, Rev. Father Fayolle officiating, and the remains interred in the Terrebonne cemetery.

The deceased was born in Huntington county, province of Quebec, Canada, in 1829, and at the time of his death was nearly 75 years of age. In early life he was married to Mrs. Elizabeth Racine, who died at McIntosh in 1895. Five children blessed the union, all but one of whom survive, Damien, the youngest, dying at McIntosh in 1893. The other children are John, living north of Mentor; Michel, Evangelist and Anthony, all living in the Badger neighborhood. Mr. Quesnelle moved to the vicinity of McIntosh in 1881, and ten years ago came to Red Lake county to make his home with his son, Evangelist. THE COURIER extends condolences to the relatives in their bereavement.

Consistency a Jewel.

DEAD CHIEFTAN IS HONORED

Chief Bemidji's Funeral Held Last Friday, Was a Remarkable Demonstration.

Never perhaps, in the history of the frontier life in this country, has there been witnessed such a remarkable demonstration of popular esteem for an Indian as was shown at the funeral of Chief Bemidji of the Cass Lake Chippewas, at Bemidji last Friday.

The chin and cheeks of the dead chieftan were streaked with bright vermillion, his medicine bag, tobacco pouch, bead sash and favorite hunting knife lay in the coffin with him ready for use in the happy hunting grounds he so confidently expected to reach.

Between two and three thousand people came to gaze upon the face of Indian whom most of them knew and all esteemed.

From 3 o'clock to 5 business in the city was gradually suspended and hundreds of people were unable to gain admission to the hall during the services.

Many of the relatives of Bemidji were present, concealing with true Indian stoicism the emotion they felt.

They had previously held services and a short sermon testified to the upright life of the chief and to the sincerity of his simple faith in a future life, and said that while the sands of time might obliterate the inscription on the monument to the beloved Indian which would be erected to him here, yet his memory will live in the minds of the people as long as the town named for him remained. The city officials who acted as pallbearers were Judge Reynolds, City Attorney Russell, Recorder Bailey and Aldermen Graham, Bowser and Hazen.

Mayor Ludington and a long line of citizens in carriages and on foot headed by a band, and different societies followed the remains to Greenwood cemetry where they were interred.

SHUFFLED OFF MORTAL COIL

Peter Engh, a Wyandotte Farmer, Commits Suicide After Maltreating His Wife in Drunken Spree.

Peter Engh, a Wyandotte farmer, committed suicide early last Thursday morning by hanging himself to the limb of a tree in the rear of his barn.

Recent events at his home lead up to the terrible deed. On Tuesday last Mr. Engh returned from St. Hilaire in a beastly state of intoxication and attacked his wife, beating her terribly, pulling the hair out of her head, and finally kicking her out of the house. The wife sought refuge at a neighbor's home, and for several days it was feared the injuries might prove fatal. The neighbors learned the state of affairs, and on Wednesday Engh was arrested and brought before Judge Lewis on the charge of wife-beating. He was sentenced to sixty days in jail, but the sentence was suspended during good behavior. There is no doubt but that Engh deserved to go to jail, but as he is a poor man and a jail sentence at this time of the year would interfere with putting in the crops on his farm, the justice decided to suspend the sentence.

Engh left Red Lake Falls Wednesday evening, going directly home, and it seems during the night brooded over the results of his misconduct and decided to end his life in the manner stated. Coroner Henry Grundy was summoned and found the evidences of suicide so apparent that no inquest was considered necessary.

REV. KNOX INSTALLED.

Adams Presbytery Holds Meeting for That Purpose.

Rev. Herbert W. Knox was formally installed as pastor of the Red Lake Falls Presbyterian church, at a special meeting of the Adams presbytery held in this city Thursday evening. The installation sermon was delivered by Rev. McLoed of Bemidji. Rev. R. N. Adams, pastor at large, gave the charge to the people and Rev. McKenzie of Crookston the charge to the pastor. The affair was impressive, and a large audience witnessed the ceremony.

BRIDEGROOM DIDN'T COME.

So The Young Lady Decided to Call The Engagement Off.

The course of true love ever takes a circuitous and uncertain route, and a couple of young people in this county are now wondering whether or not they are victims of a cruel fate. It seems that a Lambert young man was enamored of a young lady living north of town, and the wedding day was set for last week. However, the prospective groom found the roads were almost impassable, and wrote a note to his inamorata that the function would have to be postponed for a few days until he could get to her. The young lady had all arrangements made for the wedding, the cakes were baked, the guests summoned, and only the bridegroom was lacking.

The prospective bride, however, did not take kindly to the suggestion, and concluded that if her lover could send a note to her he could have come himself, and immediately suspended negotiations. It is safe to say that there will be no marriage in the immediate future.

INDIANS SIGN AGREEMENT

Special Agent Thomas Downs Completes Work on the Red Lake Reservation.

Col. Thomas Downs, special agent of the Indian department, went to Walker Saturday on his way to Washington from the Red Lake reservation, and made a report to Major Scott as to what he had accomplished towards inducing the Indians to vacate before June 20, and also as to appraisement of improvements on the lands that are offered for sale.

All the Indians signed the agreement to leave and under the law they will be paid for the buildings and gardens they are forced to abandon, and their dead will be removed to the diminished reservation. Twenty-one houses were found and appraised, and the location of about one hundred graves was recorded.

In nearly every instance the value of the cabin and garden was less than $100, but one Indian has good frame buildings, wire fencing and plowed fields, which are worth several thousand dollars.

Col. Downs says the trip through the reservation at this season of the year was an arduous one. He says the area to be vacated embraces a large amount of good, level, rich land, and should bring good figures at the sale. The Colonel left Wednesday for Washington.

ANOTHER SECRET SOCIETY.

Maccabees to Re-organize Saturday Evening at Kaus Hall.

The Maccabee lodge will be reorganized at the Kaus hall Saturday evening April 30 with 26 members. D. D. Harger, of Crookston, the deputy who has been engaged in the work of re-organizing the lodge, will be the instituting officer. ~~It is understood that the lodge~~ will lease the hall over Reichert's drug store, and as soon as it is properly fitted meetings will be held there. The Maccabees at one time had a strong organization in Red Lake Falls, and it is thought that most of the old members will apply for re-instatement.

DAIRY DEPARTMENT.

Edited by Geo. L. Austin, Manager of the Red Lake Falls Creamery.

W. W. P. McConnell, Dairy Commissioner—The fine quality of Minnesota butter is proved by the fact that during the last six months the average score of the butter submitted at the state's monthly contest was 93 per cent.

And some of the butter that helped make this high average was made right here in Red Lake county. He who says we can not make as good a quality of butter here as in the southern counties of the state is not acquainted with the facts. If the farmers will nse good judgment in caring for there milk and cream we will bring some of the prizes to our own county.

Owing to the scarcity and high price of grain, it will be a temptation for the dairy farmers to let their cows on the pasture as soon as the green grass begins to appear. This we believe to be a very serious mistake. Cows should be kept off the pasture until the ground is settled and the grass gets a good stait.

Will Find Out Through a Depleted Pocketbook.

It has been found again and again in this country and everywhere else, that it pays best to patronize the local creameries. Whenever there has been an attempt to centralize the creamery business and ship the cream from districts round about, it has proved a failure. Those farmers in this country who are arranging to send their cream to the Twin Cities will find this out for them selves one of these days, and their knowledge will reach them through a depleted pocketbook.—Journal, Owatonna, Minn.

In and Around the Cow Barn.

If you don't like milking sell the cows. you will never make any profit out of them in dairying. The first essential for profitable dairying is to enjoy the work.

Make the barn warm. It should not freeze in the coldest weather. It is the cold barn, the unclean conditions, the uncomfortable stool and the half fed cow that makes milking repulsive.

Clean out the barn every day. Sunday not excluded. Use plenty of bedding. Go through the barn three times a day and keep the bedding fixed so that it will be impossible for the cow to get dirty.

If you have considerable work feed but twice a day. Feed the grain just before milking, the roughage after. There is no difference which is fed first as to the digestibility or the effect upon the amout of milk gixen. Feeding the grain before milking creates less dust and the cow steps around less in eating it than with roughage. It is a good plan to feed something just before milking as the cows get up and are ready for business.

Don't think it is better for a cow's health to stand out in the cold. A little turn out every day except when the temperature is below zero is a good thing, but never any longer than the cow wants to stay out. A cow makes little milk while humped up in the corner of the yard.

A little salt every dav thrown in the manager will cause the cow to drink with regularity. Never give any more salt than the cow will lick up at once—about a tablespoonful. A little hard wood ashes mixed with the salt during the winter will keep the cows from chewing the manager. This should be given to the young stock and calves. Hardwood ashes is a better medicine than International Stock Food and considerable cheaper.

Standpatters on Top.

Morris Times: The stand patters have got it all their own way in the Republican party. Even the Minnesota Branch of the American Reciprocity League has thrown up its hands and quit. Professing to be in ernest, it calmly quits just when the fighting begins. If it was sincere it would stay in the fight and help John Lind go back to congress, or help any other congressman who had a ghost of a show of being elected and who stood squarely for reciprocity. It must have been made up of a lot of sunshine patriots and fair weather reformers.

FEMALE WEAKNESS

PORTLAND, MAINE, Oct. 17, 1902.

I consider Wine of Cardui superior to any doctor's medicine I ever used and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pains would shoot through my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt discouraged for I seemed to be beyond the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment I menstruated without suffering the agonies I usually did and soon became regular and without pain. Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish that all suffering women knew of its good qualities.

Wilhelmina Snow
Treasurer, Portland Economic League.

Periodical headaches tell of female weakness. Wine of Cardui cures permanently nineteen out of every twenty cases of irregular menses, bearing down pains or any female weakness. If you are discouraged and doctors have failed, that is the best reason in the world you should try Wine of Cardui now. Remember that headaches mean female weakness. Secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui today.

This certainly is fair, and has been done in a number of instances. The result has been that the other people had to pull their machines out, while we have never yet had a "Laval" Separator returned. We do not peddle these Separators around the country, but will be glad to bring one to anybody on ten days' trial.

Good Yeast

To make good bread, you must have good yeast. It's the first requisite. You never saw a sweet, well-raised loaf without it. Every loaf made with Yeast Foam is sweet and well-raised, good to look at and better to taste.

The root of indigestion is sour, heavy bread which forms acid in the stomach. The cure is light, digestible bread raised with

THE COUNTY PRESS.

Thief River News: W. A. Schreiter up from Red Lake Falls last week looking over his business interests here. He stated that the work of repairing the dam would be commenced about the first of May.

Thief River News: County Commissioners O. J. Johnson and James Sutoa were in the city last Sunday looking over the repairs make to the bridge across the Red Lake river here for which the county pays the bills.

St. Hilaire Spectator: We can truly say "we are glad the Red Lake reservation is going to be opened." We opened part of it in 1896 and had the worst spring on record, and we are in for another bunch of bad weather. If we have any more reservations to open let us try it in the winter.

Thief River News; E. E. Zeh, treasurer of the local school district last Sunday received a check for $356.33 from the treasurer of polk county, being the amount due this district before Red Lake county was set off from Polk. The fact that any money was due the district from Polk county had been forgotten and comes in the nature of a pleasant suprise.

St. Hilaire Spectator: The Merchants State Bank has received the preliminary plans for their new bank building from Bert D. Keck, the Crookston architect. The plans call for a one-story pressed brick front built with a large plate glass front and the entrance on the north side. The buliding is to be 25x40 and will be decided improvement to the looks of the town.

Thief River Press: Fred Halda, a young man residing on the east side, died Wednesday morning of cousumption. The funeral will occur today. He has been an employee of the mill company for the past three or four years. He was a mamber of the local lodge M. B. A. in which he carried life insurance and it is possible the lodge will take charge of the funeral arrangements. A wife and two brothers survive

Thief River Press: A celebration was gave in the Catholic church Sunday evening. A solemn baptism was conducted, the new members admitted being Mrs. Mary Gradwich, Mrs. John Baker and Miss Mildred Surr. Also the members of the Catholic Order of Foresters marched in a body from the hall to the church where the address was given by Rev. Fr. Ansgar, of Red Lake Falls. The church building was literally packed, the audience being probably the largest in the history of the church at this place.

Thief River News: Farmers are not discouraged on account of the fact that seeding will be very late this spring. The soil is going to be fine shape for tilling this spring and garden land will be as mellow as ashes. The deep frost is a disintegrator that beats all pulverizers and loosens the soil to the depth of five or six feet. With reasonable weather 1904 ought to be a record breaker as a crop producer. All the elements of the grounds are right, plenty of moisture, and the wet years preceding them have got the soil in just right shape to make it 'lift things' when the warm days come.

HAVE SMALL FOOD VALUE.

The Fancy Breakfast Foods Chiefly Valuable for their Package.

The experiment station of the Iowa State agricultural college has made a successful analysis of the various kinds of breakfast foods sold, such as Force, Korn Krisp, Egg-o-See, Norka, Ralston Health Food, and twenty or more other kinds of so called predigested foods. It claims that while they are palatable and not harmfuf, they are not what they claim to be. The conclusions reached at the station are as follows:

1st. The breakfast foods are put up in an attractive form and many of them are pleasing to the taste. The state-ments printed on the packages are greatly exaggerated and little reliance can be placed in many of them.

2nd The cost of the prepared foods is ten to sixteen cents per pound and the unprepared six to seven cents per pound. These products do not posses any nutritive value in excess of the ordinary food materials which cost only from 1½ to 3 cents per pound.

3rd The claims made for many of the predigested foods are little or no value.

4th. The breakfast foods are not medicines and no reliance should be placed in statements which claim that they are a remedy for any disease.

CONGRESS HELD A BUSY SESSION

BRIEF RESUME OF IMPORTANT WORK ACCOMPLISHED BY THE SENATE AND HOUSE.

Over 1,400 New Laws Have Been Enacted—A Total of 21,605 Bills and Resolutions Introduced in Both Branches—The Appropriations.

Washington, April 25.—The important legislative accomplishments of the first and special sessions of the Fifty-eighth congress were confined to two subjects—Cuba and Panama. The reciprocity treaty between the new island republic and the United States, intiated by President McKinley, was made operative by a legislative enactment. The ratification of a treaty by the senate and the subsequent initiation of legislation for the government of the canal zone commit the United States to the construction of the Panama canal connecting the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. The special session, now denominated the first session, was called for the express purpose of carrying out the pledge of the nation to Cuba. The Panama development was one which rose suddenly and received decisive and immediate action at the hands of President Roosevent and the senate.

More Than 1,400 New Laws.

While a total of over 1,400 bills became laws during the two sessions, less than 150 of them were "public' bills.

In the house there were 15,398, bills, 349 resolutions, 152 joint resolutions and 61 concurrent resolutions introduced. Of these 2,253 passed the house. In the senate there were 5,645 bills introduced.

Appropriations.

Chairman Hemenway, of the house committee on appropriations, in a statement compiled under his direction, gives the total of all supply bills (subject to slight changes in pending bills), as $597,802,334, to which must be added $64,971,820 for interest on the public debt. The estimated revenues are $704,472,060. By these figures the expenses are $22,000,000 less than the revenues. The estimates of the various government departments on which the appropriation bills were based, exceeded the total estimated revenues by $42,845,862.

Pension Legislation.

The only general pension legislation which became a law makes the pension of those who totally lost their sight in the military or naval service $100 per month. The general order making age an evidence of physical disability to perform manual labor was issued by the secretary of the interior and recognized by congress in a deficiency appropriation of $1,500,000 to make it effective.

The Postal Scandals.

The only direct dealings which congress had with the "postal scandals" was the investigation by the house of the connection of its members with clerk hire increases in third and fourth class post offices and representations regarding leases. This investigation cleared every member from any improper conduct in the matter.

Aid for Exposition.

The Louisiana Purchase Exposition company received a loan of $4,600,000 from the government, of which $100,000 is to pay the expenses of the board of lady managers.

The government is to participate in the exposition to be held at Portland, Ore., in 1905, for the commemoration of the one hundredth anniversary of the exploration of Oregon by the Lewis and Clarke expedition, to the extent of an exhibit to cost $450,000 and an Alaskan exhibit to cost $25,000.

Beef Trust Investigation.

The house by independent, action, directed an investigation of the alleged "beef trust" by the department of commerce and labor. The attorney general was given the benefit of the unexpended appropriation made the last congress for the prosecution of the trust, an amount aggregating $475,000.

The Swayne Case.

Impeachment proceedings were begun in the house against Federal Judge Charles Swayne, of the northern district of Florida, but after a majority report from the committee favoring impeachment, the matter was sent back to committee and made a special order for the next session.

Labor Legislation.

Legislation directly affecting the labor interests of the country received consideration in the committee of the two houses, but final action was not taken. The eight-hour bill was referred to the department of commerce and labor for investigation asd report, and the anti-injunction bill was postponed by the committee until the next session.

New States.

The ceration of two additnonal states in the union was provided for in a bill which passed the house, but not the senate. Oklahoma and Indian Territory were united as Oklahoma, Arizona and New Mexico as Arizona.

The right of Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, to his seat in the senate resulted in an investigation, still in progress, involving the Mormon religion and practices.

Senator Hanna and seven mmbers of the house have died.

Four Tramps Killed.

THE NATIONAL CONGRESS.

Summary of Work Done in Senate and House by the Lawmakers at the Fifty-Eighth Session.

Washington, D. C., April 20.—The question of additional accommodations in the way of office and committee rooms occupied the attention of the senate the greater part of the day Tuesday. The house passed the statehood bill, which provides that one state each shall be created of the territories of Arizona and New Mexico and Oklahoma and Indian Territory. The vote was 147 to 104.

Washington, April 21.—The senate Wednesday listened to a set speech of almost two hours' duration on the trusts by Senator Dolliver, and afterwards completed consideration of the sundry civil appropriation bill. The house, after an extended debate, sent the naval appropriation bill back to conference. A bill providing for the allotment of the lands of the New York Indians was passed.

Washington, April 22.—The pension appropriation bill, carrying an apprpopriation of over $137,000,000, and the emergency, river and harbor appropriation bill, which carried $3,000,000, were passed Thursday by the senate. The house passed a large number of bills, among them being one to provide a temporary government for the Panama canal zone.

Washington, April 23.—In the senate Friday the general deficiency bill was discussed. Senator Gallinger made a speech on the republican tariff policy, and Senator Cullom spoke on the house Chinese exclusion rider. In the house Mr. Kitchen (N. C.) delivered a bitter attack on Presidest Roosevelt. He declared him to be an advocate of lynching, unfit to hold office and a dangerous man. He declared that the president had insulted the people of the south by saying in one of his publications that throughout the southern character there ran a streak of brutal barbarism.

Washington, April 25.—In the senate Saturday the general deficiency bill was passed, including an amendment limiting the Chinese exclusion legislation to a reaffirmation of the exclusion law of 1902 and other existing exclusion laws. In the house the senate amendment to the pension bill was agreed to, and the conference report on the naval bill was adopted.

Washington, April 25.—The house was in session for over five hours Sunday for the purpose of paying tribute to the memory of the late Senator Marcus A. Hanna, the late Mr. C. W. Thompson (Ala.) and the late Mr. W. W. Skiles (O.).

CHECKED BY BAD WEATHER.

Distribution of Merchandise Affected, and Collections Are Made More Difficult.

New York, April 23.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: "Unseasonable weather is still the chief drawback to improvement in business, complaints being received from every section of the country, and slower collections are also attributed to this factor. Not only is current distribution of merchandise, particularly dry goods, affected by the thermometer, but future commitments are undertaken most conservatively on account of the possible injury to crops. There is much confidence regarding the future, despite the fact that at many points supplies of merchandise are burdensome.

"Failures this week numbered 241 in the United States, against 166 last year, and 12 in Canada, compared with 15 a year ago."

Bradstreet's says: "Unseasonably cold weather all over the country interferes with plant preparations and growth, and interrupts outdoor activities in many lines, notably building. Distributive trade, both wholesale and retail, has practically "marked time" during the week. The effect of this and of past unfavorable weather are reflected in reports of slow business in shoe manufacturing and building, while in cotton manufacturing high prices of raw and manufactured goods continue a bar to activity. At the south, cold weather is complained of as interfering with farming preparations and with plant growth. Those causes have combined to give an air of unwonted quiet to spring business and have unquestionably retarded collections. Back of weather and price conditions, too, there looms up the political outlook, which in most presidential years has induced a tendency toward conservatism."

Big Conference Near.

Chicago, April 25.—Methodists throughout the United States are looking forward with keen interest to the general conference of their church, which will assemble in Los Angeles, Cal., May 3 and which is expected to last a month. For the first time women will sit in the conference as delegates, a triumph of 14 years of agitation. For the first time also the clergy will outnumber the lay delegates. There will be approximately 360 clergymen and 360 lay members. The women will number about 25.

Acquitted.

Grand Rapids, Mich., April 21.—State Senator David E. Burns was acquitted Wednesday of bribery in connection with the Lake Michigan water scandal. The charge of bribery against Senator Burns related to a bill which he introduced in the state legislature of 1898. It was alleged that this bill was backed by the men interested in the water deal and that Senator Burns was paid $200 for his efforts in support of the measure.

CRUSHES OUT THE LIFE

The most loathsome and repulsive of all living things is the serpent, and the vilest and most degrading of all human diseases is Contagious Blood Poison. The serpent sinks its fangs into the flesh and almost instantly the poison passes through the entire body. Contagious Blood Poison, beginning with a little ulcer, soon contaminates every drop of blood and spreads throughout the whole system. Painful swellings appear in the groins, a red rash and copper colored splotches break out on the body, the mouth and throat become ulcerated, and the hair and eye brows fall out; but these symptoms are mild compared to the wretchedness and suffering that come in the latter stages of the disease when it attacks the bones and more vital parts of the body. It is then that Contagious Blood Poison is seen in all its hideousness. The deep eating abscesses and sickening ulcers and tumors show the whole system is corrupted and poisoned, and unless relief comes soon this serpent disease tightens its coils and crushes out the life. The only antidote for the awful virus is S. S. S. It is nature's remedy, composed entirely of vegetable ingredients. S. S. S. destroys every vestige of the poison, purifies the blood and removes all danger of transmitting the awful taint to others. Nothing else will do this. Strong mineral remedies, like mercury and potash, dry up the sores and drive in the disease, but do not cure permanently.

JOHN E. KING, Chairman.
S. F. STAPLES, Secretary.

JOHN MOONLIGHT was arrested at Bemidji last week for the theft of an overcoat. It is likely that John prefers to work in the dark.

IF you must speculate be prudent. Don't plunge on margins until you have remembered to pay your debts and provide for household necessities.

IN a letter to the St. Hilaire Spectator Congressman Steenerson goes on record against the free admission of Canadian wheat to the United States.

ALL will agree with the Sauk Centre Herald, which says that "a man who can't make a living without an office will make a mighty poor officer."

WHEN the leading Republican newspapers will concede that Judge Parker would be a formidable adversary there must be some reason for the alarm in the camp of the Republicans.

OUT in the country the Dunn sentiment seems to be exceptionally strong. The farmers of northern Minnesota have always been admirers of Bob Dunn, and a whole lot of them propose to see that instructed delegations go the state conventions.

THE University of Chicago is to spend $3,000,000 in making itself the American Oxford. Doubtless President William Rainey Harper thinks it is time to get a little more free advertising for his little school. But this English idea is dangerous. It may keep some Americans away.

WILLIAM J. BRYAN is making a mistake in insisting that the Democratic party shall go into the campaign weighted down by a platform of dead issues. There is no more logic in the party re-affirming the platform of 1896 or 1900 than there is in re-affirming the platform of 1848.

THE Adrian Democrat tells of a Worthington man who went to a physician to get a prescription to cure himself and wife of chills. The doctor prescribed equal parts of whisky and quinine. The man took the whisky and gave his wife the quinine and, do you know, they are both well to-day.

JOHN R. WILLIAMS, an Illinois congreesman, is suggested as an admirable candidate for vice-president on the Democratic ticket. Parker and Williams would make an excellent combination. They come from the states which it is essential for the Democrats to carry, and they are both men in whom the party can place implicit faith and confidence.

A. M. CLELAND is the successor of Chas. S. Fee as general passenger agent of the Northern Pacific. Mr. Fee has occupied this position upwards of twenty years, and much of the development of the road is a result of his efforts. Mr. Cleland commenced at the bottom, and has worked his way to the top. No doubt he will prove as popular and competent as his distinguished predecessor.

W. W. PRICHARD, cashier of the First National bank, and one of the leading citizens of Thief River, announces his candidacy for county commissioner from that district to succeed Louis Hanson. Mr. Prichard has every qualification for this post. He is a thorough business man, an estimable gentleman, honorable and conscientious. The people of Thief River Falls would make no mistake in selecting him as a member of the board.

AN exchange says a good citizen is a man who takes pride in his home town and pays his honest debts, speaks well of his neighbors, takes his home paper and pays for it, and who doesn't squeeze every twenty-five cent piece until the agonized screams of the eagle can be heard a mile down the road. He will measure twelve inches to the foot every way, will bathe and change his shirt once a week, and will see that the woman he loves does not have to use a hedge fence for a clothes line or break up any barrels for fuel.

IT begins to look as though the two national conventions this year would be nothing more than ratification meetings. The nomination of President Roosevelt has been a foregone conclusion for months, and now it appears to be only a degree less certain that Judge Parker will be the candidate of the Democrats. Every day the Hearst campaign becomes more ridiculous, the Bryan influence on the party weaker, and the movement toward Parker stronger and more representative. The south has all along said that it would accept New Yoak's decision as to the Democratic presidential nominee this year, and even without instruction for him by the state convention last week there could be no doubt that Judge Parker is "New York's candidate" in every essential sense of the term.

Never Heard of It.

One of the strangest paradoxes recently appearing in the foreign press is the statement that the great majority of the Japanese public have never heard of Japan. Our authority for this is perfectly reliable and goes on to say that the reason for this ignorance is that the Japanese call their country Mihon or Nipon. A mere matter of names doesn't count for much to be sure, except when one is ordering golden grain belt beer for his family. To get a tonic for an overworked body and a pleasant tasting beverage, this golden grain belt beer is a name to conjure with. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

A FREEZE-OUT GAME.

Red Lake Falls People Probably Caught in a Mining Enterprise.

Ovide Emard left yesterday for Salt Lake City and other points in Utah, where he will look over the country and attend to business matters. The chief object of Mr. Emard's trip is to look into the affairs of a copper mining company in which he and a number of other Red Lake Falls citizens are interested to the extent of about $2,000. About a year ago L. Von Hecke, a foamer Red Lake Falls business man, sold stock to a number of his friends in this vicinity, and it now transpires that the smaller stockholders are up against a freeze-out game. It is possible that legal proceedings will be instituted by the Red Lake Falls people to preserve their rights.

MINNESOTA DAY.

Tuesday, June 7, Will Be the State's Day at St. Louis.

Minnesota day at the St. Louis exposition will be Tuesday, June 7. The announcement is made in a circular issued by the executive committee of the Minnesota Editorial association. The annual excursion of the association will leave St. Paul June 4 and the editors will spend seven days at the exposition, stopping at the "Inside Inn." They will have charge of the exercises June 7, when the Minnesota building will be dedicated. The Minnesota commissioners will be there, and arrangements are being made to have Governor Van Sant and his staff present. Senator Nelson and Congressman Tawney are expected to deliver addresses.

The editors will go by the Minneapolis & St. Louis railway, leaving St. Paul at 6 o'clock the evening of June 4, and arriving at the exposition grounds Sunday, June 5, at 2 o'clock. The start home will be made one week later, June 12, arriving in the Twin Cities again June 13.

A Puff for Rep. Simons.

Julius Schmahl, chief clerk of the house, in Redwood Gazette: Two members of the last legislature who are seeking renomination and reelection at the hands of their constituents are Rasmus L. Mork of Faribault county and L. C. Simons of Red Lake county. Both should be returned. The former was a true representative of the farming interests in the house, and his vote was always recorded on the right side, as was also that of Mr. Simons, who by reason of representing a new county, was obliged to ask for a vast amount of legislation, and so well did he stand with his colleagues that he was successful in every measure he presented.

Profits Over Three Millions.

A summary of the yearly reports of all the old line fire insurance companies doing business in this state shows that in Minnesota during 1903 the trust fire insurance companies collected on premiums from policy holders in Minnesota $5,110,661.57 and paid out for losses $1,861,156.29. It costs the people a dollar to get insurance that was worth to them 35 cents. The balance was all a rake off for the insurance men except a moderate sum for actual expenses. It is astonishing that a single dollar is paid to these sharps. The farmers have to a large extent cast off this yoke of high rates by organizing mutual companies of their own, but city people continue to pay these enormous profits to the insurance corporations. The hardware and lumber men are the only ones so far who have had the sense and backbone to stand from under this insurance octopus.

The Lights Went Out.

Crookston Journal: Oscar Fredrickson, the genial bookkeeper of the Scandia bank, spent Sunday at Red Lake Falls and thereby hangs a tale. It seems that Mr. Erickson made the trip to Red Lake Falls on the usual business, which takes a young man from home on Sunday clad in his flashiest clothes. While relating the enjoyment of the trip in the bank yesterday he said "And at nine-thirty the lights went out." It seems quite evident that what transpired after the lights went out is most vividly impressed on Mr. Fredrickson's mind.

A base ball club was recently organized, and it is safe to say that Red Lake Falls will have a strong team this year. Arthur LaPlante is manager of the club, and E. G. Buse captain. Nearly all of the members of last year's club have signified their willingness to join the club this year.

Auditor Ford, S. A. Swanson, Frank Jeffers, Fred Borchers, County Attorney Grady and John E. King went to St. Hilaire Thursday evening to assist the Odd Fellows in conferring degree work on two candidates. A banquet was spread and the Red Lake Falls brethren were treated royally.

The Thief River Review claims to have information that the Great Northern will put a Sunday passenger train on this line about the 15th of May. We hope this is true, but as the road does not run a Sunday train on any of the branch lines it is hard to believe they will make an exception in this case.

Marriage licenses were issued this week by Clerk Perrault to the following parties: Chris O. Myrold of Thief River Falls and Annie Woldnes of Numedal; Joseph Golle and Maren Gradvig, both of Thief River Falls; Ole Nelson and Julia Jorgenson, both of Garnes; Nils J. Askland of Johnson township, Polk county, and Betsy Libak of Equality.

The hearing in the injunction proceedings commenced by Mrs. Augusta Krueger to restrain John A. Duffy from repairing the building in block 7 damaged by the fire of March 15, was held before Judge Watts at Crookston Monday evening, F. A. Grady appearing for Mrs. Krueger and C. E. Boughton for Mr. Duffy. A decision has not as yet been handed down.

Prof. E. W. Chamberlain, of Pine City, who was elected superintendent of the city schools last week, is expected in Red Lake Falls Saturday to confer will the board of education relative to school affairs. There are still five vacancies in the corps of teachers to fill, and it is likely that applications for these places will be considered at the time of Prof. Chamberlain's visit.

The new townsite company at Breese is booming their location for all it is worth. The best corner lots are selling at $500 and other business locations are away up in G. A Warren firm has bought a corner lot at Ingalls, the second town on the new line, and will erect a big general store building and a bank will soon be in operation at the same place, as well as Breese.

A teacher in a certain school recently received the following note from the mother of a boy who had been absent for a day or two: "Dere Mam—plese eggscuse Willy. There's a green "one," with Livingston's portrait; a red "two," with Jefferson's; a purple "three," with Monroe's; a blue "five," with McKinley's, and a brown "ten," with map showing territory of the Louisiana purchase.

Can some lawyer tell us why twelve, and not a greater or smaller number, was adopted to compose a jury? Some one has said it was adopted because the prophets were twelve, there were twelve Jewish judges, twelve patriarchs, twelve tribes of Israel, twelve stones in Aaron's breast plate, twelve gates at Jerusalem, twelve signs of the zodiac. When juries were first established, the judge took them around with him in a cart until they agreed; if they failed to agree they when fined and imprisoned.

A dealer who buys thousands of dollars worth of chickens every year, and something of a joker, has answered the query, "How can you tell a female chicken from a male when newly hatched? Here is his finding bosed on years of experience: Place a lighted lamp on the table, also some bread crumbs, and if he eats it, it is a male; if she eats it, it is a female." The same authority being asked how to tell a bad egg, says: "When you want to tell a bad egg, break it gently."—Ex.

The local lodge of Odd Fellows celebrated the eighty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the order in America by a card and dancing party at their hall Tuesday evening. The largest crowd that ever attended a party given by the Odd Fellows was present, and it goes without saying that everybody had a good time. Lunch was served at midnight. The winners at cards were B. Sivigney and Mrs. Frank Brouillette, and the booby champions were Emery Lasha and Mrs. R. H. Bourdon.

It is expected that the locations for the new Soo towns in the eastern part of the county will be determined this week. It is a good guess that the first town will be located on section 14, Poplar River, and L. C. Simons, of this city, will be the town lot agent and promoter. The next town will probably be on section 4, Emardville, near the Clearwater crossing. Julius Pleth, of St. Hilaire, will be the promoter of this burg. It is quite likely that another town will be established in Wyandotte township, about due east of St. Hilaire.

Crookston Journal: Attorney Francis Bergstrom who has practiced law in this city during tne past year, has decided to move to Boston where he will open offices for practice. Mr. Bergstrom was last winter admitted to the Massachussets bar and the presence of near relatives in that state has been considerable of an inducement for the change. Mr. Bergstrom during his residence in the city has made many friends who wiil regret his departure. He will undoubtedly get things packed up in time to take the Saturday night train.

E. R. Wrightman came up this week from New Richland to settle on section 16, Louisville, which he bought last summer of Crookston parties. The farm had a set of buildings on it at the time he purchased it, but on arriving here he found that somebody had moved the buildings off, and Mr. Wrightman is in a dilemma. So far he has been unable to find out who is responsible for the depredation. The section was formerly school land and the buildings were erected by squatters, and it is supposed that these people probably decided to help themselves to the property.

These lands will be disposed of to the highest bidder, and cannot be sold for less than $4 per acre. A payment of one-fifth of the purchase price in cash will be required. and the balance divided in five equal annual payments, without interest.

We have secured a limited number of copies of the Smiley map of Red Lake County and the Red Lake Indian Reservation. These maps are 28x38 inches, and show the grade and quality of each and every quarter-section of land in the portion of the Reservation to be opened for settlement; it gives the number of acres of timber and the kind of timber on each quarter. This map was compiled from the personal notes of Mr. Smiley and from the Government notes thereof. We studed the Elm and Palm of Gilead bud last Tuesday.

The sixth grade is finishing the study of the United States.

The children are bringing boquetts to the teachers nowadays.

We are rid of all the mud which has made the rooms so dirty.

The boys are piling up wood to make bigger grounds for foot ball.

Miss Fletcher's room has some nice plants, also some new children.

Peter Kilburg has been absent owing to the death of his brother, John.

The fifth and sixth grades in their study of moss have fifteen different kinds.

The fith grade is now drawing a map of the northwestern section of the United States.

The Washington school children are going to clean the school yard instead of planting trees on Arbor Day.

The program which was to be held Friday the 29th will be held May 6th because April 29th is Arbor day.

Worth Reading.

In all the Baking Powder "Wars" that have been intermittently waged in the last twenty years, there is one point that has been overlooked by the belligerent makers of these goods. Rival manufacturers have contented themselves with accusing their competitors of making an unwholesome product. The question of keeping quality, and, therefore, efficiency in raising bread, the only purpose for which baking powder is used, appears to have been generally ignored. There are many powders which, when fresh, and the can is first uncovered, will do fairly good work, but after standing for some time on the pantry shelf, the powder becomes so weak as to be almost worthless as far as raising bread is concerned. This is especially true in the case of the so-called "Phosphate" powders, which, were it not for this fatal defect, would be satisfactory baking powders. The unsuccessful attempts to overcome this fault of the "Phosphate" powders has enlisted the services of more chemists and cost more money than the solution of any other problem connected with the raising of bread. The makers of these "Phosphate" powders raise a great cry about the wonderful healthfulness of their product, but what matters all this if the powder will not fulfill, the only object for which it is purchased? The housewife to whom economy is an object will avoid these "Phosphate" powders.

Bowser's Bad Night

He Takes In a Neighbor's Baby to Care For and Something Happens — Mrs. B.'s Kind Heart Again the Target of Her Husband's Criticism and Sarcasm

[Copyright, 1903, by C. B. Lewis.]

"YOU see," began Mrs. Bowser, by way of explanation, as Mr. Bowser came home and found a two-year-old child on her knee and stood and stared with open mouth, "this is Mrs. Green's child. You've often noticed him in their front yard. She got a telegram this afternoon that her sister was taken suddenly ill and had to go at once. Her husband is away, you know, and she asked me if it would put us out any to let baby stay here overnight. I knew you wouldn't have any objections."

"At the first howl out he goes!" replied Mr. Bowser.

"But he won't howl. His mother says she has not been up with him a single night since he was born."

"Then he can hang around. What's he looking that way at me for?"

"You are strange to him, you know. Take him up and give him a toss, and let him see that you don't intend to bite him."

Mr. Bowser started out to get on more familiar terms with the youngster, but his efforts were so clumsy that he had to desist or hear a howl, and thereafter he gave the stranger but scant attention. The child was put to bed soon after dinner, and as Mrs. Bowser came downstairs again she said:

"He went right to sleep like the little angel that he is, and he probably won't wake up before 7 o'clock in the morning. I'm glad you were not cross about my keeping him."

"You seem to have the idea that I'm an old bear," replied Mr. Bowser as if a bit hurt.

"No, not that; but you don't care for children."

"Who said I didn't? I'd be glad if we had six—that is, I wish we had six children, but I'd be doubtful of your fitness to bring them up. Of course, I should take their training into my own hands."

Mrs. Bowser didn't reply to the shot, and a little later he settled himself down to his newspaper. He had been reading for about ten minutes when he suddenly exclaimed:

"By George, but such a man as that ought to be burned at the stake!"

"What is it?" she asked.

"Why, a St. Louis father was so mad at having to get up in the night with a sick child that he broke its neck. If it had been in this town, I'd have led a mob to lynch him before noon next day. Beats all what fiends some fathers are! Poor, sick child! How could it help crying out?"

"Yes," sighed Mrs. Bowser as she looked at him askance.

"I've a good mind to write to a St. Louis paper and suggest that he be skinned alive," muttered Mr. Bowser as he got up and walked around. "Seizing his own flesh and blood and breaking its neck because it woke him out of his sleep! I can't believe we have such fiends in this country, and yet it must be true."

He was so upset that it was a quarter of an hour before he could sit down and resume his paper, and he was quite put out because Mrs. Bowser hadn't more to say about it. He read the article again and again, with stronger comments each time, and he finally had to go out and sit on the front steps to cool off. When bedtime came and Mrs. Bowser pointed to the kid fast asleep with a thumb in his mouth, Mr. Bowser got so fatherly that he bent over and kissed the little one and said he was an angel. An hour later, while dreaming that he had caught the St. Louis man and was breaking his neck, Mrs. Bowser awoke him by saying:

"I wish you'd get up. Baby acts as if he might have a fit!"

"Wha-what's the matter?" asked Mr. Bowser as he sat up and rubbed his eyes.

"Baby is sick. You'll have to get hot water and fill the footbath."

Mr. Bowser winked and blinked like an owl at noonday and then fell back [illegible] Bowser aroused him [illegible] nute, and he swung [illegible] nd shouted. [illegible] rry is all this [illegible] what ails that [illegible] ns sick. It's his eyeteeth, I suppose, and I'm afraid he'll have a fit."

"Fit! Fit! Hear him yell! See him kick! It's simply pure cussedness, Mrs. Bowser, and he wants a good licking instead of hot water. He's been encouraged in the habit of waking up every night and howling around, and now you can take care of him."

"This is the first night he has disturbed any one for months. Poor child! See how flighty he looks! Please get the hot water."

"The idea of a cub like him upsetting the whole house in this way!" growled Mr. Bowser as he went stumbling about. "I believe he does it just to be ugly. If he'd had a good licking before he went to bed he'd have been all right!"

"If he should die, Mr. Bowser, you'd feel sorry all your life."

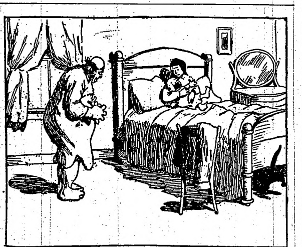
"I would, eh? Hear him yell! That's pure and unadulterated deviltry, and he ought to be soundly spanked. Why don't you toss him up and down or sing to him or something to choke him off? We'll have the police in here the first thing we know. If I live to see morning that kid goes!"

"Why, Mr. Bowser, only a few hours ago you were reading about that case in St. Louis, and you were so indignant that"—

"Never read of any case in St. Louis, and there's your hot water. Get him into it and drown him as soon as possible. Young man, it's a mighty good thing for you that we are not here alone!"

"Why don't you break his neck instead of scaring him to death?" hotly demanded Mrs. Bowser. "You wanted to skin that St. Louis man alive."

"Mrs. Bowser," he replied as he stubbed his toe against a chair and sat down on the bed with his face very white, "if there is a place in this country called St. Louis, and if there is a father there who had a malicious and ugly tempered young un who ached to be killed, and if that father broke its neck after years of such suffering as I have gone through with, he should be praised instead of censured."



"WHY DON'T YOU BREAK HIS NECK INSTEAD OF SCARING HIM TO DEATH?" HOTLY DEMANDED MRS. BOWSER.

"He seems to be better," whispered Mrs. Bowser as the baby ceased to cry.

"He knows his gait and went as far as he dared. In just one minute more I'd have tanned his jacket, and he knew it. I tell you, Mrs. Bowser, that kid is being brought up for the gallows. Out of twenty-two murder cases I have investigated the murderers all began by whooping and howling and waking their fathers up of nights. They were petted and encouraged by their mothers, just as you are doing."

"You can go to bed, Mr. Bowser."

"What's the use? It will be daylight in about two minutes, and it won't be ten seconds before he will raise the dead again. The climax has been reached. After breakfast that kid goes trotting home, or you can kill him off with rough on rats or paris green. If he was ailing I wouldn't say a word, but when he deliberately goes at it—to kick up—a row like—this—this"—

Mr. Bowser fell back across the bed and knew no more till 7 o'clock in the morning. Then he awoke to find the baby playing horse with his nose, and he held the child aloft and kissed it and exclaimed:

"By the horn spoon, Mrs. Bowser, but if there is a handsomer, cuter and better natured kid than this in all the world I'd like to see it. Was he crying in the night? Why didn't you wake me up and have me carry him around?"

"I did wake you up, and you swore at him."

"I—what?"

"You uttered threats to curdle my blood, and I was thankful that we had no children of our own."

"Mrs. Bowser," said Mr. Bowser in very solemn tones, "it may be that I had an attack of nightmare last night, and in my frenzy I took this young cub for a wolf or something and addressed him in rather forcible language, but if so"—

"Of course it was forcible language."

"But if so I sincerely and most humbly beg his pardon, and after breakfast I'll take him over to get a beer, and then we'll go downtown and buy him forty toy carts and horses."

MILLIONS SWEPT AWAY BY FLAMES

CONFLAGRATION RAGES IN THE CANADIAN CITY OF TORONTO FOR MANY HOURS.

More Than 120 Buildings Are Burned—Loss Is Estimated at $13,000,000—Nearly 250 Firms Put Out of Business.

Toronto, Ont., April 21.—The total loss by the fire which destroyed the wholesale district of Toronto Tuesday night will, according to the most conservative estimates, reach $12,000,000; the total insurance is $10,000,000. The area swept by the fire embraces 14 acres, and 10,000 persons are thrown out of employment.

The principal warehouses of the city were reduced to ashes and nearly 250 firms were put out of business. The area covered by the fire is three blocks in length and varies from half a block to two blocks in width. Every building on Bay street from Melinda street southward to the Esplanade at the river front was wiped out and the fire spread on Wellington and Front streets and the Esplanade, along the water front, from their intersection with Bay street for distances of a few hundred feet to a whole block.

The total number of buildings destroyed were: Bay street, east side, 20; west side, 30; Wellington street, north side, 12; south side, 7; Front street, north, 22; south, 27; Esplanade, 4; Piper street, 1.

The fire started in a factory in Wellington street about nine o'clock Tuesday night. In less than an hour the fire had spread on both sides of the street until the whole block was a mass of flames and the fire was beyond the control of the local department.

It was believed at 11 o'clock that the fire was under control, but a sudden shift in the wind again fanned the flames into a roar and clouds of sparks and burning brands were carried down side streets until three entire blocks were doomed. The firemen were making a gallant fight amid the falling buildings and a mass of tangled wires, but their efforts at midnight were fruitless.

Buda-Pesth, April 25.—A serious riot is reported to have taken place at the market town of Elesd, near here, resulting from a collision between meetings of the socialist and independent parties. The military were summoned from Gross-Wardein.

BANDITS EXECUTED.

Niedermeier, Marx and Van Dine Hanged in Chicago—Former Carried to Scaffold.

Chicago, April 23.—The car-barn bandits have paid the penalty of their crimes. All three of them were hanged Friday morning.

Peter Niedermeier, the leader of the desperate band of robbers, was the first to die. His nerve stood by him to the last, but his physical strength gave out and he was carried to the scaffold. He died with only a curse for religion. He defied Heaven and man. His death was consistent with his life.

Gustave Marx was the next to go to his fate. He was brave and collected Not once did he falter, and the words of his prayer: "Oh, God, receive my soul," came from behind the white cap the very instant the trap fell.

Harvey Van Dine was the last. He, too, showed the greatest courage in the awful moments that preceded the plunge. Like Marx, he kept repeating the words of the litany for the dying, and his tones rose clear and distinct up to the last second.

The crime for which they were hanged was the robbery of the Chicago City railway car barn, August 30, 1903. In this affair the robbers secured $2,250, killed two men and wounded another. The crime was brutal in the highest degree. No warning was given. The bandits opened fire upon the startled clerks, without even the accustomed command: "Hands up!" The robbery occurred at three o'clock in the morning. Frank Stewart, a young clerk, was shot and fatally wounded where he sat. James B. Johnson, a motorman, was asleep on a bench, and he, too, was killed before he knew what was happening.

In addition to this crime the bandits were guilty of robbing a number of saloons and a railway station. Including the battle at the dug-out in Indiana, which resulted in their capture, these youths had killed eight men and wounded several.

THE THREE CAR BARN BANDITS WHO WERE HANGED FRIDAY.

CZAR REFUSES ALL PEACE PROPOSALS

RUSSIA TO PROSECUTE PRESENT CONFLICT TO A VICTORIOUS END.

OUTSIDE INTERFERENCE WILL NOT BE TOLERATED

Authoritative Report from St. Petersburg Declares Efforts of Kings Edward and Christian Have Failed—Jap Ship Sunk.

St. Petersburg, April 26.—It is announced authoritatively that the talk of mediation in the Russo-Japanese war was founded upon the personal desires of King Edward and King Christian of Denmark to avoid further bloodshed and end the conflict, but that the steps initiated have utterly failed. The emperor, with the full concurrence of the imperial family and his advisers, has firmly decided not only to reject all proposals looking to intervention, but to prosecute the war with all the resources of the empire until victory crowns the Russian arms, and then when the time comes for peace to make terms directly with the enemy. The interference of outside powers will not be tolerated. There is to be no repetition of the Berlin congress.

Furthermore, it is stated that Russia will in no wise consider herself bound by the propositions made to Japan prior to the war. The hostilities have wiped out the engagements Russia offered to make with Japan regarding Korea and Manchuria. Russia will consider herself free to impose such terms as she desires.

Russians Sink Jap Ship.

Tokio, April 26.—The Russian Vladivostok squadron, after a long period of inactivity, suddenly appeared off Gensan, on the east coast of Korea, Monday morning, and sank the Goyo Maru, a Japanese merchant steamer of 600 tons. A brief telegram received from Gensan said three Russian cruisers had entered the harbor and that they were still there when the telegram was sent. Their arrival created consternation in the unprotected Japanese colony at Gensan. It is thought here in Tokio that this Russian naval movement was made in the hope of intercepting some unprotected Japanese troop ships. It is not believed that the squadron will remain at Gensan long.

The Vladivostok squadron consists of the cruisers Rossia, Gromoboi, Rue Rurik and Bogatyre. The last is a protected cruiser, and the others are armored cruisers, the four being among the most powerful in the Russian navy. Gensan is about 350 miles southwest of Vladivostok.

Port Arthur Strengthened.

Port Arthur, April 26.—All weak points on both the land and sea sides here have been so strengthened in the last two months that the impregnability of Port Arthur is now regarded as absolutely assured. The garrison has been considerably strengthened and the forts are provided with all necessities for more than a year. Complete confidence prevails with the troops, sailors and inhabitants in the ability of the Russians to defeat any Japanese attack. Remarkable indifference to the possibility of attack is shown by the people.

Japs Have Not Crossed River.

St. Petersburg, April 26.—Maj. Gen. Pflug, in a telegram from Port Arthur, formally denies the reports that the Japanese have crossed the Yalu river.

RIOTERS SHOT DOWN.

Twenty-Three Are Killed and Forty Wounded by Gendarmes Near Buda-Phest.

Buda-Pesth, April 26.—A serious riot is reported to have taken place at the market town of Elesd, near here, resulting from a collision between meetings of the socialist and independent parties. Honors Dead Rulers.

Rome, April 26.—President Loubet of France, who arrived in Rome Sunday, went with a royal cortege to the Pantheon Monday to lay wreaths on the tombs of King Victor Emmanuel II. and King Humbert. He was received by veterans of the Italian army. The function was of the most impressive nature.

Turks and Greeks Clash.

Athens, April 26.—An affray between Turkish gendarmes and Greeks is reported from Smyrna, in which M. Delyannis, secretary of the Greek consulate, was slightly wounded. Serious complications may ensue. A Greek squadron has sailed for Smyrna.

Auditor Ford has been requested to find out whether or not the Populist party is entitled to a place on the ballot at the election in Red Lake county this fall, and the opinion of the attorney general has been asked. It is the opinion of local attorneys that the party has no legal standing and that candidates will be obliged to file as Democrats or Republicans, or go on the ballot by petition as independents.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Increased Mortality.

More domestic animals died from infectious diseases in the last three months than in any other quarter since the live stock sanitary board was created a year ago, according to the quarterly report of Dr. S. H. Ward, presented at the annual meeting of the board. The unusual cold winter and the attended poor ventilation in barns and stables are attributed to the cause of the increase mortality.

There were 132 horses killed during the quarter on account of glanders, 382 in the twelve months. There were 3,179 suspected, of which 479 were tested.

There was unusually prevalent in the last quarter, the total number of deaths being as follows: Sheep 29, swine 27, cattle 26, dogs 17 and 2 horses

Escaped From Jail.

With a rope that he made from his cell blankets, Harry Smith, 23, held on a charge of grand larceny, escaped from the insane ward of the county jail at Minneapolis.

Smith got out of his cell by crawling through the bucket hole, and got outside the corridor by picking the gate lock. The outside windows have no bars, and Smith tied one end of his blanket-rope to the cot in his cell, and let himself down to a fourth story window. He opened the window crawled over the transom into the hallway of the court house, and then walked down the stairs to the Fourth ave. entrance.

Smith made a similar escape from the Duluth workhouse.

After Blind Pigs.

A citizens' committee of the Midway district took a hand in the effort to stamp out the blind pigs in Midway and secured two dray loads of evidence and the arrest of seven persons.

The raid was carefully planned and was made by Sheriff Justus' deputies armed with warrants made out by the county attorney, on the racommendation of Judge Finehout of St. Paul. The citizens took every precaution to prevent the raid from miscarrying. The members secured the evidence on which the warrants were sworn out, without the aid or knowledge even of the police, but in spite of their precautions the tip was given to some of those on the list, although not in time to do them much good.

Again Indicted.

Dr. A. A. Ames, four times mayor of Minneapolis, again has been indicted on the charge of receiving a bribe while he was chief executive of the city.

It is cherged in this indictment that A. A. Ames, during December, 1901, and while he was mayor of the city, received, through his agent, Irwin A. Gardner, $20, which was paid to him by Bessie Lee in return for police protection, meaning that she was to be allowed to run her business without fear of molestation by the police of the city.

Suicide Through Despondency.

Despondent over the fact that he had been discharged after ten years' service in the Northern Pacific foundry at Brainerd, Henry Greener committed suicide at a hotel. He had gone back to work but was told his services were not wanted. He returned to his boarding house, complained that he had lost his job and later retired to his room. An attendant of the hotel went to went to Greener's room in the evening and found the man's body upright in a chair, with a revolver clutched in his left hand. Greener had shot himself in the mouth.

Trespassers Settle.

State Auditor Iverson is taking in money almost daily from timber trespass settlements. Since April 2, when A. C. Bruce paid in $12,722.16 for timber illegally cut from state land, twelve other cases have been settled, and $7,671.80 has been turned into the state treasury.

This makes a total of 103 settlements since Feb. 1, 1903. On these $58,151.24 has been paid. The settlements have all been paid for double or treble the appraised value of the timber, unless it has come into the hands of an innocent purchaser.

He participated in many famous battles and volumes have been written concerning him. The town of Bemidji was named after him. Nearly the entire population attended the funeral. THE RED LAKE OPENING.

Arrangements For Sale of Lands About Completed.

A Washington dispatch says that Representative Steenerson and Senator Clapp had a conference with Land Commissioner Richards about the opening of the Red Lake lands, and he probably will recommend the secretary to adopt the following plan:

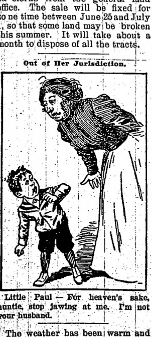
Land to be sold at public auction, either at Thief River Falls or Crookston, in quarter-section parcels. One-half township or whole township to be sold each day until all the land is offered.

If it appears that there is a combination of bidders to force down prices the sale will be continued indefinitely.

If any tracts are offered and not sold, on the request of any person qualified to enter the land, they will be offered again.

Commissioner Richards will take personal charge and will be present at the sale with a force of experienced clerks from the general land office. The sale will be fixed for some time between June 25 and July 1, so that some land may be broken this summer. It will take about a month to dispose of all the tracts.

Out of Her Jurisdiction.



Little Paul — For heaven's sake, auntie, stop jawing at me. I'm not your husband.

The weather has been warm and fair for the past four or five days, and the farmers have been able to work in the fields. If we have good weather for a week or ten days most of the grain will be in the ground. Experienced farmers say that wheat seeded before the tenth of May is all right.

TERREBONNE.

By the "News Tattler."

Well, Badger, this must be spring, for we have heard a frog crow and a crow croak.

Messrs Vict. Higinbotham and Moran of Red Lake Falls were here on business during the week.

Joseph Dupont is building a new dwelling house which he hopes to have ready to occupy in a short time.

The Lambert stage stayed over night in Terrebonne Saturday. His horses were played out and could proceed no further.

Our blacksmith, Wilfred Gervais, while on a visit to Gentilly took unto himself a wife, with whom he returned home during the week. He is congratulated by his many friends in Terrebonne.

John Clement is dangerously ill with a paralytic stroke. It is seldom that a person survives three strokes and as this is the third with which Mr. Clement has been taken his recovery is very much doubted.

One span of the bridge has been entirely washed away and as the dam is undermining it is a matter of but a few days before the entire dam and bridge will be swept away. This is the second instance of the kind since Mr. Kankel has been in possession of the property and it has quite discouraged him as to the efficiency of water powers on the Clearwater. The dam may not be rebuilt and in its stead a steam plant in connection with the mill may be built.

Nearly all the old settlers of Terrebonne and Badger have listed their farms for sale. They are all disgusted with this "most unhabitable place," and are going in search of the Garden of Eden, which they think lies in some part of Western North America. We sincerely hope that they may be more fortunate in their search than the writer has been, for he spent two years in those parts in search of the ideal spot which he was not fortunate enough to find, on the contrary he found obstacles and inconveniences quite as many, and probably more numerous, then are to be found in Red Lake county.

Our priest has gone and as the vacancy has not yet been filled we were without mass last Sunday and it may be some time before we do have mass again. Father Roy's return is rumored. Father Roy was with us a long time and did good and efficient work to the satisfaction of the parishioners. While Father Roy was here the appearance of our church building, yards and gardens had a renown which it has not before nor since held. We sincerely hope for the return of Father Roy that our parish may again take its proper rank among our neighboring parishes, and that we may again be blessed with a stable pastorate.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: No woman ever held herself as cheap as the man who gets her.

What is a discussion in a woman's own family is a row in her neighbor's.

A woman always has an idea her husband isn't well if she could only make him believe it.

When a girl is willing to admit she likes a certain chap it is time to be suspicious of how she feels toward some other man.

What disgusts a woman with arithmetic is the way the dressmaker's bills are always bigger than her allowance for clothes.

THIEF RIVER MAY WIN OUT

Our Business Men Do Their Best to Help Their Neighbors to Secure the Sale.

The chances are good that the sale of the Red Lake reservation lands will be held at Thief River Falls. The commercial club and business men generally of that city have been working hard to induce the interior department to hold the sale there, aud the Courier hopes they will be successful. Red Lake Falls has done its part to boost the project along, and last Thursday Ed. Healy secured the signatures of a dozen citizens to a telegram to Congressman Steenerson, urging him to use all honorable means to hold the sale at Thiei River Falls. This friendly assistance on the part of the Red Lake Falls was greatly appreciated by our neighbors up the Red Lake, as on Monday the following letter was received from W. C. Smiley, secretary of the commercial club:

"Ed. L. Healy, Esq., Red Lake Falls, Minn.—My dear Healy: Your letter and copy of telegram received Saturday, and I want to say that the business men of this city appreciate your broad-guage attitude in this matter and feel that you have demonstrated the fraternity of Red Lake county's business men. I have read your letter to the city council, and they wish me to convey to you and to the rest of the boys their warmest thanks. We feel confident of success in this matter, which means much to the whole county. Respectfully—W. C. Smiley."

MACCABEES RE-ORGANIZE.

New Lodge Instituted at Kaus Hall Saturday Evening.

The re-organized lodge of Maccabees was instituted at Kaus hall Saturday evening by D. D. Harger, of Crookston, district deputy for this part of the state. The lodge starts out with a membership of thirty-five, and it is expected that quite a few more will be secured during the coming month. Meetings will be held every Thursday evening.

The officers of the new lodge are as follows: Past commander, Frank Jeffers; commander, S. A. Swanson; lieutenant commander, W. H. Krueger; sergeant, L. A. Westphal; master at arms, August Krueger; chaplain, George Hennings.

U. S. VS. RAY JONES.

A Celebrated Case Will Be Tried This Week.

Fergus Falls Weekly: In United States court this week the well advertised case of the United States against the Commonwealth Lumber company, of which Lieut. Gov. Ray W. Jones is president, will be tried. It promises to occupy the most of the time of the spring term, as the chief point at issue is the manner in which the "dead and down" timber was taken off the government or Indian lands, and many witnesses will be examined, including timber inspectors, cruisers, etc. The government in its complaint has charged that the Indian agent in charge of of the reservation was cognizant of the improper methods by which the timber was scaled and rated. The suit is a civil one, the claim of the government being for some $110,000 for timber alleged to have been illegally cut and never accounted for. The Commonwealth company's president, our worthy lieutenant governor, is not expected to be present during the trial.

ENDS LIFE'S FITFUL FEVER

Body of Thief River Falls Farmer Found in The Red Lake River Tuesday.

The body of Andrew Mosecan, a farmer residing eight miles west of Thief River Falls, was found at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon by a couple of farmers in the Red Lake River at a point three miles below Thief River Falls.

Mosecan has been missing for the past nine days, but the suicide theory was never advanced to explain his disappearance. He was last seen in Thief River Falls and had been drinking considerable. It is now thought that he either jumped into the Red Lake River with the intention of ending his troubles, or that he became involved in a row and was the victim of foul play. There is nothing, however, that points to the foul play theory.'

The body was taken into Evanson's undertaking rooms at Thief River Falls, where an inquest will be held. Deceased was 35 years of age, owned a farm in the town of Norden and was fairly prosperous.

He leaves a wife but no children.

NEW BASEBALL RULES.

Pitchers and Catchers Must Keep Their Eyes Open This Year.

President Pullman, of the National league, has issued his official interpretation of the playing rules for the coming season.

Under rule 30, as amended the pitcher must take his position facing the batsman, and with both feet in front of the pitcher's plate. By keeping the twirlers from placing one foot to the side of the rubber they will be prevented from using the effective "cross-fire" delivery, which, while it puts the ball over the plate, involved a delivery which began outside the pitcher's position. Umpires must enforce the balk rule to the letter. Hereafter if a pitcher makes a motion of any kind with his hands, body, legs or feet he must follow it with a delivery of the ball to the bat or have a balk called on him. A trick play that heretofore was not covered by any rule will this season result disastrously to the perpetrator. Should a coacher at third base start for the plate to draw a play from a fielder the runner entitled to that, will be declared out for such inference. Two coachers instead of one as formerly will be allowed.

THIEF RIVER GETS THE SALE

Definite Information to That Effect Given Out at Washington.

Crookston, Minn., May 5.—Congressman Halvor Steenerson arrived from Washington last evening. He states that the sale of Red Lake reservation land will undoubtedly be held at Thief River Falls instead of Crookston. Senator Clapp and Congressman Steenerson held a conference with land Commissioner Richards last Wednesday on the subject, and went over the matter at length. Senator Clapp favored Thief River as best serving the public interests and those of the probable bidders. The sale to be conducted by Land Commissioner Richards personally, assisted by an expert auctioneer from Washington, and will be the largest land event in northern Minnesota this year.

FINE FOR FARMERS.

Conditions Look as Favorable as Possible for Wheat.

The government crop condition report issued Tuesday is as follows:

A week of almost continuous sunshine has been favorable for all farm work, and for starting the growth of early seeded grains. The week opened cool for the season, but the middle and latter parts were considerably warmer, the temperature reaching 80 on the 30th at several southern points in the state.

The soil has dried rapidly, and in all but the level lands of the Red River and lowlands elsewhere, the soil is in splendid condition for seeding. No seeding has been done so far in the Red river valley, but wheat seeding has been going on the latter part of the week on higher lands east of the valley as far north as northern Kittson county.

In the central and southern parts of the [illegible] are rapidly nearing completion, and some barley has been seeded in southern and southeastern counties. Early sown wheat and oats are beginning to come up nicely.

Plowing for corn, flax and barley is going on in the south, and gardening is general. Potato planting has begun in a number of southern counties. Grass is beginning to show green a little, but there is not yet sufficient for feed.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Cattarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mocous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

WEATHER BY 'PHONE.

Iowa Farmers Notified Twenty-four Hours in Advance.

Thirty four thousand Iowa farmers are now daily notified by telephone of the weather conditions for the next twenty-four hours. This has been accomplished during the last nine months by Dr. George M. Chappel of the Iowa weather bureau, and at this time of the year, when the weather during the next thirty-six hours has much to do with farm live and the knowledge of that which is coming may save valuable time, the forcasts are very much appreciated.

The system of supplying the information was inaugurated last July with 7,500 farmers and from 200 to 300 additional names have been added each week. With the present list Iowa stands at the head of the wire service, and has stood at the head since last July. At that time Missouri was delivering forecasts by telephone to 3,640; Illinois, 3,530; Arkansas, 4,325 Ohio, 2,249; New York 458; Massachusetts 12. There are but three states in the Union which deliver the same forecasts by rural delivery to a greater number of farmers than Iowa. Ohio delivers in this manner 14,292, New York 10,454, Massachusetts 10,250 and Iowa 9,037.

The forecast is telephoned to central stations every morning, and here the operator rings up a rural telephone line. They wait a moment until all have had an opportunity to get to the telephone and then hang up the receiver. Should one of the farmers miss a call he can call up a neighbor and learn what it is. Dr. Chappel expects by the fall of 1904 to reach every farmhouse in the great state of Iowa where there is a telephone.

Who Builds Up the Town?

Northfield News: When people deal with those large catalogue houses in Chicago and other cities they not only pay more for the goods but as a rule get an inferior article. The home merchant should always be patronized. He invariably carries a complete stock in his line and if there is anything he has not got he can get it very easily and will be glad to do so. There are many obvious reasons why the home merchant should be favored. Those catalouge houses do not help to build up the town or pay toward the expense of building sidewalks or other improvements. This practice of "dealing in the dark" should be discouraged.

JAMAICA'S MYSTERY.

THE FINGER OF FATE IN THE FALL OF HER CAPITALS.

Tragedies That Are Written In the History of Her Ruined Cities—Two of Them Vanished Utterly From Off the Face of the Earth.

There exists in Jamaica, in the West Indies, a universal superstition that a curse rests upon any town chosen to be its capital. Since 1509, when the first chief city was founded, no fewer than three capitals have been ruined in mysterious and tragic ways. Two have vanished utterly from the face of the earth. Some of the more superstitious of the colonists, brooding over the strange history of their country, fear that Kingston, the present capital, a city of 70,000 inhabitants, will share the fate of its predecessors.

The first capital was Sevilla Nueva (New Seville), otherwise called Seville d'Oro (the Golden Seville), on account of its marvelous wealth. It was founded by Don Juan d'Esquivel and Diego, a son of Christopher Columbus. In a few years it became the greatest Spanish city in the new world. Thither flocked the blue blooded but impecunious nobles of Castile, eager to rebuild their family fortunes at the expense of the poor Arawak.

Cathedrals, palaces and monasteries, rivaling those of Spain in splendor, were erected. The marble streets were crowded with gayly clad courtiers and Indian slaves, who toiled for them and brought them tribute from mine and jungle.

Then, in a night, the city vanished, and no one can tell today what happened to it. No survivors and no records were left behind to tell the tale. Today one can see, buried in tropical jungle, a mile of marble pavement and a few broken columns and arches. Nothing else remains of the Golden Seville, once so prosperous and splendid, except a few contradictory native traditions. These traditions variously ascribe the destruction of the city and its inhabitants to a mutiny of the oppressed Indians, an earthquake, a sudden visitation of millions of red ants and an attack by French buccaneers. The very memory of what was once the greatest city of the new world has almost perished. Even in Jamaica few people know anything about the Golden Seville.

The Spaniards made Saint Jago de la Vega, now called Spanish Town, their second capital. Time and again it was devastated by hurricane and plague, harassed by Indian revolts or ransacked by adventurous picaroons. Gradually it sank from its high estate until now it is merely a squalid village.

When the English conquered the island they made Port Royal their real capital, though Spanish Town remained for some time the official seat of government. The emporium of the Indies and the Spanish main, the market for the ill gotten gains of 10,000 buccaneers, Port Royal soon became the richest and wickedest city of the new world. At the height of its splendor and its vice it was destroyed within the space of two minutes by an earthquake.

"The ground opening in Several Places at once," wrote an eyewitness in 1692, a few days after the catastrophe, "swallowed up Multitudes of People together, whole Streets sinking under water with Men, Women and Children in them; and those Houses which but just now appeared the Fairest and Loftiest in these Parts and might vie with the Finest Buildings in the World were in a moment Sunk in the Earth, and nothing to be seen of them; such Crying, such Shrieking and Mourning I never heard, nor could anything in my Opinion appear more Terrible to the Eye of Man. Here a Company of People Swallowed up at once; there a whole Street tumbling down, and in Another Place the Trembling Earth opening her Ravenous Jaws, let in the Merciless Sea, so that this Town is become a Heap of Ruins. Several People were Swallowed up of the Earth, when, the Sea breaking in before the Earth could Close, they were washed up again and Miraculously saved from Perishing. Others the Earth received up to their Necks, and then Closed upon them and squeezed them to Death, with their Heads above Ground, many of which the Dogs Eat; Multitudes of People Floating up and down, having no Burial. The Burying Place at the Palisadoes is quite Destroyed, the Dead Bodies being washed out of their Graves, their Tombs beat to Pieces and they floating up and down; it is sad to think how we have Suffered.

"The Earth hath still fits of Shaking, with very much Thunder and Lightning, and dreadful Weather; yet this had so little effect upon some People here that the very same Night they were at their Old Trade of Drinking and Swearing; breaking up Warehouses; Pillaging and Stealing from their Neighbors, even while the Earthquake lasted, and several of them were destroyed in the very Act; and indeed this Place has been one of the Ludest in the Christian World, a sink of all filthiness, and a mere Sodom."

Old Port Royal lies buried beneath the sea. The present town of Port Royal, a place of no importance except as a coaling station, was built after the earthquake, a fire and a landslide having destroyed the few houses left standing.

Kingston was not founded until the early part of the eighteenth century, but it has already been thrice destroyed by fire and several times ravaged by hurricanes. The inhabitants naturally wonder what catastrophe will happen next.

Many men have been capable of doing a wise thing, but very few a generous thing.—Pope.

Afternoon Tea.

"High tea" is said to be of American origin. The earliest mention of it, according to Dr. Murray, goes no further back than 1856. In fact, tea as an afternoon meal is not much older. It is thought to have originated in 1837 in the house of Mme. de Circourt, a Russian lady, whose salon in Paris was at that time much frequented by the most intellectual society of the day. The fashionable dinner hours were then getting late, and she introduced a 4 o'clock light meal, at which tea was served. Fanny Kemble in "Records of a Girlhood" attributes the introduction of the afternoon meal into this country to the then Duchess of Bedford. Fanny Kemble paid a visit to Belvoir castle in March, 1842, and she relates how a mysterious invitation was received to the duchess' private rooms, where she found a small group of friends partaking of tea in a private and rather shamefaced way, and dates the 5 o'clock meal from this time. But it was several years later that the practice became general.—London Chronicle.

Drivers Who Throw Their Horses.

"There ought to be a license system or some scheme to prevent such a fellow driving a horse," declared a lover of horses as a heavy truck horse fell in Broadway the other day. "That ignorant blockhead made that horse fall. He turned the animal so quickly that he simply threw it off its feet. Now several score of trucks will be blocked until the horse gets on its feet, and then the driver will take it out of the poor animal by jerking at the bit or beating it.

"A man wouldn't trust an automobile to a fellow who didn't know how to run the machine, and the law would not allow him to, but he will trust his horse to a boy who hasn't the first idea of handling a horse. Half the drivers of trucks and delivery wagons need some elementary lessons in how to drive, and most of the accidents on the streets are due to their ignorance and stupidity."—New York Press.

Generous Utah Woman.

A woman doctor went to Utah to practice. She was a pleasant lady as well as skillful, and her patients were very fond of her. "How I wish," said one of them, "that I could convert you to our religion! If you would only marry my husband and come and live with us"—

The doctor fled in horror to another friend to whom she told the story. Her self respect began to revive and she felt comforted, seeing how the eyes of her listener blazed.

"I don't wonder you feel as you do," replied the friend indignantly. "The ideal Why, that Mr. —— is perfectly horrid! What you want to do is to marry my husband and come and live with us."—Plattsburg (N. Y.) Tribune.

The First Ice Cream.

A French chef, who prepared the dish for the Duc de Chartres in 1774, is said to have made the first ice cream. Lord Bacon was aware of the process of congelation by means of snow and salt, but to him it was a scientific fact of greater or less interest, and he had no idea of the delightful possibilities of this process on various eatables.

Iced drinks and water ices were known to the Parisian epicures a century and a half earlier, the dainties having probably come from the far east by the hand of some traveler who had tested sherbet. The English knew or cared nothing for such artificial refreshment till the present century. Even now they do not regard the "iced pudding" with especial favor.

Appropriate.

One day while his apparatus for deep sea soundings by means of steel pianoforte wire was being constructed Lord Kelvin entered Mr. White's shop in Glasgow along with the great Dr. Joule, celebrated for his determination of the mechanical equivalent of heat. Joule's attention was called to a bundle of the pianoforte wire lying in the shop, and Thomson explained that he intended it for "sounding purposes." "What note?" innocently inquired Joule and was promptly answered. "The deep C."

The House of Crony.

In France the family of Crony Chanel boasts of descent in direct line from Adam's third son, Seth. They say at the time of the deluge Noah took their family title deeds into the ark. At their chateau may be seen a picture of that event, wherein one of the drowning men waves a scroll above his head on which is inscribed, "Save the title deeds of the house of Crony."

Throat Trouble.

"You look bad, old man. What's the matter?"

"Throat trouble."

"I didn't know you were subject to it."

"Yes, I am. This throat belongs to the newcomer in the next house, who practices singing at all hours of the night."

The Struggle.

An athlete is not made in an hour, and the giant oak is only a specimen of endurance after its hardy conflict with the elements. So it is with the character of a man and of a woman. It is the struggle of the years that makes the heart heroic.—Schoolmaster.

His Incompleteness.

MANNERS IN BUSINESS.

Brains and Good Deportment a Winning Combination.

The value of brains in business cannot be overestimated, of course; but neither can the value of manners. Don't make the error of supposing that brains are everything. You may have the best set of brains in the town, but if you haven't the manners of a gentleman nobody is going to appreciate you. Your manner is the outward indication of what you are within in the estimate of most people, and if the manner is disagreeable few will take the trouble to examine into you any further.

The consensus of general opinion is that the man who goes about with porcupine quills as his manners hasn't any brains worth bothering about. Did you never notice that the men who employ large forces of intelligent people look at an applicant closely, ask a few seemingly unimportant questions and promptly employ or dismiss him? They don't sound his brain depth; they don't obtain his biography; they don't inquire into his social standing; they size him up from his manners, and if he is brass on the surface they don't look for gold within.

The employer knows that if an applicant's manner strikes him favorably it will also favorably strike people with whom he comes in contact in his work. And nobody knows better than a big business man that a favorable first impression means half the sale. People are apt to think that if there is any place where manners are of little consequence it is in business, where cold calculation so largely takes the place of feeling. But the truth is that nowhere else are manners of such importance as in everyday dealings. There is no capital and equipment any young man can have that will pay him better than good manners. There is no possible calling for which this does not better fit him. If he has brains the world owes him something, but unless he has good manners he will have a hard time collecting it.—Kansas City World.

A WHISTLER PICTURE.

The Dramatic Manner of Its Finish and an Anticlimax.

Whistler was one day visited by a foreign artist, an old acquaintance, with whom Whistler had not as yet quarreled. He was received with genuine cordiality, and, artist-like, he ran round the studio looking at everything. One small picture seemed to charm him especially, and he said, "Now that is one of your good ones." "Don't look at it, dear boy," said Whistler airily, "it's not finished." "Finished!" said the visitor. "Why, it is the most carefully finished picture of yours that I have ever seen." "Don't look at it!" persisted Whistler. "You are doing injustice to yourself, you are doing injustice to my picture, and you are doing injustice to me!" The visitor looked bewildered, when Whistler, in a theatrical tone, cried out: "Stop! I'll finish it now!" Then he procured a very small camel's hair brush, fixed it on a long and slender handle, mixed a little speck of paint on his palette, dipped the tip of his brush into it, and then, standing off from his picture and with the action of a fencer with his rapier, he lunged forward and touched the picture in one spot with his pigment. "Now it's finished," said he. "Now you may look at it." This was all highly dramatic, and indeed very well acted, but, as in the case of some stage plays, the final act of Whistler's performance proved to be an anticlimax. The foreign artist took his leave, but, finding that he had left his umbrella behind him, called for it next day. The servant, recognizing him, told him that Mr. Whistler had gone out for the day, but invited him to go to the studio and seek his umbrella. He went there and found it, but also took the opportunity of having one more look at the picture which had been "finished" for his special benefit the day before, and then he saw that the little dab of wet paint which Whistler had so dramatically put on he had afterward scrupulously wiped off again!—Frederick Keppel in The Reader.

CATARRH A COMMON COMPLAINT.

Catarrh begins with a stubborn cold in the head, inflammation or soreness of the membrane or lining of the nose, discharge of mucus matter, headaches, neuralgia and difficult breathing, and even in this early stage is almost intolerable. But when the filthy secretions begin to drop back into the throat and stomach, and the blood becomes polluted and the system contaminated by the catarrhal poison, then the sufferer begins to realize what a disgusting and sickening disease Catarrh is. It affects the kidneys and stomach as well as other parts of the body. It is a constitutional disease and as inhaling mixtures, salves, ointments, etc., are never more than palliative or helpful, even in the beginning of Catarrh, what can you expect from such treatment when it becomes chronic and the whole system affected? Only such a remedy as S. S. S. can reach this obstinate, deep-seated disease and purge the blood of the catarrhal poison. S. S. S. purifies and builds up the diseased blood, and the inflamed membranes are healed and the excessive secretion of mucus ceases when new, rich blood is coming to the diseased parts, and a permanent cure is the result.

I had a continual headache, my cheeks had grown purple, my nose was always stopped up, my breath had a sickening and disgusting odor, and I coughed incessantly. I heard of S. S. S. and commenced to use it and after taking several bottles I was cured and have never since had the slightest symptom of the disease.

Red Lake Indian Reservation Homesteads

February 20th, 1904, Congress passed a bill authorizing the opening for settlement of the ELEVEN TOWNSHIPS of the Red Lake Indian Reservation which are situated in Red Lake County. These lands will be thrown open for settlement within the next four months.

These lands will be disposed of to the highest bidder, and cannot be sold for less than $4 per acre. A payment of one-fifth of the purchase price in cash will be required. and the balance divided in five equal annual payments, without interest.

We have secured a limited number of copies of the Smiley map of Red Lake County and the Red Lake Indian Reservation. These maps are 28x38 inches, and show the grade and quality of each and every quarter-section of land in the portion of the Reservation to be opened for settlement; it gives the number of acres of timber and the kind of timber on each quarter. This map was compiled from the personal notes of Mr. Smiley and from the Government notes thereof. Everyone who intends to be present at the opening should have one of these maps, as it will save you the price of a locater's fee.

The primaries for the election of delegates will be held in the usual voting places in the several precincts on Wednesday, June 8, from seven to nine o'clock p. m.

JOHN E. KING, Chairman.
S. F. STAPLES, Secretary.

SENATOR GORMAN suggests Charles A. Towne as a compromise candidate for president. This sort of a suggestion is not calculated to offend Minnesota Democrats.

JOEL HEATWOLE'S Northfield News thinks Examiner Johnson ought to turn his pants pockets inside out and see if he has any more of the state's money about his clothes.

J. FRANK HANLEY is the Republican nominee for governor of Indiana. Times have probably changed, but in the old days the average Hoosier looked with suspicion upon the man who parted his name or his hair in the middle.

THE Sauk Centre Herald is given to moralizing. The following was in the editorial column last week: "It is curious how much bigger a dime looks when you drop it into a contribution box than when you drop it on a cigar counter."

ROBERT B. ROOSEVELT, an uncle of President Roosevelt, who was nominated as an elector by the Democratic state convention at Albany, N. Y., last week, has declined to accept such nomination because of his relationship to the president.

COL. ANDREW R. KIEFER, one of the prominent citizens of St. Paul, died suddenly last Sunday of heart disease. Mr. Kiefer had been congressman and mayor of St. Paul, and was the Republican candidate for controller in the late campaign.

THE new mayor of Kansas City has announced that he proposes to run the city according to "the Theodore Roosevelt standard of politics," and the Chicago Examiner suggests that his first duty will probably be the appointment of a whitewash committee.

THE opportunity now offers for men who have met grief in their speculations in oil stocks, mining schemes and cattle ranges to try their luck with some stock in coffee plantations in Mexico and Central America. Millions in it, according to promoters.

THE Collins people have modestly claimed everything in the Second district, but unless all signs fail Dunn will get as many counties down there as Collins. With this alleged "stronghold" getting away it is hard to place the vaunted Collins strength.

JOHN MITCHELL, the labor leader, made an address before the federation of labor in Denver, in which he disnounced Governor Peabody and asked the unionists and Republicans to repudiate him. He said that the governor was no friend of the laborer and no friend of law and order.

IT is announced that the anthracite coal prices for the spring and summer season have been agreed upon by the general agents of the carrying roads. The prices, which took effect on April 1, will advance ten cents a month until September. The price of stove coal at the mine now is $4.50.

THE esteemed Gazette is a fair weather champion of Republicanism. It is so sure that the Red Lake county Democracy is going to be swept off the earth that it is supporting practically every Democratic county official for re-election. We admire the Gazette's discernment. It knows where the pleasant pastures lie.

IT is announced that the Standard Oil company has planned to lay a pipe from Texas to New York, with branch lines radiating to the various oil fields, so as to handle the entire oil production of the United States. Refineries are to be placed at intervals in the lines. The cost of pumping in this way is said to be about one-tenth of that to ship it.

THE Russians appear to be as weak on land as on the sea. In an important engagement last Friday they were completely routed by the Japs. At this rate the war will come to a close within the coming six months. There is little left of Russia's sea power, and if the Japs can win a few more land battles the end of the war will be at hand.

A SENTIMENT in favor of Frank A. Day, of Fairmont, as the Democratic nominee for governor is chasing up and down the state at a terrific pace. The country editor seems destined to take the front rank in politics this year, but with two such good fellows as Bob and Frank after the same office some of us will be obliged to take to the woods until after election.

ROBERT A. SMITH was re-elected mayor of St. Paul Tuesday by a majority of nearly 3,000. The entire Democratic ticket was elected with him, and the Democrats have a majority in both the council and assembly. Minnesota is long on Democratic mayors, the list including Minneapolis, St. Paul, Duluth, Winona, Mankato, St. Cloud, Stillwater, Faribault and Northfield.

THE Southern Democratic press is almost a unit for Parker. The Atlanta Constitution voices the general sentiment in saying: "The action of the Democracy of the state of New York should settle the question of the national candidate, for just as Judge Parker represents the enthusiasm and harmony of the party in his own state, so he should represent the enthusiasm of a reunited party in the country at large."

THE friends of Thomas Crawford of Lakefield are urging his nomination for railroad and warehouse commissioner on the Republican ticket. Mr. Crawford is one of the brainiest young men in the state, upright and honest, and hails from the Second district, which has no other aspirant for a place on the state ticket. If the Republicans really want a board of railroad commissioners of unquestioned ability and integrity they cannot do better than nominate Crawford and Valentine.

THE calendar of the late congress is very much like that of all its predecessors in recent years. The house calendar bears about 500 bills, considerably more than half of which are private measures. The senate has a smaller catalogue of unfinished business—142 public bills and 293 private. It is safe to say that the country is quite as well off without as it would be with most of this legislation. The record of the late congress, in brief, is barren of legislation of a character vitally affecting the interest and welfare of the nation.

JONES, the man who tells the crop stories, says of the outlook for the winter wheat crop: "The wheat crop of the United States is in more critical condition than for several seasons. Some sections of the southwest have not had rains for ten months, notably the Texas panhandle and western Oklahoma. The whole wheat area of the Ohio valley and the southwest is affected in some degree unfavorably, and rains will be necessary to bring out a good crop. If these rains are not general by May 10, a considerable part of the wheat area will be lost regardless of what conditions may obtain afterward. Kansas had some good rains which will be very helpful. I feel that we have no right to discount the future too much, hence should say the chances are that Kansas, Texas and Oklahoma together will this year raise as much as Kansas did last year, possibly 5,000,000 to 8,000,000 bushels more."

JIM HILL TO FARMERS.

An address by President J. J. Hill recently was one of the sort that is helpful to all classes, while containing much food for thought. After an exchange of greetings Mr. Hill said in part:

"There is more intelligence, more patriotism, more of everything that goes to make good citizenship, on the farms than anywhere else in the country. (applause.) It has always been so, from the early days to the present. Many of us here can remember what a few years ago we called "the late unpleasantness," the men left their plows in the furrows, half way across the field, to follow the flag of their country, and the farmer's sons were the men who most distinguished themselves.

"Country life is better fitted to develop a man than the city. It gives him better opportunity, if he will take advantage of it. And I want to impress upon fathers and mothers, if they are here, that their children in growing upon the farm should not look forward to the time when they can leave it, when they can have their hair banged and soaked down, and come to the town and look for a job. Better men and women live in the country. The time will never come when this country can afford to lose sight of the interest of the people who live on the land.

"Everything that is of value comes out of the farm, the forest, the mine and the sea—four sources from which everything that is worth having comes.

"Now we have not got the sea. We had some fine forests in Minnesota, but where are they? They are so far gone that ten or fifteen years will wipe them out entirely. The trees that are left standing in your forest are practically all counted. You have in Minnesota the most valuable iron mines in the world, but you have no coal, you cannot make iron. All you can do is to dig iron ore with steam shovels and take it to other parts of the country where they have coal and coke and can make the metal into iron and steel. You cannot do it here as things are today, and it is very doubtful if iron ever will be successfully made in Minnesota.

"That leaves you the farm from which every man in the state must draw his living. Your cities, your churches, your schools, your universities, your lawyers, your doctors, your merchants, your millers, everybody makes his living out of the men who cultivate the soil and this must go on in Minnesota for all time.

"Now, what are you doing to help the farmer? To help him means to help yourself. The state has a most excellent experimental farm, or a department attached to the State University. It does a little more now than help to get appropriations for the other end."

MAY WEATHER.

Prof. Hicks Tells What We May Expect in the Weather Line.

The 8th, 9th and 10th of May are the central days of the second storm period. A return of storm-conditions will appear about the 8th, in rising thermometer, falling barometer, easterly to southerly winds, and growing cloudiness. These changes will result in storms on the 8th and 9th with electrical storms and high winds on and touching the 10th. Another sudden and marked change to cooler will follow these storms. If a cool wave and frosts should not follow the first storm period look for much cooler with heavy frosts northward about the 10th to 12th.

"The third storm period extends from the 12th to the 17th. As we enter this period look for change to warm and balmy weather. The winds shift to southerly and the skies soften into serenity that foreruns active storms. Heavy rains, thunder and hail will follow in many parts of the country during the 14th to the 17th, and level-headed people should be on their guard against tornadoes. Change to much cooler, with probable frosts in the north, will certainly come when these storms are over.

"The fourth storm period extends from about the 20th to the 23d. During this time if the storms mentioned in the third period do not occur, the fourth may be counted on as one of general and severe storms. The fifth storm period will bring a regular return of storm conditions, higher temperature, falling barometer and rain and thunder storms. Change to much cooler will come on as May goes out. Until the middle of May rains above the average will fall in most sections of the country and there will be danger from local floods, both to property and life."

FLIRTING A NECESSITY

So Declares a Prominent New York City Club Woman.

Flirting is not only a luxury, but a necessity," was the humorous comment of Mrs. Richard Stearns, prominent in the Eclectic club, of New York city, apropos of the stand taken by Dean Tufts of the University of Chicago, who has set the good people of the country by the ears in encouraging his pupils to look upon flirting as being immensely valuable from a educational standpoint.

"Flirting is not only a luxury, but a necessity," said Mrs. Stearns, "but there should at least be a time limit placed upon it. Flirting is the athletic exercise of coquetry, and develops, as it were, the coquetish muscles. Coquetry is par excellence the salvation of a too serious aspect of life."

"It's very interesting if judiciously carried on," Mrs. Charles Frederick Naething of the Eclectic assured her interviewer. "But it takes a woman with a judicious mind to know when to stop. Isn't that so?"

Miss Mary Garrett Hay immensely approves the statement that teasing is beneficial. "It not only develops the intellect," she said, "but it also develops self-control, which is the one thing which women have yet to acquire."

Mme. Marie Cross Newhaus, editor of Aegis, takes a much more serious aspect of the subject, and as Mme. Newhaus is a woman of cosmopolitan education, having traveled widely and met men and women of many countries, anything she says is of value.

Farmers have been at work in earnest during the past week, and a good share of the wheat is already in. A little grain had been put in early in the season, but most of this was frozen and the ground had to be gone over again.

DEATH OF FRED MILLER.

Former Manager of St. Hilaire Mill Dies in Florida.

DIED:—At DeFuniak Springs, Florida, on April 20th, 1904, of Brights disease, Fredrick H. Miller, aged 44 years.

It is with sincere feelings of sorrow that we are called upon to make the above announcement. Fredrick H. Miller became acquainted with the people of St. Hilaire in 1897. He superintended the building of the saw mill here, re-modeled the one at Crookston, and furnished the plans and built the one at Cass Lake. Mr. Miller was one of the best posted lumbermen in the state of Minnesota, and had a bright future before him had his health not failed. During the years that he was manager of the mill here he gained the esteem and confidence of not only the business men but of all the mill employees, and it is safe to say that no one in the employ of the Crookston and St. Hilaire Lumber companies stood so high in the esteem of the men as did Fred Miller. He left here in the fall of 1902 to become part owner and manager of a large mill at Port Arthur, Canada. While there his health failed and he was compelled to leave. After several months of treatment he apparently recovered, and accepted an interest in the management of the large mill now building at Rainy River Canada. Last fall his health again failed and he has since been south. He was a member of the local lodge of Modern Woodmen and had $3,000 insurance in that order. He leaves a wife and one daughter to mourn his loss. The interment took place at his old home at Muskegan, Michigan.—St. Hilaire Spectator.

ALL THE WORLD IS INVITED TO COME

GATES OF THE GREAT LOUISIANA PURCHASE EXPOSITION ARE OPENED AT ST. LOUIS.

Immense Crowd Attends the Historic Event—Ceremonies Briefly Described—Congratulations from the President.

St. Louis, May 2.—The Louisiana Purchase exposition was opened to the world Saturday, and has been acclaimed with one great voice by 237,388 persons the greatest, the grandest and the most beautiful that the world has ever built. President Roosevelt touched the button, releasing the machinery, the flags and the water in the cascades at the exposition just one hour before the time when the world's fair was really opened. Technically, the president opened the exposition with the magic key in the white house. In reality he had nothing to do with it. When the message was received by President Francis, he withheld it until all of the ceremonies had been completed.

Ceremonies Begin.

When the officers and directors of the exposition, the members of the national commission and of the board of lady managers, representatives of foreign state and territorial governments had taken their places at the foot of the Louisiana monument the assemblage was called to order by President D. R. Francis, of the exposition, who requested the audience to rise while Rev. Frank M. Gunsaulus, of Chicago, delivered the invocation. Following the prayer President Francis delivered his address.

Key Delivered to Francis.

At the conclusion of his address President Francis recognized William H. Thompson, of the committee on grounds and buildings, who presented to President Francis Isaac S. Taylor, the director of the works. Mr. Taylor delivered to President Francis the keys of the exposition and presented diplomas of merit to the chiefs of his staff. After the rendition of the march "Louisiana" by Sousa's band, President Francis transferred the exposition buildings to Frederick J. V. Skiff, the director of exhibits.

Sing "Hymn of the West."

The grand chorus, "Hymn of the West," was then sung by a choir led by Alfred Ernst. The music of the hymn was by John Knowles Payne, and its words were written by Edmund Clarence Stedman.

President Francis then introduced Mayor Rolla Wells, of St. Louis, who spoke briefly extending to the people of the United States and to the residents of countries abroad a cordial welcome to the city of St. Louis when they should visit the exposition. Other speakers were: Hon. Thomas H. Carter, president of the national commission, on behalf of that body; Senator Burnham, for the senate; James A. Tawney, of Minnesota, for the national house of representatives; E. H. Harriman, for the domestic exhibitors, and Michael La Grave, of France, for the foreign exhibitors.

Formally Opened.

The chorus of "America" was then sung and Hon. William R. Taft, secretary of War, acting as the representative of the president of the United States, delivered the last address of the day.

At the conclusion of Secretary Taft's address, President Francis formally declared the exposition open to the world, and the signal being given, the machinery was started and flags and banners unfurled, amid the enthusiastic cheers of the vast multitude.

Congratulates Francis.

President Francis received the following telegram:

"White House, April 30, 1904.—Hon. David R. Francis, President Louisiana Purchase Exposition Company, St. Louis, Mo.: I congratulate you and your associates on this memorable occasion. I wish well to all who have joined in working for the success of this great enterprise; and on behalf of the American people I greet the representatives of foreign contries who have come here to cooperate with us in celebrating in appropriate fashion the one hundredth anniversary of the event which turned us into a continental nation.

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

A congratulatory response was received from Mr. Francis.

CONGRESS ADJOURNS.

Fifty-Eighth Gathering of the National Legislature Ends Its Work—Tribute to Speaker.

Washington, April 28.—In the senate yesterday final conference reports on the sundry civil, general deficiency, post office and the military academy appropriation bills were agreed to, practically without opposition. The nomination of William D. Crum to be collector of the port of Charleston, S. C., was considered in executive session. A failure to confirm the appointment resulted. In the house Messrs. Littlefield (Me.) and Williams (Tenn.) made political speeches intended for the coming presidential campaign. Speaker Cannon ruled that the Cockran resolution for an investigation of the Dalzell charges that Cockran had campaigned for McKinley for "hire" in 1896, was not a privileged matter.

Washington, April 29.—The second session of the Fifty-eighth congress was declared adjourned at two o'clock by President Pro Tem. Fry in the senate and at 2:10 by Speaker Cannon in the house. The president remained at the capitol until the end, and many bills were signed by him, including the post office, sundry civil, general deficiency and military academy appropriation bills, and the Panama canal measure. The closing session of the house was made notable by the demonstration which was evoked by the adoption of a resolution offered by Mr. Williams, the minority leader, testifying to the courtesy and impartial manner in which Speaker Cannon had presided over the house.

FATAL HOTEL FIRE.

Fames Destroy the Three-Story Bryan House in City of Lansing, Mich. Three Guests Burned to Death.

Lansing, Mich., April 30.—Four lives were lost Thursday night in the burning of the Bryan house a three-story brick structure on East Michigan avenue the first floor of which was used as a machine shop. The dead:

Jerome C. Stiles, Grand Rapids.
John Volland, Lansing.
Ransom Dingman, Lansing.
James Ray, Lansing.

Stiles fell from an upper window soon after the fire broke out, and died from his injuries at the hospital. The other three victims were burned to death, their charred bodies not being found until daylight permitted a search of the ruins. Several other boarders and two firemen were cut and burned during the progress of the fire, but their injuries are not serious. A large tank of gasoline in the basement of the building exploded a few minutes after the fire broke out, scattering flames all over the building and making it impossible to render assistance to the inmates. The financial loss is about $5,000.

TRAIN IS WRECKED.

Disaster to World's Fair Special in Missouri—Eight Persons Killed—Sixteen Injured.

Kimmswick, Mo., May 2.—Eight persons were killed and 16 seriously injured in the wreck of a world's fair special on the St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern railroad at Wickes Siding, about one and a half miles north of here Saturday morning. The cause of the wreck was the misunderstanding of orders by the engineer of No. 18, the train which was wrecked. The engineer was killed instantly and the fireman later died of his injuries. The dead are: James Bailey, engineer; Edward Bisibard, Desoto; Mr. B. C. DeGroat, express messenger; J. N. Esly, Al Gumpert, fireman; A. E. Taber, master mechanic, Desoto, Mo.; two passengers, unidentified.

Private advices say that the Kurds attacked two villages north of Sassun, losing 26 killed.

Swift Vengeance.

Austin, Tex., April 30.—Henry Simmons, the negro, who, it is charged, on April 21 murdered a young white girl named Lulu Sandberg, at Manos, 12 miles from this city, was tried by a jury and convicted of murder in the first degree within three minutes after the jury was charged. The entire trial, empanelling of jury and all, only consumed two hours. The defendant waiving all rights, the judge setnenced him to hang here on Monday next, May 2.

Sightseers Injured.

St. Louis, Mo., May 2.—The hurricane roof of the ferry steamer Alonzo C. Church collapsed early Sunday morning while the steamer was crowded with sightseers viewing the United States gunboat Nashville at anchor in the river harbor here, and about 20 people were injured.

STINGING BLOW TO THE RUSSIANS

JAPANESE FORCE A CROSSING OF THE YALU AND ADMINISTER A CRUSHING DEFEAT.

Key to Russian Position, Chintiencheng, Captured Japs Lose 700 Killed and Wounded—Russian Loss, Over 800.

Tokio, May 2.—The Japanese on Sunday captured Chiutiencheng, ten miles north of Antung, which is regarded as the key to the Russian position on the right bank of the Yalu river. It is expected that the Russians will retreat to Fenghuancheng, which is on the road to Liaoyang.

Five Days of Fighting.

Tokio, May 2.—After five days of fighting, largely with artillery, the first Japanese army, under Gen. Kuroki, has forced a crossing of the Yalu river, and on Sunday, with a gallant infantry charge covering a frontage of four miles, it drove the Russians from Chiutiencheng and the heights on the right bank of the Iho or Aida river, which enters the Yalu from the north almost opposite Wiju. The Japanese turned the left flank of the Russian position, and in the battle of Sunday they swept away the new front interposed by the Russians to check their onward movement. The present position of the Japanese is a dominating one, and they may force the abandonment of the defenses erected by the Russians at Antung and other points lower down the river.

The Losses.

The Japanese losses on the Yalu Sunday were about 700 killed and wounded. The Russians lost over 800 men. The Japanese captured 28 quick-firing guns, 20 officers and many men.

Movement Began Tuesday.

Gen. Kuroki began the movement on Tuesday by ordering a detachment of the imperial guards to seize the island of Kurito, which is in the Yalu above Wiju, and a detachment of the second division to seize the island of Kineito, which is situated below Wiju. Both islands were captured. On Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday the Russians essayed a bombardment of Wiju, but their guns were silenced without much damage having been effected.

Japs Cross the River.

The Twelfth division of the Japanese army was chosen to make the first crossing of the Yalu. It began its preparations on Friday by driving the Russians from their position on the bank of the river opposite Suikochin, which is eight miles above Wiju and the point selected for the crossing. This division constructed a pontoon bridge over the river and at three o'clock Saturday morning it began crossing. The entire division passed over the river during the day and by six o'clock Saturday evening it was in the position assigned to it for the battle of Sunday. At a late hour Saturday night Gen. Kuroki telegraphed to the general staff of the army: "I will attack the enemy on May 1 at dawn."

The Battle on Sunday.

True to his promise Gen. Kuroki at daylight Sunday centered all his artillery on the Russian position between Chiutiencheng and Yoshoko. To this fire the Russians made reply with all their batteries. At seven o'clock in the morning the Russian battery at Yoshoko was silenced and half an hour later Gen. Kuroki ordered his line, stretching for four miles, to attack. The Japanese infantry, on the word of command, charged across the Iho, wading that stream breast deep and began storming the heights at 15 minutes past eight. At nine o'clock they had swept the Russian line back across the plateau.

Catholic Societies to Meet.

Cincinnati, May 2.—Preparations are well under way for the fourth annual convention of the American Federation of Catholic Societies in Detroit August 5.

BACKWARD SEASON.

Tardiness of Spring Acts as Considerable Check to Progress of Trade

New York, April 30.—Bradstreet's says: "Distributive trade continues quiet at most markets, and April trade the country over has not equaled a year ago. The absence heretofore of the usual volume of spring demand is depressing to dealers, who fear they will be obliged to carry over surplus stocks. Signs of improvements are, however, to be noted in the northwest, where better weather has helped retail and wholesale trade. Pacific coast trade and crop advices are better than of late, and while weather and crop conditions are backward, at the south the exceptionally strong position of the leading interests renders the outlook for the future very hopeful. A favorable development of the week has been the breaking of the drought in the southwest. Backward weather has retarded cotton planting and spring wheat seeding, while crop germination and growth is generally reported slow the country over. During the first four months of they ear upward of 125,000 men have struck for various causes, but while there is considerable unrest, rather less than the usual May day disturbances are looked for."

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: "Business continues to move in most conservative channels, purchases being restricted to immediate requirements and weather conditions dominating the situation to an unusual extent. At many points there has been little spring trade and the transition from winter to summer will be accomplished with scarcely any intermediate season. Considering this adverse factor, the current volume of business is remarkably satisfactory. Building operations are also deferred to a late date.

"Failures this week numbered 202 in the United States, against 203 last year, and 16 in Canada, compared with 13 a year ago."

Hymn of the West

WORLD'S FAIR, ST. LOUIS, 1904.

The following hymn, written upon invitation of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition management, by Edmund Clarence Stedman, was sung by a chorus of five hundred voices at the opening ceremonies of the Exposition. The music for the hymn was written, also upon official invitation, by Professor John K. Paine, of Harvard University:

O Thou, whose glorious orbs on high
Engird the Earth with splendor round,
From out Thy secret place draw nigh
The courts and temples of this ground;
Eternal Light,
Fill with Thy might
These domes that in Thy purpose grew,
And lift a nation's heart anew!

Illumine Thou each pathway here,
To show the marvels God hath wrought
Since first Thy people's chief and seer
Looked up with that prophetic thought,
Bade Time unroll
The fateful scroll,
And empire unto Freedom gave
From cloudland height to tropic wave.

Poured through the gateways of the North
Thy mighty rivers join their tide,
And on the wings of morn sent forth
Their mists the far-off peaks divide.
By Thee unsealed,
The mountains yield
Ores that the wealth of Ophir shame,
And gems enwrought of seven-hued flame.

Lo, through what years the soil hath lain
At Thine own time to give increase—
The greater and the lesser grain,
The ripening boll, the myriad fleece!
Thy creatures graze
Appointed ways;
League after league across the land
The ceaseless herds obey Thy hand.

Thou, whose high archways shine most clear
Above the plenteous western plain,
Thine ancient tribes from round the sphere
To breathe its quickening air are fain,
And smiles the sun
To see made one
Their brood throughout Earth's greenest space,
Land of the new and lordlier race!

MANY PROBLEMS TO BE CONSIDERED

METHODISTS GATHERING AT LOS ANGELES FOR GENERAL CONFERENCE.

IMPORTANT QUESTIONS WILL BE DISCUSSED

Women Delegates to Have Voice in Affair for First Time in History of the Church—Several New Bishops to Be Elected.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 3.—As the day for the assembling of the delegates to the thirty-first general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church approaches general interest in the gathering of representative churchmen from all parts of the civilized world becomes greater, and when Bishop Steven Merrill calls to order the first session at nine o'clock next Wednesday morning 748 out of a total of 750 accredited delegates will be in their seats ready to proceed with the legislative tasks confronting them.

The delegates will, during the daily sessions lasting throughout the month of May, be called upon to solve many problems of importance to the growth and future welfare of the Methodist Episcopal church.

In the opinion of many high in the councils of Methodism the quadrennial session will prove the most important of any in the history of the church.

Questions to Be Considered.

Among the most important subjects are the following:

What can the church do on the liquor question? What action can the church take to solve the race question? Shall worldly pleasures, such as dancing, theater-going and card-playing, be condoned by the church? With which combatant in the war in the orient are our sympathies? What can be done by the church to prevent, in the good name of the country, the crime of lynching? Shall the itineraries of Methodist ministers be restored? How many bishops shall be elected and how many be retired?

Other Problems.

A proposal to consolidate the three publishing houses of the church in New York, Cincinnati and Chicago will doubtless cause spirited discussion.

The subject of the American university, in course of construction in Washington, is one of the big questions that the education department will have to decide. The institution, as originally projected, was to have an endowment of $5,000,000 and an agreement was reached at a former general conference that the university should not be opened until this sum should be in hand. About $2,500,000 has been collected, land has been secured and several large buildings erected. There is a strong party in the conference that opposes the idea of letting this property stand idle for an indefinite period, and urges that the school be opened also.

The educational department will also have to decide the question of heresy in certain theological schools where the majority of the Methodist ministers receive their training.

For the first time in the history of the Methodist general conferences women delegates will have seats in the conference and a voice in the direction of church affairs.

To Elect New Bishops.

The election of bishops, which will take place about May 16, is one of the chief duties of the present conference.

It appears to be certain that no fewer than four new bishops or no more than ten will be elected. There are numerous candidates. Aming them are: Rev. Dr. James M. Buckley, New York; Rev. Dr. George F. Bovard, Los Angeles; Chancellor Day, of the University of Syracuse; Rev. Dr. W. F. McDowell, of the Educational society; President Little, of the Garrett Biblical institute, Evanston, Ill.; President Bachford, of Ohio Wesleyan university; Rev. T. R. Jennings, Cincinnati, and Rev. Dr. Henry Spellmeyer, Newark, N. J.

The colored delegates, of whom there are 75 or more, will make a strong effort to have one of their race elected bishop.

FOUR PERISHED.

Tramps Sleeping in Box Car at Council Bluffs, Ia., Are Burned to Death.

Council Bluffs, Ia., May 3.—Three men and a boy were burned to death in a box car in the Northwestern yards here about one o'clock this morning. They are believed to have been hoboes trying to steal a ride, but no clue as to their identity has been obtained, as their clothes were practically destroyed. The car was discovered to be on fire while being switched and the cries of the men for help were heard by trainmen, but all four succumbed to the flames before they could be reached. The car was filled with bedding and it is presumed the fire started by the men smoking.

Railway Station Robbed.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 3.—The ticket office of the Pitcairn station of the Pennsylvania railroad, near here, was entered at an early hour Monday by burglars who blew open the safe with nitroglycerin and secured about $400. The office was badly wrecked by the concussion.

Well-Known New Yorker Dead.

THE JUNGLE BEAUTY

SHE PLUCKS HER WARDROBE FROM THE TREES AND VINES.

Lace Bark Is the Favorite Ball Dress Fabric of the Semicivilized Belle of the West Indies—Living Jewels That Outshine the Diamond.

Down in the tropical jungles of Central America and the West Indies the head of the family is not worried by milliners' and dressmakers' bills. The semicivilized belle of these lands knows how to get nearly the whole of her costume from the jungle. She manufactures it herself from the materials she gathers from nature. Though she may be able in rare cases to get from the one shop ten or fifteen miles away a few yards of cloth with which to make her dress, any trimming she may wish to put upon it must be searched for in the woods.

Lace bark is her favorite material for making anything light and dainty. This lace bark is the film which covers the heart of the lace bark tree. The natives carefully remove it and soak it in running water for three or four days in order to get off the gum and unnecessary fiber. After that it is bleached on the sands by the river and sprinkled now and then to whiten it. When it has become a creamy white it is pressed with a hot iron or a heated stone and is ready for use. It has a fine lacy appearance and runs into more artistic patterns than any manufactured article. When made into a dress it is wonderfully beautiful.

The jungle girl uses it sparingly on her ordinary clothes, but for her ball dress flounce after flounce is used to give a fluffy look to the skirts. She knows that it becomes her as nothing else would.

Her jewelry consists of beautifully colored seeds strung together in the form of necklaces, bracelets and tiaras. In addition to these, on the night of the ball she catches the brilliant fireflies which swarm in the jungle and artistically arranges them in her dusky locks. The jungle girl would not exchange her "peenie wallahs," as she calls the fireflies, for the diamonds of the northern belle.

The jungle girl's hats are a marvel to behold. She weaves them herself from the jippi jappa grass, and can get any shape or style she fancies. She trims them with the netty fiber of the cocoanut palm and the gorgeous wings of the mountain parrakeet, which is shot and brought home by her father and brother. Even her parasol and umbrella are supplied by kindly nature. When the sun is too hot or the rain too heavy a big plaintain or banana leaf does as well as anything bought in the largest stores of an American city.

A creole belle is as fond of perfume as the daintiest American woman and is just as particular that it shall be of the best kind. She goes to much more trouble to procure it, but then she knows that it is always pure and fresh. She first picks her fresh flowers, and then, by some process handed down from one generation to another, she distils it.

The secret method is often known to only a few families, and they would not give it away for any sum of money. The lucky holders of the secret are of course envied by all who know them. Although others may receive presents of the much valued scent from those in the secret, they cannot make it themselves and therefore cannot afford to be as lavish with it as they wish.

The tropical girl's soap is procured on the way to the bath. As she walks down to the river to bathe she stops here and there to gather soap berries and cuts a piece of stick called "chewstick," which she uses as a toothbrush. She chews the end of it until it becomes quite soft and froth gathers at the end. She then rubs her teeth well with it. This is the best toothbrush on earth, as it not only prevents the teeth from decaying, but keeps them beautifully white and clean. People in other countries, knowing the value of this chewstick above all others as a dentifrice, have it powdered and exported to them.

In many parts of South America the natives cannot buy cloth to make their clothes, so they have to spin it themselves out of cocoanut fiber, river weeds and bamboo fiber. The cloth woven from the bamboo fiber is very soft and silky.

Unlike the West Indians, the South American belle wears shoes of a kind. These are made of a coarse woven material like sailcloth, which is attached to soles of rawhide. They are the most comfortable shoes imaginable and are used by the soldiers of South America when on the march. They are called "alpagattas," and Americans who have traveled in South America invariably bring them home to their wives and daughters for bath slippers. Those who are lucky enough to have a pair would not exchange them for any other slippers, however costly. No other footgear equals the "alpagatta" for comfort and durability.—Washington Star.

A Fishmongering Railroad.

While looking through a pile of old papers a correspondent came across the following article in a New York paper of the date of Feb. 6, 1859, under the caption of "The Smelt Railroad:"

"It is well known that the Portsmouth railroad has to turn everything to account to pay running expenses, and many are the jokes they perpetrate upon the conductors in reference to their shifts to get a living. It is said that one of them last year was accustomed to bring fish from Portsmouth and peddle them out on the way to Concord.

"One day he brought along smelts, dealing out to customers at every station, till he got to Suncook, where he blew his horn and an old woman came out and wanted six, 'just a pattern—all I've got left, you're in the nick of time,' said he, and he began to count them and found only five. 'How's this? I should have six.' And he began to count his fingers and reckon over how he had disposed of the four dozen he had started with. After awhile: 'I have it! Hold on a little while and I'll be back,' said he, and he ran the train back seven miles to a place where he had let a woman have one more than she had paid for, got it, came back to Suncook and let the old woman have the six she wanted, and then the 'smelt' train went to Concord."—Manchester (N. H.) Union.

Sentinel and Hussar.

Two well known military terms, "sentinel" and "hussar," afford capital instances of the remarkable manner in which a nation does its word twisting. At first sight there seems little connection between the Latin word sentina, signifying the hold of a ship, and a soldier keeping watch over his sleeping comrades. The connecting link is afforded by the word sentinator, the Roman who pumped the hold of Cæsar's galleys free of bilge water. Upon his constant vigilance depended the lives of the entire ship's company.

Similarly the word "hussar" is merely a Hungarian term signifying "twentieth." It arose in this manner: When Matthias Corvinus became king of Hungary in 1458 he was extremely afraid of foreign invasion. He consequently raised an army by the simple expedient of commandeering every twentieth individual in the land; hence the hussar.

Mistake, Mistaken.

The use of these words seems to be so anomalous as to need some inquiry and explanation.

I may be mistaken, for I continually make mistakes. But when shown to have been mistaken I own myself in error. Yet, if I am mistaken, it is not the error of him who mistakes me? But it may be that I am right and that he is mistaken, though I suppose that I ought to take him aright and not mistake him. Nevertheless I often have to say in argument: "You were quite right. I was mistaken."

In a word, though he who mistakes must be in error, our common use of language considers him who is mistaken to be so.—Notes and Queries.

Fanatical Morocco.

Morocco, in spite of its close proximity to Europe, is the most fanatical of the Mohammedan countries. Christians are hated by the natives throughout the country, and it is often very dangerous to go outside the town of Tangier. The business of Morocco is entirely in the hands of the Moorish Jews, who amass considerable wealth in the coast ports. It is not prudent for a Christian to stay anywhere but in the Jewish quarter. At the capital, Morocco City, and Fez the natives expectorate and hurl stones at the "foreign infidels," as they call them, and no Christian is safe in the streets unless escorted by soldiers.

The Good Red Grouse.

Besides his many other claims to distinction the "good red grouse" has one which is often forgotten. He is the one vertebrate creature peculiar to the British isles. All the rest of our fauna is duplicated elsewhere, and even his cousin, the black cock, has foreign relations, but the true grouse exists nowhere in the world except within the United Kingdom, and considering what a noble game bird he is, how hardy and plucky and how magnificent in his flight, the fact is really something to be proud of.—London Globe.

Strong Coolies.

The power of endurance of the Chinese cooly is marvelous. Many will travel over forty miles, carrying a heavy load on their backs and think nothing of it. A writer mentions the case of certain coolies who, after going twenty-seven hours without food and having carried a heavy burden in the meantime, still had strength enough left to offer to carry a man fifteen miles farther.

Signed Against Signing.

Man With Petition—I'd like to have your name on this, Ruggles. It's a mere formality, you know, but—

Business Man—I'd like to oblige you, Rackshaw, but a fellow came round last week with a pledge binding the signer not to put his name on a petition of any kind for one year, and I signed it.

Chance For Heroism.

Adorer (anxiously)—What did your father say?

Sweet Girl—Oh, he got so angry I was afraid to stay and listen. He's in a perfectly terrible rage. Go in and appease him.

The Wicked Parrots.

Miss Nancy—I wonder why it is that sailors are such terrible swearers?

Cousin Tom—Why, don't you know? They learn profanity of the parrots. I thought everybody knew that.—Boston Transcript.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

A Monument to Bemidji.

The people of Bemidji are talking of urging the next legislature to make an appropriation for a monument to be erected to the memory of the late Chief Bemidji. The people of Bemidji think that the state owes it to the late red man to take official notice of his passing, because he has always been a friend to the whites and never failed to be honest and square with them in perilous times. It is claimed that he was very influential in preventing the Chippewas from joinigg the Sioux in massacring the settlers at the time of the uprising in 1861 while most of the heads of families among the white settlers were away in the Union army. It was Chief Bemidji's dying wish that the whites extend to his grandson Black Toungle, aged ten years, the same kindly attention that they had always shown him.

A Suicide.

After he had been arrested and released on a charge of beating his wife, Peter Engh, a prosperous farmer who resided near St. Hilaire, hung himself to a tree near his house. His body was found by persons passing the highway.

Engh returned home from St. Hilarie, after he had drank freely, and it is charged, beat his wife, driving her from the house.

Neighbors heard of the trouble and secured a warrant, which it was found later, had been illegally drawn up. Engh was taken to Red Lake Falls where he was released. Sobered by his experience, he returned home, and found his wife critically ill. Neighbors believe that remorse and melancholy, the consequance of his drinking, caused him to end his life.

More Graft.

Because W. H. Johnson wanted to get back some of the money he had spent in securing his position as superintendent of the poor department and also to recover money spent to bring Doc. Ames back to Minneapolis, C. H. Brown, Johnson's assistant in the department, falsified and raised bills for provisions purchased by the department and was an accomplice of Johnson in the wrongdoing in the department. This is what Brown testified to on the witness stand in the case against Johnson.

Johnson was cleared by the jury and Brown was at once arrested charged the same as Johnson.

The Mayor Yielded.

A crowd of citizens called on Mayor Hanson of White Bear and compelled him to close the saloons. He at first refused, but an ultimatum was sent to the saloon men and a dark warning to the mayor and council to the effect that unless the saloons were closed within an hour warrants would be issued for the liquor dealers' arrest and that proceedings might be taken against the officials. The saloons were closed within an hour.

Knife Drops on Man's Head.

A remarkable accident happened to T. W. McCarthy, a railroad brakeman. Mrs. Burke who lives in rooms overlooking the avenue in Duluth, had kept a window open during the day with a butcher knife. When she went to shut the window, and in taking the knife out dropped it and it fell outside. The knife dropped point downward and struck McCarthy in the top of the head, penetrating the skull. He was unconscious three hours, and physicians doubt of his recovery.

To Plant Whitefish.

A shipment of 3,000,000 whitefish fry to be planted in Lake Superior at Marquette went from Duluth in one of the cars of the United States fish commission. The fish were taken from the United States fish hatchery there, and there are 12,000,000 more whitefish fry together with 12,000,000 lake trout and 150,000 of brook, rainbow and steelhead trout. The fry will be planted within the next few weeks.

To Show Adulterations.

Minnesota's dairy and food department has prepared an exhibit for the the St. Louis exposition showing the character of coloring matter used in many catsups, canned goods, flavoring extracts, fruit juices and liquors. Pieces of cloth soaked in the various articles have taken on a permanent color. After being washed in ammonia and alcohol, removing all vegetable color, they still show brilliant lines derived from the mineral or coal tar coloring matter.

Municipal Leagues.

The eleventh annual meeting of the National Municipal league is to be held in Chicago next week. The first stated purpose of the league is to "multiply the numbers, harmonize the methods and combine the forces of all who realize that it is only by united action and organization that good citizens can secure the adoption of good laws and the selection of men of trained ability and proved integrity for all municipal positions, or prevent the success of incompetent or corrupt candidates for public office." The program is an extensive one, covering almost every municipal question, except that embraced in the first purpose of the league.

And the whole secret of good city government is included in that purpose and its application to any city. The personal equation is ever the controlling one. The best possible charter will not give good government if the executives are incompetent or corrupt, while the worst charter, or no charter whatever, will consist with excellent administration if the executives are honest and capable. Any city can have the best government, if its citizens wish it, and if cities are badly governed it is the fault of the citizenry, not the charter or administrators. While this is the solid, concrete fact, too little sensed and acted upon, and while the efforts of these leagues are largely theoretical, still they have a residium of good effect in educating public opinion and in widening the area of perception of individual responsibility.

But municipal politicc is eminently practical. Those engaged in it, who make it their business and find their profit in it, whose conception of government is a machine run for individual benefit, indulge in no theories or waste no time on academic questions. The end, their control, justifies to them any and all means needed to get it. This class is not numerous, but it has all the force and influence of personal interest, and it includes both those who find government a useful partner in their undertakings.—St. Paul Dispatch.

THE COUNTY PRESS.

St. Hilaire Spectator: Chas. E. Boughton, the Red Lake Falls attorney who is responsible for most of the clever poetry turned out at the lower Falls, was here yesterday.

Thief River Review: A decree of divorce was granted at the last term of court to Mard Cormickle from his wife Pearl on the grounds of desertion. Attorney Shellbach has charge of Mr. Cormickle's case.

St. Hilaire Spectator: T. J. Thorkelson is still at work on that Sunday mail train proposition and already has several large petitions which will be sent to the Great Northern the latter part of this week.

St. Hilaire Spectator: The ice went out of the river here last Saturday, April 23. With one exception this is the latest it has staid in the past twenty years. It is about two weeks later than the average this year.

Thief River Press: Wm. Lennon and Joseph Schusser visited with relatives in the city the first of the week. Mr. Lennon owns several business lots in the city which he secured in the early days before property reached its present figure and they will ultimately net him a nice sum.

Thief River Press: The sales of Red Lake lands should be held at Thief River Falls. In common justice to the people of this city who have all worked for the opening this should be done. Not only for this reason, but because of the benefit to the purchaser should the sale be conducted here.

Thief River Press: Judge Knight and Sheriff Linnihan were among the prominent Lower Falls people who transacted business in the city over Wednesday night. Both the old judge and the jolly sheriff have many friends here and their coming always make life look brighter and more worth living.

Thief River News: W. C. Smiley's book on the eleven townships of the reservation has been received from the printer and is now ready for distribution. It gives a clear statement of the lands to be opened and should be in the hands of every prospective settler. The price of the book is 50 cents.

Thief River News: Owing to the high water, the Thief River Falls Lumber company's mill here was closed down last Friday. The logs of the lumber company are all in a solid jam against the east bank of the Red Lake river above the bridge add there is no danger of their going out, but it is thought wise not to disturb them as long as the water is high.

Thief River Press: County Treasurer O. T. Tandberg was an over Sunday visitor with friends in this vicinity, where he resided before assuming his present duties. We have a "hunch" that Mr. Tandberg would not be adverse to having the county seat removed to Thief River as he still has a warm feeling for his old friends in the north part of the county.

Thief River News: The state auditor's instructions are to the effect that assessors must assess all property, both personal and real, at 50 per cent of its fair cash value. Property in Red Lake county has never been assessed at 20 per cent of its real value, and if the state auditor's instructions are followed the assessed valuation of the county will be increased over double, and the tax rate reduced.

DAIRY DEPARTMENT.

Edited by Geo. L. Austin, Manager of the Red Lake Falls Creamery.

Useful Dairy Hints.

The power to produce a large per cent. of butter fat is inherited by a cow.

Butter quality is a certain indication of its actual worth for manufacturing purposes.

It is a dead loss to let milk sour before skimming, unless the cream can be churned at once.

Churn promptly when the cream is ready. Every moment it stands after that is detrimental.

Milk keeps better, even in cold weather, if cooled at once after being drawn from the cow.

A cow will never milk so well when she is allowed to suffer from over-crowding of the udder.

A cow becomes restless if she is kept at milking longer than is necessary, consequently will not give down freely.

Absolute cleanliness is essential about the dairy, and any departure from this is detrimental to the product.

Milk, while needing to be suddenly cooled for getting all the cream, should not be disturbed while the cooling is going on.

With a good creamery the work of handling the milk is greatly lessened, and butter of more uniform quality can be made.—Cincinnati Commercial.

The patron who stays by the creamery the year round, through thick and thin is the real benefactor of the institution. He does not stop sending to the creamery as soon as his milk or cream supply begans to run low, but realizes that at such times the creamery needs the undivided support of its patrons.

Our creamery patron readers should fully appreciate the necessity of furnishing the stock with plenty of shade and water for the hot days which are coming. An ideal spot for a pasture is a meadow adjoining a lake of pure water surrounded with timber. Then the cattle can drink and lie down in the shade as best suits their fancy. Of course there are few farms where such an arrangement is possible, but in a great many instances better accommodations can be furnished than those which the stock now enjoys. Many a herd is compelled to stay in the pasture all day during the hot weather without protection from the hot sun and the flies and without water. Such treatment of the dumb animals is inhuman and unprofitable and the farmer who is guilty of the crime ought to be punished. It is but the work of a few hours to erect a temporary shed out of any material which is the most convenient and is time and money well expended. At the proper time trees ought to be planted so as to furnish shade for the future. Under this temporary shed or shade trees should be a tank of fresh, pure water to which the cattle may have access.

LAMBERT BOY INCINERATED

Little Son of Johu Bushea is Burned to Death Before the Eyes of His Parents.

John Bushea's little boy, aged four years, met a tragic death last Tuesday morning by fire in Lambert township. Mr. Bushea's farm house was discovered to be on fire, and the little fellow was sleeping upstairs. The flames were so far along that it was impossidle to reach the upstairs.

The loss to Mr. Bushea is in the neighborhood of $700. The house, with all its contents, were destroyed. There was no insurance.

Work for a Trust Buster.

Now that the government has its hands into the "trust busting" business it should take the International Harvester Company next in hand. This gigantic trust is bleeding the farmers right and left. Farm machinery costs more today than it should. Conditions have been such that the prices should have been reduced instead of raised. Competition has been killed, so the farmers have no alternative but to allow themselves to be "held up."—Swift County Monitor.

LOTTERY PLAN IS FAVORED

Buyers Must Draw Lots for Privilege of Buying Reservation Lands.

Your Uncle Samuel is preparing to go into the lottery business, as the outcome of legislation enacted by the recent session of congress, for opening to settlement lands in several Indian reservations in the northwest.

It has been decided that drawings for the choice of land will be conducted on the lottery plan. Reports received from the Northwest by Commissioner Richards, of the general land office, state that excitement is already high, although the drawings will not be held for several months to come.

It will be necessary for applicants for lands in these reservations to register their names with government officials appointed to conduct the drawing. In the sixty days after the opening of the reservation the lucky seekers for homes, determined by lot, will have a chance to select the land they want.

In this way they will be protected from the wild scramble which has characterized the free home entry plan in the past.

Commissioner Richards stated that there are notable advantages in the lottery plan. It not only determines the order of choice, but keeps a record of the people who have entered the new lands and how much they owe the government for the land they have taken up.

The reservation lands to be disposed of this time are not to be opened to the public free of all charge, as was done in the Oklahoma and other openings several years ago, but will be sold at a fixed charge.

The following facts show, in brief the opportunity for the homeseekers and how they must have money to get started this time, instead of dash and daring as before.

Red Lake reservation, Minnesota, 400,000 acres, opened in July at $4 per acre.

Rosebud reservation, South Dakota, 416,000 acres, at $3 an acre opened in July.

Lands to be opened in Montana, 1,100,000 acres, to be sold at $1.25 an acre; limit for any one entry 640 acres; opened in August.

Devil's Lake reservation, North Dakota, 104,410 acres, most fertile land in that section of the northwest, $4.50 an acre, opened in July.

Officials of the interior department who will have general direction to the lottery plan's execution are confident that the coming drawings will prove more successful and satisfactory to every one concerned than have any of the past attempts of the government to help along the homeseekers of the United States.

Previous attempts to distribute free lands have been attended by the greatest disorder, and sometimes loss of life. The Oklahoma opening was the focal point of nearly 200,000 adventurous people, most of them trying to get something for nothing, with the idea of disposing of it as soon as they could realize anything on it.

By the new plan it is hoped to obviate all these difficulties. Every applicant must be registered before he draws. When he draws a number and goes to select his land, he must pay a fixed price an acre for all he wants to take up. Having done that he will be protected in his rights by the government by civil law in all cases.

FERTILE WOMAN SUICIDES.

In an Insane Rage She Fires Shot Into Her Heart.

Partially insane and imagining that she was the object of unjust treatment by friends and relatives, Mrs. George Ranz, of Fertile, Monday afternoon committed sucide by placing the muzzle of a double-barrel shotgun to her breast and pulling the trigger by means of a long stick. Early in the morning Mr. and Mrs. Ranz quarreled, and Mr. Ranz had taken away from her a 38-caliber revolver, which she had turned against herself in his presence. Mr. Ranz took the revolver to the barn and hid it, and while there his wife took her life with the shotgun. She was partially insane through illness and family troubles. She had locked herself in her boudoir, threw her two-year-old babe out of the window and in a paroxysm of rage placed the gun at her breast and fired it. The heavy charge of shot entered her breast and heart and death resulted instantly. Mrs. Ranz was a young woman, but 24 years of age, and the reason for this mad act is given by her friends as temporary insanity.

PELICAN RAPIDS EXTENSION

Graders at Work at Dugdale on the Route From Pelican Rapids to Red Lake Falls.

Workmen are actually at work south of Dugdale on the Pelican Rapids extension of the Great Northern, which was surveyed and a portion of the grade completed some years ago, according to the Crookston Journal, and the people of Red Lake Falls look for prosperous times through the importance of being on the route of the new through Canadian line. It is understood that the work will be done by Guthrie & Son, the Great Northern contractors, at both ends of the line at the same time, and that the Roseau-Pelican Rapids line will be in operation and hauling the fall crop of 1904.

Outfits have been sent northward, but whether or not actual work on the line north of Thief River has been started is not known but that arrangements have been made for camps and that townsite promoters who have means of being on the inside are busy is a patent fact. The fact that teams and men are already at work on the southern end indicates that the work will be rushed to completion.

The line will touch Maple Bay and if daily trains are run should aid materially in popularizing that portion of the lake.

Dugdale people are authority for the statement that the Great Northern intends to make the new extention one of the most important in the northern portion of the state and that Red Lake Falls will receive its quota of business through the construction of the line. At that place the new line will connect with the old Thief River line, running northward through St. Hilaire and fullfil the first idea of the designers when they laid out the present Thief River line and graded the portion of the Pelican Rapids line, now in condition for track laying.

SALE AT THIEF RIVER FALLS

The Red Lake Indian Reservation Lands Will be Sold at That Place On June 20.

A Washington dispatch says that with the approval of the Secretary of the Interior the commissioner of the general land office has issued a proclamation stating the conditions under which the ceded lands of the Red Lake Indian reservation in Minnesota will be disposed of as provided for in an act for the sale of these lands passed at the last session of congress.

The proclamation issued today fixed Monday, June 20, for the beginning of the sale, which is to take place at Thief River Falls, Minnesota. The sale will be by public auction and the land will be disposed of in tracts of 160 acres at not less than $4 per acre. The sales will begin at nine o'clock each day. Sixty tracts will be offered the first and second days and eighty tracts on each succeeding day. Purchasers will be required to pay one-fifth of the price agreed on in cash.

Much interest is manifested in the sale. It is expected that at the sale the lands will bring considerably more than the price fixed. All funds realized in excess of $1,000,000 to be paid to the Indians will be covered into the treasury.

The lands include 255,000 acres and they are to be disposed of under the terms of the homestead law, except that entrymen will be required to pay no less than $4 per acre and will be required to show that he has not exhausted his right under that law.

STEEL BRIDGE IS ASSURED

Red Lake Falls Business Men Guarantee Payment of Contract Price.

At a meeting of the commercial club Monday evening a plan was devised by means of which Red Lake Falls is to have the coveted $7,000 bridge over the Red Lake River.

It will be remembered that last winter the board of county commissioners appropriated the money necessary for the construction of the bridge, the contract for the construction work let to the Illinois Bridge company, and all the details arranged. However, the county did not have a sufficient amount in the road and bridge fund to pay cash for the structure, and the question arose as to whether or not the board had the power to appropriate for this purpose money to be raised by future levies. The attorney general held that the act of the board was contrary to law, and for a time it looked as if the bridge would not be built.

However the necessity for the bridge is apparent, and as it would cost several thousand dollars to repair the old wooden structure, the business men decided that some method must be devised whereby the new bridge can be obtained. At the meeting Monday night it was announced that the county commissioners would be willing to appropriate $2,000 to make the cash payment required under the contract and next January there will be available another $2,000 to pay on account. The business men then agreed to give a personal guarantee for the payment of the remaining $2,800. It is expected that this amount will be taken care of by the county in 1906.

It will be good news to the people of Red Lake Falls and to the farmers north and west of the city. The bridge will be a substantial steel structure, good for a half a century, and will be a much better investment than squandering several thousand dollars in repairing the old bridge.

Thief River Press: Miss Lena Bourque went to Red Lake Falls last week to visit at the home of her sister, Mrs Herman Bischoff.

Thief River News: The machine to be used in the manufacture of cement bricks has arrived and the company will soon commence the making of bricks and building stone.

Thief River Review: August Wetzel, of Sauk Rapids, Minnesota, arrived here Tuesday, on business. Mr. Wetzel will purchase some land near this city, and expects later to go into business here.

Thief River News: The election contest case of Ira C. Richardson against F. H. Kratka will come before the supreme court this month, probably upon the 17th of May, and then will probably be decided in a short time.

Thief River News: Mrs. Peter Amundson, living on a farm in the town of Rocksbury, died last Saturday. About three weeks ago she geve birth to a child, and did not receive proper medical treatment. The child also died.

Thief River Press: County Auditor James Ford was here Saturday calling on friends and incidentally patching his political fences, which he considers to be in pretty good condition and expects to stand for two years more.

Thief River Review: D. K. Bryant, of Minneapolis, arrived in this city the first of the week and will open up a drug store in the S. T. Johnson building, on LaBree avenue, occupying the same room as Andrew Anderson, the jeweler.

St. Hilaire Spectator: Wm. Eikhoff left yesterday morning with a big outfit of men and teams for Neilsville to commence work on his big ditching contract near there. Lewis Larson and Gus Nelson left on Monday to get the camp in readiness for the crew.

Thief River News: Plans for a new brick jail to have four cells has been prepared by W. C. Smiley for the city. The plans have to be approved by the state board of correction and charities and after this boards permission is secured the work will be commenced.

St. Hilaire Spectator: J. A. White, a prominent contractor and builder of Ada, was here last Thursday to confer with Julius Pleth regarding his new townsite on the Clearwater river, where Mr. White will probably locate as soon as the town lots are placed on the market.

St. Hilaire Spectator: The Canadian land boom has fallen flat as predicted and the get-rich-quick fellows who passed over the broad and fertile fields of Minnesota and the Dakotas are turning backwards, only to find that they "overlooked a bet" and one of goodly proportions.

Thief River Press: W. C. Smiley broke into the congressional record during the last session of congress. A large part of his write up of the Red Lake reservation was published verbatim in the proceedings of the house as they appear in the congressional record. This is an honor that seldom falls to the lot of any but a full fledged congressman.

Thief River Press: Rev. McHenry, the district missionary of the Presbyterian church, has decided that he will give up the work and locate in a pastorate. He finds that the life of a missionary leaves his family too much alone. Mrs. McHenry and family will go to Delhi, Redwood county, and after he is definitely located, they will join him. Mr. and Mrs. McHenry have made many friends in this section who will regret their departure.

Thief River News: Work of grading on the Soo has been commenced in a small way, but things will not be going in full blast until a week or more from now. The Great Northern has not yet commenced, but it expected that they will in about a week. Work of putting down the rails on the Soo will be from the South to the north and an average of about two miles a day is laid, so it will probably be sometime before the road is complete to this city.

Thief River Review: Mr. J. T. Smith, president of the Minnesota Fiber company, is expected to visit Thief River Falls and Red Lake county during the month of July, to look over the field with a view of putting in a large fiber mill in this city. The company of which he is the head, owns a number of such mills over this and other states, and are continually building more and if things look favorable to Mr. Smith here, and no doubt but what they will, the company will build at once.

"DE LAVAL" CREAM SEPARATORS! No others are to be compared with them. They are in a class by themselves, and we would advise intending buyers to try one with any other make in their own home and keep the one they like best. This certainly is fair, and has been done in a number of instances. The result has been that the other people had to pull their machines out, while we have never yet had a "Laval" Separator returned. We do not peddle these Separators around the country, but will be glad to bring one to anybody on ten days' trial.

All of our Goods are "ANTI-TRUST;" that is, we buy them for cash, and can therefore sell them at ROCK-BOTTOM PRICES, and on the most favorable terms.

SILENT FAMOUS MEN

CELEBRITIES THAT HAVE BEEN NOTED AS MISERS OF WORDS.

Some of the World's Greatest Characters Have Been as Sparing of Language as They Have Been Prodigal of Deeds of Renown.

It is a curious and interesting fact that many of the world's greatest men have been as sparing of words as they have been prodigal of deeds.

It is doubtful if there ever lived a more taciturn man than Wallenstein, the famous commander of the Austrian army during the thirty years' war. It is said of Wallenstein that he "lived in an atmosphere of silence" and never uttered a word that was not absolutely necessary, nor would he permit others to speak in his presence more than was essential. One of his chamberlains was hanged for waking Wallenstein with needless noise. His servants were so many mutes, not daring to open their lips in his presence, and he was surrounded by patrols, and the approaches to his house were barricaded by chains to preserve him from the least disturbance. In comparison with Wallenstein, it has been recorded, Diogenes would have been a chatterbox and William the Silent a brawler.

But silence is a characteristic of many of the world's most famous soldiers. Napoleon boasted that in his dealings with men he never wasted a word and made monosyllables answer most purposes. But nothing escaped his eyes, and he could compress more within a sentence than most men could convey in a quarter of an hour.

The great Duke of Marlborough when receiving reports from his generals would produce his watch and say, "I will give you a minute." And it was likely to go hard with the officer who did not observe the limitation. To his staff the Duke of Wellington was always more or less a sphinx. A nod or a shake of the head was often the only response they could get from him, and when once he was asked what he considered the best equipment of a commander he answered, "A long head and a silent tongue."

Von Moltke almost rivaled Wallenstein in taciturnity. He never opened his mouth if a gesture would suffice, and when the news was brought to him that the French had declared war he simply said to the aid-de-camp, "Second pigeonhole on the right, first tier," and turned round to sleep again. But he had said all that was necessary, for in the pigeonhole indicated were complete plans for the campaign which closed in brilliant victory. Von Moltke used to say that one verb in the German language was worth all the others put together, and that was "thun"—"to do."

The worst thing his enemies could say of President Grant was, "He won't talk because he has so much to conceal," and yet it was precisely in this silence that Grant's real strength lay. His orders and dispatches were the briefest ever penned, and when once a charming young lady playfully asked him why he would not talk to her he answered, "My dear, don't you know that silence is one of the greatest arts of conversation?"

But it has been the same in all ages. Charlemagne was a perfect miser of words, holding, with Confucius, that "silence is a friend that will never betray;" Hannibal was a "man of monosyllables," and Julius Cæsar was nicknamed by his soldiers "The Oracle."

Even great statesmen and writers who cannot suffer from any lack of words have often been among the most reserved of men. Of Addison, Johnson says, "Of his external manners nothing is so often mentioned as that timorous or sullen taciturnity which his friends called modesty by too mild a name." According to Chesterfield, he was "the most timorous and awkward man I ever saw," and even Addison himself, speaking of his own deficiency in conversation, used to say, "I can draw bills for a thousand pounds, though I haven't a guinea in my pocket."

Dryden was unutterably dreary as a companion. "My conversation is slow," he once wrote, "my humor saturnine and reserved, and I am none of those who endeavor to break jests in company and make repartees." And Shadwell tells how he once dined with Dryden, and from the beginning to the end of the meal the poet "never opened his lips except to eat."

Thomas Carlyle was a "hoarder of the gold of silence" and would sit for hours, puffing away at his pipe, without uttering more than a grunt or a gruff monosyllable. Leigh Hunt, his neighbor and intimate, once wrote to a friend: "Have just spent a pleasant hour with Carlyle. When I went in he growled, 'Halloa; here again!' and at parting he snapped out, 'Good day!' and that is the sum of the conversation he honored me with. But how eloquent his silence is! I just sat and looked at him and came away strengthened for fresh struggle."

A Blustering King.

Of King George IV. Thomas Creevey, who lived in the early part of the nineteenth century, tells this story:

The king had appointed the bishop of Winchester to administer to him the sacrament on one of the Sundays about Easter. The bishop was not punctual to his time, and when he arrived the king, in a great passion at having been kept waiting, abused and even swore at him in the most indecent manner, on which the bishop very coolly said he must be permitted to withdraw, as he perceived his majesty was not then in a fit state of mind to receive the sacrament, and should be ready to attend on some future day, when he hoped to find his majesty in a better state of preparation.

CONSTANTINOPLE.

It Has Perhaps the Finest Site For a City In the World.

Constantinople looks much better from the water than it does when viewed ashore. The tourist who touches at the port, remains on board and sees the city only from the sea retains an entirely different impression from that of him who goes ashore. Seen from the water, Constantinople is very beautiful. Seen from the shore, it is the apotheosis of everything that is filthy and foul. I do not say that it is unworthy of a visit, but I do say that he who stays on board will take away a much more picturesque impression.

The site of Constantinople is ideal. There is probably no finer site for a city in the world. It is situate on the Bosporus, between the Mediterranean and the Black seas. It lies between Europe and Asia, for Scutari is part of Constantinople, and Scutari is on the Asiatic shore. It is cut off by natural boundaries into municipal divisions, for the Golden Horn divides Stamboul, the Mohammedan, from Galata, the Christian, city. So the Bosporus divides Scutari, the Asiatic, from Constantinople, the European, city; yet all of these places make one great city under the general name of Constantinople. And this great city is guarded also by nature. It has the sea of Marmora close at hand, with fortifications at either end of this great water highway, rendering the city unassailable by sea. It has a peninsular conformation which also renders it, properly fortified, impregnable by land as well as by sea. It is as if San Francisco were to have batteries of heavy artillery all around her water front, from India basin to the presidio, from the presidio to Lake Merced and then across the neck of the peninsula from Lake Merced to India basin. With all these factors in its favor no wonder that Constantinople has always been looked upon as an ideal site for a city. That so many races should have battled over Byzantium for so many hundreds of years is not surprising.—Argonaut.

WISDOM OF NOVELISTS.

Adam invented all the different ways in which a young man can make a fool of himself.—G. H. Lorimer.

The man who overestimates the foolishness of others is himself the biggest fool concerned.—Seton Merriman.

Tell the truth, live openly and stick to your friends—that's the whole of the best morality in the world.—Sarah Grand.

Every wrong brings with it its own punishment. It may be added that it frequently leaves it at the wrong house.—Barry Pain.

With good luck one can accomplish anything, but good luck is just one of the things that cannot be arranged for, even by the cleverest people.—Frankfort Moore.

Really beautiful things can't go out. They may disappear for a little while, but they must come back. It's only the ugly things that stay out after they've had their day.—W. D. Howells.

Slow in forming, swift in acting; slow in making, swift in working; slow to the summit, swift down the other slope; it is the way of nature and the way of the human mind.—Anthony Hope.

Why do people with immortal souls spend their lives in leaving tiny oblongs of pasteboard on other people with immortal souls whom they scarcely know and don't care a straw about?—Robert Hichens.

Will Make You Sleep.

An alcohol rub at bedtime will go far toward breaking up insomnia. Let the rubber begin with the forehead and temples of the sleepless one, paying particular attention to the spine and back of the neck. Rub the alcohol gently but firmly into the body, working gradually down to the feet, and probably the patient will fall asleep before the rubbing is completed. One night or even one week of rubbing would not be likely to bring back permanent habits of sound, healthy slumber, but each night there is a gain toward the normal equilibrium of the nerves, and a month of alcohol rubs should put one in a position to do without external helps of any kind.—Boston Budget.

Shook It Down.

There is a strong man in a certain village in Hungary. Not long ago he was building a stable for a farmer. Just as he was about to put the culminating brick in its place he happened to fall out with his employer and by way of working off his superfluous energy went up to one of the pillars and shook it. The entire building came down with a run. This is the most notable case of "it come apart in my 'ands," as servants say, since Samson.—London Globe.

Photograph Paste.

Dissolve half an ounce of hard gelatin in three ounces two drams of cold water until quite soft; then beat until melted. Now add one ounce six drams of glycerin. This will set hard and must be melted on the hob or in hot water for use. The advantage of this preparation is that there is no stickiness as with gum, nor does it leave a stain. It is excellent for mounting both photographs and scraps.

The Joys of Matrimony.

"Is your daughter happily married, Mrs. Cashleigh?"

"Oh, my, yes! She and her husband are both devoted to their clubs and often don't see each other for weeks at a time."—Chicago Record-Herald.

His Good Behavior.

"Did your valet have a good reference from his last place?"

"Yes. The judge gave him two months off for good behavior there."—Judge.

Red Lake Indian Reservation Homesteads

February 20th, 1904, Congress passed a bill authorizing the opening for settlement of the ELEVEN TOWNSHIPS of the Red Lake Indian Reservation which are situated in Red Lake County. These lands will be thrown open for settlement within the next four months.

These lands will be disposed of to the highest bidder, and cannot be sold for less than $4 per acre. A payment of one-fifth of the purchase price in cash will be required, and the balance divided in five equal annual payments, without interest.

We have secured a limited number of copies of the Smiley map of Red Lake County and the Red Lake Indian Reservation. These maps are 28x38 inches, and show the grade and quality of each and every quarter-section of land in the portion of the Reservation to be opened for settlement; it gives the number of acres of timber and the kind of timber on each quarter. This map was compiled from the personal notes of Mr. Smiley and from the Government notes thereof. Everyone who intends to be present at the opening should have one of these maps, as it will save you the price of a locater's fee.

JOHN E. KING, Chairman.

S. F. STAPLES, Secretary.

IF Bob Dunn has been such a dear friend of the lumber thieves it is strange that nearly all of them are arrayed on the side of Judge Collins.

BY the way, if neither candidate for the nomination is good enough to support, can the esteemed Gazette consistently lend its influence toward the election of the nominee?

STATE LIBRARIAN NELSON is again feeling his importance, and talks about libel suits. The estimate of Mr. Nelson's acumen on the part of the general public is several points below his own valuation.

SOMEHOW the report has gained currency that the Red Lake Falls Gazette was requested by Jim Martin to refrain from supporting Judge Collins, in view of the unpleasant notoriety the paper has obtained in the ante-convention campaign.

SIR HENRY STANLEY, the famous African explorer, died Monday night at his London residence. A fortnight ago Mr. Stantly, who had been in weak health for some months, caught a cold, which resulted in a severe attack of pluerisy, with complications.

JAMES J. HILL's generous donation of $1,500,000 toward the construction of a new cathedral in St. Paul is one of the largest gifts ever made by a western capitalist. The cathedral will cost $3,000,000 and will be a church edifice that the people of St. Paul can well view with great satisfaction.

THE Collins barrel seems to hold out remarkably well. Every week a few venal newspapers of small circulation are brought into line for the administration candidate and there are evidences of the expenditure of large sums of money. Do you suppose the Judge is "putting up" for all of this? If you do, you have another guess coming.

THE Ortonville Herald-Star says that one of the best known traveling men in Minnesota expressed the opinion in that town last week that Mr. Dunn was gaining strength every day and nothing but death could prevent his nomination for governor. The traveling man is a resident of Stearns county and a personal friend of Judge Collins.

MR. C. A. SMITH, of Minneapolis, who was one of the timber trespassers whom Auditor Dunn brought to time, has retired from the conflict with bedraggled feathers. Mr. Smith has proven to the satisfaction of the most skeptical that he is not exactly in line for senatorial honors, anyway. It is not likely that the Republican party would dare stoop so low as to elect a self-confessed timber thief as United States senator.

COUNTY politics is very quiet as yet, and it is not likely the contest this fall will be a particularly bitter one. It is doubtful if the Republicans nominate candidates against Auditor Ford or Judge Tarrant, and Sheriff Linnihan and Treasurer Tandberg will have listless and half-hearted opposition. This leaves the actual conflict to two or three minor offices and the Democrats have the advantage on most of these.

GEORGE P. JONES, "Jones of Rock," won the interscholastic oratorical contest at Ann Arbor, Mich., last week. The list of speakers contained representatives from all the leading colleges and universities in the middle west, and the victory is a most distinguished honor for Mr. Jones. It is said that George is scheduled to second the nomination of William R. Hearst at the Democratic national convention in the event of his election as a delegate from the Second district.

THE general land office at Washington has given out that the lottery plan will be used in disposing of the lands of the Red Lake reservation. It means that all of the lands will be disposed of at $4 per acre, irrespective of value or location, and there will be no bids, competitive or otherwise. In the order of drawing the people will be entitled to enter the reservation and make choice of a quarter section. This plan may have its advantages in the opening of free homesteads, but in the case of the Red Lake reservation the government stands to lose a tidy sum, as the greater part of the land is worth more than four dollars and would easily average twice that sum. Under the proposed plan purchaser is given an equal opportunity, so there will be no objection on the part of the public.

JOSEPH B. COTTON, of Duluth, is to second the nomination of President Roosevelt at the Republican national convention. We suppose the average Democrat will find ground for criticism from the fact that Joe Cotton is the attorney and representative of the Steel trust, and that his sympathies would naturally be with the corporations. This is probably true, but nevertheless Joe Cotton is entitled to a great deal of praise for the success he has achieved in the face of adverse circumstances. The writer knew Cotton back in a little Indiana town more than twenty years ago. As a boy he did not have ordinary advantages, yet in the face of manifest difficulties he secured a college education and graduated with honor form one of the best law schools in that section. His determination as a student and his ability as a speaker soon brought him into prominence, and he was selected as attorney for the Steel trust because he was the brightest lawyer they could find. Joe Cotton has earned the enviable reputation he has achieved by perseverence and hard work. His rise from lowly and adverse circumstances is an object lesson for the millions of boys who imagine they have "no chance in life."

THE EXAMINER'S REPORT.

The Republican gubernatorial campaign has reached the acute stage, and charges and countercharges are flying thick and fast. Last Thursday the report of another alleged investigation of the state auditor's office was filed by the public examiner with Governor Van Sant, who forwarded the report to the attorney general with the recommendation that such action be taken as the law would warrant.

This report charges that Robert C. Dunn, while state auditor, adjusted various timber trespass cases for less sums than the law contemplated, and intimates that favoritism was shown in the settlement of these cases. Considering that Mr. Dunn is the leading candidate for the nomination for governor at the convention only six weeks away, and from the fact that the public examiner is one of the leading sponsors of the Collins candidacy, there is ample room for the suspicion that this alleged finding of irregularities is a political play pure and simple. The public examiner has been investigating the state auditor's office regularly for the past four years, and he has never been able to find the slightest irregularity in Mr. Dunn's books or accounts. He knows that in the limited time between now and the convention the charges he now makes cannot be properly investigated or disproven, and it is no part of the Collins game that they shall be investigated, for nothing will be heard of them after the state convention.

Those who know Bob Dunn will not hestitate in condemning the proceeding as a cheap and contemptible political trick, for which Governor Van Sant, Loren W. Collins and James A. Martin must divide responsibility. The people of the state have been told in season and out that Bob Dunn is honest. This virtue has been generally accorded irrespective of political lines, and the people of the state are not going to be easily fooled by the dishonorable and ungentlemanly tactics of a triumvurate of small-souled politicians who are ready to sacrifice manliness and decency on the altar of their over-weaning ambition to maintain political ascendancy.

The charges are in the nature of a "roorback." If there had been any truth in them the examiner, who has been looking for flaws in Dunn's record for several years back, would have brought them months ago. They will fall as flat as the average "roorback," because they are unwarranted and untruthful. The Collins people have played their last card in the attempt to stem the Dunn tide, and it shows to what lengths the state house crowd is ready to go to defeat the choice of the rank and file of the Republican party.

YEAST FOAM BREAD.

The Kind Every Housewife Likes to Have on Her Table Every Day.

"How to Make Bread" is a little book that every bread maker ought to own and can own. The Northwestern Yeast Company of Chicago is sending it free to any housewife who writes for it.

This book tells some facts about the art of making bread that are new even to the most experienced. It says, and proves it, that the secret is in the yeast.

It shows that a pure vegetable yeast, like Yeast Foam, which is made of the finest malt, hops, corn, etc., brings out the nutty flavor and nutritious qualities of the wheat in a new way, and makes sweet, wholesome bread that keeps fresh and good so long as the batch lasts.

Yeast Foam is sold by all grocers at five cents a package, and is having a wide and increasing sale. More and more the best housekeepers are learning the virtues of a yeast that can be kept on hand all the year round, that turns out never-failing good bread which keeps their families healthy, and makes them eat, and eat, and eat.

Send to Northwestern Yeast Company of Chicago, asking for their interesting book, "How to Make Bread"—free

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: It is a high art in a woman to learn to blush at things there is no need to.

A woman's idea of a good husband is one who will let her boss the man who is making the garden, though he really knows how to do it.

A woman is very proud of herself when she has faith enough in a man to believe he is working at the office when she knows he is at the race track.

It makes a woman awful careless of her feet to wear baby-blue stockings.

A bachelor may suspect what he has escaped, but it takes a widower to know with a conviction profound.

A woman never dyes her hair to change it, but to restore it to its color.

The only thing a woman likes better than fooling a man is to fool herself.

A man always know less than he pretends and a girl more than she lets on.

Generally a woman has an idea all the men in a street car would stare at her if she didn't keep looking to see them do it.

A paper in a neighboring town says: We cannot let a day go by without suggesting that the only way to build up a city is to keep money at home. The parable of the prodigal son is a case in point. He took his boodle and went up into another country and spent it. And what become of him? Well, he was glad to feed with the swine before he could get back to the old place where they patronized home industries. There is only one way and that is to keep your dollars at home working for you and not sending them out to feed the strange town.

SCROFULA A DISEASE WE INHERIT.

Scrofula manifests itself in many ways. Swelling of the glands of the neck and throat, Catarrh, weak eyes, white swelling, offensive sores and abscesses, skin eruptions, loss of strength and weakness in muscles and joints.

It is a miserable disease and traceable in almost every instance to some family blood taint. Scrofula is bred in the bone, is transmitted from parent to child, the seeds are planted in infancy and unless the blood is purged and purified and every atom of the taint removed Scrofula is sure to develop at some period in your life.

Scrofula appeared on the head of my little grandchild when only 18 months old, and spread rapidly over her body. The disease next attacked the eyes and we feared she would lose her sight. Eminent physicians were consulted, but could do nothing to relieve the little innocent. It was then that we decided to try S. S. S. That medicine at once made a speedy and complete cure. She is now a young lady, and has never had a sign of the disease to return.

MRS. RUTH BERKLY,
150 South 5th Street. Salina, Kan.

No remedy equals S. S. S. as a cure for Scrofula. It cleanses and builds up the blood, makes it rich and pure, and under the tonic effects of this great Blood Remedy, the general health improves, the digestive organs are strengthened, and there is a gradual but sure return to health. The deposit of tubercular matter in the joints and glands is carried off as soon as the blood is restored to a normal condition, and the sores, eruptions, and other symptoms of Scrofula disappear.

SSS

S. S. S. is guaranteed purely vegetable and harmless; an ideal blood purifier and tonic that removes all blood taint and builds up weak constitutions. Our physicians will advise without charge, all who write us about their case. Book mailed free.

HAS NO AMBITION FOR SECOND PLACE

SPEAKER CANNON DECLARES HE WON'T ACCEPT VICE PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATION.

Believes He Can Be of More Service to the Nation by Remaining in the House—He Hopes to Be Reelected as Speaker.

Washington, May 4.—"Even at the risk of being accused of declining that which I probably could not get, if I desired it, I answer most unequivocally that if the nomination were tendered to me I would not accept it under any circumstances whatever." Thus strongly did Speaker Cannon in an authorized interview with a Post reporter Tuesday emphasize his determination with reference to the vice presidency. As he concluded dictating what he had to say, the speaker added: "If there is any language which can be more decisive, write it in."

"What are your reasons for such a statement?" he was asked, and replied:

"I have been for almost 30 years a member of the national house of representatives. I may say my life work has been in connection with legislation in the house. I have been renominated by the republicans of the congressional district in which I reside, and I have accepted the nomination. I have every reason to hope I shall be reelected."

Wants to Be Speaker Again.

"If the republicans have a majority in the next house of representatives," he continued, "of which in my judgment there is no reasonable doubt, I will be a candidate to succeed myself as speaker. If, perchance, however, the republicans should not have a majority in the next house, I will take my place on the floor and give the best service it is in my power to give to the minority. In my judgment I can do better service in my capacity as a member of the house of representatives than I can do elsewhere."

Can Find Stronger Men.

"I have no ambitions, touching the public service, outside of and disconnected with the house of representatives. One word more. There are many men in the republican party in the middle west and elsewhere who are better equipped for the great office of vice president than I am, and would add more of strength to the ticket than I would, so that the decision, as above announced, and my duty as a citizen and a republican run together in the conclusion that I have come to, which is final."

"Have you taken into consideration," he was asked, "that it has been suggested that your candidacy on the ticket as vice president is necessary to carry Illinois?"

"There is nothing in the suggestion," he replied. "The republican party is as strong in Illinois as it has been in a quarter of a century."

UNIVERSITY TO CELEBRATE

Wisconsin State Institution to Hold Elaborate Jubilee Exercises Next Month.

Madison, Wis., May 9.—The programme, now complete, of the jubilee exercises of the University of Wisconsin to be held during the week beginning Sunday, June 5, which are to include the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the graduation of the first class in 1854, the inauguration of President Charles Richard Van Hise and the fifty-first commencement of the university, indicate that the occasion will be one of great interest not only to the alumni and others interested in higher education, but to the people of the whole state.

The responses received thus far indicate that there will be a larger attendance than originally anticipated. Some 100 Americans and foreign universities have accepted the invitations and will be represented by one or more delegates. At recent meetings of the alumni associations in New York, Washington, Milwaukee and St. Louis much enthusiasm was manifested in the coming celebration and from the responses thus far received it is evident that there will be over 1,500 alumni present.

Elaborate preparations are being made for the spectacular features of the jubilee, which will include a torchlight procession by 2,000 undergraduates, the pipe of peace ceremony and the water fete on Lake Mendota.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

State Fair Catalogue.

The State Fair Premium List has just been issued by Sec. E. W. Randall for the State Agricultural Society, being the first time in some years that the society has published its own list. Under old conditions the list has not been very satisfactory and this year the board of managers decided to publish on their own account, even if the expense was thereby increased. As a result of this policy, a very handsome book has been produced

The most notable thing in connection with the announcements of premiums and prizes is the fact that the total offerings of the Minnesota State Fair for this year reach the enormous sum of $50,000, an amount not equalled by any other state fair in the country or any local fair or exposition anywhere. A large part of this increase is in the agricultural division of the fair where through additions of new classes and extra premiums and the enlargement of old offerings there is an increase of some $5,000. These divisions of the fair have been carefully gone over and the premium offerings brought thoroughly up to date.

The amusement program is very strong and two of the standard $1,000 races have been advanced this year to the $2,500 class, which will greatly increase the interest in track events. In the opening announcement signed by President C. N. Cosgrove and Sec. E. W. Randall, it is stated that evening amusements will be a prominent part of this year's fair and that in every particular care will be taken to make the amusement side of the fair a success.

Copies of the premium list may be obtained by addressing Sec. E. W. Randall, State Fair Grounds, Minn.

Paintings for Capitol.

The state capitol commission has authorized F. D. Millet and Douglas Volk to paint two pictures to adorn the east and west walls of the governor's reception room. The paintings will be approximately six feet high and ten feet broad, and will represent historical events of the Northwest.

Mr. Millet will paint a picture representing the treaty at Traverse des Sioux, after a small painting on exhibition at the rooms of the State Historical society. Mr. Volk's subject will be "Father Hennepin Discovering the Falls of St. Anthony," and the painting will be after an old French engraving in possession of Archbishop Ireland. Mr. Millet will receive $4,000 for his production, and Mr. Volk will be paid $3,000. The difference in price is because there will be more figures in Mr. Millet's picture.

The commission may decide to secure several small paintings for the corridors surrounding the house of representatives. Among the subjects suggested are a lumber scene, representing the growth of the lumber industry; a river steamboat of the old type; the first church in the state; a train of Red river carts; the old blockhouse and round tower at Fort Snelling, and Gen. Sibley's first residence at Mendota.

Want Our Help.

Senator Knute Nelson and Congressman Lind have been appealed to by the Swedish National association of Illinois "to determine authoritatively and finally where the honor of having designed the first monitor belongs."

In the letter sent to Senator Nelson and Congressman Lind it was said that "the entire American people, as well as the whole world, have always believed that from turret to keel plate, from rudder shoe to anchor well, every distinctive feature of the monitor was the creation of Ericksson's brain; every detail was stamped with evidence of his handiwork."

It is said that the request of a decision is made to silence the impudent pretensions of false claimants to the honor of the invention.

Republican Convention.

The factional fight in the Republican state central committee over the selection of a convention city for the state nominating convention, was ended with the selection of St. Paul.

The best efforts of the Duluth delegation, backed by prominent committeemen from other parts of the state, availed nothing.

The convention will be called to order by Senator Moses E. Clapp in the Metropolitan opera house, St. Paul, at 10 o'clock, Thursday, June 30.

News Notes.

At a meeting of the assessors of Morrison county it was decided to assess wild land at $3 an acre and improved land at $5 an acre.

Ernest Nelson's men furnishing store was closed at Wakefield on a chattel mortgage for $700.

As one result of the recent fire at Brainerd, R. R. Wise will soon commence the erection of a $100,000 brick block for hotel purposes.

Julien and Louis La Chappelle arrived in Duluth in a most unusual manner for this time of the year, having marched thirty-two miles on Lake Superior from their home at Brule, Wis., on snowshoes.

The announcement of the plans for the regular summer school at the university is out. The session will commence June 20 and continue until July 29.

The body of Capt. Irwin Shelly, the old soldier, who disappeared from the Soldiers' home, was found in the river, near the state fish hatchery, at St. Paul.

The Cannon Falls Sorghum company has been organized and will put up a syrup factory on the North side. The new concern consists of Dr. H. E. Conley, H. A. Vancampen, John Carlson and Wm. Carlson.

RUSSIANS GIVE UP NEWCHWANG

CZAR'S FORCES BEGIN EVACUATION OF MANCHURIAN TOWN.

CAPTURE OF DALNY BY JAPS IS REPORTED

Alexieff Notifies Emperor of Transfer of Headquarters to Harbin—Russians Becoming Apprehensive Over War Situation.

Chefoo, May 10.—Passengers arriving here on the steamer Petrarch from Newchwang say that when they left Newchwang the Russians had commenced to evacuate. Some guns had been taken from the forts and many troops had already gone. In other respects Newchwang was quiet. The passengers understood before their departure that the Japanese had cut the railway, but they learned no particulars.

Japs Capture Dalny.

Shanghai, May 10.—The Japanese have captured Dalny. This is the port on which Russia spent $20,000,000 in the hope of making it the great commercial center of the orient. It is 40 miles from Port Arthur on the east coast of the Liaotung peninsula.

Alexieff Retreats to Harbin.

St. Petersburg, May 10.—Viceroy Alexieff has telegraphed to the emperor announcing the transfer of his headquarters to Harbin.

It is officially announced that Gen. Kuropatkin's headquarters will remain at Liaoyang. He has no intention, at least for the present, of retiring from his position there.

Russians Cross Yalu.

Seoul, May 10.—The Japanese consul at Gensan telegraphs that a force of Russians, number unknown, accompanied by Manchurian mounted bandits, crossed the Yalu far above Wiju, advanced southeast and occupied Changjin, 100 miles west of Songjin, May 5.

Russians Apprehensive.

St. Petersburg, May 10.—The swift march of events at the theater of war—the virtual abandonment by the Russians of all their advanced positions along the Manchurian littoral—has created a deep impression among the people and a feeling of apprehension which the authorities contend is unwarranted by a calm consideration of the situation. While not attempting to minimize the importance of the advantages gained by the enemy in the occupation of the Liaotung peninsula and the advance from the Yalu river, the general staff nevertheless declares that if it had not been for Gen. Zassalitch's rash stand at the Yalu the retreat and concentration of Gen. Kuropatkin's army upon its normal line of defense would have been regarded as a masterly piece of strategy. The equanimity of the government is shown by the free publication of all news telegrams from abroad, some being of a most sensational character. At the general staff the one dominant idea is that the developments of the last few days make it certain that the war will be long and bitter. There it is said that half a million men would have been required to hold southern Manchuria. The real truth seems to be that Gen. Kuropatkin has not much over 200,000 men south of Harbin, and he is determined to pursue the plan which he mapped out at first—to allow the enemy to follow him back into the heart of Manchuria, until strong enough to assume the offensive.

The general staff inveighs against a too pessimistic view of the situation, pointing out that the Japanese must land another army before they can hope to make a strong advance movement, which will require time. In the meantime the strength of Gen. Kuropatkin's army and his position will daily increase. The general staff repeat the words of the commander in chief—"Patience! Patience! Patience!" They also insist that the full extent of the Russian losses on the Yalu river has been published.

"It is no guesswork of our losses," said a member of the general staff. "Every man has been accounted for. Let the enemy publish theirs."

The Russian authorities are completely in the dark as to what is happening in the territory occupied by the enemy, except such news as comes from the newspapers abroad and originating from Japanese sources. The reports of a Japanese landing at Takushan and the investment of Port Dalny, etc., while not confirmable here officially are not denied.

Next Battle at Liaoyang.

London, May 10.—Baron Hayashi, the Japanese minister here, looks for the next engagement of the war to take place at Liaoyang. He said Monday:

"Gen. Kuroki probably is on the march to that place, and Gen. Kuropatkin should give battle there. Indeed, from the signs of his concentration, he may assume the offensive. But for his defeat at the Yalu river this movement might be very dangerous. Under the existing conditions, however, Gen. Kuroki ought to be able to drive back Gen. Kuropatkin at Liaoyang. The Russians have a central position, and can strike either to the left or right, an advantage they did not enjoy when Newchwang had to be defended. In the event of our occupation of Newchwang, we shall immediately appoint a civil administrator, as we did at the time of the war with China, and open the port to all nations. Vice Admiral Togo, I think, is now likely to dock part of his fleet, and give the men a rest

A HELP TO TRADE.

Improvement in the Weather Is an Aid to Distribution—Farm Work Progressing.

New York, May 7.—Bradstreet's says: "Long expected good weather has at last materialized and has helped farmers and retail trade in seasonable goods. Crop preparations and planting has made especially good progress, the present outlook being that while the winter wheat crop will be short, the acreage in spring wheat, oats and corn will be heavily increased. Retail and wholesale trade, however, has not experienced the stimulation earlier looked for, there being a disposition so far to regard results as below expectations. Reorder trade with jobbers is slow and fall orders are backward. Other conditions partake of irregularity. The iron trade is quieter, with prices distinctly weaker. On the other hand, rather less than the usual number of May strikes have occurred, and this year so far makes a more favorable showing than did 1903."

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: "Somewhat better retail distribution has followed improvement in temperature, but it came too late to recover any large part of the tardy season's injury to spring trade. Some improvements in collections, particularly at the south and west, will also strengthen weak concerns. The percentage of idle factories has increased, especially in textiles and footwear.

"Commercial failures this week in the United States are 206, against 202 last week, 241 the preceding week and 175 the corresponding week last year. Failures in Canada number 27, against 16 last week, 12 the preceding week and 22 last year."

Houston, Tex., May 7.—Storm news is coming in very slowly, but it is certainly known that there have been many deaths in different parts of the state. OF INTEREST TO IMPORTERS

Decision of Circuit Court Which Will Affect Numerous Consignments of Sugar and Tobacco.

New York, May 9.—A decision of considerable interest to importers has been handed down by the United States circuit court of appeals. In effect, the court decided that the assessment of duty upon goods withdrawn from a bonded warehouse for consumption shall be upon the basis of the tariff prevailing at the time of withdrawal. The collector at this port, who had maintained that duty should be levied on the basis of the rates in effect at the time the goods were placed in bond, was overruled.

This decision will affect a great number of importations of sugar and tobacco, and also will apply to hundreds of importations of tea which were in bond at the time the war tax on tea was taken off.

Assessors' Instructions........

Northfield News: The circular sent out by the State auditor to assessors, boards of equalization, county auditors, etc., is a document which is worth studying carefully. That it is designed for use in the country rather than in the cities is apparent. It is the rural taxpayer whom it is especially desired to reach. Whoever else is permitted to evade taxation it must be seen to that the farmer and the modest business man toes the mark.

This is apparent both from the instructions given and the manner in which they are given. With the exception of the banks, which are required by law to publish statements, whose books may be examined at any time by government officials and whose assets must be correctly listed, farm property is the only kind of property to which the State auditor has thought it worth his while to direct special attention. He has even gone so far as to name a minimum rate at which it can be valued.

The auditor does not say of the wealthy man that he must be required to list his bonds or his stocks. He does not say of corporations that either their capitalization, their dividends or their visible assets must be made the basis for their assessment. He does not say of the large jobbing houses that a correct estimate must be made either of stocks they have on hand or of the volume of their business. He does not urge the assessors to satisfy themselves of the corectness of the value of the property listed by business men. He does not insist that every means should be exhausted to arrive at an approximately correct estimate of the assets of men or corporations known to possess great wealth, although he cannot be unfamiliar with the fact that it is the rich and powerful who most persistently evade taxation.

But when it comes to the farmer that is another matter. His property he cannot hide and the State auditor and the State board of equalization are determined it shall not be undervalued. So the assessors are given explicit instructions in regard to the farmer's horses and his cattle, his sheep and his hogs, and the most valuable of his household furniture. The lowest price the assessor must put on one year old horses is $10.00; on two year olds, $17.00 to $20.00; on three year olds, $30.00. So it is with cattle, with sheep and with hogs. The instructions are that their assessments must not be less than half their real value and must not go below a certain stated figure.

With these instructions as to how to arrive at a correct estimate of the values of farm stock we have no special fault to find. The State officials are right in doing everything in their power to aid the assessors in their work. But we fail to see why one class of property should be singled out in this way, or why the attention of assessors should be in so special a manner directed to it. Farm property is always taxed. The farmer's wealth cannot be hidden. His lands and buildings are in plain sight. All his neighbors know what he is worth. Of all classes of property his is that to which it is least necessary to direct attention.

But with city property and especially property in the larger cities the case is entirely different. There the wealth of the State is largely concentrated. It is there that the great public service corporations have their headquarters. Towards the Twin Cities it is as natural in Minnesota for wealth to gravitate as it is for water to flow down hill. There are the seats of our great milling industry and of our principal manufactories. There are the centers of both the wholesale and retail trade. There are the vast department stores doing annually business which runs into the tens of millions. In the cities are to be found the great corporations. There are to be found the homes of the rich. It is there that professional men in the enjoyment of large incomes make their headquarters. In such places the work of assessment is most difficult. There the assessors need to be most closely watched. If any assessors in the state needs instructions as to how they should preform their duties and require the countenance, support, encouragement and watchful supervision of the state auditor, they are the men to whom is assigned the duty of assessing Twin City personal and real property.

And what has Mr. Iverson or the State board to say to them? Practically nothing at all. While they tell the township assessor he must not assess a three year old horse at less than $30.00 or a hog at less than $2.50 the only instructions they think is worth while to give the assessor in the manufacturing center is that he must be careful what columns he puts his figures in. All the help the auditor can give the man who must put a value on the stocks of the great retail stores of the Twin Cities is to merely direct him, whatever he does, to get them in Class 16. Mr. Iverson has nothing to say about the stocks of corporations; of their dividends; of the importance of seeking out the property of persistent tax dodgers; of the thousand and one ways in which wealth is hidden from the tax gatherers, or of the absolutely unreliable returns that are made of the luxurious furnishings of homes of the wealthy. Surely these are of no less importance than the hogs in the farmer's stye or the sheep in his sheds.

The auditor's instructions indeed are more remarkable for what they omit to mention than for the advantages they are likely to prove to the state.

THE "CHRISTY GIRL."

How the Artist Who Created Her Got His Inspiration.

Howard Chandler Christy, who ranks among the very first of popular American artists and illustrators, declares that he owes his success in his work to his wife, the original of the "Christy girl."

The "Christy girl" is famous today throughout the country. She has appeared in many of the most popular novels of the last few years, in the magazines and in newspapers, in posters and almost everywhere. The "Christy girl" is not so tall and straight as the "Gibson girl," but she is perhaps more charming and is a splendid type of the American girl.

At the beginning of Mr. Christy's career he met with many disappointments. Suddenly he began to produce brilliant drawings, pictures that got the art world talking about him. He had found a model that inspired him, but in the meantime had lost his heart.

One day after the "American girl," as she was then called, had become famous, so the story goes, a friend remarked as he looked at a painting in the artist's studio, "By the way, who is your 'American girl?'" Christy puffed his cigar slowly. "Well," he said, "the 'American girl' is the only woman in the world. She is the future Mrs. Christy." And so it proved.

Mrs. Christy was Miss Mabel Thompson of Washington. She is about five feet two or three inches, a little shorter perhaps than the average of the type Mr. Christy has distinguished, but her carriage is so graceful that she appears taller than she really is.

HOWARD CHANDLER CHRISTY.

Each "Christy girl" sketch is but a portraiture of Mrs. Christy. Husband and wife work together, she being model and critic for him. When the sketch is elaborated by the artist for a magazine or book the model criticises it. Mr. Christy relies on her judgment, and the illustration she condemns never goes to the public.

Howard Chandler Christy began his career as an artist at the school of the National Academy of Design, New York, in 1803. He remained there but a short time, afterward going to the Art Students' league. He is but thirty years of age, the youngest of the well known illustrators. It might also be said that he is the most popular.

KEEPS HOTEL IN ZION.

Deacon Cotton, Who Is One of Dowie's Trusted Lieutenants.

While Alexander S. Dowie, Elijah III., the restorer, is making his trip around the world the management of the affairs of the Christian Catholic Church in Zion will rest upon the shoulders of several of his lieutenants, prominent among whom is Deacon Frank W. Cotton.

Deacon Cotton is the manager of the Zion hospice, Chicago, and the Elijah hospice, Zion City, two huge temperance hotels with all the comforts of first class houses except intoxicants, tobacco and pork. Deacon Cotton has successfully managed these houses for several years and is one of the most popular of Elijah's corps of assistants.

DEACON FRANK W. COTTON.

Dowie will be accompanied on his globe girdling expedition by several of his overseers and deacons, who will assist the prophet in his campaign for new recruits in the various foreign lands included in the itinerary of the crusade.

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

There Is Never a Christmas Day on Board a Whaling Vessel.

"How do we spend Christmas at sea?" repeated the New Bedford whaling captain. "To tell you the truth, I'd have to look at my log book to tell you just what happened on Christmas day in our cruises, for we don't observe the day anything differently from what we do with any other day.

"You see, after a ship's been out at sea for five or six months everybody begins to lose track of the days. They are watched sharply enough by the officers for the purposes of navigation and such, but in every other way it gets so that one day is like another, and at last we don't know any more whether it's Sunday or weekday.

"Now I see," continued he, running over the log book that he had opened, "that last Christmas day we were off the Azores and struck four whales, one of 'em a hundred barrel fish; so you can bet we didn't have any time left to celebrate Christmas. And the year before that—well," said he, chuckling, "my first mate spent a good part of Christmas day with his crew trying to stay on the surface of the south Atlantic ocean, where it's about a mile and a quarter deep. His boat had been caught by a fluking whale and smashed into little bits, and as all the other boats were fast to fish, why, we couldn't give 'em any help. So we comforted 'em by telling 'em to hold on good and hard until we could get round to 'em, which we did about dusk.

"In the meanwhile they laid their oars across what was left of the post and hung there. You can bet there was mighty little plum pudding where they waited.

"No, we don't have Christmas or Fourth of July or other fixings on board a whale ship unless she happens to be laying in some civilized port at the time."

A Comb Concert.

This all depends upon one's knowledge of music, whether the teeth of the combs are coarse or fine (a happy medium is better), the texture of the paper through which the breath is blown, the voice sent and the quality of the voice itself.

Take a straight comb of medium size and hold its teeth upward. Over this fold a piece of tissue paper and hold this instrument close enough to your lips to make a buzzing sound as the voice comes through.

Have some one play an accompaniment, some well known air, which will be carried out on the comb. The effect is often delightful, for the comb music if well played reminds one of a violin, and if clever the performer may put little shades and touches to carry out the impression.

Choate's Audacious Joke.

A characteristic remark of Mr. Choate was made about Lord Aberdeen at a dinner in New York, where the then governor general of Canada was the principal guest, appearing in kilts, in honor of his Scotch entertainers. Aberdeen had made a neat speech, and the applause had hardly subsided when Choate was introduced and proceeded to say some complimentary things of the last speaker and to declare that if he had known that he was to be permitted to sit next to his distinguished Scotch friend, the governor general of Canada, "this Gordon of the Gordons," he, too, would have come without his trousers. It was audacious, but the kilted guest was keenest to catch its humor and led the laughter it produced.—New York World.

I watch them from the window
While winds so keenly blow;
How merrily they twitter
And revel in the snow!

And not one moping comrade

Ah, may I be as cheerful
As yonder winter birds,
Through ills and petty crosses,
With no repining words.

So, teaching me this lesson,
Away, away they go
And leave their tiny footprints
In stars upon the snow.

RED LAKE LANDS IN DEMAND

Great Northern Receives Many Inquiries Regarding Sale at Thief River Falls.

The St. Paul dailies report that the passenger officials of the Great Northern have been flooded the past few days with inquiries regarding the opening of the Red Lake Indian reservation.

The sale of lands was originally set for June 15, but has been changed to June 20, and will be held at Thief River Falls. A list of the lands to be sold is in the hands of the printer, and will be out in a few days. The land is sold at public auction, to those that have not already exercised their homestead rights, for not at less than $4 per acre. The purchasers must comply with the provisions of homestead act. One-fifth of the purchase price is to be paid in cash, and favorable terms are granted for the remainder of the payment. Sixty 160 acre tracts will be sold on each of the first two days of sale and eighty tracts on the third day. Approximately 225,000 acres are to be disposed of.

The land comprises some of the finest in the northwestern part of the state, and as government land is fast becoming scarce, much interest in the sale has been evinced by prospective settlers. Most of it is rolling prairie, some dotted with hardwood groves, and well watered. After it is sold it will probably be many years before the remaining Indian reservations will be diminished, and before land so accessible and desirable will be placed on the market by the government.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Every generous woman is willing to grant a man a small allowance out of his own earnings.

Give a woman fine feathers to wear in this world and she'll trust to luck for the wings to wear in the next.

It's absolute proof to a woman that she is a good mother to her children when their uncles and aunts tell her she is spoiling them.

Whether a girl is fat or not depends on whether she is describing herself or somebody else.

It makes a woman quiver with joy to think that if she were a duchess she could be haughty even to the cook.

It takes a pretty hot lie to blister a woman's tongue if she is bragging about the smart things her children say.

MEMORIAL DAY.

Annual Proclamation Issued By Governor Van Sant.

Governor Van Sant has issued the following proclamation:

"In commemoration of the deeds of those who gave their lives that our country might survive and its glory be perpetuated, I, as governor of the state of Minnesota, do hereby urge the observance of Monday, May 30, 1904, as memorial day.

Throughout our land, in almost every city, village and hamlet, are found the honored graves of American soldiers and sailors; they died for their country, they died for us. May we gather from their lives and deeds that inspiration which arouses genuine love for our country and devotion to its institutions. Their valor and patriotism established and preserved our republic, and we should devoutly consecrate this day to their memory and tenderly strew their graves with garlands of love. To honor the memories of the brave who sleep in the "windowless palace of the grave" is not only a sacred duty, but evinces the love of a grateful people. That the day may be fittingly observed, I urgently urge the cessation of business throughout the state, and that we individually devote the day to expressions and deeds showing our devotion to the memory of these, our honored dead.—S. R. Van Sant, Governor.

An Expression of Gratitude.

Thief River Press: On behalf of the people of Thief River we wish to express our appreciation of the generous way in which Red Lake Falls threw jealousy to the winds and came to our assistance in the matter of securing the reservation sale at this place. Upon request of W. C. Smiley, Mr. Ed L. Healy, the land man, secured the signatures of eight of the most prominent business firms of the Lower Falls asking our representatives in Congress to use all honorable means to secure the sale for Thief River. Attached to the request were the names of such staunch men as A. P. Toupin, J. A. Duffy, Dr. N. M. Watson, S. M. Sivertson, Theo. Garceau, L. C. Simons, Ed. L Healy and Chas. E. Boughton. This action on the part of the county seat citizens was handsomely done and we up here appreciate the courtesy and will endeavor at some future time to reciprocate. St. Hilaire also came to the front with telegrams and assisted us in landing the sale, and will, by so doing, reap a portion of the benefits.

REMOVAL OF LAND OFFICE

Thief River Falls Making an Organized Effort to Take it From Crookston.

The commercial club of Thief River Falls held a mass meeting Saturday evening for the purpose of discussing matters relating to the sale of the Red Lake reservation lands, which will take place here on June 30. It was decided to make an organized effort at this time for the permanent removal of the land office from Crookston to Thief River Falls.

The club will point out to the commissioner of the general land office, who will be present at the sale, the fact that there is no homestead land west of the Soo line and that with the construction of this new railroad Crookston ceases to be the most convenient point for settlers from this district to make their entries; also that by moving the land office to Thief River Falls the homesteader will save much time and expense in the transaction of his business.

The present time is considered favorable for such a movement by reason of the fact that Crookston is involved in a controversy with Congressman Steenerson and both Minnesota senators over the location of this present sale.

Daniel Shaw, P. W. Mabey and W. C. Smiley were appointed a committee to prepare a statement of the conditions and set forth the arguments for the removal of the land office, and an appropriation was made for printing and disseminating literature bearing on the matter.

RIVER CLAIMS A VICTIM

Jacob Wesphy Drowned in the Red Lake at St. Hilaire Monday Morning.

Jacob Wesphy, aged 32 years was drowned in the river at St Hilaire Monday morning at 9 o'clock. He came to St. Hilaire from Thief River Falls to take a position as riverdriver for the Crookston Lumber company. In working about the sluiceway this morning he made an effort to spring from a boomstick to one of the logs and was carried through the sluice and over the dam. The river is being dynamited this afternoon in an effort to bring the body of the unfortunate man to the surface, but it has not yet been found.

Wespby was a Norwegian and used to log driving in his native country where they do not use spiked shoes. This was his first experience at work with the shoes used in this country, by rivermen, and it is supposed that his accident was the result of his unfamiliarity with them and their use. The young man was but recently married at Thief River Falls and leaves a young widow there. He came from Milton, North Dakota, to Thief River and the remains, when found, will be taken to the latter place.

ST. HILAIRE.

Rev. Sand left on Monday for St. Peter where he will attend the conference of the Swedish Lutheran church.

The ladies' choir of the Synod church have their program arranged for the concert on Wednesday, June 1. They will have the assistance of Miss Orcutt of this place and Mr. Birkhoel and Rev. Rosholdt of Thief River Falls. With that talent on the program it will be a musical treat.

A very sad accident occured here on Monday. Jacob Westby was drowned in the river while driving logs. He came down from Thief River Falls on Sunday and started to work Monday and about ten o'clock in the forenoon, while working near the rais he made a misstep and was carried through the shoot into the whirling mass below where it was impossible to save him. He was twice seen clinging to a log. The gates were shut and a boat put out to get the body which was recovered about three o'clock in the afternoon. A young wife is left to mourn the untimely death.

It's queer how much more afraid a woman is that her dress may trail in the dust when she has on low shoes and gay stockings than when she has on regulation boots.

BONE FOOD

Soft and crooked bones mean bad feeding. Call the disease rickets if you want to. The growing child must eat the right food for growth. Bones must have bone food, blood must have blood food and so on through the list.

Scott's Emulsion is the right treatment for soft bones in children. Little doses every day give the stiffness and shape that healthy bones should have.

Bow legs become straighter, loose joints grow stronger and firmness comes to the soft heads.

Wrong food caused the trouble. Right food will cure it.

In thousands of cases Scott's Emulsion has proven to be the right food for soft bones in childhood.

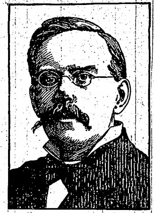
PEOPLE OF THE DAY

Riis on Washington Slums.

Jacob A. Riis, noted as author, reformer and friend of President Roosevelt, has been stirring up things at the national capital. For years Mr. Riis has been interested in the condition of the very poor in New York, his book "How the Other Half Lives," which appeared some years ago, being a valuable contribution to the agitation for better dwellings and surroundings for the tenement dwellers in the metropolis. He has also been an active worker in the movements which have brought about radical changes in the old New York slums.



JACOB A. RIIS.

A short time ago, in company with District Commissioner Macfarland, Mr. Riis visited the sections of Washington in which the poorer people of that city exist, and he is reported as saying that he found the conditions as bad as the worst he had ever seen in New York. At one place Mr. Riis exclaimed: "The man who owns buildings and keeps them in such condition is guilty of murder. There is no other word for it."

The people of Washington are very much stirred up over the horrible disclosures which resulted from the investigations of Mr. Riis, and several of the leading clergymen and other influential citizens are urging that steps be taken to clean out the slums of the capital.

Too Many Richardsons.

Judge Richardson of Alabama is fearfully exercised because there are other Richardsons on the house roll who monopolize the mail coming to that name. The other day he approached a telephone trying to impress his identity upon the official at the post-office.

"I am Richardson of Alabama. I can't get my mail," he said.

"Of Tennessee; of Tennessee?" interposed Representative Wachter of Maryland.

"No, no! Thunderation, no!" roared the Alabamian, exasperated that his name was not Nokes or Stokes or something else than Richardson. "Don't I know who I am? Richardson of Tennessee is getting all my mail. He's getting all my maps, and he really knows more about my business than I do myself!"

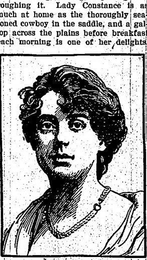
The Pope a Plain Man.

The following story of Pope Pius is told in the Italian papers: A deputation of the monks of some order recently obtained an interview with him. According to the etiquette of the Vatican, only cardinals are permitted to sit in the pope's presence, and an invitation from him to do so is deemed equivalent to the promise of a cardinalate.

Pope Pius X. is a plain man, utterly indifferent to the etiquette of the papal court. He therefore begged the monks to take seats. They hardly knew whether they could venture to do so, and while they stood hesitating he said to them, "You do not, I suppose, expect me to draw your chairs forward for you?"

The Diana of Scotland.

Lady Constance MacKenzie, who is famous as the Diana of Scotland, has been having a time just to her liking in Texas. With a party of friends from New York and St. Louis she has been hunting, fishing, exploring and roughing it. Lady Constance is as much at home as the thoroughly seasoned cowboy in the saddle, and a gallop across the plains before breakfast each morning is one of her delights.



LADY CONSTANCE MACKENZIE.

A favorite form of sport with Lady Constance in Texas is coyote hunting. Few sports are so hazardous as hunting and chasing the coyote, and not many women of the west and southwest are daring enough to undertake it. Lady Constance wears corduroys and sweaters and, of course, divided skirts, as she rides astride. It is reported that Lady "Connie" is to be married soon and that the Texas trip was intended as a sort of final fling of maiden independence.

CONDENSED STORIES.

Paul Smith of the Adirondacks Ought to Be in Wall Street.

Paul Smith of Adirondacks fame has a way of making everything he touches turn to money. Some years ago the village blacksmith had considerable illness in his family, and he was forced to borrow $40, which he secured from Paul Smith.

The debt ran on for several years. One summer the blacksmith met Paul Smith and made his usual apologies.

"Now, see here," said Smith, "I wish you'd come to my hotel and preach for my guests this afternoon." The blacksmith had a local reputation as a preacher of homely sermons, but he was aghast at preaching before the "city folks." "You needn't be afraid," urged Paul. "They'll enjoy your plain sermon, because it is so different from what they are accustomed to."

So the blacksmith went. But before he preached the sermon Paul made a little speech announcing that the preacher was an honest toiler who had met with misfortune and had hard work to support his family. The sympathies of the audience were touched, and at the conclusion of the sermon a collection was taken up amounting to $70. Paul took the money, beckoned the blacksmith out into the woods, carefully counted out $40, which he put into his own pocket, and gave the remaining $30 to the blacksmith.—New York Times.

Had Heard Him Sing.

Glen MacDonough, who wrote the libretto for the comic opera "Babes In Toyland," was sitting in a New York cafe recently with Victor Herbert, the composer, when a waiter approached to take his order. The waiter smiled at Mr. MacDonough and said: "You don't remember me, do you? I used to sing in one of your companies." "I remember you very well," said Mr. MacDonough. "Are you surprised to see me here as a waiter?" asked the other. "Not a bit," replied the librettist cheerfully. "You know, I have heard you sing."

"YOU KNOW, I HAVE HEARD YOU SING.

The Lesson Impressed.

Representative Williams of Mississippi on a recent visit to Jamestown related an incident apropos of a suggestion from Representative Lacey that the minority leader went to Heidelberg to learn English and to forget the language as it is spoken in the far southland.

"When my little sister became old enough so that our mother thought she ought to drop the quaint expressions she had acquired," said he, "there was great difficulty in teaching her. She persisted in using the words and phrases often used by the negroes. Finally she was promised a whipping the next time she offended in that particular. It was not long before she came running to her mother, exclaiming that she and her negro nurse were 'gwine' to a certain place on the plantation.

"The promised punishment was inflicted, at the conclusion of which her mother asked my sister what she was to say thereafter.

"'I am gwine to say "going,"' she exclaimed innocently, 'and I am gwine to remember it.'"

Preserving the Country's Soil.

A balloon ascension was about to be made in Brussels in the presence of King Leopold by a French aeronaut, M. Nadar. The difference of weight between the French and Belgic gas, the latter being much heavier, caused considerable delay. The king inquired if all was going on well. "Not yet," replied Nadar. "But now that your majesty has arrived I have no fear as to the result." "Above all," said the king, "be sure to throw out your ballast in Belgium. I have sworn to preserve intact the integrity of its soil."

Red Lake Indian Reservation Homesteads

February 20th, 1904, Congress passed a bill authorizing the opening for settlement of the ELEVEN TOWNSHIPS of the Red Lake Indian Reservation which are situated in Red Lake County. These lands will be thrown open for settlement within the next four months.

These lands will be disposed of to the highest bidder, and cannot be sold for less than $4 per acre. A payment of one-fifth of the purchase price in cash will be required, and the balance divided in five equal annual payments, without interest.

We have secured a limited number of copies of the Smiley map of Red Lake County and the Red Lake Indian Reservation. These maps are 28x38 inches, and show the grade and quality of each and every quarter-section of land in the portion of the Reservation to be opened for settlement; it gives the number of acres of timber and the kind of timber on each quarter. This map was compiled from the personal notes of Mr. Smiley and from the Government notes thereof. Everyone who intends to be present at the opening should have one of these maps, as it will save you the price of a locater's fee.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Home Plants and Furnace Heat.

The woman who has plants in her drawing room, perched in rows on her bedroom window sills and stationed in green array on staircase landings and in hallways puts off the day of "starting the furnace" as long as posible. When the children begin to sneeze, the husband to complain of rheumatism and the servants give notice that they will leave on account of the extra work entailed by grate fires she gives in. But if she really loves her plants she has the same struggle every autumn.

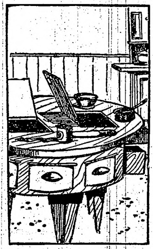
Furnace heat seems to remove all the dampness from the air, and that moist condition so conducive to the health of growing plants is not found. The difficulty may be overcome in a measure by placing pans of water around the furnace, inside the furnace pipes below the registers or anywhere that rapid evaporation may be induced. This will soften the atmosphere and help the plants to breathe. Palms, rubber plants and all other potted house plants should be well guarded from drafts, but kept in light and well ventilated places. Don't place a tall plant in a dark corner. It may look well, but it will droop and probably die of asphyxiation. Plants usually grow well in a kitchen because of the evaporation of water as the kettle puffs and boils on the range.

Cups For Salad Dressing.

The ingenious woman has discovered a new use for her old fashioned and odd cups. They have long been good for nothing in particular on account of their large size and because they have no handles. Yet these big cups are exactly the shape of many of the mayonnaise dishes and may be used to advantage for this purpose. With the preaching of the doctrines of salads by the apostles of good health there has been an increasing use of lettuce, celery, tomatoes, cucumbers and vegetables of different kinds served cold with dressings. In consequence the mayonnaise cup has become a staple article of table service. Many people prefer the French dressing to the richer mayonnaise, and some like a larger quantity than others. It is advisable to have a dish of dressing upon the table instead of dressing the individual salad beforehand. The dishes made for holding dressing are to be found in different shapes. Some are oblong, like small sauce boats, with a flat rather than a looped handle at the end. Others are round like cups.

A Time Saver.

The secret of economy in the kitchen—economy in time, in labor and in expense—has been at least partly solved by a clever Brooklyn housewife, who has invented a table which may be used for all those purposes for which the ordinary kitchen table is generally called into use.



THE ECONOMICAL TABLE.

Hers is a simple idea, just as it appears to be a good idea, and doubtless many of her sisters will appreciate the boon which she has consented to share with them. Proceeding with her breadmaking, her piemaking, her cakemaking, her preserving or what not, the thrifty housewife who is fortunate to possess a table of this character will find at her very fingers' ends all those ingredients that she needs without having to go to cupboard or pantry or elsewhere every minute or so to get some of these necessities.

The table is provided with a liberal assortment of drawers, and, in addition, ample bins are constructed on the table top, access to which is had by means of little doors in the top of the table.

When the work of making bread, etc., is complete all surplus ingredients are swept back into their respective bins through the little doors, and the deed is done.—Brooklyn Citizen.

Staten Island Oyster Pie.

Scald a quart of oysters in their own liquor. When it comes to the boiling point skim out the oysters and set where they will keep hot. Add to the liquor two cups of hot water, season to taste with salt and pepper. Rub two ounces of butter to a paste with two ounces of flour, dilute with a cup of hot milk and add to the broth. Stir and cook until smooth and creamy. Have ready a crust of nice light biscuit dough rolled half an inch thick; cut into squares and drop into the boiling stew. Cover closely and cook thirty minutes. When done take them up carefully and place in a hot dish. Stir the oysters into the broth and when thoroughly hot turn into the dish with the dumplings.

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

Professor Seligman's Taxation Views.

Professor Edwin R. A. Seligman, whose recent address upon "The Social Aspects of Economic Law" before the American Economic association at New Orleans has attracted wide attention because of what he said on the subject of taxation, is a member of the Seligman family which is so prominent in financial and banking circles. Professor Seligman is professor of economics and finance in Columbia university, New York. In the course of his remarks at the New Orleans meeting Professor Seligman said:

PROFESSOR EDWIN R. A. SELIGMAN.

"Under modern conditions the only kind of a personal tax that can be made to rest on the individual is a poll tax and a direct consumption tax, both of which are condemned by everybody. The new ideal is a tax on wealth; the old ideal was a tax on the individual who owned the wealth. It is not necessary, in order to secure justice, to impose a tax on general property or on all corporations or on all incomes. Above all, direct taxes are not necessarily more just than indirect taxes. In the complex life of today the problem is no longer that of the individual, but of the effect of economic law on the various classes of society, the agencies of production and the facts of group rather than individual consumption. The newer theory and practice of taxation must rest on the facts of social production and group consumption."

Unsophisticated Cederstrom.

An amusing story is told of Patti's youthful spouse, the Baron Cederstrom. A few days after his arrival in New York last fall, while standing on a corner with his wife's manager, there was an alarm of fire, and presently several smoking engines and trucks came galloping along in splendid array. The baron gazed on the parade as one entranced. He particularly admired the magnificent horses. It turned out to be a false alarm, and the whole paraphernalia turned around and went slowly back. "What do you think of our fire department?" asked Mr. Francke. The baron looked on amused and perplexed. "It's splendid, but what is all this fuss for?" "Why, don't you know?" replied Mr. Francke. "Just a tribute to you. I arranged this in your honor." This pleased the baron immensely. He was more than flattered and showered a thousand compliments on the courtesy of the country toward him. When he went back to his apartments at the Savoy and met Mme. Patti he told her of the honor that had been done him. Mme. Patti, it is said, just looked at him with a twinkle in her eye, but said nothing. She enjoyed the joke as much as her manager.

Frick as a Builder.

Henry C. Frick, the Pittsburg steel magnate, who erected one of the finest buildings in his home city if not in the whole country, is going to show New Yorkers what a real skyscraper should be. With Bird S. Coler and other wealthy men of the metropolis Mr. Frick is planning to erect on lower Broadway a building which will be over twice as high as the famed Flatiron building and almost twice the height of the great Park Row building, which are the two most noted skyscrapers in New York. The new building will have forty stories above and five below the street level. It will front on Broadway, occupying all the frontage between Cortlandt and Dey streets, and will have a depth varying from 100 to 123 feet. It is said that Mr. Frick has already named the proposed building the "Broadway Cortlandt."

HENRY C. FRICK.

A Conservative Labor Leader.

Henry White, secretary of the United Garment Workers of America, sounds a note of warning to the labor unions of the country in their demands for increased wages at a time when conditions are not favorable for such increases. In an editorial in the official organ of his organization he points out the tendency on the part of unions to overreach themselves.

A LITTLE NONSENSE.

What Reginald Thought Had Become of Dolly's Eyes.

Among the numerous toys which little Reginald received as gifts on his birthday were a drum, a fire engine with hook and ladder wagon behind it, a company of gaudily painted soldiers, a tiny pocketbook for his spending pennies, a long haired Angora kitten and a wonderful doll. The last his aunt had sent him. She said she had reared boys, and she had found out that they always liked baby dolls, even if they were supposed to be the exclusive property of girls.

The aunt proved to be right in her judgment, and it was only natural that the pink doll, from constant association with her little owner, should become soiled and mussed and disfigured. Reginald was constant still, even after three bisque fingers had been broken off and the golden hair was tattered and scraggly.

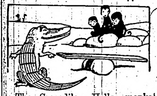
But one day the doll's blue eyes, from continual closing and opening, dropped back into the hollow head out of sight.

"Oh, mamma," cried the faithful Reginald, excited beyond all measure, "come quick!"

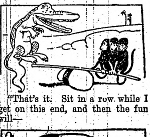
The mother hurried to the scene.

"See!" exclaimed the little boy. "Send for the doctor! Dolly's swallowed her eyes!"

How the "Croc" Got His Supper.



The Crocodile—Hello, monks! Come and have a jolly old seesaw on this plank.



"That's it. Sit in a row while I get on this end, and then the fun will——"begin!" Rather a wily way for the "croc" to get his supper, wasn't it?

Better Still.

"No; he's always inventing something old and making the public believe it's new."—Philadelphia Press.

RESPECTFULLY SUBMITTED.

The folly of wealthy papas giving their small boys newspapers to play with is demonstrated in a local instance. In reply to a harmless and facetious item in THE COURIER our esteemed contemporary waxes exceedingly wroth and makes the regrettable mistake of bringing into the discussion friends of THE COURIER who have nothing to do with the controversy and who should be spared the appearance of assuming an attitude they did not seek and which does them gross injustice. As far as THE COURIER is concerned, it has heretofore borne up cheerfully under the torrent of abuse and innuendo poured forth in the editorial columns of the Gazette, and the chances are it can endure more of it.

THE COURIER frankly confesses that it is unequal to the task of making satisfactory or adequate reply to the column or more of undignified irrelevancies in the last Gazette. The article does not contain a single argument worthy the name, and we believe if the editor will read it over carefully, and for the time eliminate the delirious and unreasonable prejudice that takes possession of his mind whenever he attempts to figuratively chew up THE COURIER, he will agree with us that it was a lamentable waste of time and effort to put it in type. The editor of the Gazette may plead youth and inexperience, but rather than give way to his boyish impulses he should endeavor to hold his pen in check and give conservatism a chance to mellow his exuberant spirits. The editorial columns of a newspaper is not the proper place for the exploitation of school-boy deductions. If the editor of the Gazette has not yet passed the swaddling stage of controversy let him debate the respective merits of the horse and the cow with some sixth-grade pupil in need of the training.

And then, again, our immature editorial friend should cultivate an easier and more correct use of the English language. And in saying this we are not referring to his faults of grammar and diction—and they are glaring enough; but for these the average reader has compassion. We wish to direct his attention, particularly, to the use of words. The vocabulary is large, and with a little training a writer can express pretty nearly the shade of meaning he wishes. There is no necessity for extravagancy or redundancy. Our friend is too familiar with words he does not understand. And he is too prone to the use of the parenthecated interrogation. For instance he refers to THE COURIER editor as "a gentleman (?)." Now, this means that THE COURIER editor is not a gentleman. Does he wish his readers to take this literally? We refuse to believe it. Were the statement true, it is hardly fair, and certainly exhibits bad taste. A gentleman will not accuse another person of not being a gentleman, and surely the Gazette editor would not invite the imputation of deserving his own epithet. If the Gazette man happens to be in the newspaper business twenty years from now we trust he will study his last week's effusion. If he does, the chances are he will wonder if he really was as unprepared for the serious work of his profession as the article would indicate.

Another grievous error of the Gazette writer is the attempt to shoulder too much responsibility upon "the public." It is unreasonable to suppose that the average reader is sufficiently interested in the fortunes of on or the other of the newspapers to share the jealousy and resentment of the Gazette editor toward those engaged in the same business. The attempt to bring in "the public" as a co-respondent shows a lack of argument and is an admission that a lot of outside help is needed in making up a case.

The young man should remember it is inevitable that editors should honestly differ on many points. It is probably better for the general welfare that they should, but there is no occasion for wrangling or abuse or discourteous insinuations. In all friendliness, and in the interest of the newspaper fraternity in general, let us commend this paragraph from the pen of a Texas editor:

"I learned a lesson long ago from a tarantula. A large spider ran up to him and offered fight. The tarantula threw out his legs in an attitude of defense. Then he backed away and began retreating. Then the spider again came at him. The tanantula used the same tactics. This was kept up until the spider left in disgust. The tarantula could have killed the spider, but he would have lost some of his legs. You can kill your competitor, but he will cripple you in the operation. It is better to help him and let him help you. When you help your neighbor you help yourself."

These criticisms are kindly meant. If our own son should after while get as foolish as the Gazette editor has shown himself, we trust some good friend will point out the error of his ways and get him in the path of common sense, even though it be necessary to take him across the knee in the old fashioned, fatherly way. Possibly God intended there should be a few ninnies in the newspaper business to prove that he loves animals. He doesn't want the jackasses to get lonesome.

CROOKSTON IS SORE.

The Crookston people are making a serious mistake in exhibiting such bitter and unwarranted resentment over the fact that the Red Lake Indian reservation sale is to be held at Thief River Falls instead of Crookston. Especially unworthy is the criticism of Congressman Steenerson because that gentleman refused to intercede in behalf of Crookston.

In the first place Thief River Falls is the proper place for the land sale. This city is on the edge of the reservation, and prospective buyers will have easy access to the lands for examination without making a hundred mile railroad journey for the purpose. In the second place it is inconceivable that Crookston is entitled to all the good things that come along. In the third place Congressman Steenerson is congressman of the Ninth district, and he is not supposed to favor one town at the expense of another just because he happens to reside at Crookston.

Perhaps Crookston can afford to engender the ill-will of the neighboring towns, but we doubt it. The future growth and prosperity of Crookston depends largely upon the support of outside people, and the wholesale and commercial interests of that city ought to encourage a friendly spirit in the neighboring towns.

In the meantime the sale will be held at Thief River Falls, and the people of Red Lake county do not care particularly whether or not Crookston is pleased at the decision of the general land office.

THE PASSING OF NELSON.

A. E. Nelson, the Hallock editor, is the victim of a combination of unfortunate circumstances. The charge had been made quite pointedly some time ago that Mr. Nelson was collecting the slush fund for the Collins campaign, but the gentleman indignantly denied that he had done anything of the kind. About ten days ago Bob Dunn, in a speech at Minneapolis, made the direct assertion that Nelson had asked James J. Hill to contribute $25,000 to the support of Collins. This time "the lid was off," and it was up to Nelson to furnish some sort of proof that his denial would not ravel or run down at the heel. So Bro. Nelson writes Hill to find out whether he did approach him with a proposition of that nature. Mr. Hill very courteously replied that the contribution was solicited by Nelson and refused. Nelson says Mr. Hill is in error, so it now is largely a question of veracity between Mr. Hill and Mr. Nelson, and the people of the state seem inclined to take Mr. Hill's version.

Thus the Hallock editor is placed between two fires. He cannot expect to be retained in office if Bob Dunn is elected, and the Collins people will not dare to shelter a self-confessed political boodler. He will probably be informed by Governor Van Sant that his newspaper up at Hallock needs attention, and the sooner he goes up home and stays there the more satisfactory it will be to all concerned.

The Republican campaign is not without its tragedies. And the saddest of all is the unhorsing of the Hallock Warwick.

THE financiers are perhaps better judges of the conditions that make prices, outside of the mere mechanical side of the question, than are the manufacturers and dealers themselves. It is announced from New York that the financiers expect the price of wheat and of farm commodities in general to maintain a higher average level than that hitherto prevailing. They do not ignore the influence of the varying crop yeild in different seasons upon the general market, but they beleive that the immense annual addition of gold to the circulating medium will have a strong tendency toward maintaining prices, and the public domain of best agricultural lands, especially wheat lands, having already been absorbed by private ownership, the percentage of new land opened to cultivation is less than the percentage of increase of population The outlook for the farmers is very encouraging.

THE Collins people seem to be intensely interested in finding an acceptable "third man" for the governorship. The indications are that Judge Collins is no longer seriously considered as a candidate, even by the state-house ring, and his managers are endeavoring to secure the best trade possible by bartering the remnant of his strength. The chief aim of Jim Martin, Sam Johnson and A. E. Nelson is to save their own jobs, and they are ready to desert the sinking Collins ship in return for the assurance of the "third man" that they will be taken care of.

THE anniversary number of the Bemidji Daily Pioneer issued last Saturday is one of the handsomest and most complete "boom" papers ever issued in this part of the country. The issue consists of twenty-eight pages, handsomely illustrated. The subject matter is carefully written, and the paper ought to be worth a great deal to the enterprising city of the pines. Editor Hitchcock is to be congratulated upon his special number.

IT is "plainly apparent" that no Republican candidate for governor was given the endorsement of the Gazette in the last issue.

POLITICAL POT-POURI.

The Republicans are having trouble in Wisconsin and Illinois in selecting a candidate for governor as well as in Minnesota.

County Treasurer Tandberg tells the COURIER that he will be a candidate for re-election this year. Mr. Tandberg has filled the office very acceptably for the past six years and the county could not secure a better guardian for its pocket-book.

Nat Campbell, of Crookston, wants to be a delegate from the Ninth district to the Democratic national convention. Mr. Campbell is a strong Hearst man, and this fact will mitigate against his chances in many counties that might otherwise be favorable to him.

The contest for county commissioner in the Thief River district is already getting interesting. Banker Prichard is already out as a candidate for the Republican nomination, and the Dobner-Eastman-Kratka faction of the party are trying to prevail upon Dan Shaw to make the run against him.

In certain quarters there has been a suggestion that Wiley Tindolph, of Thief River Falls, might be a candidate for the legislature this fall. Mr. Tindolph, however, says he will not under any circumstances be a candidate this year, but wouldn't make any promises for two years from now when the state senatorship would be at stake.

The attorney general holds that the Peoples' party has no standing officially, and candidates cannot file for the nomination on that ticket. Quite a few of the party workers are endeavoring, however, to perfect an organization and get a place in the primary ballot by petition, which can be done by securing a petition signed by one-tenth of the voters of the last election. If this is done it is not improbable that candidates for treasurer and register of deeds will file on this ticket.

It is apparent that the Collins forces have given up the fight in Red Lake county, and no further effort will be made to secure a Collins delegation at the county convention. Among the Collins workers were several shrewd observers, and the Dunn sentiment all over the county is so overwhelming that there is absolutely no show for any other candidate. John Eastman, the Thief River Falls editor, who has been very ardent in the support of Collins, is said by the St. Paul and Minneapolis papers to be engineering a deal whereby the county can be secured by Eddy. This seems improbable. John has held a number of mysterious conferences with the Dunn workers at Thief River Falls and elsewhere recently, and it is a good guess that he is ready to line up for Dunn if the boys will let him down easy. For once in his life John has discovered the big show tent in time to get on the band wagon.

To the local Collins newspaper the larynx is as superfluous as the vermiform appendix.

THE Washington Post enters protest right now against Elihu Root and ex-Governor Hogg as opposing presidential candidates in 1908. The Post won't stand for the horror of a Root-Hogg contest.

THE Republican county convention to select delegates to the state nominating convention will be held on Tuesday, June 28, probably at Red Lake Falls. The county is entitled to eight delegates to the state convention.

A Word for Crawford.

Slayton Gazette: The fight for the governorship is so pronounced that it almost shuts out consideration of candidates for other positions. Outside of the governorship the next most important office is that of state auditor. But we do not elect an auditor this year. Not by any means the least important office to be filled is that of the railroad commissioner. In this posotion we should have a man who can deal out even-handed justice, a man who is firm enough to oppose any encroachments of the railway companies on rights of the people while at the same time rejecting radical and unreasonable demands on the part of the people. The Gazette proposes Thomas Crawford, of Lakefield, for that position. Mr. Crawford has been for nearly fifteen years editor of the Lakefield Standard and is a close student of all public questions. He is a stong advocate of the peoples rights and a vigorous uncompromising fighter for sound principles. With Mr. Crawford on the railway commission we believe the people would have a representative who would be watchful of their interests. Thus far this congressional district has no candidate for state office and a united effort by the people of the district can secure the nomination of Mr. Crawford.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Cattarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mocous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Orange Cultivation.

It takes five or six years before the orange plants in Jaffa produce fruit on account of lack of care in cultivation, the Arab planters being very negligent in warding off plant disease, and in protecting the plants from injurious insects. As a recognition of the work done in America in the hybridizing and cultivation of oranges, American organges are now selling in London and taking their place in other European markets. As a recognition of the superiority of golden grain belt beer, the number of regular patrons is steadily increasing. Being brewed from the finest barley malt and hops, the greatest care is taken to make this tonic an ideal beverage for daily use. Don't believe everything you hear. Representatives of baking powder companies struggling for business have been going from house to house attacking CALUMET BAKING POWDER. The absolute untruth of these slanderous statements may be appreciated when the fact is known that this state has a food law prohibiting the sale of injurious food products. CALUMET BAKING POWDER complies with the pure food laws of all states.

Wiley Tindolph was down from Thief River Monday. He returned last week from his extended visit to the South and West, and intends to remain permanently in Red Lake county. Many conservative citizens figure that eight or ten thousand outsiders will be there at the opening of the sale.

Assistant Attorney General P. A. Ewert transmitted to the state superintendent of public instruction an opinion explaining an enactment of 1899, concerning the power to revoke or to refuse to issue a teacher's license. He says that the county superintendent may revoke a license or refuse to issue one when he deems such action necessary, but that he must furnish the aggrieved party with a statement giving the reasons for doing so and must forward a copy of the statement to the superintendent of instruction to whom the teacher may appeal. A case in point arose in Houston county.

COMES HOME SATISFIED.

Wiley Tindolph Says Red Lake County is Good Enough.

Wiley Tindolph, the popular Thief River Falls real estate dealer, passed through the city yesterday enroute home from an extended visit over the United States, says the Crookston Journal. He visited twenty-three states and saw much land and a great variety of soils, but is of the opinion that the valley has them all distanced for productiveness. He was gone five months and visited from here to New York and from there to Washington and Florida. From the land of palms he traversed the south with many stops to New Orleans. From there he went to California and explored the coast from the Mexican border to the Puget Sound. He says there are many opportunities in the south and west but none greater than in Northern Minnesota. Every avenue of business in those lands is overdone and the man who wins must meet sharp competition.

Mr. Tindolph was especially impressed with the size of the fir trees in Washington. He said that it took about 65 logs to make a car load at Thief River Falls, while in Washington three made all that a car could haul and he would venture that they were heavier than the 65 at Thief River Falls.

Rheumatism
Is Not a Skin Disease.

Most people have an idea that rheumatism is contracted like a cold, that the damp, chilly air penetrates the muscles and joints and causes the terrible aches and pains, or that it is something like a skin disease to be rubbed away with liniment or drawn out with plasters; but Rhuematism originates in the blood and is caused by Urea, or Uric Acid, an irritating, corroding poison that settles in muscles, joints and nerves, producing inflammation and soreness and the sharp, cutting pains peculiar to this distressing disease.

Exposure to bad weather or sudden chilling of the body will hasten an attack of Rheumatism after the blood and system are in the right condition for it to develop, but have nothing to do with the real true causes of Rheumatism, which are internal and not external.

Liniments, plasters and rubbing will sometimes reduce the inflammation and swelling and ease the pain for a time, but fail to relieve permanently because they do not reach the seat of the trouble. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism because it attacks it in the blood, and the Uric Acid poison is neutralized, the sluggish circulation stimulated and quickened, and soon the system is purified and cleansed, the aching muscles and joints are relieved of all irritating matter and a lasting cure of this most painful disease effected.

Bowling Green, Ky.

About a year ago I was attacked by acute rheumatism in my shoulders, arms and legs below the knee. I could not raise my arm to comb my hair. Doctors prescribed for me for over two months without giving me any relief. I saw S. S. S. advertised and decided to try it. Immediately I commenced its use I felt better, and remarked to mother that I was glad I had at last found some relief. I continued its use and am entirely well. I will always feel deeply interested in the success of S. S. S. since it did me so much good.

ELECTRIC SPARK PROVES DEADLY

CAUSES EXPLOSION OF LARGE AMOUNT OF POWDER IN AN ILLINOIS MINE.

Five Workmen Are Instantly Killed, One Body Being Torn to Pieces—Three Others Are Fatally and Several Seriously Hurt.

Carbondale, Ill., May 12.—In an explosion Wednesday at the shaft of the Big Muddy Coal & Iron company, in Herrin, five men were killed outright, five seriously injured and 20 others slightly injured. The dead are: John Miller, Dick Reins, Fritz Seiberg, Evan Williams, Thomas Green.

Fatally injured: John Swofford, Frank Lazonia, Angelo Scaronia.

The Cause.

The disaster was one of the most serious in the history of the coal industry in this section for many years. Six kegs of powder had been placed in the mine during the time intervening between the night and day shifts, for distribution to the men in the morning. John Miller, a driver, had charge of the distribution of the explosives. Ten minutes after Miller was supposed to have accomplished his task, the electric current which runs the machines was turned on, and the explosion followed. It is supposed that through some mistake the current was switched on before Miller had distributed the powder.

Body Torn to Pieces.

Preparations were hurriedly made by the men on top to learn the fate of their 40 or more companions below. On reaching the passageway they were met by a frightful sight. The body of Miller, the driver, was literally torn to pieces. Evan Williams was found only a short distance from Miller, and four of those whose injuries may prove fatal, were found in the same vicinity. The three others killed were farther from the pit and not so badly disfigured. The injured men were found in all parts of the mine. The dead and injured were taken to the top as readily as possible, the dead to an improvised morgue and the injured to their homes or boarding houses.

COLONISTS MASSACRED.

Awful Slaughter of Men, Women and Children by Rebels in British North Borneo.

Victoria, B. C., May 13.—Missionaries, passengers on the liner Empress, of India, bring advices of an atrocious massacre at a little colony on the west coast of British North Borneo, at Kawang railway station, midway between Jesselton and Paper, on March 31. A band of rebels from the interior are credited with killing 130 men, women and children, most of them Chinese coolies, but a few English, wounding many others, and burning the houses and huts. The rebels swept down upon the colony at 10 o'clock at night. The band divided into two parts, one of 100 concealing themselves in a reserve on the top of a hill, while the others rushed upon the settlement. The wife and children of the station master and the English railway driver and his wife were among those killed. The rebels first attacked the inmates of the Chinese shops, the carnage finally becoming general, and the men, women and children being butchered indiscriminately. After burning the village, the rebels departed.

Bank Robbed.

Metz, Mo., May 16.—The Farmers' bank here was entered by burglars. The safe was blown open and the entire contents, $2,000, carried away. There were three of the thieves and they left town in a rubber-tired buggy, headed for Fort Scott, Kan.

Van Buren, Ark., May 16.—E. E. Limbecker, a professional aeronaut, made a parachute leap, alighted in the Arkansas river and was drowned. His body has not been recovered.

GIVEN FINE POSITION.

John F. Wallace Is Made Chief Engineer of Panama Canal at Munificent Salary.

Chicago, May 11.—John F. Wallace, general manager of the Illinois Central railroad, has been tendered and accepted the position of chief engineer of the Panama canal. The appointment takes effect June 1, and the salary is to be $25,000 a year.

President Fish, of the Illinois Central Railway company, was very unwilling to have Mr. Wallace leave the service of the company, but the appointment having been tendered, left the decision entirely with himself. In reaching the conclusion to accept, Mr. Wallace gave up his prospects of promotion, and a much higher salary than $25,000 a year, but by taking the position of chief engineer of the Panama canal his name will be attached to the greatest piece of construction ever undertaken.

Mr. Wallace is to take charge of the work June 1. It is estimated that about two years will be required to complete the surveys, make the estimates of cost, and decide on the final plans. In round figures the canal will cost $200,000,000, and will require ten years to complete. Aside from the engineers, machinists and other skilled labor, the constructive work will give employment to 50,000 men. It is probable that all the skilled labor and semi-skilled labor, supplies and stores will be drawn from this country, and doubtless largely from the Mississippi valley. The unskilled labor will probably be drawn mostly from Jamaica.

CLARA BARTON RESIGNS.

Mrs. John A. Logan Succeeds Her as President of the Red Cross Society.

Washington, May 16.—Mrs. John A. Logan became president of the American Red Cross society Saturday. Clara Barton resigned her position at the head of the organization, and Mrs. Logan was placed forthwith at the head of the society. The change was effected at Mrs. Logan's residence. Miss Barton had prepared a special letter for the occasion, which was in itself a review in part of the work of the organization since its inception 23 years ago. One of the sentences in Miss Barton's letter was: "It is a waste of time to remind you of the years and the occasions in which your weary president has sought to lay her weary burdens down. Year after year she has offered her resignation to boards and committees. But now, once for all, most honored officers and friends, I tender my resignation as president of the American National Red Cross, which resignation, being absolute, calls only for acceptance."

The resignation was then formally accepted in a letter from the executive committee to Miss Barton, regretting the circumstances that caused it, and assuring her of the never-failing confidence, love and appreciation of the society.

Bishops Retired.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 16.—The Methodist general conference on Saturday performed one of its most delicate as well as painful duties. Vincent, of Zurich, Switzerland; Bishop Willard F. Mallalieu, of Boston, and Bishop Cyrus D. Foss, of Philadelphia.

Assassinated.

Denver, Col., May 16.—Lyte Gregory, an ex-policeman, was assassinated early Sunday morning when he was returning home from a social visit with friends. STAND FIRM FOR THEIR FAVORITES

DELEGATES TO ILLINOIS REPUBLICAN CONVENTION IN DEADLOCK OVER NOMINATIONS.

Seven Candidates in the Field—Frequent Ballots Show Few Changes—Hearst Defeated in Indiana Democratic State Convention.

Springfield, Ill., May 13.—The first day's session of the republican state convention ended at 9:25 Thursday night without having gotten beyond temporary organization.

Speaker Cannon was made temporary chairman of the convention.

The Second Day.

Springfield, Ill., May 14.—After a continuous session of over 12 hours the Illinois republican convention at 10:28 o'clock Friday night took a recess until ten o'clock this morning, without having named a candidate for governor.

The organization of the convention was effected without difficulty, the temporary officers being selected as permanent officers. The Yates-Lowden combination was in complete control, and the opposition decided to make no fight against the seating of the Yates and Lowden delegates.

The committee on delegates to the national convention then reported as follows:

Delegates-at-Large—Senators Shelby M. Cullom and Albert J. Hopkins, Speaker Joseph G. Cannon and Gov. Richard Yates.

Alternates—Lieut. Gov. W. A. Northcott, Hon. Asa Mathews, Paul Morton and Samuel Insull.

Electors-at-Large—Lot Brown and William J. Moxley.

This report was adopted unanimously and the committee on resolutions then reported on the platform, through its chairman, Hon. Walter J. Reeves.

Synopsis of the Platform.

The salient features of the platform are pledges to maintain the gold standard and the open-door policy of trade in eastern Asia. Appropriations by congress to enlarge and strengthen the navy are favored. The Sherman law for antitrust legislation is eulogized, and the attitude of congress and of President Roosevelt in enforcing prosecution of violators of the Sherman law is commended. Delegates from the Springfield convention to the national republican convention are instructed to contribute their influence and votes to the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt for president. Similar instructions are given delegates to the national convention to vote for Robert Hitt for vice president. The record of Gov. Yates is commended, and the statement made that through his administration the financial affairs of the state are in a splendid condition.

The vote on the adoption of the report was unanimous.

The Nomines.

The candidates for governor were then named, as follows: Frank O. Lowden, Charles S. Deneen, Howland J. Hamlin, Vespasian Warner, Richard Yates, L. Y. Sherman.

The first ballot resulted: Yates, 507 2-3; Lowden, 354 2-3; Deneen, 386 2-3; Hamlin, 121; Warner, 45; Sherman, 87.

There being no choice, the clerk proceeded with the second roll call, which resulted as follows:

Yates, 504 2-3; Lowden, 390 53-66; Deneen, 383 35-66; Hamlin, 117 2-3; Warner, 42.1-6; Sherman, 63 1-6c.

The chair immediately ordered a third ballot, and a new candidate, John H. Pierce, of Kewanee, was entered in the race by his home delegation. The vote, as officially announced, resulted: Yates, 499 43-60; Lowden, 396 53-66; Deneen, 380 35-66; Hamlin, 111 44-66; Warner, 34 11-66; Sherman, 57 44-66; Pierce, 21 38-66.

There was practically no change in the fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth, tenth, eleventh, twelfth, thirteenth and fourteenth ballots. The roll calls proceeded amid much confusion.

Recess Taken.

While the fifteenth ballot was in progress the guberatorial candidates got together and consented to a recess until ten o'clock in the morning.

The fifteenth ballot resulted: Yates, 495; Lowden, 405 9-66; Deneen, 381 57-66; Hamlin, 111; Warner, 36; Sherman, 51; Pierce, 21.

Third Day.

Springfield, Ill., May 16.—After another day of fruitless balloting, the most remarkable republican convention in the history of Illinois, took an adjournment at 7:55 p. m., Saturday, until two o'clock Monday afternoon, without having broken the gubernatorial dead lock. The last ballot taken, which was the twenty-fourth, resulted as follows: Yates, 483 4-5; Lowden, 398; Deneen, 375; Hamlin, 105 4-5; Warner, 36 4-5; Sherman, 49; Pierce, 21.

INDIANA DEMOCRATS.

Convention Instructs Delegates to Vote for Parker.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 13.—The most interesting democratic state convention since 1892, when Cleveland and Isaac P. Gray contested for the control of the Indiana delegation to the national delegation, was held Thursday. The sole purpose of the convention was to elect delegates to the national convention, the state convention for the nomination of candidates for state office having been called for July 20, when the same delegates that were in the convention Thursday will return. A platform will then be adopted.

Suffering

Will Not Help Your Disease, but Will Weaken Your Nerves.

Folks who think it is better to bear pain than soothe it—are wrong.

Old-fashioned doctors used to say it was better, because they had nothing with which to ease pain but dangerous, heart-paralyzing drugs.

But now, that a safe remedy has been found; Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills, it is wrong to suffer, for nothing can be gained but weakened nerves.

A safe rule to remember is: When in pain, take an Anti-Pain Pill.

This will soothe your quivering nerves.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills relieve pain by restoring the natural secretions, in which they differ from opium and similar narcotic drugs, which relieve pain by checking the action of the glands.

They are sure and harmless, and are the latest medical treatment for the cure of Headache, Neuralgia, Backache, Rheumatism, Dizziness, Toothache, Stomachache, Menstrual (Monthly) Pains. Also nerve irritations like Sea-Sickness, Car-Sickness, Sleeplessness, Indigestion, etc.

Pleasant to take, quick in results.

"I have used Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills for sick, nervous headache, and have received the best results. I heartily recommend their curative properties, for they are successful."—REV. RAY A. WATROS, D. D., Iowa City, Ia.

JAP SHIP STRIKES A HIDDEN MINE

DISPATCH VESSEL BLOWN UP IN KERR BAY AND TWO MEN ARE KILLED.

FIGHTING RUMORED NEAR LIAOYANG

Report Received at Washington Says Great Battle Is Imminent—Mikado's Troops Destroy Railroad—Attack on Port Arthur Planned.

Tokio, May 17.—The Japanese dispatch boat Miyako was destroyed in Kerr bay by striking a submerged mine.

The Miyako was lost while assisting in the operations of clearing the Russian mines from Kerr bay, northeast of Talienwan bay, on which Port Dalny is situated. Admiral Kataoka, commander of the Third squadron, returned there Sunday with a detachment of his squadron, protecting two flotillas of torpedo boats which had been detailed to complete sweeping the harbor by the removal of mines. Five mines were discovered and exploded, and the work was being suspended for the day when the Miyako struck an undiscovered mine, which exploded with tremendous force under stern, on the port side, and inflicted immense damage on the hull. The Miyako sank in 22 minutes. Two sailors were killed and 22 men were wounded. The rest of the crew were rescued.

The news of the loss of the Miyako has been sorrowfully received in Tokio. The dangerous character of the work in which the Miyako was engaged is generally appreciated, but it was thought that the loss of torpedo boat No. 48 under similar circumstances Thursday last would serve as a warning to those engaged in the work to exercise the greatest care.

Russian Fort Shelled.

Admiral Kataoka reports that the Russians withdrew from Robinson Point, northeast of Kerr bay, which adjoins Talienwan bay, May 12, but they erected a temporary fort on a height northeast of Taku mountain, where they mounted six guns and constructed protecting trenches. The vessels of Admiral Kataoka's squadron shelled the Russians throughout Sunday, but the latter stubbornly retained their position.

The Miyako was a steel cruiser of 1,800 tons displacement and 6,130 indicated horse power, completed in 1901, and having an estimated speed of 20 knots. She was 314¾ feet long, had 36 feet beam and drew 13¼ feet of water. Her armament consisted of two 4.7-inch quick-firing guns and ten 1.8-inch guns and four torpedo tubes.

Japs Destroy Railroad.

St. Petersburg, May 17.—The Japanese evidently are determined that there shall not be any further rail communication between Gen. Kuropatkin and Port Arthur. Official advices received here Monday by the general staff say the Japanese have destroyed 50 miles of the railroad north of Kinchou. No resistance was made by the Russians, who are gradually abandoning it. On the Japanese approach Col. Spiridorof, of the Amur railroad battalion, is seeking to render the railroad as useless as possible to the enemy by removing the switches and otherwise disabling the road. The Russians are retiring because of the approach of the Japanese columns sent westward by Gen. Kuroki immediately after the occupation of Fengwangcheng.

Rumor of Fighting.

Newchwang, May 17.—There is an unconfirmed native rumor here that heavy fighting took place in the direction of Liaoyang Sunday. The report of big guns were faintly heard east of Newchwang Monday morning.

Says Battle Is Imminent.

Washington, May 17.—An intimation has reached the officials here to the effect that a great battle is imminent in the vicinity of Liaoyang, where the Russians are determined to make a stand. The rumor cannot be traced to its source.

Russians Attack British Mine.

Seoul, May 17.—An unofficial dispatch has been received here saying that a Russian force, estimated to number 300 men, has appeared at the British mines at Wunsan, northern Korea, where they seized the belongings of the Japanese and Chinese employes. They did not touch British property. Some of the Japanese escaped while others are reported to have been captured.

Attack on Port Arthur Expected.

Chefoo, May 17.—A combined land and sea attack on Port Arthur is expected to take place between May 20 and May 23. The Japanese hope to occupy Port Dalny within a few days. Dalny is not fortified, the only fort in the vicinity being one midway between Talienwan and Kinchou. After the destruction of the submarine mines at Talienwan, the Japanese intend to land additional troops there and commence an attack on Port Arthur.

Hostile Chinese Action Feared.

St. Petersburg, May 17.—Dispatches given out by the general staff state specifically that the Chinese have begun hostilities against Russia. A dispatch from Liaoyang says that 800 Chunchuses descended from the hills on Friday and attacked 100 Russian frontier guards near Yantai, a station between Liaoyang and Mukden. The Russians were hurriedly reenforced and the brigands routed with a loss of 70 men killed and wounded. Sixteen prisoners were taken. The Russians suffered no losses. It is stated that the killed included several disguised Japanese.

Maj. Gen. Karkevitch reports that the Chinese attacked his outposts on the Fengwangcheng road leading to Saimatsi. Gen. Pflug telegraphs that according to reports of patrols and missionaries, the Chinese at Tapadziatsi, 160 miles northwest of Mukden and just outside the Russian sphere of influence are preparing to rise against the Russians and Christians generally.

Says China Will Remain Neutral.

St. Petersburg, May 17.—In order to allay Russian apprehension as to the attitude of China the Chinese minister here has given Foreign Minister Lamsdorff fresh assurances of the purpose of his government not to violate its neutrality and to preserve tranquillity throughout the empire. These assurances, which are based on dispatches received from the Chinese foreign office and Viceroy Yuan-Shi-Kai, the commander in chief of the Chinese forces, set forth in the most positive terms that there is absolutely no ground to believe that China will depart from her proclaimed attitude.

BALLOTING IS RESUMED.

Illinois Republicans Again Try to Agree on Candidate for Governor.

Springfield, Ill., May 17.—In a heavy downpour of rain the delegates to the republican convention made their way to the state armory, and their flags and banners presented a bedraggled appearance when, at two o'clock, Chairman Cannon called the convention to order despite the fact that many of the visitors had gone home after the adjournment Saturday and had not returned. The great hall was packed with people. It was with difficulty that order was secured, and several minutes elapsed before Chairman Cannon was able to secure attention to make the parliamentary statement which he had sent to the candidates earlier in the day. During the reading of this statement comparative quiet was maintained. The twenty-fifth ballot was then ordered and resulted as follows: Yates, 489 440-770; Lowden, 407 335-770; Deneen, 381 545-770; Hamlin, 111 440-770; Warner, 39 440-770; Sherman, 50 440-770; Pierce, 21 440-770.

A story that last Saturday morning Senator Hopkins, Speaker Cannon and Congressman Lorimer offered to make Lowden minister to Mexico if he would withdraw and that he indignantly declined the offer was one of the sensational rumors afloat during the day.

COST FOUR LIVES.

Tramway Across Truckee River Breaks—Four Young People Are Drowned.

Reno, Nev., May 17.—By the breaking of one of the spans of the suspension tramway across the Truckee river at Laughton Springs, five miles west of this city, at two o'clock Sunday, four young people, Maurice Jacobs, a young business man of this city; Miss McMillan, daughter of a prominent business man of Reno; Mrs. E. S. Ede, Jr., and a Mr. Tilsman, of Chicago, were precipitated from the car into the swollen stream and drowned. The tramway consists of two steel cables stretched across the river, upon which a car runs which is much used by pleasure seekers. Sunday the four young people entered the car to cross the river. When they reached midstream one of the strands parted. One piercing shriek was heard, and the four were observed for a few moments struggling in the rapids. Both young men were athletes and gave their lives in a heroic effort to save their companions. Mr. Jacobs was seen for a few moments swimming with Miss McMillan, holding her above water, but in her terror she grasped his arms and both went down. Kingsley swam for 200 yards, holding Mrs. Ede's head above water, and then was seen to turn on his back, when the woman seized him and bore the swimmer beneath the water.

IS DENIED ADMITTANCE.

Supreme Court Sustains Decision Ordering Deportation of Anarchist Turner.

Washington, May 17.—In an opinion Monday by Chief Justice Fuller the United States supreme court sustained the action of the immigration authorities at the port of New York in ordering the deportation of the Englishman Turner, alleged to be an anarchist. The chief justice said in his opinion that Turner did not himself deny that he is an anarchist. The opinion upheld the law for the exclusion of anarchists and affirmed the decision of the circuit court for the southern district of New York which refused a writ of habeas corpus to Turner.

Jealousy Causes Crime.

Munising, Mich., May 17.—Bert Taylor, aged 30, shot his wife and then shot himself through the heart. He also shot at his four-year-old son and at Henry McCann, who seized him. The woman cannot live. Jealousy is supposed to have caused the crime. Taylor formerly lived at Mackinaw City.

Fighting in Algeria.

Paris, May 17.—According to a dispatch from Lalla-Marnia, Algeria, the followers of the Moroccan pretender recently attacked the sultan's troops near Ulda and the former were repulsed after severe fighting. Fifty of the sultan's troops were killed. The rebels' losses are said to have been heavier.

Damage by Frost.

Cleveland, O., May 17.—Reports from many points in Ohio show that more or less damage to vegetables and fruits was caused by frost Sunday night. In some instances ice formed and the temperature fell to 30 degrees or lower.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Gentlemanly Burglar.

Another of those gentle and accommodating burglars entered the residence of Mrs. S. J. Reed, Minneapolis, ransacked all the rooms on the first floor while the family slept, and then began a search of the sleeping rooms, when he was asked to desist.

Mrs. Reed was awakened by some one coming quietly up the stairs, but hadn't time to investigate before a dark lantern was flashed in her face.

"Go away from here," said Mrs. Reed, "or my sons will shoot you."

"All right," said the burglar, and he walked quietly down the stairs and out of the front door.

The man had turned everything topsy turvy, but found only a few trinkets. He overlooked $50 in a cabinet. Mrs. Reed saw the man's face plainly and was able to give a good description of the man to the police.

Scoring Postponed.

W. W. P. McConnell, state dairy and food commissioner, has decided to postpone the May butter scoring contest and the first cheese-scoring test of the proposed six-months' contest, until the first week in June. It was originally intended to begin the cheese-scoring contest at the May butter-scoring, but many cheese factories were late in starting, and Mr. McConnell decided to give the cheesemakers more time.

The dairy and food commission will issue a circular explaining the cheese scoring contest. Prizes will be offered at each monthly test, $5 in cash for the cheesemaker making the highest score; $3 for the second best score, and $2 for the third best score. Costly silver cups will be awarded at the end of the six-months' contest to the three cheese-makers making the highest scores.

Attempted Suicide.

Soaked in blood which flowed from several jagged wounds in his throat, Hans Olson of St. Paul was found by a small newsboy, lying unconscious behind one of the large billboards on Wabasha street, just across from the new capitol.

In a determined effort to end his life, the man had gashed his throat in three or four places with a piece of broken glass which he had picked up on the street.

Some of the smaller arteries had been severed, the jugular vein laid bare, and the flow of blood from the wounds was so profuse that Olson must have died in a very short time had he not been given prompt attention.

Attractive Exhibits.

An attractive exhibit of buffalo bone and stone instruments manufactured by the Mandan Indians and found near the mouth of the Heart river in North Dakota will be installed in the Museum of the Minnesota Historical society in the new capitol. The instruments were exhibited by J. V. Brower of St. Paul at the meeting of the executive council at the capitol. In addition there will be an exhibit of 30,000 curios collected by Dr. Edward C. Mitchell in all parts of the world.

Indian Payments.

Maj. Scott, acting Indian agent, made a payment of $20,000 to the Red Lake reservation.

The amount secured from these logging corporations reached about $33,000. The whole of it was obtained for the Reds, but the major decided that, as there was no pressing need of the money on the part of the Indians, $20,000 would be sufficient for the present. The remainder will be turned over at the time of the annuity payments in November.

DAIRY DEPARTMENT.

Edited by Geo. L. Austin, Manager of the Red Lake Falls Creamery.

Does Dairying Pay?

A Vermont dairy farmer writes as follows: "Hay here costs $17.00 per ton, bran is $1.20 per 100 and other food stuffs in proportion; butter sells at from 16c to 19c the year around, I mean that is what we realize out of it from the creamery, and yet our twenty cows for March brought us a check for $146.00. How is that for a dairy? I would like to own a farm west with cheap feed and hay and a silo, for it would make good money."

Farmers of Red Lake county there is a lesson for you in these few words. If this dairyman can make money from cows at the enormous prices he has to pay for feed, why can't we do it here where the conditions are just as favorable and feed so much cheaper. He speaks of a silo. It is a splendid thing, but we can make good money dairying without the silo, and we don't want to try to make you believe you must have a silo to be a successful dairyman and thereby discourage you as silos are rather expensive comparatively. But we would advise all who have the means to build a sito. as it furnishes green food the year around and will greatly increase the income from the dairy.

We hope the dairy farmers of this section have taken warning from this severe winter just past and will be careful not to get caught short of feed again. Drill in from 10 to 25 acres of fodder corn about June 10th, sow it thick so the stalks will be small and the cows will relish it very much next winter, and they will show their appreciation of it in the milk pail. Sow enough so you can cut some and feed it in July and August when the pasture gets dry and short grass is very important.

Dairy Notes.

The worst race of milch cows is a race to the barn at night with a big dog at their heels.

As the cows go on pasture, remember that the grass is not as nutritious as the ration you have been feeding, and do not cut the bran off for a week or two.

Neighbor Jones wants you to know that in the year 1903 he made just one-fifth more butter from his six cows than he did in 1902—the same cows and the same system of feeding, but in 1902 he set the milk in crocks, and in 1903 he used a centrifugal separator.

A bath with Cole's Carbolisoap is a luxury. It cools, heals and cleanses and has a delightful ordor of lavender and violets. Use this soap once and you will be its friends, for no others can compare with it. Be sure its COLE'S. By all druggist.

LIVER TROUBLES

"I find Thedford's Black-Draught a good medicine for liver disease. It cured my son after he had spent $100 with doctors. It is all the medicine I take."—MRS. CAROLINE MARTIN, Parkersburg, W. Va.

If your liver does not act regularly go to your druggist and secure a package of Thedford's Black-Draught and take a dose tonight. This great family medicine frees the constipated bowels, stirs up the torpid liver and causes a healthy secretion of bile.

Thedford's Black-Draught will cleanse the bowels of impurities and strengthen the kidneys. A torpid liver invites colds, biliousness, chills and fever and all manner of sickness and contagion. Weak kidneys result in Bright's disease which claims as many victims as consumption. A 25-cent package of Thedford's Black-Draught should always be kept in the house.

"I used Thedford's Black-Draught for liver and kidney complaints and found nothing to excel it."—WILLIAM COFFMAN, Marblehead, Ill.

THEDFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT

A POINT OF LAW

[Original.]

"Missouri," said the judge to the prisoner, "what's yer rail name?"

"Jim Sanders."

"Waal, Jim Sanders, yer here to be tried for the killin' of Andy Lary. The said Andy Lary an' you uns was playin' a small game at the Sunset saloon, an' Andy won consid'able of you uns' money. You draw'd suddent an' with no other provercashun excep' losin' fa'r, jist because you was onlucky"—

"Andy was the onlucky one," interrupted the prisoner. "He dropped a ace of clubs on the floor when I had another one in my hand."

"Are you sure of that?"

"Tom Burke seen it. I kin prove it by him."

"Call Tom Burke," said the judge.

Burke took the stand and swore that he had seen an ace of clubs lying on the floor, a duplicate of which was in the hands of the prisoner, but he couldn't say which man dropped it. He rather thought it fell from Jim Sanders' sleeve.

"Judge," said the prisoner impressively, "I've toyed with keerds, man an' boy, nigh on ter twenty year. My reputation for skill should purtec' me from sich a barefaced statement as that. There's hundreds of men as has played with me who'll swear that I am oncapable of any sich onhandiness. If I take a keerd from my sleeve it goes on ter the table an' not on ter the floor."

The prisoner looked around at the faces of those present for justification.

"You've spoke a strong argyment in yer favor," said the judge, assuming a judicial pose.

"To prove what I say," continued the prisoner, "I'll agree to deal myself two aces of clubs from a squar' pack an' use one from my sleeve, an' if any member of the jury kin spot the time I done any part of this profeshional bit of work I'll plead guilty, confess an' dance the rope without objectin'."

"Jim Sanders," remarked the judge, "prev'us to this charge you uns has always bore a excellent reputashun, an' yer proposishun is worthy of yer standin' in the community."

A table was drawn forward, the jury took seats around it, and the prisoner was given the cards. He proceeded to shuffle them, dealt a poker hand to each juryman, dealt each man to fill, and, without betting, there was a showdown. The dealer's hand was three of a kind, being three aces of clubs, and two kings. The judge looked at the hand meditatively and then turned the aces over. One ace belonged to the pack. The others had different backs. The judge and jury looked at the prisoner as if the vindication was questionable.

"Yer honor and gentlemen of the jury," said the prisoner, "I hev done as I agreed. I said I'd deal two aces of clubs from a squar' pack and take another from my sleeve. The pack was squar', an' thar's the aces of clubs. I could hev dealt 'em all from keerds of the same pattern, as I hev 'em in my pocket, but that wasn't what I agreed to do. I agreed to deal 'em from a squar' pack."

The judge continued to stare meditatively at the aces and then said to the prisoner:

"Jim Sanders, I hev remarked on the excellent reputashun you bore before the shootin', an' I hev allus regarded you uns a honorable man, but I mus' confess I was not prepared for this spechul evidence of yer high toned sense of honor. The experyment is ontirely satisfactory. We will resume our original positions."

The table was moved back into its place, and the jury again placed their chairs and stools in two rows.

"Gentlemen of the jury," said the judge, "I'll now charge you. The prisoner is accused of shootin' in cold blood one Andy Lary. The occashun of the shootin' is said to be the droppin' of an ace of clubs on the floor, the same ace bein' in the hand of the prisoner. You uns is forbid to consider the onhandiness of Andy Lary. There mustn't be no prejudice ag'in said Lary on account of sich onperfeshunal clumsiness, specially sence he's dead. What you uns has to consider is, Did Lary drop the keerd, or did Sanders drop it? An' you uns needn't consider if Sanders dropped it, 'cause he's proved sich mufin' onworthy of him. An' you uns needn't lug in no side questions like whether the prisoner is guilty anyway, even if Lary did drop the keerd, or whether Sanders was right in assumin' that Lary wasn't playin' fa'r. You uns is to decide if Lary dropped that ace. If Lary dropped it, then you uns is to find the prisoner not guilty of the shootin'."

The jury rose, but before retiring the foreman put the following question:

"Are we to consider if the prisoner done the community a service in puttin' out of the way a man that showed none of them nice points of honor that the prisoner has showed an' a man that was bringin' disgrace on us all by bunglin'?"

"You are to consider that p'int," replied the judge.

The jury then filed out to the saloon where the shooting took place. In half an hour they filed back again, and the foreman announced the verdict:

"At the Sunset saloon we found an ace on the floor which the barkeep says is the identical ace about which the shootin' occurred. On examinin' it we found that it wasn't the ace of clubs, but the ace of spades. Nevertheless sence keerlessness on sech matters is dangerous and demoralizin' to this community, and sence Lary sartinly dropped the ace, we find that the prisoner give him proper punishment an' is not guilty."

OLIVER MEARS HINSDALE.

A STRONG WILL

"Mr. Stubbs was an obstinate man and generally walloped any man who stood in his way," said Dring, with a reminiscent air. "He fell in love with Polly Savory, but she would have none of him and told him that she preferred some one else. Then she turned her back on him and marched away without saying another word.

"That made him show his teeth. 'Now, look here, Polly,' he says, 'I'm one of the sort, I am, who always has his own way. I mean to have you for my wife, and woe betide the man that comes between me and my girl!'

"Next day the news was all over the village. Stubbs was made a laughingstock, though he swore to break any chap's head who made fun. But even he could not thrash a whole village.

"As for Polly, he treated her shameful, meeting her whenever he could and threatening murder against her 'gentleman' as soon as ever he found him out and telling her day after day that he'd make her his wife by fair means or foul. I was down in the dumps dreadful, for I knew this gentleman as Polly said she had a fancy for couldn't be me.

"Well, what I'm coming to is this: Polly went to see a married sister living at Amblecote. Instead of going by the bridge, which is nigh a mile away, she borrowed old Garston's boat and sculled herself across. She started back just as it was getting dusk, for there wasn't any moon that night, and down she comes to the bank where she had moored the boat. She got in, unhitched the painter and was just a-shoving off when, all on a sudden, Stubbs was standing on the bank above her. He takes off his hat, and says he:

"'Susan is that bad that I've been over to Marpleton to get her some doctor's stuff. It'll save a sight of time and be a real blessing to her if you'll let me cross in the boat with you.'

"Polly hadn't the heart to say 'No,' so she says very short:

"'If it's to do Susan good you can come.'

"And she sat down in the stern and let him shove off and take the sculls. Then she saw that he was a-pulling hard down stream.

"'What are you a-doing?' she cries out.

"'I know what I'm a-doing right enough,' says he.

"Below Polly could hear the splashing and roaring of the weir, and right ahead she could see where the river divided, and she knew one fork of it would lead them on to certain death. Which was he going?

"'Polly,' he says, 'you're going to marry me.'

"'Never!' she answered him. 'Never, you poor thing!'

"'Then we'll die together this night,' he says, scowling at her like the black devil he was. 'Over the weir we'll go.' He pulled sharp around with his left as he spoke. She looked behind, and he gave a laugh.

"'The rudder's in the bows," he says. 'I put it there out of harm's way. We'll let her drift now, and in just about three minutes we shall be in kingdom come. Polly, will you have me?'

"'Never!' she tells him again.

"'Then it's death,' he cries out, shipping his sculls, 'and a long kiss, sweetheart, before it comes!'

"He jumped up and moved toward her, with his arms out, when, quicker than I'm a-telling you, Polly swings herself with a big jerk over to port and with her right hand she reaches and gives him a push to help him, and, slap, over he went into the river. The boat righted and Polly was in his seat and had the sculls out in less than a quarter of a minute. She was only just in time, for the boat weren't fifty yards from the weir, and hard work it was pulling round against stream, but somehow she managed it, and back she come safe to old Garston's. All of a-tremble she was with rage when she landed, for I happened to be there quite promiscuous, and she told us all about it.

"'I hope he's drowned,' says old Garston.

"'No fear o' that,' says his wife. 'He swims too well, and ain't meant for drowning. You have the law on him, my dear,' she says to Polly.

"'No,' says Polly, just a-looking at me, 'that ain't the sort of punishment I want him to have.'

"'So,' says I, 'if you'll kindly excuse me, I must be a-going.'

"And with that I goes straight off to call on Dick Stubbs. He was at home, but a-changing his things, his sister said. So I waited till he come down and then I says, very polite, 'Could I have a little word with you outside, Mr. Stubbs?' He come out, and I give him a clump on the head that just astonished him. 'With Miss Savory's compliments,' says I, 'and will you come round to the Bull yard? There's a light there, and one or two mates to see fair play.'

"It was a good fight, sir," Dring went on, rubbing his hands at the recollection, "and a hard one to wallop he was, but I walloped him till he couldn't stand, and he's never forgive me."

"And Polly?" I asked.

"Come on to supper, Bill," cried a pleasant woman's voice from within.

"You'll step in and peek a bit I hope, sir," said he, pleased at the dramatic finish. "That's Polly a-calling."

Pet Animals In Cold Weather.

Pet animals in cold weather should be looked after as carefully as if they were children. It is cruel to hang a canary bird's cage in a draft of air or a cold room or allow a deficiency of food and water. The cat and the dog should have warm sleeping places and not be obliged to forage for food. True it is that more harm is done from want of thought than want of heart. Because animals are accustomed to live out of doors we are apt to forget that domestication makes them delicate and nearly helpless.

THE FARMERS' EXCHANGE.

State Organization Recently Perfected at Minneapolis.

The Minnesota Farmers' Exchange perfected its organization at Minneapolis recently by the election of the following officers: President, C. E. Jackson, St. Cloud; vice president, Elias Steenerson, Crookston; secretary, J. S. McDonald, Rush City; treasurer, W. S. Weatherston, West Concord.

President Jackson explained it in these words: "The Minnesota Farmers' Exchange makes it possible for the farmer to hold the grain he has harvested and worked for all year until the market actually demands it and he can get a good price for it. The exchange sees that he is supplied with the money for his own necessities. He is given a warehouse receipt for 60 per cent of his grain whether in his own granary or in the elevator."

It is likely that the farmers' exchange, will consolidate with the elevator association, [illegible]

The Railroad Monopoly.

Todd County Argus: Experts figure that the railroads of this country are capitalized for about $61,000 per mile. This must be almost or quite three times the actual investment in the business, so when the road pays six per cent on this watered or fictitious valuation, the people are really paying the capitalists eighteen per cent on the money they put in the business. Freight and passenger rates could be cut down so the net income of roads would be reduced half and the stockholders would still be getting good interest for their investment. When stock goes far above par it is an evidence that the business is earning more than a fair rate of interest and rates could be reduced without impairing the investment.

PLUMMER BOY DROWNED.

While Fishing Little Carl Hemmli Falls Over the Dam.

Carl Hemmli, an eight-year-old boy living in the vicinity of Plummer, was drowned last Friday. The little fellow, in company with other small boys, was fishing at the dam, and fell into the water. He was drowned before assistance could reach him. The funeral was held Monday from the family residence. The Hemmli family are newcomers to Red Lake county, having moved up from the southern part of the state this spring.

TO AVOID PENALTY.

One-Half of Real Estate Taxes Must Be Paid June 1.

The real estate taxes which were due the 1st day of January will be increased by 10 per cent providing at least one-half of the amount due is not paid on or before the 1st day of June. If half is paid by that date, the balance can run till the first of the following November without any penalties being added.

If no portion of them are paid a penalty of 10 per cent is added June 1st and January next another 5 per cent is added; on that day they become delinquent and if not paid before the first Monday in May the land is sold for the amount taxed against it.

Thus far about the usual percentage of taxes against real estate has been paid and by the first of June there will be a large additional amount of money turned into the treasury to avoid the penalty.

Flag Day June 14.

The American Flag association having its headquarters at New York City, has addressed a circular letter: "To the mayor of each American city, to the American press, to the officers and members of all American patriotic societies, to all shool officers and trustees, and to all our fellow citizens," in accordance with its custom of the past seven years, reminding them that Tuesday, June 14, will be the 127th anniversary of the adoption of the stars and strips as the flag of the United States, and inspired by the increased public recognition of the flag day as a national anniversary, earnestly requests their co-operation in securing the widest possible recognition this year. Mayors are requested to order flags to be displayed upon the municipal buildings of their respective cities, and by formal proclamation, or otherwise, to invite their fellow citizens to do the same upon their private buildings.

VOTE ON AMENDMENTS.

Separate Ballot Will Be Provided for This Purpose.

According to the constitution of the state of Minnesota all laws changing the mode of taxation or the rate that shall be paid by railroad companies must be approved by a majority vote of all the electors of the state, says the Minneapolis Times.

The present rate of taxation is a maximum of 3 per cent on the gross earnings. The legislature of 1901 passed a bill increasing this to four per cent. The matter was submitted to the people at the election in 1902 and while the proposition received nearly ten votes to one in opposition it failed of adoption for the reason that the affirmative vote was a few thousand short of a majority o all the ballots cast at the state election.

The provision was incorporated with several constitutional amendments and had a place on the state ticket, but because of the apathy of the ordinary vote it was not given consideration and together with the proposed amendments it was defeated, the average voter being ignorant of the fact that a failure to vote for the proposition was equivalent to a vote in opposition.

The legislature of 1903 re-enacted the bill and it will be substituted to the electors in November. Under a new law there will be no opportunity for the voter to plead that his attention was not called to to the subject because it is provided that the proposed constitutional amendments shall be printed on a separate ballot and that the gross earnings bill shall be included with them.

Therefore, instead of being upon the regular state ticket, on which are the names of all the candidates for state office and the electors for president, a goodly number of names, the subject will be upon a separate ballot and the elector cannot fail to have his attention called to it by the judges of election. It cannot be pleaded that the proposition was over-looked because it will be the duty of the voter to scrutinize the ballots that are given him and it is the belief of the advocates of the law that it will receive proper consideration at this time and be adopted if the vote of two years ago can be taken as a criterion.

Is This Contempt?

Some newspaper is rude enough to ask, "If it costs from $30,000 to $40,000 to elect one supreme court judge how much does it cost to elect the entire bench?" When elected how will they arrange their decisions?

DECORATION DAY.

Memorial Exercises Will be Held at City Hall Monday Forenoon.

Decoration day exercises will be at the city hall on Monday forenoon at 10:30 o'clock. Music will be rendered by the band, and the school children will sing several patriotic songs. Local speakers will pay tribute to the nation's heroic dead. All members of the Grand Army and old soldiers generally are requested to attend the services, and an invitation is given as well to the general public. The people of Red Lake Falls should be glad to devote a few hours in honoring the memory of those who died for their country.

After the exercises the old soldiers, school children and citizens generally will repair to the cemeteries, where the graves of the soldiers will be decorated with flowers.

ST. HILAIRE MILL STARTED

Bemidji Mill Broke Down Last Week, and Employes Are Brought to St. Hilaire.

The people of St. Hilaire are jubilant over the fact that their saw mill has started up and will continue in operation during the entire season. Last week the Bemidji mill broke down, and it will require a couple of months to put it in shape again. It seems that the foundations for the boilers were built on quicksand and the heavy boilers have sunk about two feet. The brick work must be torn out and re-built on a firmer foundation. Saturday, contrary to expectations, orders were given to fit up the plant at St. Hilaire and have it ready for operation at once, and a large crew of men arrived there Saturday for this purpose. The mill is now running at full capacity.

The opening of the mill was a great surprise to St. Hilaire people, who have calmly resigned themselves to the supposed inevitable and settled down to bear their misfortune with good grace. The large amount of lumber being shipped this season and the posssibility of securing logs all summer for the St. Hilaire mill has brought about the opening of the mill and it is needless to say that the move will please the St. Hilaire people immensely.

Banker K. O. Gigstad was down from St. Hilaire Saturday on business before the probate court.

WHILE THE TRAIN WAITED

By A. S. Richardson

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

The waiter coughed obsequiously, and Margaret Ashton turned toward him impatiently.

"Just some fruit and coffee for dessert."

The waiter picked up the plate holding an untasted entree.

"Why are we stopping here so long?"

"Freight train off de track ahead, ma'am, but de wreckin' crew's heah, ma'am."

Miss Ashton picked up the menu, read it absentmindedly and laid it down again. Then her glance traveled back to the panorama spread beyond the dining car's window. It was the residence district of a pretty village, with yellow and white and gray and white cottages placed at a discreet distance apart, with well kept lawns and budding gardens in between.

Close to the crossing where the train had come to a sudden standstill was the church, painted in pearly white, with dark green shutters and imitation colored glass windows. Even at this distance Margaret recognized the material in those windows. They had received samples when she was in the altar guild at St. Paul's.

The waiter arrived with her dessert, and she selected some white grapes with elaborate care. When she looked up again, a boy came scampering down the drive which divided two of the cottage homes. He swung a baseball bat in signal to another youngster emerging from another yard. Both homes had barns and chicken yards in the rear, and the boys wore sweaters.

"They have had their tea and have done their chores," thought Miss Ashton, stirring her coffee slowly, "and by and by some one will call them both in and pull down the shades."

A woman ran across the back yard of the house nearest the tracks, carrying something under her apron. She disappeared in the kitchen doorway of the next house, then reappeared empty handed and ran back to her own home.

"She had borrowed something, no doubt," said Miss Ashton to herself. "Perhaps she had a little tea this afternoon. We always borrowed things from the Marsdens when we had teas."

She pushed aside her coffee cup, laid a bill on the silver tray which the waiter offered and left the car. Her chair was in the drawing room car forward. She found herself looking straight into the side yard of a trim little cottage. A young woman sat on the step of the porch, a "fascinator" thrown over her shoulders. At the foot of the step stood another woman holding a restless baby in her arms. The two women were so earnestly engaged in conversation that they did not notice how the baby was stripping young buds off the porch vine.

"Gossiping," murmured Miss Ashton. She knew the narrow life only too well. She had run away from it years before. She wanted to go where your next door neighbor did not count the skirts and shirt waists on your line, where no one insisted that because a young man had shown you a few ordinary courtesies you were bound to be engaged to him.

She swung her chair impatiently, and her glance fell once more on the church. The sun was setting, and two people were walking up the narrow flagged path. The man pulled out a key, threw open the church door, and they both passed in. He did not look like a minister. He was something of an athlete and had an alert air. A moment later he was opening the window. The girl was not in sight, but Margaret was certain that she was putting flowers in the vase at the pulpit.

"He's a leader in the church, no doubt. A man must always be at the head of something," she thought. "And Miss Demure will be sitting down in the amen corner soon watching him with adoring eyes because the whole congregation looks up to him."

What a narrow set these people in small towns were! Here was a train stalled in their midst bearing men of millions, women who had traveled at home and abroad, interests that might affect the world of trade, and they did not stop so much as to inquire into the trouble. They were so small, so narrow, so self absorbed!

At last the train moved with great, heaving strain on wheels and springs. Margaret gave one more glance at the church. The lights were ablaze, and the young man was standing in front of the congregation, a book in his hand. The girl was at the organ.

Margaret leaned back and closed her eyes. She saw another church, another man—and herself. Then she turned her thoughts resolutely into other channels. She glanced down at her bag. She knew the papers in that bag meant insurance policies for thousands, all written by herself. She had stepped in where other agents feared to tread and had secured business. She was going back to New York and the approval of her superiors. She would be glad to shut herself in her private office and take up her accumulated correspondence. She must have a new cabinet ordered for that empty corner of her office. The papers to be filed in her department were increasing.

* * * * * * *

She gave her number to the cabman and was whisked off into the glare of Broadway's lights. By and by they turned into a quiet side street. She mounted the steps leading to a dim brownstone apartment house, shook out her keys and hurried to her room.

There were no matches, and she rang the bell impatiently. The maid apologized and brought in clean towels.

"We weren't expecting you till tomorrow, Miss Ashton," she remarked with a furtive flirt of her towel across the dusty table.

Margaret lighted every gas jet in the room and in the dressing room adjoining, to say nothing of the gas log in the grate, but still the room seemed dank and dull. She wished that it were morning and she might bury herself in office work.

The maid returned with a package which had arrived in Margaret's absence, and the latter inquired:

"Is Miss Harding in this evening? If she is, I wish you would ask her to come in and have a cup of tea with me."

Miss Harding had the room at the end of the hall.

The maid paused in the doorway and looked in in startled fashion.

"Why, didn't you know? Miss Harding died while you were gone."

"Died!"

"Yes; pneumonia; awful sudden too. None of her folks was here. They live way up state somewhere, and the undertaker shipped the body."

Margaret sat staring at the even flame of the gas log. "None of her folks was here; they shipped"—

The life had died out of the great city and the clock struck 2 when Margaret Ashton laid down her pen. She bent low to kiss the letter as she sealed it, and again there came to her the vision of the man and the girl walking up the narrow, flagged pathway to the church.

* * * * * * *

Ten days later a man who wore gold glasses and looked at her above them called her into his private office. She had only been in that office twice before, and they had been red letter events in her business career.

"Miss Ashton, we have been going over the results of that last trip you made. They are remarkable for a woman. And we have decided to make you superintendent of the Troy offices."

He paused for an expression of surprise or appreciation. Miss Ashton was studying the carpet. The great man coughed.

"Your salary, of course"—

"Thank you," she said, still without looking up, "but I have accepted—another position."

The great man fairly jumped.

"But, my dear young woman, you should consider"—

"I have considered, and this is for life."

This time she looked up, straight into the eyes of the great man. Something he read there made him rise and extend his hand cordially.

"My dear Miss Ashton, I trust you will be very happy. And I congratulate the young man with all my heart."

He Spoke Japanese.

They told this on a Pittsburger who is dead now and therefore shall be nameless, but the story is still told about Washington when a crowd of newspaper men foregather and talk over old times and happenings. It was during the Harrison administration, and the Pittsburger was hot on the trail of a consulship. Several were suggested and rejected by the applicant, who didn't want a government sit at Dahomey or some other out of the world place, but a first class charge.

Finally he picked on Yokohama as the place where he would like to represent Uncle Sam and secured an audience with President Harrison.

"But do you understand the importance of this position?" asked the president. "Can you speak Japanese?"

Oh, yes, the applicant understood the importance of the position; also he could speak the language.

"Well," said the president, "let me hear you speak it."

"All right! Ask me something in Japanese."

There was a laugh all round, but the Pittsburg man did not get the position.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Pina Gauze.

Pina gauze, made by the women of the Philippines from pineapple spikes alone, is as delicate as chiffon and far more durable. They use only the best leaves, and these, tied into bundles, are placed under heavy stones in the bed of a running stream. After two or three days of this treatment they are exposed for a time to the action of the sun and air. Each piece is closely inspected to make sure that the process of decomposition was thorough, and if it was not the leaves are subjected a second time to the operation. The fibrous threads are at last wholly separate from the cellulose and lignose particles and cleaned from the sap and gummy substance. The whole is then beaten with a wooden mallet grooved on the face like a fluting machine. The threads are kept moist while this beating is in progress, and the separate threads are thus blended into one mass. In color the fibers vary from cream and light gray to pure white. After the "pineapple cloth" is finished figures are stamped on it with blocks and afterward worked or embroidered by hand.—Chicago News.

His Latest Request.

There is a clever lad who will get his living in this world. For playing truant maternal authority cut off his supper. Casting one fond look at the authoress of his existence, he paused at the door to say:

"Mother, I am going to die, and when I am no more I wish the doctor to cut me open and look at my stomach."

The maternal heart was filled with awful forebodings, and the maternal voice asked what he meant.

"I wish it to be known," he answered, "that I died of starvation."

This was enough. The small boy was triumphant and retired to his little bed gorged to repletion.

Trials of the C. O. D. Man

His Experience as a Publisher Didn't Last Very Long.

[Copyright, 1903, by C. B. Lewis.]

"WHEN I first became a dilapidated gentleman," said the C. O. D. man as he received his fee in advance and bowed his thanks, "I decided to take in the glorious west. I was doing some tramping, some mining and a great deal of starving and cussing in Montana when I struck a frontier town one night to find a good deal of excitement. The editor of the weekly paper had been lynched for protesting against the free and easy manners of the citizens, and his body had not yet been cut down. I stood gazing at it when the leader of the lynching party came up and slapped me on the shoulder and said:

"'Say, tenderfoot, are ye lookin' fur a job?'

"'I am,' I replied.

"'Hev ye got any brains in yer head?'

"'I hope so.'

"'Ye look to hev, but ye must also hev common sense mixed with 'em or ye'll come out as that feller did. D'ye think this town is too rough?'

"'Not at all. It's just a lively town.'

"'Would ye go in fur hevin' law and order?'

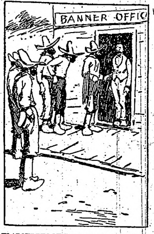
"'No, sir. I should leave every man free to enjoy himself in his own way.'

"'Then ye are the kyote we are lookin' fur,' he continued as he grasped my hand. 'We want a new editor in place of that critter up thar. Jest ye go right down to the Eagle office and take possession, and I'll pass the hat around among the boys and rake in a few dollars.'

"'But I don't own the Eagle,' I protested.

"'That don't make a bit of difference. Jest walk in and make yerself to home and begin to run things. If ye hit it off with the boys ye'll be all O. K.; if ye don't ye'll be hung in spite of gunpowder. Hump yerself along and begin bizness.'

"I humped," said the C. O. D. man. "I entered the office to find two compositors who were half scared to death and who gladly welcomed me as editor and proprietor. The man who had accosted me on the street raised $100 in cash for me to go ahead on, and I flatter myself that I got out four very fair numbers. The fourth, unfortunately for me, contained an item to the effect that Bloody Hill, a rival town five miles away, was doing a little more shooting than our own. This was looked upon as a bit of flagrant disloyalty on my part, and I got out of town while a committee was looking for me with a noosed rope.



IN ABOUT TWO MINUTES THEY REAPPEARED WITH THE EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

"My second and last editorial experience occurred two months later. I was tramping in Nevada and eating roots much oftener than meat when I headed for a mining town called Carson Flats. I was within a mile of the town and sitting down to rest when along came about thirty men in a body. They were tough looking fellows, and the leader looked me over and asked:

"'Say, young feller, why don't ye hang yerself?'

"'Because I've no rope,' I answered.

"'Whar ye goin'?'

"'Down to the Flats.'

"'What fur?'

"'To hit a job on the Banner.'

"'Then ye are a newspaper galoot?'

"'Something of one.'

"The fellow consulted with three or four of the others, and I was asked to come along to the Flats in their company. We had hardly reached the town when we came to a stop before the Banner office, and the leader and two of his crowd entered. In about two minutes they reappeared with the editor and proprietor, who had a rope around his neck and was somewhat perturbed. There were cries of 'Hang him!' from various individuals, but the boss waved his hand for silence and said:

"'All in reg'lar order, boys, and no hurry about it. This yere individual is the editor of the Banner. His paper seems to be all right fur this town of Carson Flats, whar they are ready to put up with most anything in the literary line, but it don't satisfy us as live over at Pine Hill, and we are yere to gin this kyote a chance—that is, he's got to git or hang, and I don't think we care which he does. What will it be, mister?'

"'What fault do you find with my paper?' asked the editor, who was far cooler than would have been looked for.

"'Thar ain't 'nuff whoop to it, and we don't believe ye are the right sort of critter to put the whoop in. Will ye travel and look fur another place or will ye lay down yer cares and burdens here and now?'

"'I think I'll travel,' slowly replied the editor.

"'Then be a-gittin'.'

"They gave him time to make up a bundle of clothes and then started him off, and when he had departed the boss turned to me with:

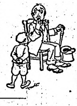
"'Now, young feller, step in and take possession. We may hang ye inside of two weeks or ye may pull along fur two or three months.'

"Ten minutes later I was in full possession of the office and found enough white paper to get out three issues. The entire outfit, press and all, could have been packed on the back of a mule. I went to work with the aid of a boy and got out two fairly decent looking sheets, and as each copy sold for 50 cents spot cash it was better than mining. The second number had just been issued and I was patting myself on the back when about fifty men came marching up and halted in front of the office. Only one man came in, and he had a noosed rope over his arm, and he told me it was time for me to move on.

"'What's wrong?' I asked.

"'Oh, nuthin', only ye've got to git,' and git I did, and that ended my editirial experience and completed my dilapidation." M. QUAD.

A Business Head.



"Johnny, I will give you a quarter to tell me what your sister thinks of me."

"All right, but I would advise you to give me half a dollar not to tell any one else."

Ring the Bell and Take a Transfer.

If it isn't to your fancy,
  Your reception when you call;
If your pretty little Nancy
  Does not linger in the hall,
Thrilled at what your glances foretell,
  Blushing at your manner fine,
She is not the only seashell;
  Transfer to another line.

If the man who's playing Shylock,
  When you're sitting through the play,
Would much better be in dry dock,
  Getting mosses scraped away,
Do not sit and worry through it,
  While with rage your blood is stirred;
Though you truly hate to do it,
  Ring the bell and get transferred.

If the man for whom you labor,
  Worry, hustle, slave and dig,
Doesn't treat you like a neighbor,
  Tries to act the bloomin' prig,
Do not show that you resent it;
  Keep still, do not say a word,
But you never will repent it
  If you ring and get transferred.

Had Use For Them.

"How many dentists does that college turn out every year?" asked the African monarch who was going about seeing the sights.

"About 400," replied the guide.

"I wish I had that college at home. There is nothing I would like better than to be able to kill a dentist every morning before breakfast."

Where Patience Fails.

Perhaps by patience you may do
  Most anything you try,
But the most patient yellow hen
  May sit and sit and sit again
Upon a door knob, but the trick
  Will not produce a single chick.
    I wonder why.

The Loan Bird.

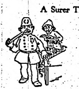
"Was the oyster supper a financial success?"

"I should say so! Everything was donated except the oyster, and he was so well preserved that they can use him twice more."

Gets There Occasionally.

Error does not always triumph,
  Truth not always meets mishap;
Truth is sometimes on the scaffold
  Tying error for the trap.

A Surer Thing.



"When I get to be a man, I am going to run a peanut stand, and then I can have all the peanuts I want."

"Huh! When I get to be a man, I am going to be a policeman. That is an easier way."

Starting the Trouble.

Mabel—Did he stutter when he proposed?

Ethel—No, I don't think so.

Mabel—Really? He must have improved.—Punch.

Going Halves.

Lady Customer (in bookstore)—Give me a copy of "Romeo and Juliet."

Clerk—Yes, miss. A dollar and a half, please.

Lady Customer—I find I've only got 75 cents. Just give me "Romeo."—St. Paul Pioneer-Press.

One of War's Evils.

Mrs. Henpeck (visiting her first husband's grave)—Yes, here lies a hero. You would not be my husband today had he not been killed in the war.

Mr. Henpeck (fiercely)—Yes, what a curse war is!

Honored.

Some men have such queer ideas of things that they buy their way into public office for the purpose of being "honored at the hands of their fellow citizens."—Exchange.

Sad.

Amy—Poor Mr. Billion has been in a railway smash and is sinking fast.

Bella—Dear me! How sad! And I only refused him last month!

Humor and Philosophy

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

Work is usually disagreeable only because it is work.

An office boy is apt to think that the chorus girl lives in paradise.

The people who say the least have the least to take back.

Evil communications corrupt good aldermen.

All play and no work makes Jack a great shirk.

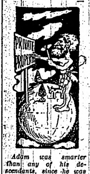
If one half of the world knew how the other half lived, the first half would be trying to beat the second half's game.

A dentist's parlor is a spacious apartment. It almost always contains an acher or two.

Consider before you promise, reconsider and then move to lay the matter on the table.

Boodle is a mysterious something that the other party knows all about.

Pernicious activity is a disease incidental to small boys and political adversaries.



Adam was smarter than any of his descendants, since he was the only man who really owned the earth.

If Brutus had been a modern doctor, he would have explained to Cæsar that he was only performing an operation for appendicitis.

In these times the man who insists on his pound of flesh will see to it that the butcher's scales are balanced.

The theory that we eat too much does not appeal to the restaurant keepers.

It is very comfortable to reflect that it is a long time to next swearing off day.

The Man With the Goods.

You meet with a fellow urbane and polite;
  He fascinates all who come under his sway;
He talks on all subjects from morning till night
  And then keeps it up till the break of the day;
But talk's not expensive, I've long understood;
I'd much like to know can the fellow make good.

Large talkers are common as leaves of the field;
  They come in all fashions and patterns and brands;
Their exploits are marvels, although self revealed;
  They speak in all tongues and they hail from all lands;
But I'm from Missouri, right out of the woods,
So show me the man who delivers the goods.

In some other country, a far distant clime,
  They cut all the ice from the rivers and lakes;
Beside that light labor they always had time
  At all of the contests to capture the cakes;
But all of this happened so far, far away,
I'd like to inquire can they make good today?

The man who comes forward when it is his turn
  And hands you the package, all wool, a yard wide,
May not at first meeting have language to burn
  Or tell his adventures with ill concealed pride;
That man to my bosom I fold as my own
Who's there with the goods when you ring up his phone.

At Bargain Prices.

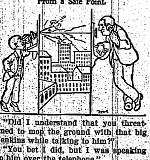
New Clerk—Do we mark these $4 goods down to $3.99 for the bargain sale?

Manager—What's the matter with you? Do you think we hold bargain sales for the purpose of losing money? Mark them down to $4.99.

To Dig For It.

That money's evil's root is true,
  And yet I am afraid
That if we knew where evil grew
  We'd go there with a spade.

From a Safe Point.



"Did I understand that you threatened to mop the ground with that big Jenkins while talking to him?"

"You bet I did, but I was speaking to him over the telephone."

Make a Discovery.

When first we love them it appears
  That angel wings are sprouting;
When we've been married several years—
  Well, please excuse our doubting.

The Real Ruler.

"You know the hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that rules the world."

"I realize that all right. The hired girl rocks the cradle at our house, and I guess she is boss."

JOHN E. KING, Chairman.
S. F. STAPLES, Secretary.

THE St. Hilaire Spectator and Thief River Review just now occupy the center of the stage with a verbal discussions of each others' shortcomings.

ACCORDING to report the Chicago platform will declare for tariff revision when conditions demand it. Why not give a few specifications of the conditions?

H. P. HALL is writing a history of Minnesota politics. If the work does not prove sensational it will be because some of the interesting chapters are omitted.

THE Republicans of Wisconsin nominated two state tickets in ten minutes, while the Republicans of Illinois have been spending a whole week in a futile attempt to name one.

CANDIDATES for county office are beginning to publish their announcement cards in the state papers. There seems to be no dearth of patriots willing to serve their country.

THE portion of the Japanese loan allotted to this country, $25,000,000, was seven times over-subscribed. The American heart and the American pocket-book seems to be with the Japs.

LOREN FLETCHER wants to try conclusions again with John Lind. Loren has a hard time finding out that he is dead. As a matter of fact no live Republican cares to go after Lind's seat in congress.

IF the Italian chemist who thinks he has discovered a chemical combination in liquid form that will prove a substitute for kerosene oil is right, he may be endowing universities or giving away libraries a dozen years from now.

IT is a well-grounded Republican doctrine that the tariff needs reformation, but it is the climax of party disloyalty to suggest such a thing during a campaign. With the Republicans tariff reform is a theory, not a condition.

THE bright paragrapher of the Duluth News-Tribune can't hide the fact that she is a woman nor that she can champion the woman's point of view. Listen to this: "A husband may be declared boss by an Ohio court, but there's a supreme court at home that is altogether likely to reverse the decision."

THE bitterness displayed by the Republicans of Wisconsin, Illinois and other western states will probably lead to Democratic victoaies this fall. When a party has an enormous majority in a state there is always internal dissension and strife. As a rule the states where political control hinges on a narrow margin have the best government.

THE "Iowa idea" seems to be about the deadest political issue on the ilst. Even the author of the much-vaunted "idea," Governor Cummins, is content to stand on a platform diametrically opposed to the principle of tariff reform for which he has so valiantly contended. A good many Republicans are good tariff reformers every day in the year—except election day.

MINNESOTA Democrats should get together and stay together, says the Morris Times. Let them send an uninstructed delegation of good men to the national convention without regard either to Parker, Hearst, or any other candidate. Delegates thus selected will be something nore than mere dummies, and can use the discretion needed when nominations are made.

CONGRESSMAN HITT, of Illinois, appears to be a likely winner as the Republican candidate for vice-president. The place has gone begging among the party leaders, and probably the Illinois congressman is about the best man who will consent to the use of his name. It is a peculiar fact that no man of prominence cares to be vice-president, as it is considered a graveyard of political ambition. Even the strenuous Teddy was nominated for the place over his protest.

THE Republicans of Wisconsin are having a little rumpus which puts the Donnybrook fair in the shade. They have two state tickets and two sets of delegates to the national convention. The Lafollette faction seem to have the best of the argument so far as regularity goes, but the bolters are backed by Senators Spooner and Quarles, Congressman Babcock, and a large number of the leading men of the party. The Democrats can afford to look on with equanimity. It means the election of a Democratic governor and probably a Democratic senator.

THE gubernatorial campaign has reached the stage where figures are given. The St. Paul News gives an impartial review of the situation and credits Dunn with 514 delegates, Collins with 173 and Eddy with 67, which leaves 426 debatable votes. It requires 586 votes to nominate, and in the News estimate there are enough inaccurcies to give Dunn the nomination. For instance the News gives Norman county to Collins when it should be in the Dunn column. Polk and Red Lake are classed as debatable, when it is well-known up this way that nothing short of a political revulsion could take them away from Dunn. It is admitted by the Collins managers that Dunn has the long end of it, and the Dunn people contend that their favorite will be nominated on the first ballot even though Hennepin county goes to Collins.

ORIGIN OF PRESIDENTS.

John Brisben Walker publishes the opinion that Judge Parker as a presidential candidate is the creature of four men—D. B. Hill, August Belmont, P. H. McCarren and F. L. Stetson. The New York Times counters with the statement that "nobody can create a presidential candidate. Nobody can impose a candidate upon the people. He imposes himself. He is his own creation. Politicians look about to find who is the strongest and most available man. Then they begin their labor to make him a candidate."

The Buffalo News is inclined to jeer at the opinion of the Times. If, says the News, the Times is correct in its description of the methods of politicians, "the republic is blessed with the most patriotic set (of politicians) ever heard of on this globe."

"They are only looking for the most available man, the strongest with the people. One wonders where the Times has been living for the last forty years, sixty years or one hundred years. Barring Washington, Jefferson, Jackson, W. H. Harrison, Taylor, Grant, and Cleveland for his first nomination, the presidents nominated on the theory of the Times are hardly to be named. Senator Hanna created McKinley as a candidate. Benjamin Harrison was the outcome of a deadlock and was the creation of a knot of politicians in conclave in a room in a Chicago hotel. Even when Cleveland was nominated in 1892 it was the work of the late W. C. Whitney, backed with enormous resources in money. The Blaine men created Garfield as a candidate, and he certainly did not impose his personality on the convention until after the real personalities had fought themselves to a standstill. But there is little use in running over the list of presidents in detail. Nearly all of them owe their elevation less to their weight of personality than to their chances of politics. Half of them have been the beneficiaries of flukes, dark-horse combinations, never suspected in advance of their appearance."

PRESS COMMENT.

Auburn (Neb.) Herald: Under the president's ruling that preference be given to married men in governmental appointments the Mormons will probably feel that each one of them is qualified to fill two or three clerkships.

Albert Lea Standard: Nobody is saying a word against J. J. Hill's donation of $1,500,000 towards the new Catholic cathedral in St. Paul. It is the kind of a contribution which proves he has a greater heart than many give him credit for.

St. Cloud Times: Chairman Cowherd, of the Democratic congressional committee, gives notice that the Democrats expect to carry New York, Connecticut, New Jersey, Indiana and Illinois besides those states which Mr. Roosevelt concedes.

Granite Falls Tribune: No governor of Minnesota has ever enjoyed himself equal to our present one. He indulges his love for travel and shows and never loses a chance to impress the people that Sam R, is the whole thing. He comes pretty near being "it."

Ada Herald: Doc Ames, ex-mayor of Minneapolis, has again escaped imprisonment by the disagreement of the jury in the second case which was brought against him by the Hennepin county grand jury. All efforts to prosecute him will be dropped. "Graft" seems to thrive in this, the land of the free and the home of the brave.

St. Cloud Times: In his last stump speech in congress General Grosvenor declared that "the hysterical cry of imperialism has been laughed out of court by the people as unworthy of consideration." Has the fact been laughed out of sight that imperialism has thus far cost the people about $800,000,000 with no dividends either on Republican preferred stock or "Steal Common?"

Savannah (Mo.) Democrat: The Republican press is now getting busy. The latest is that President Roosevelt, if reelected, would at the first opportunity send a tariff reform message to congress. Well, the president has had several splendid opportunities to do this for some time, but he has graciously let them pass by. Tariff reform is the only remedy with which to curb the trusts, and if you rely upon Republican promises, the trusts you will have with you always.

Stops more pain, relieves more suffering, prevents more heart aches and diseases than any other remedy. That is what Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea will do. 35 cents in tea or tablet form. A. L. Reichert.

Just before the outbreak of the war Japan placed in England orders for two giant battleships. THE COUNTY PRESS.

Thief River News: Crookston claims it has lost $100,000 by not securing the land sale. Will some one start a subscription to reimburse the old dame?

Thief Biver Press: The premium list of the Red Lake County Fair association is finished and the greater portion of the books are in the hands of Secretary Shaw, of whom copies may be secured.

Thief River News: W. I. Nolan, the Minneapolis humorist, was in the city yesterday and while here made arrangements to deliver a lecture here about the 6th of June under the auspices of the K. of P. lodge.

Thief River Press: Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Staples will leave about June 1st for Stillwater, where they will reside on an 800 acre farm in which Mr. Staples has a large interest. This move is made on the advice of physicians who insist upon an out door life in order to restore complete health following the illness recently undergone by Mr. Staples.

Thief River Press: A force of Soo bridge builders are now here and the work of driving the piles for the new structure will begin next week, and is expected to take about 30 days time. The iron work of the bridge will not be put into position until the trains began to arrive here from the south when it will be brought in over the companie's own road, and at once put on the pilings.

Thief River News: A drunken squaw was locked up in the county jail Saturday night. She was found in a drunken condition in an alley with a little papoose strapped on her back. Quite a number of Indians were in the city last Saturday and all had a liberal amount of fire water. They are undoubtedly improving the short time they have left to remain near Thief River Falls.

Thief River Review: A letter was received yesterday announcing that Rev. J. H. Nichol, the new pastor of the Presbyterian church, would arrive Saturday, May 28, and will conduct services Sunday. He announced that in the morning he will preach an introductory sermon giving his ideas of what our church should be, the subject being "The Marks of Maturity." In the evening a union service will be held on the line of a reception or fraternal service of greeting in the Presbyterian church, to which everybody is cordially invited to attend. Rev. Nichol spent a short time here last year and is very kindly remembered by all who met him, and the news of his coming here will be gladly received by all.

Better to Advertise Prices.

We read in an exchange not long since, where the editor asserted, that if a certain person who purchased a bill of goods from a well known Chicago firm at a large discount from home trade, had come to his home merchant and offered him cash in advance, plus the freight from Chicago he would have duplicated the order for him. We carefully looked the matter over but failed to see where the merchant let the people know it. No, Sir, and not a single line of advertising telling the people he was in business there, and yet expected the people to know what he would do. The masses of people are not mind readers, and have no means of knowing what a merchant will do unless he tells them.—Vernon Center News.

Changed by Necessity.

Duluth News-Tribune: It is a Baltimore landlord who turns out a tenant because the birth of a child in the latter's family broke the terms of the Herodean lease. That reminds us of an actual experience in the history of a certain Hawthorn avenue apartment house eight or ten years ago. Its first tenants happened to include seven newly married couples who agreed to the no-children clause in their leases—with possible mental reservations. As a matter of fact there were six babies born in that block inside the first 18 months, and the landlord took the joke so good-naturedly that he himself rechristened the building "The Incubator." Any oldtime real estate agent can verify this story. Our authority was one of the happy parents.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Cattarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mocous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Several prominent business men have suggested recently that the city ought to provide a suitable band stand for the open-air concerts to be given this summer. Most towns are glad to do this much for their band, and it is a matter of so much public concern that it ought to be brought officially to the attention of the city council.

The wheat seeding in this vicinity was completed last week. The acreage this year is a trifle smaller than usual owing to the late spring, but with the coming of good weather the balance of the land will be put in barley, oats, flax and other cereals. The season so far has been unusually favorable, barring the lateness of the warm weather, and the prospects of a good crop could not be more favorable.

The county road along the ditch south of town is being graded and repaired this week. The business men of Red Lake Falls have contributed the money necessary for the work, and the city furnished the grader and time of the street commissioner. The case was afterwards compromised by Mr. Chatel paying a fine of $5 and costs, amounting in all to $13.50. The case occasioned considerable comment, as it is the first time any person in this vicinity has been arrested for illegal fishing, although every spring a large number of nets have been used in the rivers.

Besides the members of the class, the high school teachers, Misses Steele and Iddings, were present.

Last Thursday Judge Watts handed down a decision in the Rocksbury ditch case, reversing the action of the board of county commissioners in refusing to establish the ditch as petitioned for by a majority of the farmers living along the route of the proposed ditch. The judge holds that the construction of the ditch will be of public dtility and conduce to the public health and welfare, as the route is practicable and the benefits to be derived are greater than the total cost. Judge Watts says there may be minor errors in the assessment of damages and benefits, but these can be adjusted by appeal to the courts by the individuals affected.

An attraction of a novel character is announced for appearance at the opera house for this (Thursday) evening, having completed the entire Walker circuit with the most satisfactory results. Believers and non-believers in spiritualism and occultism will be interested in these wonderful manifestations, whatever the explanation may be. "The White Mahatina" appeared in Grand Forks last Sunday night and at Fargo the Sunday before, and the press in both cities was enthusiastic in praise of his work.

Dr. N. M. Watson and Attorney Thomas Germo of this city and J. L. Cossette of Terrebonne were at Thief River Falls Tuesday evening to attend a meeting of the Republican county central committee, called for the purpose of arranging a call for the county convention. It was decided to hold the convention at Red Lake Falls on Tuesday, June 28, and the primaries on the Saturday evening previous. The basis of representation will be one delegate at large for each precinct, and an additional delegate for each fifty votes or fraction thereof cast for Governor Van-Sant at the last election. The Collins members of the committee desired to have the convention at St. Hilaire, and also a different basis of representation, but it seems they were outgeneralled by the Dunn members.

The Democratic primaries will be held on Wednesday evening, June 8, between the hours of 7 and 9 o'clock, p. m. The several precinct committeemen should remember that notices of the primary must be posted in three public places in the precinct at least six days before the date of the primary; that voting at the primary must be by ballot and the polls kept open for at least one hour. At the primary a chairman, clerk, and two judges shall be chosen by vive voce vote; and the clerk should keep a correct record of the proceedings and a correct list of those voting. Each qualified elector at the primary shall place on his ballot as many names for delegates as the precinct is entitled to in the county convention. If any ballot contains too many names such ballot is wholly void. No person can vote unless he has resided in the precinct thirty days before the primary. No person can vote who has voted at another party primary or in another precinct this year.

CHRONIC SORES

Signs of Polluted Blood.

There is nothing so repulsive looking and disgusting as an old sore. You worry over it till the brain grows weary and work with it until the patience is exhausted, and the very sight of the old festering, sickly looking place makes you irritable, despondent and desperate.

A chronic sore is the very best evidence that your blood is in an unhealthy and impoverished condition, that your constitution is breaking down under the effects of some serious disorder. The taking of strong medicines, like mercury or potash, will sometimes so pollute and vitiate the blood and impair the general system that the merest scratch or bruise results in obstinate non-healing sores of the most offensive character.

Often an inherited taint breaks out in frightful eating sores upon the limbs or face in old age or middle life. Whenever a sore refuses to heal the blood is always at fault, and, while antiseptic washes, salves, soaps and powders can do much to keep down the inflammation and cleanse the sore, it will never heal permanently till the blood itself has been purified and the deadly germs and poisons destroyed, and with S. S. S. this can be accomplished—the polluted blood is purified and invigorated, and when rich, pure blood is again circulating freely throughout the body the flesh around the old sore begins to take on a natural color, the discharge of matter ceases and the place heals over.

SSS

S. S. S. is both a blood purifier and tonic that puts your blood in order and at the same time tones up the system and builds up the general health.

If you have a chronic sore write us. No charge for medical advice.

FACTORY RUINED BY AN EXPLOSION

PLANT OF NOVELTY COMPANY AT FINDLAY, O., LITERALLY TORN TO PIECES.

Seven Employes Are Killed and a Large Number of Others Are Badly Injured—Five of The Latter May Die.

Findlay, O., May 23.—As a result of an explosion in the two drying rooms of the Lake Shore Novelty company's plant here Sunday, seven persons are known to be dead, five are so seriously hurt that recovery is believed to be impossible, and 12 or 15 are injured badly. From reports of the physicians ten of the less seriously injured may die as a result of blood poisoning from the potash that was driven into their bodies.

The dead are: Joseph Sherwood, aged 21; Jay Sherwood, aged 24; Edith Dillon, aged 17; Dean Shaw, aged 18; and Mary Snider, aged 22. These were killed instantly. Estella Decker, aged 15, and Frank Grant, aged 21, died later at home.

The Lake Shore novelty works plant covered nearly ten acres of ground in the southwest part of the city and employed nearly 200 men, women and children. Railroad torpedoes and Fourth of July explosives were manufactured. Owing to the large rush of orders the officials of the plant requested the employes to report for duty Sunday. About 30 complied with the request. During the morning residents of Findlay were startled by two explosions that shattered windows throughout the city. The concussion was felt for miles around. Two magazines in separate rooms at the novelty works let go simultaneously with terrible reports.

The exact cause of the explosion is not definitely known. It is surmised that one of the Sherwood brothers, who were the only persons in the drying rooms, dropped a large box of torpedoes, but this theory cannot be confirmed. The large plant is shattered into fragments, not one single wall remaining. Bricks and timber can be found for half a mile around.

IN OPEN RUPTURE.

France Recalls Her Envoy from Rome Because of Criticism from the Vatican.

Paris, May 23.—France has broken off diplomatic relations with the holy see. M. Nisard, the French ambassador to the vatican, was recalled and left Rome Saturday evening. The immediate cause of the rupture with the vatican is the protest recently addressed to the Roman Catholic powers of Europe over President Loubet's visit to the king of Italy and his failure to visit the pope. The protest was couched in such indiscreet terms that the honor of the French government could not permit it to pass unnoticed. Ambassador Nisard was instructed to press Cardinal Merry del Val, the papal secretary of state for an explanation. Either the explanation was not forthcoming or it was not satisfactory, and M. Nisard was directed to leave Rome.

Only Two Lives Lost.

15,000 OF MIKADO'S TROOPS LOST IN LAND ATTACK ON TOWN.

RUSSIAN FORCES SUSTAIN LOSS OF 3,000

Truth of Report Is Questioned at St. Petersburg—Officials Confirm News of Destruction of Cruiser Bogatyr at Vladivostok.

Chicago, May 24.—A special to the Journal from St. Petersburg says: There was a report current Monday on the bourse that Japanese forces Monday afternoon made a combined attack on the outer defenses of Port Arthur, and were repulsed by the Russian garrison. The Japanese, according to the report, lost 15,000 men, in killed and wounded. The loss sustained by the czar's troops was 3,000 men.

St. Petersburg, May 24.—According to reports which have reached the Russian headquarters at Liaoyang from Chinese sources, the Japanese have made a land attack on Port Arthur, but have been repulsed with heavy loss. The truth of the reports is questioned here.

The report that Rear Admiral Jessen, finding it impossible to save the protected cruiser Bogatyr, which went ashore recently in a fog on the rocks off Vladivostok, caused her to be blown up, is confirmed. The guns of the Bogatyr were removed before she was destroyed. No loss of life attended her destruction.

Battleship Orel Raised.

The admiralty reports that the battleship Orel, which suddenly sank at her anchorage at Cronstadt, on the night of May 20, as the result, according to report, of her sea valves being open, and which was subsequently raised, has not sustained any injuries. The investigation into the cause of the accident is not concluded.

An investigation made by the authorities into the recent attempts to destroy some of the vessels of the Baltic fleet at Cronstadt has resulted in the arrest of four Japanese spies, who seem to have escaped detection by wearing the uniform of naval cadets, thus obtaining admission to the navy yard and access to the ships without difficulty.

It is believed that they are also responsible for the fire started some time back near the naval magazine and for the opening of the sea valves of the Orel. The authorities here think the Japanese have been harbored by anarchists.

Two Skirmishes Reported.

Tokio, May 24.—The Japanese landed at Takushan report having been engaged in two scouting skirmishes, during which ten Russians were killed. In the first affair two Russians were captured and in the other Gen. Kuroki reports the capture of an officer and a man caught making a reconnaissance in the rear of Kuroki's army.

Reverses for Japs.

Chefoo, May 24.—Forty Russians who left Dalny Sunday have arrived here. Up to the date of their departure Dalny had not been attacked by the enemy. According to their account the Japanese troops met with a reverse at Kinchau on the 15th instant, but the Russians failed to regain control of the railway. They are positive that another Japanese war vessel was damaged at the time the battleship Hatsuse was destroyed. Civilians, in daily expectation of an attack upon Dalny by the Japanese forces, are leaving there on junks.

Alexieff Urged to Remain.

London, May 24.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says: "I am informed on good authority that Viceroy Alexieff tendered his resignation to the emperor, giving ill health as the reason for his desire to be relieved, but that the emperor persuaded him, in a gracious telegram, to remain at his post."

Struck by a Shell.

Tokio, May 24.—During the reconnaissance of Port Arthur made by Admiral Togo on Friday of last week a shell hit the torpedo boat destroyer Akatsuki, killing one officer and 24 men.

Prepared for Two-Year War.

London, May 24.—Russia is preparing for a two-year war with Japan, and if necessary an army of 750,000 men will be sent to the far east to overawe China, to guard railway communications, relieve Port Arthur and drive the Japanese armies into the sea. The war temper of the Russian empire has been thoroughly aroused by the succession of reverses in Manchuria. Military men are no louder than civilians in demanding revenge for the defeats on land and sea. The cry is for "more troops," "more troops." Plans are being hurried at the war department in St. Petersburg for the mobilization of the entire body of Russian reserves. The orders calling the reserves of the St. Petersburg district will, it is stated in dispatches from the Russian capital, be issued in a few days. The war with Japan has reached the stage where all recognize that it is to be a contest of endurance as much as a struggle between armies and fleets; and Russia is confident that in the end she will win.

PARTY POLITICS IN MANY STATES

CONVENTIONS ARE HELD, CANDIDATES NAMED AND PLATFORMS ADOPTED.

Illinois Republicans Take Recess Until May 31 Without Breaking Deadlock—Action Taken in Several Other States.

Springfield, Ill., May 21.—The republican state convention, after a brief session Friday morning, took a recess until Tuesday, May 31. The last ballot (the 58th) was substantially the same as most of the ballots since the beginning of the deadlock, Yates being in the lead, but lacking about 270 votes of enough to nominate him. The ballot stood: Yates, 483; Lowden, 392½; Deneen, 385½; Hamlin, 113; Warner, 53; Sherman, 46; Pierce, 29. The candidates all expressed themselves as being well satisfied with the recess. It seems to be the general opinion that there is no advantage or disadvantage in it for any of them. The plans of the candidates for the interim have not been disclosed, but their energies, it is expected, will be devoted chiefly to keeping their forces intact, so that when the convention reconvenes the deadlock is likely to continue, though many expect the perfection of a combination which will end the contest.

INDIANA DEMOCRATS.

Convention Instructs Delegates to Vote for Parker.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 13.—The most interesting democratic state convention since 1892, when Cleveland and Isaac P. Gray contested for the control of the Indiana delegation to the national delegation, was held Thursday. The sole purpose of the convention was to elect delegates to the national convention, the state convention for the nomination of candidates for state office having been called for July 20, when the same delegates that were in the convention Thursday will return. A platform will then be adopted.

The convention instructed the 30 delegates to the national convention to vote as a unit for Judge Parker, of New York, for president, and indorsed Thomas Taggart for national committeeman, and recommended him to the national committee as its chairman.

WISCONSIN DEMOCRATS.

Delegates Instructed to Vote for Edward C. Wall for President.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 18.—The supporters of Edward C. Wall defeated the adherents of William R. Hearst in the democratic state convention Tuesday, a resolution instructing the Wisconsin delegation to the national convention at St. Louis to vote for Mr. Wall having been adopted. In addition, the convention adopted a platform which "recognizes the last national platform as the code of national democracy until a new platform is adopted." Among other things the platform favors the enforcement of laws against "trusts," tariff for revenue only; repeal of tariff on all trust-made articles; deposits of surplus public moneys in safe bank depositories; an income tax law and the election of United States senators by direct vote.

The following were elected delegates-at-large to the national convention: Timothy E. Ryan, Waukesha; David S. Rose, Milwaukee; Neal Brown, Wausau; Charles H. Weisse, Sheboygan Falls. Alternates: Col. George W. Bird, Madison; Dr. W. A. Anderson, LaCrosse; Jason K. Wright, Marinette; Hugh J. Gallagher, Darlington.

Electors-at-large: P. H. Martin, Green Bay; Charles Abresch, Milwaukee.

WISCONSIN REPUBLICANS.

Rival Conventions Select State Tickets at Madison.

Madison, Wis., May 20.—Two conventions, both claiming legal status by right of delegate majorities holding prima facie credentials, and both asserting themselves to be regular republican in nature, were concluded in this city Thursday night. Two state tickets, the one headed by Gov. Robert M. La Follette and the other headed by former Congressman Samuel A. Cook, are in the field.

Besides the renomination of Gov. La Follette, the convention of his adherents renominated the rest of the state officers now holding office.

The following were elected national delegates-at-large: Isaac Stephenson, Marinette; Robert M. La Follette, Madison; W. D. Connor, Marshfield; James B. Stout, Menominee.

The presidential electors-at-large are Charles F. Ilsey, Milwaukee; A. R. Hall, Dunn.

The platform strongly indorses the national administration and the state administration of Gov. LaFollette.

The "anti-third termers," as the opponents of Gov. La Follette styled themselves, received the outspoken endorsement of United States Senators Spooner and Quarles, and Congressmen Babcock and Miner. Ex-Congressman Samuel A. Cook was nominated for governor, and the rest of the ticket named is as follows: Lieutenant governor, George H. Ray, LaCrosse secretary of state, Nels P Holman, Deerfield; state treasurer, Gustav Wollaeger, Milwaukee; attorney general, Judge D. S. Classon, Oconto; railroad commissioner, Charles Barker, Milwaukee; insurance commissioner, J. C. Roenitz, Sheboygan.

The delegates to the national convention chosen were: Senator John C. Spooner, Senator J. V. Quarles, Congressman Joseph W. Babcock and Judge Emil Baensch.

Electors were chosen identical with those chosen in the La Follette convention. This action was taken to prevent any contest relative to the support of President Roosevelt.

The resolutions adopted pledge the convention to the support of President Roosevelt and Senators Spooner and Quarles. They put the delegates on record as opposed to third term nominations, as favoring just taxation of railroads, an impartial primary election law, the nonpartisan election of supreme court justices and contain a denunciation of the disregard of the distinction between legislative, executive and judiciary departments.

IOWA REPUBLICANS.

"Stand Pat" Faction Wins in the State Convention.

Des Moines, Ia., May 19.—Iowa's long fight between "stand-pat" republicans and liberals upon the issue of tariff revision and reciprocity ended in complete victory for the former in Wednesday's state convention for selecting delegates to the national convention. Of 26 delegates chosen, 20 are stand-patters and only six are liberals. The resolutions adopted contain no sentiment whatever in favor of tariff revision, but declare that protective principle "found its high "fulfillment" in the Dingley law. As to reciprocity, the platform declares that it is "unwise to seek markets abroad by sacrificing some parts of the markets at home."

The delegates-at-large named were United States Senator William B. Allison, Dubuque; United States Senator Jonathan P. Dolliver, Fort Dodge; J. W. Blythe, Burlington; Gov. Albert B. Cummins, Des Moines.

MICHIGAN REPUBLICANS.

Victory Scored by the Anti-Primary Reform Element.

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 19.—As was expected, the only contest in the state republican convention, held here Wednesday, developed on the question of primary reform, involving the nomination of candidates for state offices the legislature and congress by direct vote of the people. The anti-primary reform element scored a decisive victory. Congressman William Alden Smith's minority report from the committee on resolutions, pledging the party to the enactment of a general primary law, was defeated by the vote of 808 to 262.

Delegates-at-large to the national republican convention were elected unanimously as follows: Dexter M. Ferry, of Detroit; Ralph Loveland, of Saginaw; T. J. O'Brien, of Grand Rapids, and Capt. Thomas Walters, of Ishpeming.

The platform enthusiastically endorsed the administration of President Roosevelt on the question of the tariff. The platform insists that no backward steps in party policy be taken. The policy of the party as to labor and capital, the currency, and other national issues were indorsed.

TRADE REVIEW.

Improvement in Business Conditions Seems to Be Coming Rather Slowly.

New York, May 21.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "Reports of increased trade are received from a few favored points, but the nation, as a whole, has not improved its commercial position during the past week, in so far as current distribution of merchandise or manufacturing activities are concerned. Prospects for the future have improved somewhat, however, on account of the progress made in agriculture. Unless the crops suffer an unusual setback hereafter it should be a good year for the farmers, and all other industries will feel the stimulus. Lake traffic is seriously interrupted by the strike, but otherwise the labor situation is not alarming.

"Failures this week numbered 236 in the United States, against 191 last year, and 12 in Canada, compared with 14 a eyar ago."

Bradstreet's says: "Weather conditions are still the apparent drawback in the trade and crop situation. Temperatures have been too cool to allow of free distribution of spring and summer goods at retail, and they likewise retard germination and growth of crops, though permitting good progress in seeding in various sections of the country. In jobbing circles the feeling is that the spring trade is past and gone, and efforts are now concentrated on fall business, reports as to which are fairly good, though not equal to a year ago."

To Prosecute Coal Trust.

Washington, May 23.—Prosecution of the anthracite coal trust railroads by the government is promised. Just when and where the proceedings will be instituted the officials of the department of justice refuse to disclose, but it is learned in administrative circles the president has been informed by his legal advisors that a good cause for action exists, and it is reported he has directed that the prosecution be commenced.

Hospital Robbed.

Chicago, May 23.—With its treasure made doubly sacred by prayers that even then were being offered, St. Elizabeth's hospital, Claremont avenue and Lemoyne street, was robbed Saturday morning of $3,500 in cash and checks, which were taken from the safe in the hospital office. At the time of the robbery the nuns and other attaches of the hospital were attending services in the chapel adjoining.

Sunshine Society Meets.

New York, May 21.—Women delegates from nearly every state in the union, from Canada, Panama and several other countries are in attendance here upon the sixth annual convention of the Sunshine society.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Fruit Exhibits.

The exhibit of Minnesota fruit in glass at the St. Louis fair, has been passed on the judges, although not as large as that of some other states, has been given first place for the condition of the fruit, and as being the best display of varities on exhibit.

The fruit exhibit was made by the state fair commission, in co-operation with the Minnesota Horticultural society. A. W. Latham, secretary of the latter society, superintended the collection and installation of the exhibit which occupies a space 40x18 feet in horticultural hall. Thomas Redpath of Wayzata will have charge of the exhibit during the season. The exhibit includes 600 plates of fruit, 200 of which are exhibited in glass refrigiator cases which have a tempature of 48 degrees. About 200 glass jars of fruit are shown.

The exhibit includes 75 varities of Minnesota apples, 25 kinds of grapes, 50 kinds of strawberries, 25 of plums, several kinds of peaches and pears, and several jars of raspberries, currants and cherries.

Early Entries.

Several entries for the Minnesota state fair next fall were made by exhibitors in several departments, the earliest in the spring that the Minnesota fair management has ever received entries from prospective exhibitors. During the past three weeks premium lists have been distributed to old exhibitors and a multitude of requests for premium lists have been received from persons who have never before exhibited at the Minnesota fair.

Entries have been received in the horticulture, agriculture and dairy departments, and some in the live stock department. Mr. Wornall of Missouri, a breeder of Shorthorn cattle, has not only made his entries, but has also engaged stalls for his herd, and rooms for himself at a St. Paul hoted, fearing a clash later in the season.

Will Plant Trees.

The state forestry board will plant in a few days in the nursery in the Pillsbury forestry reserve in Cass county approximately 5,000,000 pine and spruce seeds, and if the season is favorable it is estimated that at least 3,000,000 seedlings will result.

The seeds will be planted in rows five inches apart. Five seeds will be planted to every lineal inch, and it is estimated that at least three out of the five seeds will germinate. For several weeks after the plants come out of the ground they will be screened from the excessive heat of the sun by screens of lath and brush. After they are two years old, they will be taken up and planted in the reserve at the rate of 2,000 seedlings to every acre. There are 1,000 in the Pillsbury reserve, and the 3,000,000 will be more than enough to cover the reserve.

Railway Taxes.

The Minnesota gross earnings in 1903 of railroads doing business in the state were $66,898,755.42, or $599,608.93 more than in 1902, the taxes on these were nearly $2,000.000, about $50,000 more than in the previous year.

S. G. Iverson, state auditor, has received reports from all companies except the Great Northern and the Willmar & Sioux Falls, a branch of the Great Northern. From figures in the office of the state railroad and warehouse commission it is ascertained that the earnings of the Great Northern were appoximately $17,800,000, as compared with $16,754,263.48 in 1902, and that the earnings of the Willmar & Sioux Falls earned about $775,000.

The taxes on this amount at 3 per cent amounts to $534,000, as compared with $502,627.90 in 1902.

Dedication of Capitol.

Gov. S. R. Van Sant looks favorably on the plan to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of St. Paul, the dedication of the new capitol and the completion of the improvements of Fort Snelling in one event, and he will be very much pleased if the capitol will be finished in time to hold the triple celebration in October.

The governor says he has not looked up the law designating who is to direct the dedication of the new capitol, but he thinks that the matter will be harmoniously arranged through joint action of the state officers and the members of the capitol commission.

Goes to Alaska.

Hedley Redmyer of Tafte, Cook county, has accepted an offer from the government to go to Alaska on another reindeer expedition and will leave the latter part of June. He will be accompanied by two Finlanders. They will go to Bethel Mission on the Suskowin river, where the government has a corral of Siberian reindeer to be taken to the interior. From there they will take a herd of 300 head across the country, a distance of 1,300 miles, to Copper Center on the Copper river.

Try for Health

222 South Peoria St.,
CHICAGO, ILL., Oct. 7, 1902.

Eight months ago I was so ill that I was compelled to lie or sit down nearly all the time. My stomach was so weak and upset that I could keep nothing on it and I vomited frequently. I could not urinate without great pain and I coughed so much that my throat and lungs were raw and sore. The doctors pronounced it Bright's disease and others said it was consumption. It mattered little to me what they called it and I had no desire to live. A sister visited me from St. Louis and asked me if I had ever tried Wine of Cardui. I told her I had not and she bought a bottle. I believe that it saved my life. I believe many women could save much suffering if they but knew of its value.

Don't you want freedom from pain? Take Wine of Cardui and make one supreme effort to be well. You do not need to be a weak, helpless sufferer. You can have a woman's health and do a woman's work in life. Why not secure a bottle of Wine of Cardui from your druggist today?

DAIRY DEPARTMENT.

Edited by Geo. L. Austin, Manager of the Red Lake Falls Creamery.

If every creamery operator was as competent as he should be the quality standard for creamery butter would be raised considerably, and we would not have to wait until the patrons brought better milk either.

Every patron of a creamery should not be later than noon getting his cream to the creamery, so as to give the buttermaker time to get it in shape for churning the next morning. This should be done if you expect to get good results for what you bring.

A certain editor complains because in a pound of butter he discovered three bed-bugs and a number of red ants, and a few hairs. He evidently expected to find an entire bedroom suite, including a folding bed, a good sized farm, and no doubt two or three switches in a single pound.

The farmer who undertakes to run a large dairy without means to properly care for his stock is making a serious mistake. In such a case it is the better policy to sell half the herd and care for the remainder as it should be cared for. There will be more profit in the business.

The patron who stays by the creamery the year round, through thick and thin, is the real benefactor of the institution. He does not stop sending to the creamery as soon as his milk or cream supply begins to run low, but realizes that at such times the creamery needs the undivided support of its patrons.

The high prices which have prevailed lately for all kinds of farm products have induced many of our farmers to neglect their cows and lose faith in the profits to be derived from dairying. In spite of this fact, however, creameries have kept in operation and there are more creameries in the country today than ever before. Does this not establish the fact that dairying has come to stay, and that, although laboring at a decided disadvantage, the dairy sentiment is growing throughout the agricultural Northwest? Three cheers and a tiger for the Northwestern cow!

We have noticed advertisements in some country papers around here urging farmers to ship their cream to Minneapolis. This is a regular wolf in sheep's clothing, my brother. The city creameries even go so far as to pay a tempting price for cream. The aim is to drive out country creameries, when you will very quickly see how the price will be lowered and the producer as well as the consumer will pay dear for the experience. Some capitalists cherish the idea that they can by persevesence add a butter trust to the many monopolies now robbing the people. Stand by your home creamery; it is the hope of the rural districts.—Graphic, Gary, Minn.

Think of the Farm.

There are several sides to the dairy question. Almost always we think of the side that relates to the dollars and cents. We expect to get out of the business now, forgetting that there is a far more important way of looking at it.

We have the satisfaction of knowing that the man who engages in dairying does not skin his farm and give the hide away.

Every year he is putting back a good share of the fertility he takes out of his land in the form of grass, corn and other soiling crops.

This is not the case with the man who raises grain exclusively, keeping little if any stock and selling his farm bare year after year until it will produce nothing but white beans, and maybe not those.

If every farmer would think of this side of the problem, we would not hear quite so much about the land of this country growing poorer and poorer. Men would not be complaining that whereas they once raised bumber crops every year they now have hard work to keep soul and body together.

The dairy farmers of this country are as a matter of fact the saviors of the nation. Without them our land would soon go to destruction.

In which class are you and I to be placed, dear brother farmer? Among those that are robbing the country for the purpose of putting a few more dollars in our pockets today, or among the number who are working not simply for the present but for the greater tomorrow. —E. L. V.

NEED NOT HAVE RIGHTS.

Homesteaders Who Have Proved up May Take Red Lake Land.

Homesteaders who are not at present exercising their homestead rights are not barred from taking taking lands at the opening of the Red Lake reservation according to section 3 of the proclamation of the secretary of the interior.

It is not the intention of the government to bar anyone from getting a piece of the reservation land, but as it is to be sold under the homestead laws to prevent speculators from buying it up, a settler must reside on the land, which he could not do if holding land under the homestead laws somewhere else. If he has proved up, that is done away.

Several papers have erroneously stated that a person must have reserved his homestead rights in order to file on the reservation lands thus confusing many who wished to homestead some of it.

MEMORIAL DAY EXERCISES

People of Red Lake Falls Pay Tribute to Soldier Dead With Music, Flowers and Eloquence.

Decoration day was observed in Red Lake Falls by a procession of the old soldiers, city officials, band boys and school children, followed by exercises in front of the city hall. Although the weather was chilly and rain threatened, a large crowd was out to attend the exercises and business was generally suspended about town.

The exercises opened with a short address by Mayor Duffy, followed by Attorneys McIntyre, Grady and Germo. All of the speakers acquitted themselves creditably and convinced their audience that in eloquence, thought and diction our local orators can equal the more pretentious public speakers.

After the exercises a large crowd of people went to the cemeteries where the graves of the soldiers were garlanded with flowers, in keeping with the spirit of Decoration Day.

Those who were instrumental in arranging the program are very grateful to the band boys, the school teachers and their pupils, and the public generally for their part in making the exercises successful.

Girls, Take Notice.

A St. Louis judge has just made some new law, but whether it will stand the test of the constitution, is another question. This Missouri jurist has attempted to say just how late a beau shall stay with his sweetheart. He places the hour at which he should say his last "good night" at eleven o'clock and he must not linger over it either. If there is to be any lingering he should begin about a quarter before 11, to be determined, of course, by the length of time it usually takes him to say good night. The decision was handed down as the outcome of a complaint filed by Miss Augusta Mason against her father. Augusta has a beau and this beau, it seems, is a stayer. The other night Augusta's beau was summarily dismissed in a most forcible manner by Mason pere. Augusta entered the complaint, but papa was discharged and in his ruling the court said 11 o'clock is the time for the beau to make himself scarce.

STATE CONVENTION

Held at St. Paul June 14 and 15 to Promote Immigration.

A state immigration convention is to be held at St Paul June 14 and 15. Delegates are to be appointed from every county by the governor, and a general attendance of not only delegates but other representative men of the state is expected. The movement for this meeting originated with the commercial club of St. Paul in which it has the active support of similar bodies in Minneapolis and Duluth. The railways will make reduced fares. Various committees are at work and a varied and valuable program has been arranged. Addresses will be delivered showing that Minnesota is not only a great state, but by organized effort can be made much greater. It is unfortunate that the legislature has not given the attention that it should to the gathering of reliable information concerning what is going on in our splendid commonwealth. It is only once in ten years, through the national census, that anything authentic can be had. Other states less favored naturally are far ahead of us in respect to showing yearly progress. These states attract settlers for the reason they show that "something is doing." People go where there is signs of prosperity. This meeting can be made one of the most important ever held in the state.

Celebration at White Earth.

Detroit Record: Preparations are being made for a great celebration at White Earth June 14 and 15. The committee has the work of preparation well in hand and the success of the event is assured. The White Earth people have abundant reason for celebrating this year. Early next month, and prior to the anniversary, about $20,000 stumpage money will be distributed; the advent of Soo railroad, the sale of allotments of deceased Indians, the new law granting an additional eighty acres to each person, all go to infuse new life into reservation affairs and to make the time ripe for an enthusiastic celebration. Senator Moses E. Clapp and Congressman Halvor Steenerson will be the guests of honor and the chief orators of the occasion. The dog feast will be a feature of the festivities, and the pale face will be given an opportunity to join in a great demonstration of amity and good fellowship, feasting, and smoking the proverbial pipe of peace. Ample preparations will be made for the accommodation of visitors from neighboring towns.

HERMAN KREIL IS DROWNED

Employee of the Red Lake Falls Milling Co. Loses His Life in the Red Lake River.

Herman Kreil, an employee of the Red Lake Falls Milling company, was drowned at the northside dam just before noon Saturday. In company with other employees of the mill Mr. Kreil was assisting in replacing some timbers on the sluiceway which had been carried away by the high water early in the spring. After the first log had been put in position Mr. Kreil attempted to reach the shore by walking along the apron of the dam. The water was higher than he supposed, and the apron boards were quite slippery. Losing his equilibrium, he was plunged into the seething waters of the dam, and no assistance could be rendered. An attempt was made Sunday to find the body, and the water was held both at St. Hilaire and at this place, but the effort was unsuccessful. The body was not found until Tuesday noon, when a couple of fishermen discovered it about two hundred feet down the river. The milling company offered a reward of $50 for the recovery of the body.

Herman Kreil was forty-six years of age. and has lived in Red Lake Falls for upward of twenty years, thirteen of which he spent in the employ of the milling company. He leaves a wife and six children. He carried $1,000 insurance in the Red Wing Swedish aid association. Mr. Kreil was a quiet, unassuming, hard-working man, a faithful employee and a devoted husband and father.

Mrs. Herman Kreil and family desire THE COURIER to extend heartfelt thanks to the many kind friends who have given aid in the dark hour of affliction and bereavement.

A GAME of DIAMONDS

[Copyright, 1903, by C. B. Lewis.]

Mr. John F. Saunders, just from England and a very ingratiating sort of man, had patronized a Maiden lane jewelry house to the extent of $1,000 in cash and had met and dined the leading traveler of the house, whose name was Taylor.

Their acquaintanceship was only about two weeks old when Mr. Taylor started out over his western route, carrying $75,000 worth of diamonds with him. He reached Chicago to find the Englishman there a day ahead of him. Mr. Saunders was looking for a long lost cousin, and while he looked for the cousin with one hand he dispensed hospitality very liberally with the other. He wined and dined the traveler so often that they became chummy. He took Mr. Taylor into his confidence and unbosomed himself and asked him to be a brother to him.

When the pair had been in Chicago a week and the traveler was about ready to move to Milwaukee, Mr. Saunders announced in a laughing way that he had turned drummer for a day to help his friend out. A man who ran a certain factory wanted to get his wife something unique in the way of a birthday present. Mr. Saunders had happened to meet him and to suggest his friend, and if Mr. Taylor would accompany him to the house that evening he would be sure of a sale amounting to at least $1,000. The traveler would be only too glad to do so, of course. He couldn't expect a rich man and a busy man to come to his hotel to look at samples.

It was about 8 o'clock of an autumn evening when the pair set forth from the hotel in a carriage. A light rain was falling, and this was an excuse for putting up the windows. Taylor was fairly well acquainted with Chicago, but in that drive, which lasted an hour, he was all turned around.

When the vehicle finally stopped he only saw that the house, which stood alone, had a respectable exterior, and he followed Saunders up the steps and was admitted. They were greeted by the wealthy manufacturer himself, who was introduced as a Mr. Harmon, and they at once proceeded to the library to talk business. No servant or any member of the family was to be seen. There was some general talk as they lighted cigars, and then Mr. Harmon said:

"Mr. Taylor, I am sorry to have troubled you to make this long ride, but I could not very well go to you and carry out my plans. The idea is to rob you of your gems. That was the plan from the day Saunders entered the store in New York, and it is needless to say we have spent considerable time and money up to date."

"You seem inclined to joke," replied Taylor as he looked from one to the other in a puzzled way.

"But you will find this no joke," said the man as he pulled a pistol from his pocket and rested it on his knee. "You have a belt containing a lot of valuable gems strapped around your waist. Will you quietly hand it over or shall we take possession of it after your death?"

"Look here, man!" exclaimed the salesman as he started up. "What sort of a game is this? Is it a joke to test my nerve or do you really mean robbery?"

"It's just this, my dear brother," answered Saunders as he also produced a revolver. "I brought you here to be robbed. You are a good fellow, and I don't want to see you hurt, but we must have those gems. You are not armed and have no chance against us. This house was hired on purpose to receive you and carry through this job. You see, we are two to one and have all the advantage, and I do hope you will look at it in a sensible way."

Taylor had lots of nerve and pluck, and for a few moments he defied the fellows. He was, however, soon made to realize that they were desperate rascals, and as they were on the point of assaulting him he announced that he would surrender the gems.

"That is good common sense," said Saunders as he received them. "The loss does not fall upon you, but upon the house, which is well able to stand it. Now, please be as sensible about the next move. We have got your gems, but we need at least twenty-four hours' start. We shall lock you up in a closet and provide you with food, water and cigars, and by this time tomorrow evening a man will come and set you free.

Saunders protested and threatened, but in the end he entered the closet off the back parlor and was locked in. Ten minutes later he was alone in the house. They left him a pitcher of water, a good luncheon and a dozen cigars.

As soon as he was satisfied that they [illegible]d departed he began work on one of [illegible]anels of the door with his pocket-knife. It was a solid hardwood affair, and it [illegible] was hours before he sufficiently weake[illegible] the panel so that he could [illegible]ick it out and squeeze through. It was [illegible]ust growing daylight when he left the [illegible]ouse by a [illegible]indow, and he found him[illegible]elf a good fou[illegible] miles from his hotel. [illegible]efore leaving the place he looked about and found that o[illegible] the hall and parlor of the house had [illegible]een furnished, and ve[illegible]ry poorly at that.

It is not for me [illegible]o give away the secrets of the busine[illegible]s, but I must tell you that Mr. Taylor [illegible]vas no soft snap. While he had no sus[illegible]picions of Mr. Saunders or his friend [illegible]til too late, he had played the game that [illegible] all diamond salesmen are up to—that [illegible]s, he was provided with a full stock [illegible] of false gems. These were in a bel[illegible] around him as he left the hotel, while [illegible]he real gems were in a chamois bag [illegible]n his coat tail pocket. A search would [illegible]ave brought them to light, of course, [illegible]ut no search was made.

THE METAL SOLDIER

[Original.]

Antoine Gaspard, a tobacconist in a small town near Paris, tired of having the wooden figure standing before his shop hacked by gamins, concluded to replace it by a metal one. Since he was to make a change he might as well get up something unique, so he went to the city and employed a young art student to design a figure for him. The artist hit upon a soldier lighting his pipe. The butt of his gun rested on the ground. With one hand he held a match; with the other shaded the flame from the wind, only there was no flame. Then a happy thought struck Gaspard. A tube was run from the pipe down through the statue and into the shop. The match was hollow and connected with the gas pipes. A movable plate covered with phosphorus was adjusted to the roughened end of the match. By means of a wire leading to the shop the plate could be pulled and the gas lighted. Gaspard sucked a rubber tube leading from the pipe, which would send forth clouds of tobacco smoke. Then he would turn off the light from the match.

When the Franco-Prussian war came on, Gaspard's son, Pierre, aged eighteen, became a French soldier. His old mother, who doted on him, begged hard for him to stay at home and wept bitter tears when he marched away.

Then came the news that the Prussians were carrying everything before them and marching on Paris. One evening just after dark old Gaspard's door was flung open, and Pierre rushed in, pale, bleeding, evidently fleeing for his life.

"Is the place occupied by our troops?"

"No."

"Then I am lost."

"Why so?"

"I volunteered to lurk near the enemy's advance posts to gain information for our general as to which route they would take. I was discovered and pursued. In a few minutes they will be here."

"We can hide you."

"It would be useless. They will search every house in the town and burn every stick of timber in it to uncover me. My only hope was that our troops were here, and since they are not I shall be taken and hanged for a spy. I have been fired on and am wounded. I can go no farther for loss of blood."

Meanwhile the Prussian outposts, consisting of a dozen men, advanced to within half a mile of the town, where they were halted by the lieutenant in command.

"The place may be occupied by the French," he said. "We must be careful not to be drawn into a trap. You, Battel, and you, Rubidoux, go forward. If you are shot, we shall know that the French are there. If they are not, come back and let us know."

The two men pushed forward to the very verge of the town. Across an open space they could see old Gaspard's shop, which was dimly lighted, as usual.

"Back, Rubidoux," whispered Battel. "The place is occupied."

"How do you know?"

"I can see the figure of a soldier."

"Where?"

"There, before that little shop."

"By gar! You are right. What shall we do?"

"Return and report the matter to the lieutenant."

Back they went and reported that the French were in town. They had seen a soldier on post before a shop.

"Nonsense!" exclaimed the lieutenant. "If they were there they would have put out a picket or a vedette.

He ordered the men to spread themselves as skirmishers and move stealthily forward. When they came to the place where Battel had discovered the soldier, they stopped, and there, true enough, he was, standing before old Gaspard's shop.

"What's he doing?" queried the lieutenant.

"He's on post," said Rubidoux. "Perhaps he's guarding the man we're after."

"You're a fool, or, rather, a coward. You wish me to abandon the pursuit of one who doubtless holds important secrets. That fellow may not be a soldier at all. Singular that he stands so still. Come; we are wasting time."

At that moment the figure in front of the shop was dimly illuminated by a tiny flame, and the Prussians could plainly see that the man was a soldier, with his gun resting on the ground and leaning against his shoulder. The flame rose and fell as of one pulling on the pipe, and smoke was also visible.

"Sacre!" exclaimed the lieutenant. "He's a soldier, after all, and where there is one there must be more. The French are not fools to occupy a town with one man. There must be at least a battalion, but they are very poor soldiers to leave no picket out here. We might capture them."

The officer decided to go back as fast as he could and reported that there was a force of the enemy in the town, with no picket out, and they might be surrounded and taken. An hour later two regiments of the line moved out. One encircled the town, while the other advanced to demand surrender. The only French soldier in the town was a metal one that had the coolness as the Prussians advanced to light his pipe.

Old Gaspard after his son's arrival had gone out to reconnoiter, and in concealment he had heard Battel and Rubidoux converse about his statue. When they withdrew he went back, got up a team to remove his son and to gain time conceived the plan of making his soldier smoke for the Prussians. When they came in force, Pierre had just been driven away.

Red Lake Indian Reservation Homesteads

February 20th, 1904, Congress passed a bill authorizing the opening for settlement of the ELEVEN TOWNSHIPS of the Red Lake Indian Reservation which are situated in Red Lake County. These lands will be thrown open for settlement within the next four months.

These lands will be disposed of to the highest bidder, and cannot be sold for less than $4 per acre. A payment of one-fifth of the purchase price in cash will be required, and the balance divided in five equal annual payments, without interest.

We have secured a limited number of copies of the Smiley map of Red Lake County and the Red Lake Indian Reservation. These maps are 28x38 inches, and show the grade and quality of each and every quarter-section of land in the portion of the Reservation to be opened for settlement; it gives the number of acres of timber and the kind of timber on each quarter. This map was compiled from the personal notes of Mr. Smiley and from the Government notes thereof. Everyone who intends to be present at the opening should have one of these maps, as it will save you the price of a locater's fee.

Bowser's Bad Night

He Takes In a Neighbor's Baby to Care For and Something Happens—Mrs. B.'s Kind Heart Again the Target of Her Husband's Criticism and Sarcasm

[Copyright, 1903, by C. B. Lewis.]

"YOU see," began Mrs. Bowser, by way of explanation, as Mr. Bowser came home and found a two-year-old child on her knee and stood and stared with open mouth, "this is Mrs. Green's child. You've often noticed him in their front yard. She got a telegram this afternoon that her sister was taken suddenly ill and had to go at once. Her husband is away, you know, and she asked me if it would put us out any to let baby stay here overnight. I knew you wouldn't have any objections."

"At the first howl out he goes!" replied Mr. Bowser.

"But he won't howl. His mother says she has not been up with him a single night since he was born."

"Then he can hang around. What's he looking that way at me for?"

"You are strange to him, you know. Take him up and give him a toss, and let him see that you don't intend to bite him."

Mr. Bowser started out to get on more familiar terms with the youngster, but his efforts were so clumsy that he had to desist or hear a howl, and thereafter he gave the stranger but scant attention. The child was put to bed soon after dinner, and as Mrs. Bowser came downstairs again she said:

"He went right to sleep like the little angel that he is, and he probably won't wake up before 7 o'clock in the morning. I'm glad you were not cross about my keeping him."

"You seem to have the idea that I'm an old bear," replied Mr. Bowser as if a bit hurt.

"No, not that; but you don't care for children."

"Who said I didn't? I'd be glad if we had six—that is, I wish we had six children, but I'd be doubtful of your fitness to bring them up. Of course, I should take their training into my own hands."

Mrs. Bowser didn't reply to the shot, and a little later he settled himself down to his newspaper. He had been reading for about ten minutes when he suddenly exclaimed:

"By George, but such a man as that ought to be burned at the stake!"

"What is it?" she asked.

"Why, a St. Louis father was so mad at having to get up in the night with a sick child that he broke its neck. If it had been in this town, I'd have led a mob to lynch him before noon next day. Beats all what fiends some fathers are! Poor, sick child! How could it help crying out?"

"Yes," sighed Mrs. Bowser as she looked at him askance.

"I've a good mind to write to a St. Louis paper and suggest that he be skinned alive," muttered Mr. Bowser as he got up and walked around. "Seizing his own flesh and blood and breaking its neck because it woke him out of his sleep! I can't believe we have such fiends in this country, and yet it must be true."

He was so upset that it was a quarter of an hour before he could sit down and resume his paper, and he was quite put out because Mrs. Bowser hadn't more to say about it. He read the article again and again, with stronger comments each time, and he finally had to go out and sit on the front steps to cool off. When bedtime came and Mrs. Bowser pointed to the kid fast asleep with a thumb in his mouth, Mr. Bowser got so fatherly that he bent over and kissed the little one and said he was an angel. An hour later, while dreaming that he had caught the St. Louis man and was breaking his neck, Mrs. Bowser awoke him by saying:

"I wish you'd get up. Baby acts as if he might have a fit!"

"Wha-what's the matter?" asked Mr. Bowser as he sat up and rubbed his eyes.

"Baby is sick. You'll have to get hot water and fill the footbath."

Mr. Bowser winked and blinked like an owl at noonday and then fell back and snored. Mrs. Bowser aroused him again after a minute, and he swung his legs out of bed and shouted:

"What in the old Harry is all this row about, anyway, and what ails that imp of a young un?"

"I told you that he was sick. It's his eyeteeth, I suppose, and I'm afraid he'll have a fit."

"Fit! Fit! Hear him yell! See him kick! It's simply pure cussedness, Mrs. Bowser, and he wants a good licking instead of hot water. He's been encouraged in the habit of waking up every night and howling around, and now you can take care of him."

"This is the first night he has disturbed any one for months. Poor child! See how flighty he looks! Please get the hot water."

"The idea of a cub like him upsetting the whole house in this way!" growled Mr. Bowser as he went stumbling about. "I believe he does it just to be ugly. If he'd had a good licking before he went to bed he'd have been all right!"

"If he should die, Mr. Bowser, you'd feel sorry all your life."

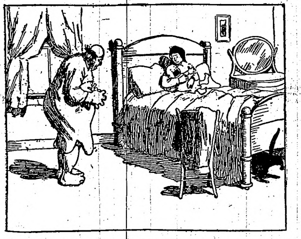
"I would, eh? Hear him yell! That's pure and unadulterated deviltry, and he ought to be soundly spanked. Why don't you toss him up and down or sing to him or something to choke him off? We'll have the police in here the first thing we know. If I live to see morning that kid goes!"

"Why, Mr. Bowser, only a few hours ago you were reading about that case in St. Louis, and you were so indignant that"—

"Never read of any case in St. Louis, and there's your hot water. Get him into it and drown him as soon as possible. Young man, it's a mighty good thing for you that we are not here alone!"

"Why don't you break his neck instead of scaring him to death?" hotly demanded Mrs. Bowser. "You wanted to skin that St. Louis man alive."

"Mrs. Bowser," he replied as he stubbed his toe against a chair and sat down on the bed with his face very white, "if there is a place in this country called St. Louis, and if there is a father there who had a malicious and ugly tempered young un who ached to be killed, and if that father broke its neck after years of such suffering as I have gone through with, he should be praised instead of censured."



"WHY DON'T YOU BREAK HIS NECK INSTEAD OF SCARING HIM TO DEATH?" HOTLY DEMANDED MRS. BOWSER.

"He seems to be better," whispered Mrs. Bowser as the baby ceased to cry.

"He knows his gait and went as far as he dared. In just one minute more I'd have tanned his jacket, and he knew it. I tell you, Mrs. Bowser, that kid is being brought up for the gallows. Out of twenty-two murder cases I have investigated the murderers all began by whooping and howling and waking their fathers up of nights. They were petted and encouraged by their mothers, just as you are doing."

"You can go to bed, Mr. Bowser."

"What's the use? It will be daylight in about two minutes, and it won't be ten seconds before he will raise the dead again. The climax has been reached. After breakfast that kid goes trotting home, or you can kill him off with rough on rats or paris green. If he was ailing I wouldn't say a word, but when he deliberately goes at it—to kick up—a row like—this—this"—

Mr. Bowser fell back across the bed and knew no more till 7 o'clock in the morning. Then he awoke to find the baby playing horse with his nose, and he held the child aloft and kissed it and exclaimed:

"By the horn spoon, Mrs. Bowser, but if there is a handsomer, cuter and better natured kid than this in all the world I'd like to see it. Was he crying in the night? Why didn't you wake me up and have me carry him around?"

"I did wake you up, and you swore at him."

"I—what?"

"You uttered threats to curdle my blood, and I was thankful that we had no children of our own."

"Mrs. Bowser," said Mr. Bowser in very solemn tones, "it may be that I had an attack of nightmare last night, and in my frenzy I took this young cub for a wolf or something and addressed him in rather forcible language, but if so"—

"Of course it was forcible language."

"But if so I sincerely and most humbly beg his pardon, and after breakfast I'll take him over to get a beer, and then we'll go downtown and buy him forty toy carts and horses."

A POPULAR HOSTESS.

Lady Durand, Wife of the British Ambassador at Washington.

Lady Durand, wife of the new British ambassador at Washington, who only recently arrived at the national capital, is making a reputation as a charming hostess and bids fair to be one of the most popular ladies of the diplomatic corps.

The ambassador and Lady Durand celebrated their first Christmas at Washington by entertaining the embassy staff, a typical English dinner being served. The long table was adorned with the famous George III. plate, which is one of the permanent possessions of the embassy.

LADY DURAND.

Lady Durand belongs to one of the oldest and most aristocratic families in England. She is the daughter of Teignmouth Sandys of Cornwall, whose estate, St. Kerern, has been in the family since early in the fifteenth century.

Like her distinguished husband, Lady Durand is clever with the pen and has written interestingly of her travels and of life in India, where she spent fifteen years during the time her husband was connected with the Bengal service. She was married to Sir Herbert in 1875, and they have two children, a very pretty daughter who is now with her parents in this country and a son who is a cavalry officer in the British army.

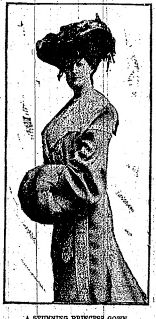
Sir Henry Mortimer Durand is not only a diplomat of the highest rank and achievements, but has also distinguished himself in the field. During the Afghan war, while secretary to Lord Roberts, he assisted in the dangerous task of recovering some guns that had been abandoned.

When Sir Mortimer was appointed to his present post last fall the London Spectator commented as follows: "Washington is now the most important station in the British diplomatic service and should be the best paid even if it were not a singularly expensive post, yet our ambassador in a capital where the cost of living is very high is only paid $32,500, while the pay in Paris is $45,000 and in Berlin and Vienna $40,000. In Washington the pay should be $50,000."

A TOUCH OF THE ORIENT.

Modish Princess Robe of Royal Blue Velvet Supline.

In spite of a "no money" epidemic the fads of fashion increase in alarming numbers. The fad for things eastern is a positive craze this season, and to be entirely "in it" this winter one must have a touch of the orient in at least one costume.



A STUNNING PRINCESS GOWN.

The stunning street gown illustrated is a princess robe of royal blue velvet supline. This new velvet is one of the handsomest materials used, being soft, pliable and capable of taking graceful lines and particularly adapted to the princess style of garment.

The frock has the effect of being made all in one piece, but this deception is cleverly brought about with carefully manipulated bands of Chinese looking embroidery.

These handsome bands are very simple to make, consisting of nothing more ambitious than strips of Italian filet networked solidly in an oriental pattern. With this blue costume is carried a large chinchilla muff.

JOHN E. KING, Chairman.
S. F. STAPLES. Secretary.

MESSRS. Dunn and Collins have only four more weeks of uncertainty. Collins, however, seems to be doing the most of the worrying.

THE Northern Pacific railway company intends to remove its agent at Breckenridge because he is not a married man, and the Perham Enterprise remarks that if all the old maids do not patronize the Northern Pacific they are an ungrateful lot.

THE young mayor of Baltimore found life too strenuous and shuffled off the mortal coil by the revolver route. His untimely end dispels a popular delusion. We always supposed that a mayor had as easy a job as the editor of a country newspaper.

IT will pay to watch that man Folk from Missouri. When a Democrat gets is so all-fired good that even the Republicans cannot find a flaw in his record and have not the temerity to hatch up a few blotches on his reputation he must necessarily be but little below the angels.

THE Duluth Herald is using rather strong language early in the campaign. It says: "If the American people want a man in the executive chair who can be depended upon to create friction and trouble with other nations, Roosevelt is certainly just the man. For playing the rowdy and bully in international affairs he has no superior.

ONE of the political surprises of the week is the announcement that Editor H. J. Miller of Luverne will be a candidate for congress against James T. McCleary in the Second district. Miller has a lot of friends and McCleary a lot of enemies, but the "little Schoolmaster" has the reputation of maintaining a strong and active party organization. There are said to be more postmasters in the Second than in any other district in the country, and every one of them works twenty-four hours in the day for McCleary.

ALEX THOMPSON of Crookston has received a lot of favorable mention for delegate to the Democratic national convention. He has the support of all of the anti-Hearst people in Polk county and his friends say he will receive the votes of a number of outside counties. For delegate from the lower part of the district John L. Townley of Fergus Falls appears to be in the lead. If the district should be controlled by the Hearst followers—a decided improbability—it is conceded that C. A. Nye of Moorhead and Nat Campbell of Crookston will be the delegates.

MATTHEW S. QUAY, senior senator from Pennsylvania, is dead, and the public press is again confronted with the ethical question whether it is best to adhere to the rule of speaking only good of those who have passed through the valley of the shadow. If this rule were strictly adhered to the eulogy of Senator Quay would necessarily be brief, for as a public man his lovable qualities and commendable traits are not conspicuous. Like Platt of New York and Addicks of Delaware, he was a political trickster, ready to sacrifice his honor and the honor of his state for personal gain. The history of Quayism is the darkest blotch that has ever stained the fame of Pennsylvania, and if his demise means a purer and better political atmosphere the world sustains no irreparable loss.

THIS beautiful Decoration day tribute is found in the LeSeuer News: "Sometimes in passing along the street I meet a man who, in the left lapel of his coat, wears a little, plain, modest, unassuming bronze button. The coat is often old and rusty; the face above seamed and furrowed by the toil and suffering of adverse years; perhaps beside it hangs an empty sleeve, and below it stumps a wooden peg. But when I meet the man who wears that button, I doff my hat and stand uncovered in his presence—yea! to me the very dust his weary feet have pressed is holy ground; for I know that man, in the dark hour of the nation's peril, bared his breast to the hell of battle to keep the flag of our country in the Union sky."

FRANK H. SPEARMAN has an interesting article in the Saturday Evening Post on "The Hill Lines." In the course of his article Mr. Spearman calls attention to the fact that Canada gave the United States her greatest railroad man—Mr. Hill, while our country returned the compliment by giving to Canada Sir William Van Horne, the greatest of the Dominion railroaders. Mr. Spearman also notes that there is a vast difference in the treatment accorded these men by their home people. Canada sends Mr. Van Horne across the water to be knighted, and there is nothing he cannot have for the asking. As for Mr. Hill—well, his own state delights in periodically holding him up to the public gaze as her greatest criminal and even the Federal government pillories him as an object lesson for national scorn.

THAT the supreme court should uphold the law under which the anarchist, Turner, was excluded from the United States was only to be expected. A nation that could not say who should and who should not be entitled to admission to its ports would indeed be in a pitiable position. At the same time, it is just as well to remember that the court did not pass upon the good sence or practicability of the law in question. The law aims to penalize the holding of opinions hostile to our form of government; it is legislation against a state of mind, and the anarchist who wishes to come to this country has only to keep his mouth shut in order to gain a free entry. While the "philosophic" Mr. Turner has been kept out a couple of hundred "revolutionary" anarchists may have come in. The law, therefore, while doubtless constitutional, is hardly effective or sensible.

Scents a Diabolical Plot.

"The gossips whisper that Wiley Tindolph confesses that Red Lake Falls has Thief River Falls beaten when it comes to pretty girls. We hope one of them will induce Wiley to come down here."—RED LAKE COURIER.

Well! of all the diabolical plots ever concocted this beats 'em all. The idea of trying to enlist the numerous beautiful ladies of Red Lake Falls in a conspiracy to win Mr. Tindolph from his happy home up here. We have noticed that he has been called down there much of late, and we now discover that it was all a part of a deep laid plan—to win him from a town he has been so instrumental in building up. And do they think that now when his dreams are about to be realized—when railroads are coming from all directions—and land sales and fishing good—and nominations to high political offices are his for the askin'?—Thief River Review.

Rules and Regulations Governing Sale of Red Lake Reservation Lands.

1. The sale shall begin at 9 o'clock a. m., and continue on that and succeeding days, not Sundays, until each tract has been sold, or offered for sale.

2. The lands to be sold will be arranged on a schedule in tracts of approximately 160 acres each, in the order in which they are to be offered for sale. The arrangements or order, except where it will be necessary to vary the same on account of the lands containing Indian graves or improvements, which must be offered for sale last, or on account of a meandered stream will be as follows: Beginning with section 1, township 154 north, range 43 west, the sale will proceed with the land in that and the townships as they lie in a tier south thereof, then with the succeeding tier as they lie on the east of the first tier in the same order from north to south. The order of offering will be, as to the sections, in their numerical order, in each township, except where varied as aforesaid, and as to quarter sections, first, the NE. ¼; second, the NW. ¼; third, the SE. ¼; and fourth, the SW. ¼; of the township in their order as aforesaid.

3. Sixty tracts will be offered each day for the first two days and eighty tracts on each and every day, not Sunday, thereafter until all of said lands have been sold or offered for sale as herein provided.

4. The register and receiver of the land district in which said lands are situated will be in attendance at such sale from day to day, and all homestead entries made under such sale will be made before such officers.

5. When a tract is sold the successful bidder must immediately present himself before the register and receiver and file his application for a homestead entry with proper proof of his qualifications as a homesteader by the usual homestead and other affidavits, except the nonsaline affidavit, which will not be required until final proof, except that he will not be required to allege that he has not exhausted his right by a homestead entry made or perfected before the date of said act of February 20, 1904, or to describe such entry, or if made after said act and before the date of the act of April 28, 1904, if he shall show himself entitled to make another homestead thereunder. He will also then pay the said receiver one-fifth of the purchase price, also in addition thereto, the usual fees and commissions require by law to be paid on such entries where the price of the land is $1.25 per acre.

6. If any purchaser shall fail to present himself before said officers or to show himself qualified to make homeatead entry for such land or to pay the first payment of one-fifth of the amount of his bid or the fees and commissions due on his entry, as provided and required in rule five above, within twenty-four hours from the time when his bid was accepted, he will not hereafter be recognized as a bidder at said sale, and the tract or tracts so bid in and not entered by such purchaser will at once be reoffered for sale, subject to the same requirements, conditions, and qualifications of purchase as before.

7. If the register and receiver shall decide adversely as to the qualifications of any successful bidder and reject his application, such decision shall be final, and no appeal will lie therefrom,

8. The officer conducting the sale or the Commissioner of the General Land office is given full authority at any time before or during the progress of the sale to postpone or discontinue the same if he shall have reason to believe that any combination, collusion, conspiracy, or agreement exists or is being formed among or on behalf of bidders or prospective bidders at the sale.

9. The commissioner of the General Land office may make any rule or regulation, not inconsistent with these rules or regulations, in order to effectuate the same.

10. Power is reserved to enlarge, change, modify, or annul these rules or any of them at any time before or during the sale, if public interest shall seem to demand such enlargement, change, modification, or annulment.

WILL REVISE THE TARIFF

Congressman Steenerson Thinks There Is Room for Improvement in Present Schedules.

"Every tariff schedule that is higher than necessary to protect the American workingman from competition with cheap labor in foreign countries should be reduced to that extent," said Congressman Halvor Steenerson last week to a St. Paul Pioneer Press reporter: "I believe that the tariff on several articles is higher than it should be and that the next congress will revise it."

Mr. Steenerson believes in protection, but he does not think that the tariff schedule is so sacred that it should not be changed to suit present conditions. The difficult part of the problem, he believes, is to prepare a schedule that will satisfy all interests, agricultural, manufacturing and otherwise, since each interest wants the tariff cut down on some article and left as it is on others. For this reason Mr. Steenerson believes the only way to make the change is to take all articles into consideration and arrive at a compromise.

"Of course it is hard to tell what the next congress will do, but I believe that it will do something on the tariff question," says Mr. Steenerson. "A good deal will depend on what recommendation is made by the national convention at Chicago. Personally I believe that there will be in the platform a strong plank in favor of revision. The action of the Iowa convention in turning down Gov. Cummins' scheme is not necessarily an indication that the Republicans of the state do not favor revision. They probably do not favor the particular scheme of Gov. Cummins and they might not have gone so far as they did had not his plan been agitated.

"When you reduce the talk of the Democrats on the tariff question to its last analysis you will find that it means absolute free trade. Congressman Williams of Mississippi, leader of the Democrats in the house, is called a conservative Democrat. He is merely more tactful than some of the other Democrats. He believes in free trade, but he recognizes that the people will not stand for it now, so he talks revision and the like."

Regarding the Democratic presidential situation, Mr. Steenerson said:

"We hear a great deal of talk in the newspapers that Tammany will bolt Parker if he is nominated. I don't believe that this is true. There are no more loyal Democrats in the in the United States than the members of the Tammany organization. It is true that they do not favor Parker; they are opposed to any one who might be considered the candidate of David B. Hill, but their chief ambition is to elect a Democratic president, and if Parker turns out to be the strongest man available and is nominated, you will see the Tammany men working hard for him."

Chicago's Freight Subway.

The difference between subway construction in Chicago and New York is shown by the fact that many residents of Chicago do not know of the existence of the freight subway. Already twenty miles have been tunneled at a cost of $5,000,000; equipment with electric locomotives and cars being pushed rapidly and handling of freight will begin by August 1st. One hundred and twenty miles more of tunnel are to be built and an expenditure of another $15;000,000 is intended by this $30,000,000 corporation. It is understood from a source that is thoroughly reliable that the fight that has been in progress for months past over the appointment of a postmaster for Crookston, to succeed Postmaster Eiken, who was suspended some time ago pending an investigation of an alleged shortage of $1,600, which, however, was made good, is practically over, and that the man who will receive the appointment is Elias Steenerson, a brother of Congressman Halvor Steenerson.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Merchants State Bank was held yesterday. All of the old officials and directors were re-elected, and the business was found to be in excellent shape. At present the deposits aggregate $90,000.

The lumber mill at St. Hilaire will not be operated this year after all. The report that it was to be started this week seems to be a pipe-dream originating in the office of the Crookston Journal. The business men of St. Hilaire were enthusiastic over the prospects, but to make sure that their good fortune was real they telephoned the manager of the Crookston Lumber company, who informed them that the company had not at any time entertained a notion of starting the mill.

The drive is an unusually large one this year, containing some 35,000,000 feet, and the work has been pushed forward very rapidly. All of this drive belongs to the Crookston Lumber company.

Mr. Whiteley estimates that the gross value of his timber is in the neighborhood of $25,000, and he expects to net at least $12,000. He will go up there next week and commence arrangements for logging. He will personally superintend the work and expects to have all of the timber in the river by next spring.

The marriage of Miss Delia Toupin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Toupin, to H. N. Johnson, of Park River, N. D., is announced for June 22. Both parties are well and favorably known to all of the Red Lake Falls people, and they will have the good wishes of a legion of friends for success and happiness. Miss Toupin was born and reared in Red Lake Falls, and is one of our most charming daughters, while the groom is a former resident, having until recently been local manager for the Robertson Lumber company, a position he now fills at Park River.

Fred Knaack, an elderly gentlman and retired farmer living on the north side, had quite a thrilling experience last Thursday. He had been fishing across the Red Lake river, and upon returning home had got about half across the railroad bridge when he discovered the freight pulling into town. Mr. Knaack endeavored to retrace his steps but soon realized that the train had the best of it and jumped from the bridge. In descending he struck a heavy timber and sustained painful injuries. Dr. Watson was called, and a last reports Mr. Knaack was on the road to complete recovery.

Our base ball boys had another touch of defeat Sunday last. They went up against their old adversaries, the Thief River Indians, and were beaten by a score of 7 to 6. Our boys had the best of it all through the game, save in the first half of the third inning, when by a combination of errors the Thief River boys succeeded in getting four scores. It was a good game, however, and both nines did their best to win. The Red Lake Falls club needs a pitcher this year. Harry Healy did the twirling Sunday, and while he did good work Harry has done but little work in the box for a number of years and is consequently out of practice. His place is at third base, and in that position is not equalled by any amatuer in Minnesota.

MALARIA

Germ Infected Air.

Malaria is not confined exclusively to the swamps and marshy regions of the country, but wherever there is bad air this insidious foe to health is found. Poisonous vapors and gases from sewers, and the musty air of damp cellars are laden with the germs of this miserable disease, which are breathed into the lungs and taken up by the blood and transmitted to every part of the body. Then you begin to feel out of sorts without ever suspecting the cause. No energy or appetite, dull headaches, sleepy and tired and completely fagged out from the slightest exertion, are some of the deplorable effects of this enfeebling malady. As the disease progresses and the blood becomes more deeply poisoned, boils and abscesses and dark or yellow spots appear upon the skin. When the poison is left to ferment and the microbes and germs to multiply in the blood, Liver and Kidney troubles and other serious complications often arise. As Malaria begins and develops in the blood, the treatment to be effective must begin there too. S. S. S. destroys the germs and poisons and purifies the polluted blood, and under its tonic effect the debilitated constitution rapidly recuperates and the system is soon clear of all signs of this depressing disease.

S. S. S. is a guaranteed purely vegetable remedy, mild, pleasant and harmless. Write us if you want medical advice or any special information about your case. This will cost you nothing.

KIDNAPERS MAKE DEMANDS KNOWN

MOROCCO BANDIT SUBMITS HIS TERMS FOR RANSOM OF AMERICAN.

ARE IMPOSSIBLE OF ACCEPTANCE

Captor of Perdicaris Demands Withdrawal of Forces from His District, Heavy Ransom and Immunity from Punishment.

Washington, May 30.—The kidnapers of Perdicaris and his stepson Varley, in Morocco, have submitted their terms for ransom, and the state department has decided that they are absolutely impossible of acceptance.

A long cablegram from United States Consul Gummere was received by Secretary Hay Saturday. The consul stated in substance that Rasouly, the bandit who kidnaped Perdicaris and his stepson Varley, had been heard from and made a set of demands which the British minister and Mr. Gummere had deemed it their duty to lay before their governments. Rasouly demanded that the Moorish forces should be withdrawn from the district in which his band operated, leaving them in control. He asked a large money ransom, to be collected from the governor of Tangier and Fez, who happen to be bitter enemies. He further demanded absolute immunity for himself and his followers from pursuit or punishment for the kidnaping and other crimes which they had committed in the past. To cap the climax of his demands, Rasouly insisted that the United States and Great Britain should solemnly guarantee the observance by the Moorish government of the foregoing stipulations.

Refuse to Agree to Terms.

Secretary Hay had a conference with the president and it was agreed that Rasouly's terms could not be met. To grant them would be equivalent to forcing the sultan of Morocco to abdicate in favor of a brigand so far as a considerable part of a Moorish tract was concerned. Moreover, the United States government could not, without establishing a new and dangerous precedent, undertake to guarantee the acts of another government.

The next step is in doubt. Admiral Chadwick will be at Tangier by Sunday evening on the Brooklyn, to be followed in the course of a day or two by the remainder of his fleet. As the utmost confidence is reposed in the discretion and judgment of the admiral, the present disposition is to leave him a free hand to deal with this case in cooperation with Consul Gummere.

It is realized here that the French government, which under its recent treaties with Great Britain has acquired a dominating interest in Morocco, may naturally be rather nervous over any foreign interference in the affairs of that country, and this fact it is suggested may lead to the exercise by the French government of some effective influence in the direction of securing Perdicaris' release which will obviate any hostile move by Admiral Chadwick.

To Sell Islands.

Halifax, N. S., May 30.—An agent has left here for New York to close the sale of the Magdalen islands by the government of Quebec to an American syndicate. They are rich in iron and manganese deposits, and the herring fisheries are valuable. It is said the Dominion government may take some action to prevent the sale.

Will Join International Order.

Peking, May 30.—There has been issued an imperial decree, ordering the establishment of a Red Cross society in China and that it join the international convention. The sum of 100,000 taels from the imperial treasury has been devoted to the society.

National Bank Closed.

Washington, May 30.—The comptroller of the currency has been notified by Bank Examiner Sturtevant that he closed the Elk City national bank, of Elk City, Okla. The capital stock of the bank was $25,000.

STIMULATING TO BUSINESS

IMPROVEMENT IN WEATHER A HELP TO TRADE.

Industrial Outlook on the Whole Seems Brighter—The Record of Failures.

New York, May 30.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: "Retail trade is stimulated by seasonable weather and the industrial outlook is brighter on the whole, although several adverse factors have appeared. The big dry goods auction sale opened with an unexpectedly large attendance and good prices were secured. It is particularly gratifying to note that retailers rather than jobbers have made most of the purchases, thus providing prompt distribution into consuming channels throughout the country. Railway earnings thus far reported for May fall 3.7 per cent. short of the same time last year, but foreign commerce at this port for the last week shows gains of $1,637,200 in exports and $849,545 in imports.

"Failures this week numbered 226 in the United States, against 206 last year, and 17 in Canada, compared with seven a year ago."

Bradstreet's says: "The situation is rather more irregular. Distributive trade, stimulated by better weather in some sections, has improved, but is still behind a year ago. Cereal crops, particularly winter wheat, show improvement, but cotton reflects drought by conditions in the South Atlantic and Gulf states, while good reports come from west of the Mississippi. The industrial situation is hardly so satisfactory, a slowing down being noted in many leading industries; the number of idle persons is growing, and unskilled labor shows in some sections a woeful lack of foresight and knowledge of real conditions.

Detailed telegrams from western markets show a livening up of distributive trade. Better weather is stimulating retail demand at the south, but in the northwest rains at some markets have been unfavorable to current distribution. Dullness in the iron trade is responsible for a further weakening in pig iron. It is very generally a buyer's market, but values are low.

CANNOT AGREE ON VERDICT

Judge Orders Jury in Gillespie Case to Resume Deliberations When Report Is Made.

Rising Sun, Ind., May 30.—The uncertainty of the action of the jury in the Gillespie murder case, shown by the failure to agree so far, gives rise to solicitude, and gossip is busy in trying to place the responsibility notwithstanding the acknowledged high character of the jurymen. It is common talk that if one juror prevents a finding he will not have the full friendship of the public.

Shortly after ten o'clock the announcement was made that the jury was about to report. The defendants were sent for, and the crowd both inside and outside the courtroom manifested the liveliest interest. The Barbours and Mrs. Seward arrived in the courtroom first. Two minutes later James Gillespie entered, apparently calm. At 10:40 the foreman presented to the court this statement:

"We, the jury, have agreed that we cannot agree."

(Signed) "IRA POWELL,
"Foreman."

The judge said he could not at this time accept this as a verdict. He ordered that the jury return and resume deliberations.

President to Participate.

Washington, May 30.—President Roosevelt will participate in the exercises on Memorial day on the battlefield of Gettysburg. He will arrive at Gettysburg at nine a. m. Included in the president's party will be Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Ethel Roosevelt, Miss Carow, Secretary Loeb, Surgeon General Rixey, Capt. Charles D. A. Loffler and M. C. Latta.

Many Rebels Killed.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Cattle Showing.

The cattle department of the state fair, according to Secretary E. W. Randall, will this year be better and bigger than ever.

Much of the success of the cattle department of the fair has been acquired because the larger breeders' associations of the country have made this fair one of regular official exhibits, and have donated regular premiums in addition to those offered by the society.

For the national shorthorn show a total of $4,500 in premiums is offered. This is open to the breeders of the world, and in addition there is a special $500 premium to be distributed among Minnesota breeders, besides several small premiums offered by patrons of the fair.

Premiums offered by the American Hereford Breeders' association are as liberal and comprehensive as those of the other association.

The cattle department has for many years been in charge of Col. Wm. M. Liggett, whose assistints this year will be George A. Cobb and Robert B. Liggett. Entries for the general cattle division close on August 15, but for the shorthorn exhibition on Aug. 1.

Big Fish.

A. G. Rutledge, local game warden, has been authorized by Sam F. Fullerton, executive agent for the game and fish commission, to secure specimens of muscallonge from Cass Lake, to be sent to the Louisiana Purchase exposition, showing the kind of large fish that inhabit the waters of Northern Minnesota. "Muskies" weighing from six pounds to thirty, and heavier, if possible to obtain them, will be taken from the lake, and will be sent, alive, to the exposition. Many of different weights have been taken from the lake with a hook and line this spring, and Mr. Rutledge is confident that he can procure the number required by the commission—16.

Old Liberty Bell.

A patronic welcome will Minneapolis give the Liberty Bell June 6.

If those in charge of the relic will permit its removal from the cars, it will be made the center of a parade, both civic and military in character. Or, if it cannot be removed from its car, another way is to have it switched to the tracks of the street railway, and paraded around the loop, where thousands may view it. If this is not permissionable, the parade will be made to pass around the bell while it rests at the station. The committee will ascertain as soon as possible whether the bell can be taken from its car.

Elliott Suicides.

His disordered mind overpowered by the knowledge that he was thought to have attempted the life of the president and by the persecutions he believed he had suffered, Peter O. Elliott, the Minneapolis man who sprang into prominence last fall when arrested in the White House with a loaded 38-caliber revolver in his pocket, committed suicide. His lifeless body was found dangling at the end of a 3-foot rope from the Short Line bridge near St. Paul.

Killed at Crossing.

One man passenger, was killed and five others were slightly hurt by an Interurban electric railway car being crashed into a Northern Pacific engine at the crossing at Erie street SE. Minneapolis.

Andrew L. Jackson, who was killed outright, was badly mashed about the head and body. He lives at Bowdle, S. D., where he has a family of a wife and eight children. He boarded on Tenth street, and was about 50 years of age.

State Hay Lands.

The state of Minnesota is now selling its hay for 1904. "Grass stumpage" on land still held by the state is being disposed of by agents acting for the state auditor in the various counties. Many applications are coming in to the auditor's office, but as a rule they have to be referred back to local agents. Last year the state received $1,700 from this source.

News Notes.

Prominent musicians from all parts of the state will be in Duluth June 16, 17 and 18 to attend the Minnesota State Music Teachers' association.

A young man by the name of Swen Haugland, employed by Hoken Brunsven, a farmer near Cottonwood, was kicked by a horse, and as a result died of lockjaw.

The body of a newly born girl baby was found in the Cannon river. The body was lying on the bottom and to all appearances had not been long in the water.

Judge Gray, sitting at Mankato, has declared the Amboy Elevator company, a farmers' organization of Amboy, insolvent.

A special M. & St. L. train has been chartered by the Minnesota State Editorial association to carry its members on their annual outing to St. Louis to attend the fair and see the sights generally.

The frame railway station at Oakwood, about two miles east of the fish hatchery and near Highwood, was partially destroyed by fire.

The dry weather has caused apprehension among residents of Cass Lake, as the loose underbrush and grass in the woods are highly inflammable and the danger of forest fires is great. A fire was started about two miles west of Cass Lake, and Eugene F. Bruce, chief lumberman of the bureau forestry took a party of men with him to fight it.

Charles Wadena, son of a noted Indian chief of that name, died at the state reformatory at St. Cloud from consumption, according to a report received by the state board of control.

My Breath.

Shortness of Breath Is One of the Commonest Signs of Heart Disease,

Notwithstanding what many physicians say, heart disease can be cured.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure has permanently restored to health many thousands who had found no relief in the medicines (allopathic or homoeopathic) of regular practicing physicians.

It has proved itself unique in the history of medicine, by being so uniformly successful in curing those diseases.

Nearly always, one of the first signs of trouble is shortness of breath. Whether it comes as a result of walking or running up stairs, or of other exercises, if the heart is unable to meet this extra demand upon its pumping powers—there is something wrong with it.

The very best thing you can do, is to take Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure. It will go to the foundation of the trouble, and make a permanent cure by strengthening and renewing the nerves.

"I know that Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is a great remedy. For a number of years I suffered from shortness of breath, smothering spells, and pains in my left side. For months at a time I would be unable to lie on my left side, and if I lay flat on my back would nearly smother. A friend advised using Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, which I did with good results. I began to improve at once, and after taking several bottles of the Heart Cure the pains in my side and other symptoms vanished. I am now entirely well. All those dreadful smothering spells are a thing of the past."—F. P. DRAKE, Middletown, O.

NANSHAN WILL LIVE IN HISTORY

FURTHER DETAILS OF GREAT BATTLE ON THE HEIGHTS.

JAPS DEARLY-WON VICTORY

Their Losses Were 3,000 Men Killed—Entire Force Making First Assault Is Exterminated, Every Man Being Cut Down.

Tokio, May 30.—The Japanese assault on Nanshan hill was one of the fiercest and bloodiest affairs in modern warfare. In the earlier rushes of the engagement every man participating was shot down before he reached the first line of Russian trenches. It was found necessary to stop these infantry charges and renew the artillery fire from the rear before the final and successful assault on the Russian position could be made. The success of this assault was brought about by one detachment of Japanese troops, more intrepid than their comrades, who succeeded in piercing the Russian lines.

Render Mines Useless.

A splendid stroke of fortune was the discovery and destruction by the Japanese of the electric wires leading to the mines at the eastern foot of Nanshan hill. This prevented the Russians from exploding these mines when the Japanese infantry crossed the ground where they had been placed. It is possible that the fortune of the day hinged upon these mines. If the Russians had been able to explode them at the right time the losses among the Japanese troops would have been tremendous, and it is possible also that the Russians would have been able to hold the hill.

Victory at Great Cost.

Japan paid dearly for her victories at Kinchou, Nanshan and Tallenwan, losing 3,000 men in killed and wounded in the repeated assaults against these positions, but she scored a sweeping and valuable victory, capturing 50 guns, clearing the way to Port Arthur and inflicting losses on the Russians which in the end are expected to total 2,000 men. The desperate onslaughts of the Japanese on the heights of Nanshan were telling, for the Russians left 400 dead in the trenches there. A complete search of this field is expected to show a greater number of dead.

Nanshan Splendidly Defended.

Nanshan was splendidly defended. Nearly 50 guns of various sizes were mounted on the various emplacements, and there were also two batteries of quick-firing field pieces.

The artillery was sheltered behind loopholes trenched on the terraces of the hill. The infantry manning the field pieces ran with them around the hill, thus using these guns for the protection of the most important points.

Russian Batteries Silenced.

The Japanese began the fight by bringing all their field guns into action and concentrating their fire on the emplacements on the hill. By 11 o'clock in the morning the principal Russian batteries had been silenced. The two Russian field batteries then withdrew to Nanquanling hill, and from there continued to fire on the Japanese until nightfall.

After the Russian batteries had been silenced the Japanese artillery opened on the enemy's trenches, the Japanese infantry advancing meanwhile to within rifle range. The Japanese gradually worked to within 400 yards of the Russian lines, where they encountered wire and other entanglements,

Every Man Shot Down.

They succeeded in discovering an opening in these obstacles and getting finally to within 200 yards of the Russian trenches they rushed for the line. Several successive charges were made, but every officer and man in the attacking parties was shot down 20 or 30 yards from the line. The charges were then stopped and the Japanese artillery renewed its preparatory fire on the enemy's position. Towards evening a detachment of Japanese carried a section of the Russian trenches, breaking through the enemy's line. Hundreds of the comrades of these men, inspired by their success, sprang forward, and then the entire Japanese line swept up the hill, driving the Russians from their positions. It was in the desperate infantry charges that the Japanese sustained the bulk of their losses.

Japanese Heroism.

Tokio, May 30.—The details of the fighting at Kinchou emphasize the heroic tenacity of the Japanese in their conduct at Nanshan hill. Nine successive times the Japanese charged the fortified heights in the face of a storm of death-dealing missiles, and in their last effort they carried the forts and trenches only after a bayonet-to-bayonet conflict with the Russians, who made a desperate, despairing struggle to beat back the on-coming hordes.

Attack on Dalny Begins.

London, May 28.—The Russian troops in the Liaotung peninsula are retreating to Port Arthur, and the victorious Japanese armies, it is believed, are already attacking Dalny.

A news agency dispatch from Newchwang says that, according to Japanese plans, Port Arthur is to be taken within two weeks with 100,000 troops. It is realized that the loss must be severe, but this, it is thought, is better than keeping a large army idle for three months.

It is doubted if the Russians will stand again north of Port Arthur.

RECALL OF ENVOY APPROVED

FRENCH CHAMBER UPHOLDS GOVERNMENT'S COURSE.

Efforts to Force Extreme Action Opposed—Papal Nuncio at Paris May Be Ordered Home.

Paris, May 30.—After an exciting debate, in which Premier Combes and Foreign Minister Delcasse set forth the action and purposes of the government towards the vatican, the chamber of deputies on Friday, by an overwhelming vote, approved the course of the government in recalling M. Nisard, ambassador to the vatican, and rejected all propositions of the extreme element for an immediate dissolution of the relations between church and state. The vote approving the action of the government was 427 to 95.

A resolution proposed by M. Farrette, republican nationalist, inviting the government to negotiate with Pope Pius for a separation of church and state was defeated by 507 to 18. A motion by M. Allard, socialist, to break off all relations with the vatican and denounce the concordat was defeated by 385 to 146.

Premier Combes took the initiative in resisting all efforts to force the government to extreme action, and his request that all questions regarding the separation of church and state go over until next January has the effect of postponing separation beyond the present session of parliament. The debate attracted unusual attention, and great crowds were present, including Ambassador Porter and other members of the diplomatic corps.

Rome, May 30.—After conferences held at the Vatican Saturday on the subject of the Franco-Vatican situation the opinion seemed to prevail that should France not send her ambassador back to the Vatican within a short time the papal nuncio at Paris, Mgr. Lorenzelli, will be summoned to Rome, that he will be created a cardinal at a consistory to be held in July and that his post at Paris will not be filled.

PASS ON 99-YEAR ACT.

Opinion Delivered in Chicago Traction Controversy—Partial Victory for City.

Chicago, May 30.—Opinion of Judges Grosscup and Jenkins, of the United States circuit court, on the ninety-nine-year act controversy was read in open court by Judge Grosscup Saturday.

The decision gives neither side a complete victory. The principal questions are decided in line with the contentions of the traction companies, although the broader claims of the traction people with reference to including all the franchises and ordinances under the ninety-nine-year act were passed upon in a manner favoring the contention of the city.

The decision holds that all ordinances which were passed for the benefit of the traction companies prior to the counting of the vote at the charter election in 1875, which were accepted by the companies, are binding upon the city until the expiration of the period of the so-called ninety-nine-year act. The streets which are occupied under ordinances passed after that date are to be occupied by the companies for such period as is provided in the ordinances themselves.

In the opinion the new point raised by Attorney David T. Watson, of Pittsburg, with reference to the North side grants is held to be without legal force or basis. In the judgment of the court the act of 1865 was intended to carry into the act of 1859 all of the amendments as if the act of 1859 was reenacted in full with reference to the North side grants.

SUDDENLY CALLED.

T. S. Ingraham, High Officer in Locomotive Engineers' Brotherhood Drops Dead.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 30.—T. S. Ingraham, first grand engineer of the International Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, dropped dead at his desk at the convention in this city Friday, from apoplexy. Mr. Ingraham was absorbed in work when he lost consciousness and fell from his chair. He expired almost immediately. His health had not been good for some time. The body will be taken to Cleveland next Sunday by a committee of the Brotherhood.

Mr. Ingraham, who was 69 years of age, had been first grand engineer since 1873.

Off for Colon.

Philadelphia, May 30.—The auxiliary cruiser Dixie sailed from the navy yard Saturday for Colon, with stores and provisions. At Colon the vessel will take aboard 400 marines, who have been serving there for more than a year, and will return with them to League Island. After landing the marines here the vessel will go to the Brooklyn navy yard to await orders.

Strikers Cause Disorders.

Brest, France, May 30.—Serious disorders are occurring here in connection with the strike of dock laborers and bakers. A large force of troops is guarding the streets and the city is practically under martial law. During the morning the troops charged 400 striking laborers, causing great excitement, but no serious injuries are reported.

Two More Buildings Opened.

St. Louis, May 30.—The informal opening of the Mexican and Netherlands pavilions took place Saturday, representatives of foreign governments, Mexican visitors to the fair, officials of the exposition and invited guests being present. Both pavilions were decorated for the occasion.

DEATH SUMMONS SENATOR QUAY

NOTED PENNSYLVANIAN PEACEFULLY PASSES AWAY AT HIS HOME AT BEAVER.

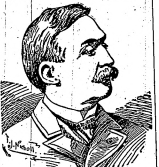
END PROLONGED BY MEANS OF OXYGEN

Family Is Present at Bedside of Distinguished Man When the End Comes—A Brief Description of His Career.

Beaver, Pa., May 30.—Senator Matthew Stanley Quay died at 2:48 o'clock Saturday afternoon. He slept away, and the end was peaceful. When death came he was surrounded by the members of his family.

The immediate cause of his death was exhaustion, due to inability to assimilate nourishment. He had taken no food since three a. m. Chronic gastritis and inflammation of the stomach was the foundation of the trouble.

A change for the worse came about eight o'clock Saturday morning, and he was not expected to live through the day. Oxygen was administered constantly, in hope that it would revive him.



SENATOR M. S. QUAY.

All the immediate family were at the senator's bedside, awaiting the end.

Dr. Litchfield said the reason why no reports of Mr. Quay's true condition were given out before was because all along the senator insisted on seeing all newspapers to learn what was said about his condition. If an attempt was made to hold back a paper it annoyed him.

Sketch of His Career.

Matthew Stanley Quay was born in Dillsburg, York county, Pa., September 30, 1833. He was graduated at Jefferson college, Pennsylvania, in 1850, began his legal studies at Pittsburg, and was admitted to the bar in 1854. He was appointed prothonotary of Beaver county in 1855, in 1856 elected to the same office, and reelected in 1859. In 1861 he resigned his office to accept a lieutenancy in the Tenth Pennsylvania reserves, and he was subsequently made assistant commissary general of the state, with the rank of lieutenant colonel. Afterward he was appointed private secretary to Gov. Andrew G. Curtin, and in August, 1862, he was commissioned colonel of the One Hundred and Thirty-fourth Pennsylvania regiment. He was mustered out, owing to impaired health, December 7, 1862, but participated in the assault on Mary's Heights, December 13, as a volunteer. He was subsequently appointed state agent at Washington, but shortly afterward was recalled by the legislature to fill the office of military secretary, which was created by that body. He was elected to the legislature in October, 1864, in 1865 and 1866, and in 1869 he established and edited the Beaver Radical. In 1873-78 he was secretary of the commonwealth, resigning to accept the appointment of recorder of Philadelphia, which office he resigned in 1879. In January, 1879, he was again appointed secretary of the commonwealth, filling that post until October, 1882, when he resigned. In 1885 he was elected state treasurer by the largest vote ever given to a candidate for that office, and in 1887 was chosen to the United States senate for the term which ended March 3, 1893. He was defeated for reelection, but in 1899 resumed his seat, which he held at the time of his death.

Recommendation Defeated.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 30.—The Methodist general conference has voted down the recommendation of the committee on temperance, providing for a special department of temperance work and authorizing collections for its maintenance. The report evoked much discussion on the floor of the conference, but the final vote against it was decisive.

Protocol Signed.

Washington, May 30.—Secretary Hay, for the United States, and Jonkheer Von Swenderen, for the government of The Netherlands, Saturday signed a protocol extending to all the insular possessions of the United States and the colonies of Holland the provisions of the existing extradition treaties between the two nations.

Awful Method of Suicide.

Sioux Falls, S. D., May 30.—Rather than submit to arrest on a charge of wife beating Robert Geske, a Kingsburg county farmer, placed the muzzle of a shotgun to his mouth, pressed the trigger with his toe and blew the left side of his head off as Sheriff Peterman and Deputy Johnson approached the house to arrest Geske.

BLACK-DRAUGHT STOCK and POULTRY MEDICINE

Stock and poultry have few troubles which are not bowel and liver irregularities. Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is a bowel and liver remedy for stock. It puts the organs of digestion in a perfect condition. Prominent American breeders and farmers keep their herds and flocks healthy by giving them an occasional dose of Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine in their food. Any stock raiser may buy a 25-cent half-pound air-tight can of this medicine from his dealer and keep his stock in vigorous health for weeks. Dealers generally keep Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine. If yours does not, send 25 cents for a sample can to the manufacturers, The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

"Iowa Idea" Put to Sleep.

St. Peter Herald: And so the "Iowa idea" has been put to its eternal sleep. A Staggering Blow.

Alexandria Citizen: The government suit against the Commonwealth Lumber Co., which has been in progress for the past two weeks in the federal court at Fergus Falls, was concluded last week. The jury returned a verdict against the lumber company, for the sum of $18,138.01, which is about one-sixth of the amount claimed by the state. Some sensational testimony was introduced, showing the methods of letting contracts and of appointing scalers. The cost of prosecuting the lumber company will total a considerable amount but the people will pay the bill cheerfully. They realize that a staggering blow has been dealt the Commonwealth Lumber Co., inasmuch as that campany will now be compelled to pay back to the government at least 25 cents for every dollar which it is alleged they have stolen.

DAIRY DEPARTMENT.

Edited by Geo. L. Austin, Manager of the Red Lake Falls Creamery.

Fodder Corn.

How about the fodder corn? Have you planted some? It is not too late yet. Any time before June 15 is early enough if it is well cultivated, and the soil is fairly rich. The later it is planted the faster it will grow and the more succulent and less woody it will be and it has more leaf growth. Plant the rows north and south and use at lease one-half bushel of seed to the acre on rich ground and give thorough cultivation and you can count on an enormous yield of good feed. Plant the little patches to fodder corn instead of letting them grow up in weeds.

There is Money in it.

Of course there is money in dairying. There is money in any necessary occupation. There must be. There are brief periods when there is little or no profit in dairying even with good management. The present is not one of these periods.

Many farmers claim that there is no money in it. Some of these men are good farmers, too. They are making money, but not from their cows.

We have in mind a community which is admirably adapted to dairying, but the farmers in that community do not like it. They are not following the best methods. They keep a few cows and patronize the creamery. They persist in the claim that they are not making any money out of it. Most of them do not know whether their milk cows are profitable to them. It is certain that these farmers do not deserve to make much money from their cows.

They are a few farmers in that community whose experience ought to teach the rest of them a valuable lesson.

These farmers are in earnest about dairying. They like the work. They believe in it. Their methods are careful and intelligent. They are studying the situation all the time. They do not persist in following one line of feeding when the experience of successful dairymen proves that this line is wrong.

The farmer in the community referred to who is making more money than any of his neighbors is first of all a dairy farmer, and yet many of those about him will go on saying, parrot like, "there is no money in it."

About the best evidence we know of that dairying, properly conducted, is profitable is obtained from riding through a section of country where dairy farming is the chief industry.

Did you ever ride through the "Elgin District" of Northern Illinois and look out of the window?

You don't have to guess whether the farmers in that section are making money. The improvements show this at a glance.

This is true of the section of which Fort Atkinson, Wis., is the center, a section in which there are probably more silos than can be found anywhere else.

As stated above, one does not have to get off the train to make up his mind that the prosperity of such a district is very far above the average.

It is certain, moreover, that the Elgin district is not so well adapted to dairying as a great part of the state of Minnesota.

The simple fact is that there is money in any branch of farming. The trouble is that some men can't get this money out.

You can save money by using Cole's Veterinary Carbolisave in your stables. It quickly cures cuts, galls and sores of all kinds on horses and cattle, without scars, and renews the hair in its original color. 50c and $1.00. Guaranteed by all druggists.

HEARST LOSES IN THE NINTH

However He Gets Hennepin and St. Louis Counties, and the Outcome in the State in Doubt.

A telephone from Crookston this morning announces that the anti-Hearst people carried the Democratic primaries last night by large majorities. In the city of Crookston Hearst has only three out of fifteen delegates, and East Grand Forks goes solidly against Hearst. Other precincts in the county show a majority of three to one against Hearst in Polk county.

Red Lake county is almost solidly anti-Hearst, and it is reported that Beltrami, Otter Tail and Marshall counties have not a Hearst man on their delegations.

It is quite apparent that the delegates to the Democratic national convention from the Ninth district will be anti-Hearst.

In Hennepin county Hearst wins out, also in St. Louis. Ramsey is anti-Hearst. The outcome throughout the state is in doubt, and at present the chances seem to favor the election of Hearst delegates-at-large, though reports from other counties may change present indications.

Erskine is having all sorts of pipe dreams these days. The latest is a proposition to move the St. Hilaire lumber mill to that place.

The congregation of St. Mary's has grown a great deal, both in numbers and zealousness, during the past year, and their church is financially in excellent condition.

A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend the service Sunday and hear the sermon of Rev. Father Engel.

ELEVEN RECEIVE DIPLOMAS

Commencement Excercises of Red Lake Falls High School Friday Evening.

With the commencement exercises at the Metropolitan opera house last Friday evening the high school life of eleven of Red Lake Falls' young people is ended, and they have begun their careers as active participants in the battles of real life, each to follow his or her inclination as to how they shall best meet the obligations placed upon them by society at large.

The program as published last week was carried out to the letter. The opera house was tastefully decorated with the class colors, green and white, and ferns and flowers were everywhere in evidence. Music was furnished by the band orchestra, and special vocal renditions were given by the male sextette and Miss Gina Finseth. The invocation was offered by Rev. H. W. Knox of the Presbyterian church.

The program of papers and orations were all inter-related, the whole comprising a historical resume of the growth and development of the state of Minnesota, and a prophecy of its future greatness. Dan C. Johnson delivered the salutatory and William F. Ittner the valedictory. At the close of the exercises Prof. F. A. Whiteley, the retiring superintendent of the schools, presented the diplomas, and his remarks were full of good advice to both pupils and parents.

The graduates are Dan C. Johnson, Verne M. Healy, William O. Hunt, Ole H. Gjerberg, William F. Ittner, Emma L. Cyr, Orilla A. Hennemuth, Doretta Mathies, Rose D. Cyr, Mary C. Allison and Maude C. Findeisen. It is a fine class of young men and women, and the future undoubtedly will hold much of success for them.

The program as rendered at the commencement is as follows:

DEMOCRATS HOLD CAUCUSES

Delegates to the County Convention Selected Throughout the County Last Night.

Democratic caucuses were held last evening throughout the county to select delegates to the county convention to be held at Red Lake Falls next Saturday.

A telephone message from Thief River Falls says that the Democrats of that city turned out in large numbers to the caucusas and that a full delegation, twelve in all, will represent that city at the county convention.

The caucus for the third ward was held at Paul's hotel, and the following persons were elected as delegates: W. T. Spillane, W. P. O'Brien, James E. Ford, John E. King and J. T. Knight.

In the second ward Daniel Linnihan, J. H. Paradis, Fred Krueger and William Zaiser were elected.

In the first ward an unusually large turnout of voters is reported. M. Skala was made chairman of the caucus and Joseph Tschirhart secretary. John Nelson and James Lee were the judges. The delegates elected are Joseph Tschirhart, M. Skala and N. W. Tarrant.

Miss Costello's Plucky Fight.

Itasca County Record: The sympathy of the public is with Miss Catherine Costello who recently lost her claim in 61-25 through a decision of the general land office. Miss Costello, who was formerly a teacher in Red Lake Falls schools, took the claim but it is alleged that she neglected it more than was warrantable so that when she offered proof the claim was referred to a special agent who reported the entry for cancellation. Miss Costello, however, undaunted by the report, made an effort to have her entry held and stayed on [illegible] living there almost constantly [illegible], and the blow of losing [illegible] enduring that last year's hardships, must indeed be a hard one.

BAND ORCHESTRA CONCERT

JUNE 14 FLAG DAY.

Governor Fixes Day for Display of National colors.

Governor Van Sant issued his Flag Day proclamation yesterday, fixing June 14 the day for a general display of the colors. The proclamation is as follows:

In pursuance of the commendable custom established among the states of the union, I hereby proclaim Tuesday, June 14, 1904, as Flag Day, and recommend that the day be observed by all patriotic, liberty-loving citizens of Minnesota. I would also suggest that exercises of a patriotic na- [illegible] state, and that our citizens decorate their homes and places of business with the stars and stripes.

The average man finds it easy to dig up a dozen excuses for neglecting duty, when the reason for doing it is close at hand.

This is the store where you can look and not be urged to buy.

ST. HILAIRE.

We had to lay aside the poetical idea of June last week and let the rain and cold east wind have full play. The real thing has come this week, however, and it doesn't require a poet to stir up the feelings of a lovely day in June. Commercially viewed, the weather has been perfect for the growing of all kinds of grain.

School closed last week. Many scholars took the state examinations. Misses. Yahr and Sherva left last Monday for their respective homes.

Ed. Walie and his son Archie together with Messrs. John and Lars Anderson left Wednesday for Marshall county where they have taken a ditching contract. They will be gone until sometime in July.

Emil Holmes came up the first part of the week frym the sotthern part of the state. Mr. Holmes says this section is looking as nice and nearly as far advanced as the southern part of the state.

There will be a lecture in the Imperial hall on Tuesday June 14, by Prof. George R. Kirkpatrick on the labor problem. The speaker comes nighly recommended having been professor in economics in different universities.

A Losing Proposition.

Adrian Democrat: Despite the fact that publishers of country papers are continually advising their readers not to deal with special order houses, and this fact backed by the known losses sustained through such deals by people all over the country, it seems that the people will never learn, that, when they place an order of this kind they are going up against a losing proposition.

We are told that a gentleman, residing in this vicinity, needed a small amount of woven wire fencing, and after learning the price of our merchants took up his catalogue and studied it. He figured from it that on the $10.20 deal he wished to make he could save 85 cents by sending his order to the catalogue house.

That was a big saying, besides he would not let any local dealer rob him—not if he knew it and he thought he did—so away went the order accompanied by the cash. When his fencing arrived he was thoroughly disgusted, because it was not what he wanted nor what he had ordered—it was lighter in weight and poorer in quality than the local dealer handled, besides it cost him more money, for he had freight charges to pay.

Did you ever notice how many people you meet with scars on face or hands? Most of these are from cuts or burns and could have been avoided if Coles Carbolisalve had been promptly used. Carbolisalve has no equal as a remedy for cuts burns and sores of all kinds. It is guaranteed to heal without a scar. 25 aud 50 cents by all druggists.

A Horse on Him.

Adrian Democrat: A farmer near Sioux Falls failing to get his neighbors to shoot an old horse, which was useless, and not daring to do it himself, took the animal to a field and tied dynamite around its neck. After attaching the explosive he touched off the fuse and started to run. The horse started to follow. The man took one look and ran for his life. He reached a wire fence in his scramble, crawled through it, and ran about two rods when he heard a terrific explosion behind him. Looking back, he saw no horse and no fence, and the ground was torn up for yards around. Came very near being a horse on him.

Red Lake for Dunn.

St. Hilaire Spectator: It is practically certain that Red Lake county will send an instructed Dunn delegation to the republican state convention. It is true that in the various cities and villages a small sentiment in favor of Judge Collins still exists, but in a decidedly apathetic state. The farming communities are for Dunn almost to a man as the farmers know and appreciate what he had done for state drainage and his vigorous prosecution of the tax-dodging corporations. They know what he has done for them in the past and they know that he will continue to watch their best interests if elected as governor, therefore they are determined to nominate and elect him. This is particularly true in Red Lake county and may be stated as a general truth of nearly every county in the state. The masses want Dunn, the classes want somebody else—anybody who will help them keep down the masses.

You can save money by using Cole's Veterinary Carbolisave in your stables. It quickly cures cuts, galls and sores of all kinds on horses and cattle, without scars, and renews the hair in its original color. 50c and $1.00. Guaranteed by all druggists.

Red Lake Indian Reservation Homesteads

February 20th, 1904, Congress passed a bill authorizing the opening for settlement of the ELEVEN TOWNSHIPS of the Red Lake Indian Reservation which are situated in Red Lake County. These lands will be thrown open for settlement within the next four months.

These lands will be disposed of to the highest bidder, and cannot be sold for less than $4 per acre. A payment of one-fifth of the purchase price in cash will be required. and the balance divided in five equal annual payments, without interest.

We have secured a limited number of copies of the Smiley map of Red Lake County and the Red Lake Indian Reservation. These maps are 28x38 inches, and show the grade and quality of each and every quarter-section of land in the portion of the Reservation to be opened for settlement; it gives the number of acres of timber and the kind of timber on each quarter. This map was compiled from the personal notes of Mr. Smiley and from the Government notes thereof. Everyone who intends to be present at the opening should have one of these maps, as it will save you the price of a locater's fee.

COVERED WOODEN BRIDGES.

A short time ago one of the picturesque landmarks of the Connecticut valley was destroyed by fire. It was the wooden covered bridge over the Connecticut river between Chicopee and West Springfield. There were several of these old wooden covered bridges on the upper Hudson a few years ago. Such a bridge helped to burn a good part of the city of Troy in 1862, the draft through it acting like a blowpipe, sending a spire of flame across the city to the hills, destroying everything in the line. A wooden bridge carrying a street car track and a wagon path crossed the Hudson river at Waterford and was owned by the Knickerbocker estate. The early Knickerbockers secured many valuable privileges about Troy in colonial times, and these were secured by the constitution of New York state. The bridge privilege at Waterford was one of the early franchises. This structure was condemned a year or two ago, and we do not know its present condition. In a few years all of the picturesque wooden bridges will disappear, as steel is now almost as cheap as wood for bridge building—that is, when the great quantity of wood is considered.—Rochester Democrat.

Great Canals.

The Suez canal is usually considered the most important example of ship canals, though the number of vessels passing through it annually does not equal that passing through the canals connecting Lake Superior with the chain of great lakes at the south. In length, however, it exceeds any of the other great ship canals, its total length being ninety miles, of which about two-thirds is through shallow lakes.

The canal connecting the bay of Cronstadt with St. Petersburg is a work of great strategic and commercial importance to Russia. The canal and sailing course in the bay are about sixteen miles long, the canal proper being about six miles and the bay channel about ten miles, and they together extend from Cronstadt, on the gulf of Finland, to St. Petersburg.

The next of the great ship canals connecting bodies of salt water in the order of date of construction is the Corinth canal, which connects the gulf of Corinth with the gulf of Ægina. The canal reduces the distance from Æriatic ports about 175 miles and from Mediterranean ports about 100 miles. Its length is about four miles.—Harper's Weekly.

The Dissenting Parrot.

A parrot story is told regarding the great Chamberlain fiscal campaign in England. A London editor, weary of the favorite slogan of the opponents of Mr. Chamberlain, organized a fiscal parrot competition in which the parrot which could most impressively say "Your food will cost you more" would receive £25. Hundreds of Pollies were put into training, and scores of them appeared in St. James' hall to show how well they could voice the free fooders' contention. There was plenty of swearing and shrieking, and the winner was a gray African, and when he said his "Your food will cost you more" after five minutes' profound fiscal reflection his judgment greatly impressed both his feathered and his unfeathered auditors, except one hen parrot, which angrily shouted back:

"You're a liar!"

Presumably this indignant dissenter was a Chamberlain bird.

Story of a Portrait.

An interesting story comes from Guben, where a man recently bought a portrait of the Emperor Frederick, painted by Professor von Lenbach. As there was no signature, he wrote to the professor asking him to supply the missing detail, but was surprised to receive a reply that the portrait was a forgery, as the original was sold to a well known amateur and was already signed. An expert, however, expressed the opinion that the picture was genuine, and on examination of the canvas the professor stated that he had himself been victimized, as the work was genuine. He had painted two portraits, as one did not satisfy him, and he was about to sign the second when his steward substituted the first, and without detecting the difference he had signed it, and it duly reached its destination. The second canvas found its way with others to a Munich art dealer.

Growth of Money Order Business.

There is no business in the world that grows half so fast as the postal money order system. Last year total business increased at the [illegible] of $1,000,000 a week. The money order department will handle [illegible] week $1,000,000 more than it handled last week. It loses by [illegible] less than $1,000 a year. It showed its regular annual increase in [illegible] period of financial depression [illegible] 1893 to 1897, [illegible] the large business [illegible] country did.

Countries as Presents.

Cleopatra received Egypt as a present from Julius Cæsar. Lucullus, Sulla and Pompey each gave away half a dozen kingdoms. Antony gave the little kingdom of Judæa to Herod. One of the excellent stories of the past is that the Emperor Constantine gave Rome and all Italy to Pope Sylvester, who cured him of leprosy. King John, called Lackland, being excommunicated by Pope Innocent III., gave to that pope and his successors the kingdom of Ireland and England. The deed reads, "Not constrained with fear, but with my full consent and the advice of my barons, for the remission of my sins against God and the church, I resign England and Ireland to God, St. Peter, St. Paul and our lord the Pope Innocent, and to his successors in the apostolic chair." Julius II. gave the estates of King Louis XII. to the Emperor Maximilian. Sixtus V., Gregory XIV. and Clement VIII. were ready to make a present of France to whomsoever Philip II. would have chosen for the husband of his daughter Clara Eugenia. Alexander VI. presented the East and West Indies to Spain and Portugal, which was like giving almost all the earth.

The Birch.

Old writers in mentioning birch trees seldom failed to say solemnly that they were useful to grow branches with which to give boys thrashings. Turner regards the supply of "flexible, pendent branches" for purposes of punishment as the chief merit of the tree. Coles also based his estimate of the birch chiefly on its use in the supply of rods as instruments of punishment, for he writes: "The civil uses whereunto the birch serveth are many, as for the punishment of children, both at home and at school; for it hath an admirable influence upon them to quiet them when they are out of order, and therefore some call it makepeace." In ancient Rome the fasces of the lictors, with which they cleared the way for magistrates, were formed with rods of birch, and their influence was sufficient to insure a rapid dispersion of men assembled where they would impede the passage of the administrators of the law. From that time to within a comparatively recent period the birchen rod was regarded as one of the most important deterrents of juvenile depravity.

A Japanese Mimic.

A jolly little story is told by a contributor to an English paper about a curious faculty the Japanese have of imitating animals. "I remember some years ago," she says, "being at a Christmas juvenile party when a nephew of the mikado was present. The young prince got himself up by means of a muff, a sable mantle and a boa for a tail to look like some extraordinary feline and then crawled into the room where the Felis domestica was enjoying the hearth rug before the fire. There was something so sinuous and lifelike in his movements that the wretched grimalkin almost flew up the chimney with terror."

The Retort Disdainful.

Ellen Terry, the famous English actress, in the kindness of her heart once took a girl out of the poorhouse to train as a servant. But she was altogether hopeless and was continually breaking plates, dishes and everything she laid hands on, until Miss Terry thought that in time she might break her, so she dismissed her. But, not wishing the girl to come to any harm, when she was going away she asked her what she was going to do for a living. "Oh," she said disdainfully, "if the wust come to the wust, I can go on the stage."

The Color Violet.

It is said that of all colors violet is the one most stimulating to the eye coats and that the electric light, and more especially that given out by the large lamps used in many public places, is rich in violet rays. It is claimed violet dresses and draperies are responsible for many eye "cases" and for not a few of the skin troubles about which the dermatologist is frequently consulted.

Look Up.

The troubles of people are unnecessarily multiplied by the fact that they are forever looking down instead of up, which is only another way of saying that they live on a low plane instead of on a high one; that they breathe the miasmatic airs of the swamps instead of the pure ozone of the hills, and so miss the real meaning of the true happiness of life.

What He Wanted.

"A tall bride is the best looking, don't you think?"

"Well," replied the titled Englishman who had caught on to a little American slang, "so far as I am personally concerned I certainly am not looking for one who is 'short.'"—Chicago Post.

Blocking Him.

Carrie—I'm sure you misjudge Mr. Sweetser, papa. He is a man of great ambitions. You should hear him tell of the things he is going to do. Carrie's Papa—And I suppose I'm one of 'em, but I'll reckon he'll find it harder to accomplish than he fancies it is.

George Francis Train's Wit.

One of George Francis Train's sayings was: "People call me insane. I can't wonder. What would a village [illegible] say if a cocoanut rolled in [illegible]?"

Teeth.

[illegible] it is that you tell a [illegible] horse's teeth, but a [illegible] your own!—Town [illegible]

[illegible] fless. Be po- [illegible] contented to [illegible] be.

ALL OVER THE HOUSE.

Devices That Are Intended For Making Kitchen Labor Light.

Twenty thousand different sorts of articles is said to be a conservative estimate of the contents of a single house furnishing department. A large proportion of the wares are inventions for lightening kitchen and dining room work. There is no doubt that, while an oversupply of "contrivances" is ofttimes a snare to the dishwasher, penuriousness in the fitting up of kitchens with labor saving devices has filled the roll of many an intelligence office.

No cook or laundress with ordinary wit will do her work in an ancient, laborious manner when her friends are furnished with "short cuts" to the same ends. Old workers, to be sure, scorn new methods, but this is no oftener the case with maid than with mistress.

Among the inventions which have violated time honored traditions none has met with more scorn from both parlor and basement than the bread mixer. Lately several new developments in this line have appeared, each of which claims to have hit upon "just the right twist to the crank" to aerate the sponge beyond criticism. With them the work is done in less time and with less labor than in the old way, and no hand goes into the mixture.

Then for the woman who "loathes dishwashing" on the maid's day out there is a simple contrivance for the faucet which saves the hands from the murky bath. This consists simply of a rubber tube fitted with a faucet adjustment at one end and a round brush through which the water runs at the other. The brush is manipulated by a conveniently arranged handle.

A rack for cooking forks and spoons could be easily homemade. It is simply a strip of wood perforated with round holes big enough to admit the long handles. The back has screw eyes with which to hang it.

An egg boiler alarm clock has a dial marked with seven minutes and a tone that would wake the cook if she were asleep. It can be set at any minute within the limit of the dial. By a backward motion the hand points off the seconds until the gong announces "time up."

Parsley Butter.

To make parsley butter squeeze the juice from a lemon, strain it, remove the pulp and reject the seeds. Mince the pulp fine. Chip off the thin, yellow rind. Chop very fine a large spray of well washed parsley, using the leaves only. Rub an ounce of butter and an ounce of flour in a stewpan and stir over the fire until well mixed; then let it cook until it bubbles, but do not let it color; then put in the minced lemon, juice and peel, add a cup of clear stock, broth or water; season with a little ground mace and stir over the fire until it begins to thicken; add the chopped parsley and the beaten yolks of two eggs mixed with two or three tablespoonfuls of cold stock or water; cook for two minutes over a moderate heat and then serve.

A Coffee Suggestion.

Here is the latest coffee suggestion; it comes from Aunt Addie, in Brooklyn, says the New York Tribune:

"The best coffee in the world can be ruined by boiling or steeping in a coffeepot that is discolored by long use. The pot should be cleaned at least once a week by putting into it a tablespoonful of washing soda. Fill the pot with water. Let it stand all day on the back of the range; then wash and dry thoroughly. I prefer a cheap tin pot, which I can afford to throw away before it becomes discolored."

How to Stew Prunes.

A prize recipe for plain stewed prunes has been developed in response to a competition started by a California fruit growing association. As it was selected from those of many competitors, it may be supposed to represent the perfected process of serving this useful fruit in the simplest way. Wash one pound of prunes in several waters, nearly cover with water and let stand overnight. Then simmer on the back of the stove until tender. Just before removing from the stove add a large tablespoonful of sugar.

How to Cut a Bottle.

A bottle may be cut off by wrapping a cord saturated in coal oil around it several times, then setting fire to the cord and just when it has finished burning plunging the bottle into cold water and tapping on one end to break. Oddly shaped or prettily colored bottles make good vases. The top of a large bottle having a small neck makes a good funnel. Large round bottles make good jelly glasses. Sheet glass may be cut in the same way when one has no glass cutter.—Good Housekeeping.

JOHN E. KING, Chairman.
S. F. STAPLES, Secretary.

THAT St. Louis man who boasted that he could live on 15 cents a day has relapsed into profound silence since the big fair opened.

THE Duluth Herald remarks: "The American people make a great fuss when one man is kidnapped by a bandit, while they permit their government to kidnap seven millions and deprive them of their natural rights and political liberties."

THE Fergus Globe comments as follows: "Congressman Steenerson has decided to appoint his brother Elias to be postmaster at Crookston. And why not? Elias is a very competent man, and then it will keep the good things in the family."

THE Republican gubernatorial fight is still attracting a major share of the political attention. There seems to be no change in the situation. The Dunn forces are confident that they will win out without Hennepin county, and if they get that county there will be no occasion for a roll call at the state convention. The prospects in Hennepin seem to favor Dunn.

THE bottom has dropped out of the Hearst movement of late, and there is little likelihood that the New York editor will cut much of a figure at the St. Louis convention, as he has but little more than a hundred delegates pledged to him. Parker will probably not have more than two hundred delegates pledged, so the fight for the nomination will not be settled in advance of the convention. A dark horse is not unlikely, and the name of former Senator Charles A. Towne is frequently mentioned as being most likely to appease the warring elements of the party.

THE Prison Mirror, published and edited in the state penitentiary, has the following to say, and the writer evidently speaks from his own sad experience: "There is no more effective school for crime for boys than roaming the streets in idleness. In many cases, doubtless, parents are unable to control their children and wherever it is shown that is the case these boys ought to be turned over to the training school, where they cannot only be protected from the dangers to which they are exposed, but taught useful occupations and the lesson of obedience to authority."

THE post-office has now begun a campaign against fraudulent patent-medicine advertisers, a campaign in which the department expects to have the assistance of the leading periodical publishers. If such frauds can be refused the use of the mails they will be able to conduct their business only under great difficulties and many of them will have to go out of business altogether. The department is congratulated upon its new departure, but it is anticipated that it will have a great deal of difficulty in proving fraud in the first place. In the second place fraudulent concerns will be able to enlist in their behalf the army of venal publishers of all sorts who derive revenue from the worst class of patent-medicine advertisers.

THE Japanese have again demonstrated their superiority over the Russians on land. In the fighting on the Yalu and beyond the river, the Russian defeats could be explained on the theory that the Japanese had the advantage of great superiority of numbers and of heavier artillery. It was also said that the Russians had no intention of seriously disputing Kuroki's advance. The same explanations can not be made of the Japanese successes in last week's fighting incident to the advance on Port Arthur from the north. Wherever the Russians made a stand the Japanese had to take not one but a series of elaborate entrenchments, defended by heavy artillery and infantry occupying great heights. It is evident that there have been few more desperately fought battles than those of Kin-chow and Nan-shan.

GOOD CITIZENSHIP.

Rev. Thos. B. Gregory hit the nail on the head when he said that the moment a man reaches the stage where he thinks more of his dinner than he does of his duty, more of his coat than he does of his character, more of his standing in so-called "society" than he does of doing his plain duty as a man and citizen—that moment he ceases to be a factor in the preservation of the state. The reverend gentleman could have appropriately added that such a man then becomes a menace to good government, and together in the aggregate with others like himself he becomes a public danger of serious magnitude. If the franchise of American citizenship is worth dying for, it is certainly worth preserving in its purity. The nation has more to fear from within its own borders than it has from foreign foes.

The real greatness of a country is made up of those within its borders who lead lives of simplicity and of sobriety: whose motto is: 'Plain living and high thinking;" whoes grand business it is not to be amused, and flattered, and feasted, but to be doing something every day toward the promotion of the larger and sounder civilization of the coming time.

The Canadian Tariff.

Fairmont Sentinel: If a high tariff between the United States and Canada is a good thing why would not the same law be a good thing between Minnesota and Wisconsin, for instance? As a matter of fact there ought to be absolute free trade between this country and our neighbor on the north. It would help both and injure neither, but in our selfishness and greed and shortsightedness we have so often insulted the Canadians and repelled their friendly advances that they have come to regard us as commercial swine whom they had better stay away from. McKinley foresaw all this and Roosevelt knows it but the trusts and combines which now rule the republican party are heedless of McKinley's warning and have got the strings on Teddy so that he dare not speak without calling in Aldrich and asking what he may say.

PAYS BOUNTY ON WOLVES.

Since August State Has Paid $23,475 on This Account.

The state bounty on wolves, under the provision of the law enacted by the last legislature, bids fair to tap the state treasury for a sum largely in excess of any possible injury that wolves might do private property in the state if left unmolested. Clerks in the office of the state auditor Monday computed the amount paid out by the state during May in wolf bounties at $4,142.50, the bounty being $7.50 for each male or female full-grown wolf and $1 for cubs of either sex.

In many of the counties an additional bounty is paid to that given by the state, and the raising of wolves might easily become an established industry. Since Aug. 1, 1903, the beginning of the state's fiscal year, the state has paid out in wolf bounties $23,475. In the figures for May, Hubbard county heads the list with 102 animals destroyed, and the state is called upon to pay $765 to this one county alone. Ramsey, Kandiyohi, Waseca and Brown each present claims for but one full-grown wolf during the month. Red Lake county was paid $418.50 for 61 wolves.

The parochial school will close the latter part of the month. THE COURIER is pleased to learn that the school has reached a high standing among educational institutions of that nature. On and after June 1st bottled flavoring extracts sold in Minnesota will have to bear on the label the true nature of the contents. A standard has been laid down by the state dairy and food commission, and if there is any departure the label must say so. If not made of the pure fruit the goods must be marked "artificial." Goods now in stock provided they are not harmful, can be sold until next January, but after that the new rule will prevail in all cases.

You should buy your coffees from the Big Store. They sell the Chase & Sanborn coffees, which have been the leading coffees for fifty years. Don't think that 20c, 25c or 35c will buy the same grade of coffee in any store. This is great mistake. Some merchants make 2 or 3 cents per pound more than others do. We sell our coffees at a very low profit, thereby insuring the customer big value for the money. We also sell Barrington Hall "Seal Cut" and "White House."

FOURTEEN LIVES LOST AT PEORIA

FIRE DESTROYS THE BIG CORNING DISTILLERY ESTABLISHMENT IN ILLINOIS CITY.

In Addition to the Loss of Life Property Estimated in Value at $1,300,000 Is Burned—Three Thousand Cattle Perish.

Peoria, Ill., June 6.—Instead of ten dead, as first reported, it is now known that 14 men lost their lives in the fire and explosion at Corning's distillery Saturday afternoon, which caused a property loss of $1,300,000. Eight bodies were recovered from the ruins Sunday, four of which were identified. Those identified are: George Gebhardt, Peter Lettemeyer, Thomas E. Montgomery, Samuel Parsons. Elmer Hagen died at the hospital.

Other Victims.

The list of unidentified dead and missing is as follows: Ernest Brown, Milton Crowl, William Finley, Jr., John Hobaker, Frank Knoll, Louis Sax, Alec Powell, John Unsbee, Joseph Zimmerman. Of the eight bodies taken from the ruins, only four of them were recognized and these only by means of particles of clothing, watches, knives and other pieces of metal. The search is being continued, the fire having been extinguished and the workmen are now able to handle the debris. Six persons were injured.

Many Buildings Ruined.

The Corning distillery was the second largest establishment of the kind in the country. The property destroyed comprises a large warehouse, 11 stories high, made largely of corrugated iron, in which was stored 30,000 barrels of high-proof spirits, the cistern and fermenting departments, each in a three-story brick building, and the cattle sheds, containing 3,000 head of cattle, all of which were burned to death. Only the cookers are left of the entire plant.

The fire started in the warhouse. Bursting barrels released a stream of ignited spirits, which quickly spread the flames to all parts of the immense structure, and soon the explosion of thousands of casks hastened the destruction and made a noise that terrorized all that part of the city. In a short time the warehouse fell, crushing the smaller buildings near it, liberating a mass of burning debris. A stream of blazing spirits was turned into the cattle pens, turning them into a seething pool of flame, which quickly killed the animals confined there. The cattle were the property of Dodd & Keifer, of Chicago, and F. C. White & Co., of Peoria.

A Strange Experience.

Elmer Hogan had a strange experience. He was at work in the warehouse when the collapse came. He was washed out through a break in the building by the big stream of whisky. He was carried toward the river, a distance of nearly 75 feet before being lodged against a fence, from which he managed to escape before the fire overtook him. He was removed to the hospital in a badly injured condition and died at eight o'clock Saturday night.

The fire at the Corning plant is the third serious mishap that has befallen the company in the last few months. In October a cooker exploded, killing nine men. In December a wareouse burned, causing a loss of $40,000.

Killed by Lightning.

Boonville, Ind., June 3.—Three children were killed, one man fatally injured and a woman and child seriously injured Thursday by lightning, which partially destroyed their home near this city. The dead are: John Gentry, Jr., aged 14; Opal Gentry, aged ten; a baby two years old.

REVIEW OF TRADE.

Month of May Was Disappointing—Conditions Not Wholly Satisfactory.

New York, June 4.—Bradstreet's says: "The volume of May business both at wholesale and retail was disappointing, confirmation of this being found in decreases in bank clearings and in railway earnings from numerous, though less costly than in recent preceding months, while showing increases on a year ago. Iron and steel, bituminous coal and cotton manufacturing are notably quiet for this season of the year. There are, however, some signs underlying confidence in future trade. These consist of reports of improved inquiry for fall goods at some western, southern and eastern points, a rather better tone in the shoe and leather industry at the east, active buying at full prices of the new western wool clip, and fairly satisfactory reports from the woolen industry, notably that part dealing with the clothing trade. Collections partake of trade irregularity, but are still classable as fair. Prices of staple show a general sagging tendency, part of which is seasonal. Briefly summed up, the situation generally centers upon the probable outturn of the growing crops, and until this matter is settled most authorities look for comparative quiet in most lines. Among the industries iron and steel and bituminous coal note specially marked depression.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: "Interruptions of industrial progress by the holiday, labor conflicts and inclement weather again produced a somewhat unsatisfactory trade situation. Yet the money market is easy and accommodation readily obtained in legitimate business channels. Liabilities of mercantile failures are comparatively small, indicating that most concerns have prepared for a quiet season and are able to withstand a period of diminished sales and tardy payments. This conservative attitude is the fundamentally strong feature of the situation, and hen business revives there will be no pressure to dispose of heavy stocks of undesirable goods More manufacturing plants have reduced hours or wages, and several strikes have added to the army of unemployed.

"Commercial failures this week in the United States are 220, againt 226 last wesk, 236 the preceding week and 182 the corresponding week last year. Failures in Canada number 26, against 17 last week, 12 the preceding week and 24 last year."

MEMORIAL SERVICES.

Graves of Confederate Dead in Arlington Cemetery Decorated with Flowers.

Washington, June 6.—In the presence of thousands of ex-confederate and ex-union soldiers and of numbers of officers of the United States army and the G. A. R., the first formal memorial exercises ever held over the graves in the confederate section of Arlington cemetery took place Sunday. Flowers were placed on the graves. As the result of a movement initiated by the late President McKinley, the confederate dead now have been gathered in one large and beautiful circle in the southern part of the cemetery, where the graves have been marked with separate stones. Rev. Alexander W. Pitzer, pastor of the Southern Presbyterian church in this city, and an ex-confederate soldier, was the orator of the day.

The Public Debt.

Washington, June 2.—The monthly statement of the public debt shows that at the close of business May 31, 1904, the total debt, less cash in the treasury, amounted to $975,301,631, which is an increase for the month of $56,447,576. This increase is accounted for by a corresponding decrease in the amount of cash on hand due to Panama canal and St. Louis exposition payments.

Will Meet in New York.

New York, June 4.—The American Bankers' association has accepted the invitation from the bankers of Greater New York to hold its thirtieth annual convention in this city. The date is September 14-16.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

May Move the Town.

Within a short time the residents of Sparta may have to move their village as it is over one of the largest bodies of iron ore on the range. Underlying the entire town rich deposits of mineral have been discovered and it is simply a question of a short time when the site of what is now Sparta will be a large mine.

The United States Steel corporation is said to have control of most of the property in which ore has been found, and, while it is not known how soon operations will begin, it is understood that other shafts will be sunk within a short time. One drill is being sunk in the middle of the street of the town and about fifteen others at intervals of about 100 feet are being operated. The deposits shown by these means have always been of the highest grade and in almost unlimited quantities.

Sanitarium.

The state board of control has purchased a large tract of land near Leach Lake on which the sanitarium for consumptives provided for by the last legislature will be located. The board is negotiating for more land and ultimately plans to have approximately six hundred acres.

It is probable that no buildings will be erected on the tract this year, as the appropriation of $25,000 is scarcely enough to buy the land, construct the buildings and maintain the institution on a large scale until another appropriation is secured. It has been suggested that tents in which the consumptives may live the summer be pitched on the tract, and should they decide not to erect any buildings it is probable that this will be done.

Found Ore.

The search for mineral deposits, which has been in progress at Swanville, has so far resulted in the discovery of apparently large body of rich iron ore near the village. Local capitalists have taken the matter in hand and will immediately try to determine the extent of the deposit. They have secured options on a large tract of the land supposed to contain the ore and experts are expected to be on ground immediately and commence the work. There are many parties now out among the hills prospecting for minerals of the kinds that are thought to exist there, and the finding of other large and valuable bodies of ore are expected at any time.

Money Received.

The state board of control turned into the state treasury the following April receipts from state institutions: State prison, $7,142.66; Rochester hospital, $1,091.63; school for the feeble minded, $947.42; state reformatory, $777.23; Fergus Falls hospital, $333.68; training school, $317.42; Mankato normal, $215.22; Hastings asylum; $22,02; school for the deaf; $199.04; Winona normal, $173,30; St. Cloud normal, $158.45; St. Peter hospital, $107.41; Duluth normal, $103.90; school for the blind, $58.11; state public school, $32; Anoka asylum, $28.50; Moorhead normal, $20.10.

Fatally Burned.

Writhing in agony, Mrs. C. C. Sanford, living at 120 Willow street, Minneapolis, was carried to the city hospital fatally burned, her dressing sacque having caught fire from the flames of a gasoline stove.

The woman's screams, when she saw her danger, brought many neighbors to the scene and although she was rolled in blankets and coats were thrown about her, her entire body was badly burned before the flames were extinguished. Physicians who attended her declare that she has but a slight chance for recovery.

Forest Fires.

Homesteaders in the northern part of St. Louis county are worried over the condition of the surrounding timber lands. They assert that the lumber companies which operated last winter neglected to burn the tops and bushes as they are required by law to do. The woods are full of dry and decaying timber which would burn with remarkable swiftness.

There are about fifty homesteaders in the immediate vicinity and the state fire wardens will be notified of the dangerous situation.

Fish for St. Louis.

The Minnesota game and fish commission has borrowed a fish car from the Pennsylvania commission and will ship the Minnesota fish exhibit to the St. Louis exposition in a few days. The car will arrive in St. Paul and will leave for Alexandria soon after to get a collection of bass and pike. It will will then be transported to Cass Lake, where a second collection will be made. The exhibit will include trout, bass, pike and muscallonge.

News Notes.

Fire caused a loss of $300 in the feed store of Brings & Co., 318 West Seventh street, St. Paul.

According to the Insurance Press for June the amount of money paid to the beneficiaries of life insurance policies in Minnesota during 1903 was $2,950,631.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gerner, of St. Paul, will spend their honeymoon in a chicken coop.

Much excitement was caused at Fertile by what appeared to be an attempt at suicide by Mrs. Dr. A. Nelson. Mrs. Nelson has seasons of great depression over divorce proceedings recently instituted by her husband.

Philip Bardon, in a suit filed in the district court of St. Paul, claims that his telephone knocked him across the room and inflicted severe injuries upon his person, for which he sues the Northwestern Telephone Company for $5,000 alleged damages.

TWELVE KILLED IN DYNAMITE BLAST

DASTARDLY PLOT AGAINST NONUNION MINERS AT INDEPENDENCE, COL.

EXPLOSION OCCURS AT THE RAILWAY STATION

Infernal Machine Deliberately Set Off Under Platform on Which Victims Are Standing—List of the Dead—Several Seriously Injured.

Cripple Creek, Col., June 7.—Twelve miners were instantly killed and eight or ten others badly injured by an explosion that occurred after midnight at the Independence station of the Florence & Cripple Creek railroad. The cause of the explosion has not been ascertained, but apparently it was the result of a dastardly plot against the nonunion miners on the night shift at the Shurtloff, Findlay and Lost Dollar mines, who had just finished work and were about to return to their homes. These men had no warning whatever of their impending fate.

The explosion occurred beneath the platform on which they were standing, hurling many of them high into the air, destroying the adjoining depot and rending a great hole in the earth.

List of the Victims.

Following is a list of the dead: L. S. Shinklin, Cager; J. H. Hartsell, ——— Berkeley, Gus Augustine, Arthur Muhleson, Henry J. Haag, Eleck McLain, shift boss, Charles E. Barber, William Delano, E. J. Johnson, Edward Ross, E. Kelso, Herbert McCoy.

McCoy was taken from the ruins alive, but died in the Victor hospital.

Eight men were taken to the Victor and Red Cross hospitals fatally injured.

Learn Cause of Outrage.

Later detectives found the machine which set off the dynamite under the platform. It consists of a revolver and 300 feet of steel wire. The revolver was placed underneath the platform close to the powder. The other end of the wire was fastened to a chair leg, which was used as a lever from the cribbings of the Delmonico property. The whole district is up in arms over the catastrophe, and danger of further trouble is feared. A number of fist-fights have already occurred. Guns will doubtless soon be brought into play, if conditions remain as they are.

Independence is about six miles from this city by rail. A special train, carrying physicians, was dispatched to the scene of the explosion at four o'clock, and the injured were taken to the Victor hospital. Sheriff Robertson, with deputies and police officers of both Cripple Creek and Victor, went to Independence on the special train, and immediately began a careful search for clews to the perpetrators of the outrage.

The train had not arrived at the Independence depot, but was within a short distance of it when the explosion occurred. About 45 or 50 miners from the Shurtloff, Findlay and Lost Dollar mines had gathered at the depot platform and they were blown into the air in every direction. One man's body, cut in two, was found 100 yards from the scene of the explosion. Seven bodies were laid out together and the remnants of others were secured as fast as possible. On account of the terrible nature of their wounds identification was difficult.

Description of Disaster.

Charles Rector, of the Shurtloff mine, describes the explosion.

"There were about 50 or 60 of us," said he, "waiting for our train, which was coming up the track a few hundred feet distant. A number of miners who had not yet reached the depot were running toward it with their dinner buckets in hand. The train approached the depot at a moderate rate, and the crowd on the platform began to move around to secure points of vantage in getting aboard as soon as the train stopped. At this moment a great explosion occurred right under our feet. The impact shook the buildings in the town and everything became absolutely dark. A few moments later the groans of the injured were heard and people came running from residences and stores to the scene. I was uninjured. The depot, platform and the surrounding objects were rent into splinters. The work of rescue was begun at once. Six badly wounded miners were picked up at different points near the scene and were quickly carried to the train and sent to Victor. The dead were found after much difficulty. There was almost total darkness in the vicinity."

Depot Entirely Destroyed.

The train was in charge of Engineer W. W. Rush and Fireman James Gardner, who escaped unhurt. The train consisted of two large passenger coaches, and was without passengers, as this was the first trip of the morning, and Independence was the first station where passengers were expected. It is supposed that at least 200 pounds of dynamite must have been used to produce such an explosion. The depot was entirely destroyed. The ground on which it stood shows a great gash, as if an earthquake had torn up the country and left this yawning cavity to remind the people of a great upheaval. The impact of the explosion was felt in every direction.

DEMOCRATS OF MICHIGAN.

The State Convention at Detroit Is Dominated by the Anti-Hearst Element.

Detroit, June 2.—The anti-Hearst element in the Michigan democracy, headed by Daniel J. Campau, of Detroit, national committeeman from this state, triumphed over the Hearst supporters at every stage of the democratic state convention held here Wednesday to select delegates to the national convention, and an uninstructed delegation will be sent to the convention. While there are some Hearst men among the district delegates to St. Louis, the delegation was instructed to vote as a unit. The following were elected delegates-at-large to the national convention: Daniel J. Campau, of Detroit; Thomas E. Barkworth, of Jackson; John Power, of Escanaba, and George D. Jackson, of Bay City. The alternates are: Judge James J. Phelan, of Detroit; C. W. Hendricks, of Cass; Hiram Hoyt, of Muskegon, and George W. Weadock, of Saginaw.

Gov. Dockery Stops Bull Fight in St. Louis—Angry Spectators Fire the Building.

St. Louis, June 6.—Incensed over their failure to see a "genuine Spanish bull fight," which Gov. Dockery had ordered stopped, a riot was started in an arena near the world's fair grounds Sunday evening by a crowd of 2,500 men and boys who were unable to get their money back, and the building was burned to the ground. The price of admission charged was one dollar. Four men were placed under arrest by the authorities of St. Louis county, charged with the destruction of the property. The crowd, thinking these men were connected with the show, made an attempt to mob them and in their encounter with the deputy sheriffs a number were roughly handled and some received scalp wounds. The building is said to have cost $2,500. It is a total loss, with no insurance, it is reported.

Disaster on Missouri Pacific Road in Which Nine Persons Lost Their Lives.

The trains, which met head-on, were the westbound Colorado limited, No. 1, and the eastbound Hoisington, Kan., accommodation, No. 36. A message received by Missouri Pacific officials here ordered them to send a relief train as soon as possible and to get all the surgeons obtainable, from which it is inferred that numerous passengers were hurt.

PRESS FORWARD TO PORT ARTHUR

JAPANESE SAID TO HAVE OCCUPIED FIRST LINE OF OUTER FORTIFICATIONS.

Feeble Resistance Is Offered—Heavy Artillery Placed on Heights Overlooking the Great Russian Stronghold.

London, June 4.—The Rome correspondent of the Central News telegraphs: "A Tokio dispatch to the Giornale d'Italia says that the Japanese have occupied the first line of the outer fortifications of Port Arthur after a feeble resistance. The correspondent at Tokio of the news agency Liberas says that four divisions of Japanese troops have occupied Kwantung heights, on which they placed heavy artillery dominating Port Arthur. The same correspondent adds that the Russian squadron attempted a sortie, but was forced to return, being threatened by the Japanese fleet."

Serious Defeat for Russians.

London, June 6.—The Daily Telegraph's Tientsin correspondent wires: "Four thousand Russians belonging to Gen. Stakelberg's brigade on May 31 attacked 1,500 Japanese occupying a position five miles south of Wafangtien. The Russians were repulsed, losing 200 killed and 400 wounded. The Japanese lost more than 100 killed.'"

Russians Driven Back.

Tokio, June 6.—The Japanese and Russian forces located north of Pulantien, which were in a series of brushes during the early part of last week, had another encounter on Friday, June 3, near Chuchiatun. On that day the Japanese cavalrymen met the Rusisans at noon. The Rusisans numbered 2,000 men, and were composed of infantry, detachments of cavalry and artillery. They were pressing the Japanese cavalry when the Japanese assembled their entire force and engaged the enemy. The Russians drew off gradually and at half past five in the afternoon they retired to Telishu. The Japanese suffered four men killed and four men wounded in this fighting.

Important Events Pending.

London, June 6.—That the curtain is drawn again over the progress of the war probably indicates that important events are impending or afoot. The explosions heard at Port Arthur suggests that the Russians have renewed their attempts to remove obstructions in the mouth of the harbor. All kinds of rumors are current, few of which appear to have any reliable basis. Various special correspondents in St. Petersburg report increasing depression in Russia over the prospect of the fall of Port Arthur and say that wild reports are in circulation as to dissensions between the generals and the highest officials over questions of policy and strategy. The Daily Mail gives great prominence to a statement "from a Russian correspondent" declaring that Rusisa will stand or fall by Port Arthur as far as the government's prestige with the lower classes is concerned.

Relief Force Advancing.

Paris, June 6.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Matin says he learns from a trustworthy source that the advance guard of 14,000 men under Gen. Stakelberg, sent by Gen. Kuropatkin to the relief of Port Arthur, has already reached the entrance to the Liaotung peninsula, and that the bulk of the army is following. The correspondent of the Matin at Newchwang confirms this, stating that important movements of Russian troops are proceeding to the southward of Tachichao toward Kaiping.

Against Kuropatkin's Judgment.

London, June 3.—Telegrams from different points seem to confirm the rumors that Gen. Kuropatkin is attempting a diversion in the direction of Port Arthur. Russian reinforcements, according to a dispatch from Tientsin, are moving southward from Kaiping towards Wafangtien under Gen. Stalkenberg. They comprise a battery of artillery, four Siberian regiments and a company of Cossacks, aggregating 12,000 men. Another brigade is following, the intention being to engage the Japanese now attacking Port Arthur in their rear.

These reports are received with a certain measure of skepticism in London. The belief here is that if Gen. Kuropatkin is undertaking such a desperate move he can only be doing so in deference to the strongest political pressure and against his own better judgment.

Made Commander-in-Chief.

London, June 4.—A dispatch from Tokio to the Daily Express says that Field Marshal Yamagata has been appointed commander-in-chief of all the forces in the field. He is expected to proceed to Liaotung district shortly.

A Woman Killed.

Burlington, Ia., June 6.—A heavily loaded electric street car rushed down Valley street hill Sunday afternoon and was wrecked against a shade tree. The passengers jumped as the car flew along. Sixteen were badly injured. Mrs. Joseph Keehn was killed. Ora J. Gould, publisher of the city directory, had his shoulder broken. Several others had arms and legs broken, and many were badly cut about the head and shoulders.

Negro Lynched.

Arlington, Ga., June 2.—Arthur Thompson, a negro, shot and killed M. L. Dudley, a young white man, early Tuesday evening. A crowd of men captured the negro, lynched him and riddled the body with bullets before midnight.

BERTHA WAS NOT HIS WIFE

Judge Tarrant Finds the California Statutes Do not Recognize Common-Law Marriages.

Final hearing on the contested Rapp will case was held before Judge Tarrant yesterday, and this afternoon a decision was rendered refusing to grant the application of Miss Bertha Pederson to participate in the estate of the late Charles G. Rapp. It is alleged by Miss Pederson that Mr. Rapp and herself had contracted a common-law marrirge in California last winter, and that she was entitled to the widow's dower. The findings of fact by Judge Tarrant are as follows:

That no ceremony of marriage was ever performed whereby said petitioner was married to Chas. G. Rapp, deceased.

That common-law marriages do not exist in and are prohibited by the laws of the state of California.

That said. petitioner is not the widow and was not the wife of said Charles G. Rapp.

The conclusions of law are that "the petitioner is not entitled to participate in his estate; that her petition is and the same is hereby denied, and the same is hereby ordered."

Dragging Pains

2825 Keeley St.,
Chicago, Ill., Oct,, 2, 1902.

I suffered with falling and congestion of the womb, with severe pains through the groins. I suffered terribly at the time of menstruation, had blinding headaches and rushing of blood to the brain. What to try I knew not, for it seemed that I had tried all and failed, but I had never tried Wine of Cardui, that blessed remedy for sick women. I found it pleasant to take and soon knew that I had the right medicine. New blood seemed to course through my veins and after using eleven bottles I was a well woman.

Maude Bush

Mrs. Bush is now in perfect health because she took Wine of Cardui for menstrual disorders, bearing down pains and blinding headaches when all other remedies failed to bring her relief. Any sufferer may secure health by taking Wine of Cardui in her home. The first bottle convinces the patient she is on the road to health.

MEEHAN TAX CASE DECIDED

Supreme Court Decides the Suit in Favor of Red Lake County Last Friday.

The Meehan tax case was decided last Friday by the supreme court in favor of Red Lake county. This means that the Meehans will be obliged to pay nearly $1,000 of personal property taxes for the year 1902.

The litigation arose over the disputed ownership of a large drive of logs in the Red Lake river at Thief River Falls. The logs were assessed to P. & J. Meehan, and the payment of the taxes was resisted on the ground that the logs had been sold to the Thief River Lumber company and that they were not the property of the Meehans on the first day of May.

Suit was brought by County Attorney Grady in behalf of the county for the collection of the taxes levied, and the decision Friday is the end of the litigation extending over a period of a year and a half. It is a substantial victory for the county, and a big feather in the county attorney's hat.

The Fairmont Sentinel makes this very pointed inquiry:

"Will some one kindly tell us, now that Lieut. Gov. Ray Jones has been proven guilty, why he should not be prosecuted criminally?"

To which the St. Peter Herald adds: "Will some of our friends of the opposite party please supply the answer to the question?"

Skipping as an Exercise.

Dr. Bond of Gloucester, England, recommends skipping rope as an exercise especially in all cases of weak heart. He says it gives vigor to the muscles and tone to the circulation, even in a subject no longer in the hey-dey of youth. A systematic use of golden grain belt beer coupled with this exercise would surely do wonders for anyone who is not in the best of health. For this delightful tonic, brewed from the finest barley malt and hops, has a peculiarly beneficial and health giving effect on the nervous system as well as upon the digestive and other bodily functions. THE RED LAKE INDIAN RESERVATION will be opened for settlement on : : : : : : : : : :

MONDAY, JUNE 20, 1904.

This tract is located in Red Lake county, lying northeast of and most of it is tributary to Red Lake Falls, the county seat. It comprises about eleven townships, over 255,000 acres of fine agricultural land. A large portion of it is ready for the breaking plow. It is bounded on the south by the Clearwater river, and that stream, with the Red Lake river which flows across the tract from southeast to northwest, nearly through its center, together with the small streams which flow into them, form a source of drainage for some of the land which at present is too low for cultivation.

The tract is dotted here and there with fine groves of various kinds of timber, comprising poplar, elm, ash, oak, basswood and birch. All but the first named are usually found near the streams.

The soil is for the most part a black sandy loam with a clay subsoil and very rich. Lying between the two rivers and near the best new town on the Soo line, 12 miles N. E. of Red Lake Falls, is to be found a large tract of dry tillable land. This tract our locaters are thoroughly familiar with. Lying also north of the Red Lake river is another large tract of dry tillable land. This we reach from Thief River Falls.

Remember our locaters who have been looking over this land are thoroughly familiar withit and are strictly reliable, and we guarantee you will get what you buy, every time.

The Great Northern and Northern Pacific run through Red Lake Falls and when the Soo line is completed, which will be this fall, Red Lake county will have three trunk lines, giving us cheap freight rates to and from the cities.

Remember the sale will commence Monday, June 20, and will continue until all the land is sold. This land is to be sold in tracts of 160 acres only to each settler, and the fact that you have used your homestead right does not bar you from getting a quarter section of this choice land.

The sale will be held at Thief River Falls.

The land will be sold at auction to the highest bidder at not less than $4.00 per acre.

The terms of sale are one-fifth of purchase price at the time of sale, and the balance in five equal annual payments, with no interest.

We advise you to get here about the 16th in order to look over the land before the sale opens, although it will continue probably for nearly two weeks.

You can come direct to Red Lake Falls over the Great Northern or Northern Pacific railway and we will meet you by team or our locaters will meet you at St. Hilaire and take you out east to the fine tract between the rivers, or we will go on to Thief River Falls and our locaters will show you that fine tract.

Teams will be furnished and our price for locating will be as low as the lowest.

Come and see us or write.

FARMERR QUIT DAIRYING.

Find it Hard to Get Girls to Do the "Slave's Work."

Miller, S. D., Special, June 1.—Those who in years past watched with pleasure the rise from pioneer hardships to independence of the farmers, now look with some concern upon a new situation, for the farmers, or large numbers of them, have actually quit milking cows and selling butter. And the abandonment of the dairy industry is causing a scarcity of money. It previously meant a weekly income to every household that sold butter, and the family that did not was looked upon as a black sheep so universal was the custom. The income, so sure and often, varied from four or five to thirty or forty dollars a week, owing to the number of cows milked. Each farmer had a cream separator and shipped high grade butter direct to the cities. Butter checks became monotonous to the banks for the farmers were keeping the cashiers busy cashing them. It was the hard work of dairying and the impossibility of hiring girls at any price to do a "slave's work," as they called it, that caused the stampede out of the business. The calves were allowed to run with the cows, some hogs were bought, and also sheep and horses, which with the raising of grain, it was thought would make life easy.

But the cow now comes home, not carrying home with her the making of a butter check, but on her back the Taxas itch, because she had to hustle with strange critters. The sheep have the scab; the hogs fall off in price a little, and many of the horses stray away, while the grain cannot be marketed until fall. It requires pin money now to get things running for the fall sales, and the butter check is missing.

The lesson may be a valuable one, as there is likely to be a stampede by the stockmen and farmers of this slope back to the cream separator.

WELCOME TO CLASS OF 1904

Alumni of Red Lake Falls High School Hold Reception at E. L. Healy Home.

The first annual alumni reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Healy last Saturday night, when the twenty-nine alumni of the Red Lake Falls high school welcomed the eleven seniors into their organization.

At 8:30 o'clock the hosts and guests were assembled, and the evening was spent in talking of old school days, interspersed with numbers of a pleasing program which had been carefully prepared. Miss Katie Berthiaume ('02) gave an address of welcome to the seniors, touching on the days that had been and would always remain in their memory, and wishing each and all of the alumni body success and happiness as it larger grew. Miss Lulu Fletcher ('03) read that awful and horror-filling yet beautiful selection of Edgar Allen Poe's "The Black Cat," in such a manner as to hold her hearers and produce profound silence. The Misses Marjorie Rodgers ('03) and Josephine Kaus ('01) rendered in a classical way an instrumental duet, which was much appreciated. Miss Bertha LaFreniere ('02) and Mrs. Peter Lundquist ('03) gave recitations which showed careful preparation and were well received. Miss Delia Toupin ('03) sang one of her pleasing solos so beautifully as to call for an encore. This was followed by a general good time in singing old school songs.

A long table had been arranged on the spacious porch and covers were laid for thirty. The cloth was strewn with pansies, ferns and Minnesota's state flower, while festoons of green and white diamond shaped cards, representing the class pin, hung from each electric light. A carnation was laid on each plate and a large bunch of white ones standing in the center of the table topped the whole off. Light refreshments were served.

The remainder of the porch was hung with draperies and filled with rugs, easy chairs and japanese lanterns. Frappe was available thruout the evening in one corner and cosy corners filled other parts. The whole presented a very pleasing sight.

After refreshments more school songs were enjoyed and Sunday morning only too soon broke up the jolly party, the first annual reception of the alumni of the Red Lake Falls high school. May they live long and prosper.

FIRST STATE BANK.....

THE EAGLE WILL SCREAM!

The Fourth of July is to be celebrated at Red Lake Falls this year on the most elaborate scale ever attempted in Red Lake county. At a meeting held at the city hall Monday evening it was unanimously agreed that we ought to celebrate, and a committee on finance was appointed to raise the necessary funds. This committee is composed of J. A. Duffy, R. E. Wyer, S. L. Lewis, C. N. Bourdon and J. H. Paradis, and up to last evening they had more than $500 subscribed, with several hundred more in sight. It is thought that at least $800 will be raised.

As an instance of the enthusiasm manifested in the celebration, Mayor Duffy heads the list with a personal subscription of $50, the First State Bank gives $50, and in the $25 class are Berthon & Armstrong, Garceau & Zaiser, Dr. N. M. Watson, Theo. LaBissoniere, J. H. Paradis, H. L. Veigel, Fred Borchers, J. M. Bray and J. E. Bray. A complete list of the subscribers will be published next week.

Another meeting will be appointed in a few days to appoint committees on arrangements, program, music, etc., and by next week the celebration will have assumed definite shape.

Agents Tracy and Mizen have taken up the matter of special trains for the occasion, and it is expected that excursions will be brought to town on both railroads.

Make up your mind to come to Red Lake Falls to celebrate. We are going to have a good time ourselves and want all our friends to come and pull a few tail feathers from the American eagle.

TO SUPPLY THE CASH.

Banks at Thief River Prepare for an Emergency.

A Thief River dispatch says the local banks have made elaborate arrangements to meet the extraordinary demand that will be made on them during the sale of the lands of the Red Lake reservation. At previous sales of this kind much delay and inconvenience has been caused prospective purchasers through the operation of the rule of the government that only United States currency will be accepted in the payment for land. Many come from a distance and are provided with certificates of deposit and other papers which has to be turned into cash. To meet this demand the government has agreed to deposit each day's receipts, which are expected to average as high as $25,000, with the local banks and accept in return a telegraphic certificate of deposit from the United States depositories at Minneapolis, the local banks having made arrangements with the latter banks to issue certificates at the close of each day for the amount turned over by the government's agents. This will greatly facilitate business and will insure an abundance of currency to care for the demand from purchasers.

BARRED FROM THE LANDS.

Commissioner Richards Tells Who May Not File.

The general land office is sending out one of the largest maps ever prepared at the department. It is a reproduction of the Red Lake Indian reservation covering eleven townships and is to be used by the auctioneer who will begin selling Red Lake lands on June 20. Each tract of 160 acres is brought out in relief for the benefit of all bidders who may attend the sale. The map will require a good-sized building to permit its being properly shown. In addition 5,000 small maps are being prepared for the use of bidders to check off as lands are disposed of.

Commissioner Richards has issued the following additional circular stating that the following persons are not qualified to make homestead entry in Red Lake ceded lands:

First—Any person who has made a homestead entry after Feb. 20, 1904, and is not entitled to make another entry under the act of April 28, 1904.

Second—A married woman, unless she has been deserted or abandoned by her husband.

Third—One not a citizen of the United States and who has not declared his intention to become such.

Fourth—Anyone under 21 years of age, not the head of a family unless he served in the army or navy of the United States for not less than fourteen days during actual war.

Fifth—Any one who is proprietor of more than 160 acres in any state or territory.

Sixth—One who has acquired title to, or is now claiming under any of the agricultural public land laws, in pursuance of settlement or entries made since Aug. 30, 1890, an amount of land which, with tract now sought to be entered, will exceed in aggregate 320 acres.

It is given out that the Soo town in Poplar River has been officially established on the northwest quarter of section 14, as predicted by the Courier a few weeks ago. The town in Emardville has not yet been officially determined, but knowing ones say that it will be on section 4. There will also be a a town in Wyandotte township, about due east of St. Hilaire.

DAIRYMEN WILL PICNIC

Long List of Prominent Speakers to Address Creamery Patrons at St. Hilaire Saturday.

The first annual picnic of the dairymen of Red Lake county will be held on the beautiful banks of the Red Lake river in St. Hilaire, on Saturday, June 18. The picnic grounds are located on the east side of the river, near the east sluice-way, and can be reached by team by crossing the north bridge and driving down the road on the east side of the river, or by foot by going past the saw-mill and crossing the foot bridge.

The programme, definitely arranged, will be speeches in the forenoon and afternoon and dinner between 12 and 1:30 p. m. Each family will bring their baskets along and have their dinner in any way suitable to themselves.

Among those secured for speakers are Dairy and Food Commissioner W. W. P. McConnell, Prof. T. L. Hoecker, Col. Wilkinson, Prof. T. A. Hoverstad and Mr. W. W. Prichard.

Arrangements are being made to have a band present to play accompaniments to the music of the rippling waters. Throw away your cares for one day; come enjoy yourself; meet old and make new acquaintances while you rest gather in the valuable information which we are sure this list of speakers will give.

Who's Who?

A good man and a bad man came with gifts and laid them at the alter.

And the church took unto herself the gifts of both.

"It is not for me," saith the church, "to separate the wheat from the tares. Let them grow together till the time of harvest."

The next year only the bad man came with gifts.

"Where is thy brother?" asked the church, anxiously.

"Oh, he and I formed a trust, and now he is working me for $1.50 a day," replied the bad man.

And the time of harvest was stil afar off.—Puck.

RURAL SCHOOLS DECLINING.

Supt. Olsen Finds City Compeition Too Keen for Them.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction J. W. Olsen in a circular just issued, declares that the rural schools have not kept pace with other educational institutions.

The only solution of the problem, Mr. Olsen thinks the consolidation of the rural schools and the transportation of pupils to the schools at state expense. The isolated condition of the average rural school, he says, is so great that attendance is discouraged. In response to inquiries, he finds twenty-six county superintendents who favor transportation of pupils at state expense. They agree that it is the only way to compete with the city school.

REMOVING INDIAN DEAD.

Contract Let To Jos. Duchamp for $14.50 Per Head Last Saturday.

Thief River Press: The contract of removing the dead Indians from the reservation was awarded to Jos. DuChamp at a contract price of $14,50 per haad. Ed. Langevin was first given the contract but he being unable to fulfil all of the requirments, the work was let to Mr. Duchamp, the next lowest bidder.

Joe immediately bought the gasoline launch belonging to Ole Pederson, hired a force of men and began the work. Up to Wednesday evening he had removed 57 Indians from their last resting place(as they had supposed)and had them loaded on his boat ready for removal to the places designated. There are about 100 dead in all and he has until June 20 to effect the removal of all the bodies on the lands to be opened.

Transported Salt.

A new theory explaining the salt water of the Dead sea is that the salt is transported through the atmosphere from the Mediterranean by means of wind and rain. This does not necessarily conflict with the fact that there is salt in the soil and rocks around the inland sea and more than golden grain belt beer does with the highest standard of health. The harmony of nerves and bodily functions is often disturbed unless regulated systematically through the use of this tonic. Being brewed from the finest barley, malt and hops, and moreover, mild and delicious in taste, it an ideal beverage for daily use in the home. BANISHMENT FOR COLORADO MINERS

AS RESULT OF STRIKES IN CRIPPLE CREEK REGION, MILITARY DEPORTS UNIONISTS.

Taken by Train to Kansas State Line, and Dumped on Open Prairie—Sheriff Appears and Drives Them Back Into Colorado.

Syracuse, Kan., June 11.—Ninety-eight deported Victor (Col.) miners, sent out from their state on a special train in charge of half a hundred Colorado militiamen, were literally dumped into Kansas Saturday and left destitute upon the prairie.

The miners had been placed on the train, which a special made up by the authorities in control in the disturbed Colorado town, and in charged of well-armed militiamen started for the east late Friday. At La Junta, Col., where the first stop was made, the cars were closely guarded. The miners were not permitted to leave the cars, nor were any of the hundred or so men who gathered at the station allowed to communicate with them.

Landed on Deserted Prairie.

When a point in Kansas half a mile east of the Colorado state line was reached early Saturday a halt was made. It was a deserted spot on the wild prairie, with no railway station, eating houses nor farmer's house within several miles.

Without delay the men were disembarked, the engine was reversed, and the militiamen reboarded the train. Lieut. Cole, the officer in command of the guard, instructed the miners plainly that they were not wanted in Colorado, and told them they had better go east.

Half a dozen of the soldiers fired a volley into the air to intimidate the men, and the train started west with the militiamen, leaving the miners to make their way to some habitation as best they might.

Driven Out by Sheriff.

While the miners were deciding upon what they were to do, Sheriff Jack Brady, of Hamilton county, Kan., and 40 armed deputies arrived on the scene and ordered the unhappy men back to Colorado. Three of the miners had already started east afoot. The others retraced their steps at the command of the Kansas officers along the railroad track westward. After a long, weary tramp, they straggled into Holly, Col., a small town near the Colorado-Kansas boundary, where they were furnished food at the big Salvation Army station located there.

Sheriff Brady, notwithstanding the instructions he received from Topeka, kept his force of deputies at the state line until late in the afternoon to prevent any of the miners from coming across. He returned at night, being satisfied that the men would not come into Kansas. The Colorado authorities will not be allowed to dump their deported men into Hamilton.

Charged with Murder.

Victor, Col., June 13.—Charges of murder were drawn up Friday against 60 of the men confined in the bull pen here, and they were taken to the county jail. This move was made shortly after the coroner's jury had handed down a verdict holding the Western Federation of Miners responsible for the dynamite outrage at Independence.

A member of the court of inquiry said: "We have evidence that will legally hang five and possibly double that number, and enough to fill the penitentiary. We have unearthed a state of things that the public will be slow to believe; that we ourselves are appalled at, even knowing, as we have, that they were bad. We would be doing the public a wrong to turn these people loose upon it. They must be punished and will be, now the laws are enforced."

Determined to Kill Unionism.

Cripple Creek Col., June 10.—"Death to unionism in the Cripple Creek district," is the new slogan of the Citizens' alliance which has sent a decree broadcast that every person connected with any union must either sever his or her connection with such organization or leave the district. A form is being prepared for presentation to every merchant and business man and other employers of labor in the entire district, pledging them not to employ any person who is affiliating with a labor union. This is considered the most drastic step yet taken by the alliance since it secured the upper hold in the district, and its enforcement will affect 3,000 men and women now affiliated with the various unions. Among the unions that will be affected with the new movement are the clerks, cooks and waiters, bartenders, carpenters, electricians, trainmen and stone and brick masons. The unionists assert they will fight the movement to a finish.

Heavy Cost of Strike.

The cost of the various strikes in Colorado during the past 16 months is estimated at $23,036,000. Of this amount the state has had to pay $630,000 for maintaining troops in the field, and the loss to strikers and others directly affected in wages, etc., and to the employers in loss of business is placed at $22,400,000.

Mystery Solved.

Des Moines, Ia., June 10.—Mrs. Miller, an aged negro woman, confessed on her deathbed in Keokuk Thursday that she had brained Pleasant Cousins, and old colored man with a piece of gaspipe in Burlington in 1901. The death of Cousins has been a mystery which the Burlington police have tried in vain to solve for over two years. The woman killed Cousins for his money and afterward rifled the body.

The Razor Crank.

"A man may be quite rational and reasonable in all ordinary affairs and yet be quite daffy on the subject of razors," said the barber. "I have one customer, for instance, who keeps six razors here—one for every day in the week that a man is supposed to get shaved—and pays me to hone them every week. Some mornings I have to try them all on him before he stops grumbling and even then may have to use one of my own razors. At other times he will order me to use the same razor for a week or two. I can't fool him by changing it either.

"Another customer who comes in only for an occasional shave talked to me for six months about the fine razor he had at home. I told him that as we seemed to have none in the shop to suit him I should be obliged if he would bring it around for me to look at. He did. Well, sir, it was a meat ax. I would as soon think of shaving a man with a carving knife. But I shaved him with it, and he never peeped."—New York Press.

"By and By" and "By the Bye."

Johnson's definition of "by and by," now generally written "by and bye," is "in a short time," corresponding to the French tout a l'heure, and Shakespeare uses it to express the immediate as distinguished from the more remote future:

> Now a sensible man, by and by a fool and presently a beast.—Othello.

If we knew how "by" came to be indicative of the present the second "by" might be assumed to signify beyond.

"By the bye" was in Johnson's time used in a different, almost opposite, sense to that in which we now employ it as an equivalent to the French a propos, not as expressive of something apposite, but, on the contrary, as, according to Johnson, "something not the direct and immediate object of regard." In neither case is the employment of "by" in these two familiar expressions accounted for.—Notes and Queries.

The Mohammedan Judgment Day.

The Koran, sura 81, has this to say concerning the general "judgment day," which nearly all religions teach in common: "When the sun shall be folded up, and when the stars shall fall, and when the mountain shall be made to pass away, and when the wild beasts shall be gathered together, and when the seas shall boil, and when souls shall again be joined to their bodies, and when the girl who hath been buried alive shall ask for what crime she was put to death, and when the books shall be laid open, and when the heavens shall be removed, and when hell shall burn fiercely, and when paradise shall be brought near, then shall every soul know what it hath wrought."

Consecrating Church Bells.

The custom of consecrating church bells was once common to nearly all denominations, but it is now confined principally to the Roman Catholics. The old form was to wash the bell with holy water, anoint it with oil and mark it with the sign of the cross, and to some extent this form is still used. At the time of the reformation in England the prejudice against Roman Catholic ceremonies was so strong that instead of being blessed new bells were occasionally turned up and filled with punch, which then was drunk by the participants in the occasion.—London Chronicle.

The Admirable Crichton.

To speak of any one as an "Admirable Crichton" is to credit him with being very learned and accomplished, since such a person lived in the sixteenth century. His name was James Crichton, and he lived in Scotland from 1560 to 1683. At the age of seventeen years he was the reputed master of twelve languages and had been given the degree of master of arts when but fourteen because of his great learning. In addition to his accomplishments as a scholar he was poet, musician, sculptor, artist, actor, reconteur, a good horseman and an expert fencer.

A Statesman's Queer Ambition.

The great Lord Grey had an ambition far above politics. He had passed the reform bill, but that did not satisfy his soul. There was talk of Taglioni, and Grey said quite earnestly, "What would I give to dance as well as she!" The statesman who had been prime minister and had left an indelible mark on the history of his country was envious of an opera dancer!—London Chronicle.

Cruel.

"But, papa," wailed the young woman, "you can have no idea how he loves me. He is willing to die for me this very minute."

"Well," said the old man, scratching his head thoughtfully. "I don't know that I have any objection to that. I was afraid he wanted to marry you."

How They Interpreted It.

We are taught not to be anxious for the future, as the future will come in time.

We are taught in the sermon on the mount not to think of the future, because the evil we do in one day is sufficient.—Answers of London School Children.

An Emotional Trunk.

Landlady—I'll have to request you to pay in advance, Mr. Smith. Smith—Why, isn't my trunk good for a week's board? Landlady—No. It looks like an old fashioned emotional trunk. Smith—Emotional? Landlady—Yes; one that is easily moved!

What Confirmed the Suspicion.

Mary (angrily)—I think you are the biggest fool in town, John. John (mildly)—Well, Mary, mother used to tell me that when I was a boy, but I never thought she was right about it until I married you.

The First Riding Lesson.

The pupil of a good riding master is usually disappointed at not being allowed to do more in the first lesson. He expects to mount the horse at once, start off with a trot and wind up with a canter. He is a little annoyed upon finding that the first lesson consists almost wholly of oral instruction and a great part of it on foot at that. If the master is conscientious he will not permit the anxiety to be off and doing to interfere with a proper understanding of the A B C of the art. Should the beginner apply at one of the big riding academies in New York for instruction the first lesson will begin with the leading by a groom of a horse, bridled and saddled, into the center of the ring. The riding master and the pupil take their stand close by, and the former begins to explain painstakingly the various parts of the saddle and bridle and their purposes. Before anything further is attempted the pupil must be able to answer simple questions in regard to the pommel and the cantle, the curb and the snaffle, and to know the uses of the two bits.

Omar Khayyam's Translator.

To FitzGerald, careless, disorderly, unconventional, who had for so long folllowed his own sweet will, punctilious etiquette and fastidious neatness in attire were above all things hateful. He once said to a friend: "I couldn't be bothered with all those whims—dressing for this and dressing for that. I couldn't put up with it."

He and a friend were dining at a hotel, and among the good things set before them was a noble fruit pie. But they had eaten so heartily of the first course that when it came to the pie's turn they were beaten. FitzGerald looked troubled. "Mrs. So-and-so (the hostess), who knows my partiality for fruit," said he, "will take it as a slight if we leave the pie untouched." So without more ado he cut out a good sliced wedge with a fair allowance of fruit and dropped it into his hat, which he covered with his yellow silk handkerchief, and rang the bell for the bill.—Wright's "Life of FitzGerald."

Health Fads on the Brain.

To get all sorts of health fads on the brain is a disease in itself. It is a very prevalent disease too. With a few foolish rules to observe, a whole lot of hygienic quirks to adjust to and a schedule of superstitious sanitary notions diligently followed by day and dreamed of by night, is a malady which begins as a mental derangement and ends in a complete physical fizzle. No room left for a spontaneous life, no place for free, joyous liberty. Not a minute's space for rollicking disregard. Everything fixed, every minute disposed of, introspections without number. Forebodings, misgivings, hovering vaguely about the mind, like flocks of carrion crows. Such a life is not worth living.—Medical Talk.

Victoria Was Exclusive.

When Queen Victoria visited any of her subjects it was by no means a matter of course that people staying in the house should have the privilege of sitting down at table with their august fellow visitor. It was her majesty's custom not only to take with her to the house where she designed to "lie" (as the old phrase was for a night or two her own bed and bedding, carriages, horses and servants (including occasionally her cook), but also to confine herself at meals to the company of her own suit, sometimes inviting her host and hostess to join her at luncheon or dinner.

The Fickle Fair Ones.

Engagements are entered into far more lightly and broken far more easily than used to be the case, when a betrothal was as serious an affair as marriage. Now it is not unusual for a girl to be engaged once or twice before she is married, and people think none the worse of her. Young girls' ways are beginning to resemble those of nursemaids, who walk out with a man, but not always with a view to matrimony.—Lady Greville in London Graphic.

New Year's In Japan.

Most of the people you meet on the Japanese New Year's day are carrying a squashed salmon with a piece of paper tied round its waist by a paper string which holds a little gold paper kite. That kite means that the thing is a present and has not to be paid for. Those who are not carrying crushed salmon or taking up the street in giving correct New Year's salutations are playing battledoor and shuttlecock.

Very Easy.

"Don't you wish you were as smart as Conan Doyle's detective?"

"My dear sir," replied the modern detective, "if they'd let me plan the crimes in the first place I could discover the facts in ways quite as extraordinary as those of any detective that an author ever put into a book."—Chicago Post.

After the Honeymoon.

"Anyhow, Jack, you cannot say that I ran after you at the time of our marriage."

"You never spoke a truer word, Maria, but neither does the mousetrap run after the mouse, yet it catches it all the same."

One Sense Keen.

Rob—Say, Bob, loan me $100, will you? Bob—Why, man, have you lost your senses? Rob—Nope; at least not my sense of touch.—Yale Record.

Attractiveness of New Friends.

Edmonia—How you do love to make new friends! Eustacia—Yes, they are so much more polite than old ones.—Detroit Free Press.

Of all the evil spirits abroad in the world insincerity is the most dangerous.—Froude.

THE Minneapolis Democracy should save some of its powder for the enemy.

THE Republicans primaries to select delegates to the county convention are called for the evening of June 25. The county convention takes place June 28.

AN Iowa editor says there is nothing objectionable to be seen on the "Pike" and the Chicago Tribune is in doubt whether he is friendly or hostile to the big show at St. Louis.

THE Sauk Center Herald suggests that the wearing of fancy hose and patent leather shoes by ladies has one good effect. It induces them to cut their skirts shorter and stop sweeping the streets.

THINK what a shout of laughter would come from the box stalls had a Kansas Populist convention gone through exactly the same proceedings that the Illinois Republican convention went through.

JOHN C. KNOX, a prominent attorney of Jackson, Minn., a son of Hon. T. J. Knox, formerly railroad and warehouse commissioner, and John Crawford, postmaster at Lakefield, Minn., were drowned Tuesday while on a fishing trip to Manitoba.

THE first serious accident in the history of Minnesota editorial excursions occured Sunday night, when Miss Olson, of St. Paul, fell from the train near Moberly, Mo., and remained unconscious until discovered by section men the following morning. It is thought her injuries are not serious.

NAT CAMPBELL takes his defeat in the Crookston convention so much at heart that he organized a bolting convention of some fifteen Hearst sympathizers and threatens to send a contesting delegation to the Duluth convention. Nat is a good sort of a fellow, but he got on the wrong band wagon, and he ought to accept his defeat gracefully.

AT this distance it looks as though the Minneapolis Democrats have treated Congressman Lind mighty shabbily. Mr. Lind is the most prominent Democrat in Minnesota, and one of the leaders of the party in the lower house in congress. Mr. Lind will be one of the delegates-at-large to the national convention, but he will not owe his election to Hennepin county.

THE indications are that the Minnesota delegation to the Democratic national convention will be uninstructed. The Hearst people put up a hard fight and won out in Minneapolis and Duluth. The country districts, however, are strongly anti-Hearst, and the antis will have about 700 out of the 1,000 delegates. The Ninth district is reported to be almost solidly anti-Hearst.

AN Associated press dispatch says: Statistics complied by an insurance journal here show that the American people are taking out life policies at the rate of $8,000,000 a day. In the past year all the companies combined have paid out claims amounting to $258,350,000. The aggregate payment to beneficiaries, including annuities, etc., was $346,463,700. There are now in force in New York alone policies aggregating two and one-quarter billions of dollars.

THE fourth of July statistics for 1902 show that fireworks, etc., caused the death of 31, injured 2,649 and and the fire loss was $250,155, The fourth of July for 1903 was a record breaker. The number of killed by accident was 467; number injured 3,963; deaths from tetanus following blank cartridge wounds 407. The cause of non-fatal accidents are given as follows: Blank cartridges 1,309; fire crackers 1,152; toy cannons 397; powder and fireworks 731; unaccounted for 378.

THE Fargo Argus says that North Dakota has had just rain enough and not too much, and that the cool weather has made the grain stool out in fine shape. Some of the grain dealers expect the yeild of wheat alone in the three states of Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota to reach about 225,000,000 bushels, worth perhaps about $180,000,000.

An enormous amount of money will be brought into the northwest in exchange for grain the coming fall, and the effect will be felt in every line of business and industry.

THE harvest of fools seems interminable, says the Youngstown Telegram. The Fool that Rocks the Boat succeeded in drowning a young man in the Maumee River a few days ago, and the Fool that Didn't Know It Was Loaded accomplished his purpose of having some fun in Ottumwa, Iowa, last Friday with a dead companion as a result. Another Rare Fool Who Pulls the Chair Away at Bryan, Ohio, has succeeded in fracturing the skull and fatally injuring a young bride. There are fools producing equally fatal results of their alleged playfulness but the three specimens are the most numerous of the clan and the task of exterminating them seems to be an impossibility.

A PHILIPPINE census is at last at hand. The total population of the archipelago is given as 7,635,426, of which (and this is the surprising feature of the war department's report) only 648,740 or less than ten per cent, are classified as "wild and uncivilized, although not without some knowledge of the domestic arts. The most populous island is Luzon, which contains a total of 3,798,507 people, 223,506 of whom are classified as "wild." Pannay is next with a population of 743,646 of which number nearly fifteen thousand are uncivilized; Cebu is third with 292,247 civilized inhabitants; Mindanao has 499,634 people, half of whom are wild; Jolo a civilized population of only 1,270 out of a total of 44,718. The tables enumerate 343 islands, and give Manila a population of 219,028.

DAIRY DEPARTMENT.

Edited by Geo. L. Austin, Manager of the Red Lake Falls Creamery.

Shall We Feed Grain or Grass?

This question is a pertinent one just now. The season of excellent pastures is at hand all over the United States. The heavy rainfalls that have been so universal have made an extra large growth of grass. The dairy farmer desires to produce the most milk possible at the least possible expense. To do this is grain feeding necessary? This question oan be best answered by the results of experiments. Of these, not many have been conducted, not enougq to give conclusive evidence. However, the following facts seem settled: If the pasture is good and fresh not enough gain in the milk yield can be made to pay for the extra grain eaten. If pastures are short the extra feed will cause an increased yield at a profit in most cases.

One point is often overlooked and that is the effect of grain on the after milking of the cow. It is well known that the dairy cow should never run down in condition. Feed in sufficient quanities should be given to keep her in good flesh—not fat. If the pasture alone will not do this, provide extra feed in the way of grain. This may not appear to pay now, but it will in the long run.

PAYS TO COMB COWS.

Commissioner McConnell Advocates Taking Care of Cows.

W. W. P. McConnell, state dairy and food commissioner, believes that dairy cows, in order to give a good supply of milk, should be curried and combed at least once a day. The barns, he believes should be whitewashed and disinfected, and the dairyman's hands should be washed and manicured before milking. Cows, he says, should not be milked when there is dust or bad odors in the air.

To prove the correctness of his theories Mr. McConnell has had photographs taken of a "cow well groomed" and a "cow not groomed." The well-groomed cow has a coat as glossy as a seal, whereas the ungroomed cow looks more like a buffalo. The well-groomed cow gives 25 per cent more milk than the animal that is not combed regularly.

Mr. McConnell in a special article prepared for an agricultural journal says:

"The good dairyman feeds his cows regularly on wholesome, well-balanced rations, and does not milk his cows while roughage is being fed or when there are dust and bad odors afloat in the air. He sees to it that the cows have a clean, dry bed, and when he goes to milk he is careful to brush off the flank and udder so that dust, hair and deadly bacteoia do not fall into the open pail.

"Dairymen, be clean about your work. Remember that innocent people are to use this product as food, a product that is capable of carrying germs of disease to the human body. Please remember this and wash your hands before milking; clean your finger nails and do not milk with wet hands.

"We can truly say that the average cunsumer of dairy products consumes more filth in milk than any other article of food. The long-suffering public will not long be satisfied with these conditions, as is evidenced by the fact that the New York market is ready and glad to pay a premium of 2 cents a pound for Minnesota prize butter.

"Too little attention is given to the location of our barns. The first consideration should be the drainage, light and ventilation, it is best not to build the underground stable. A good basement barn is more sanitary and usually more economical and comfortable. An approach to one side of a basement barn is commonly made without much extra expence and adds much to the conveniences of the building. If the sanitary conditions are difficult to secure because of lack of natural drainage, it is well to build the barn at a greater distance from the dwellinghouse. Whether the barn has one or two stories is a matter of taste and convenience, but a good foundation is important. A good floor is an essential of a clean barn. Many prefer a cement floor and mangers, but a clean, healthful floor and manger can be economically built of lumber."

Into each life some ruins must fall,
Wise people don't sit down and bawl;
Only fools suicide or take to flight,
Smart people take Rocky Mountain Tea at night. A. L. Reichert.

Eye-Strain Illness.

Only those whose ailments—particularly headache and nervousness—who have been relieved by the uae of properly-adjusted glasses can appreciate the relation of the condition of the eyes to general health. If your head aches or your eyes trouble you in any way, consult your home optician. No charge for a thorough refractive examination. If you require glasses we have them in all styles, and the best that money can buy.—H. W. Anderson, Optician.

Wiley is Avenged.

Theif River Press: Wiley Tindolph considers himself in a measure avenged on his Red Lake Falls friends for the slurs they have recently cast upon his sound and discriminating judgment in matters feminine. Tuesday H. H. Zaiser, the county-seat merchant, came up here and was introduced by Mr. Tindolph to a number of people. Later upon pretext of meeting him at the First National Bank on business, Wiley inveigled the young man into waiting there the greater portion of his time between trains in anticipation his (Tindolph's) return, the hypnotic influence of a certain pair of bright eyes causing the hours to fly so rapidly that Mr. Zaiser did not realize the minutes and barely broke away in time to catch his train for home.

Granny Can Speak for Himself.

Ada Herald: Editor King, of the Red Lake Courier, says that "every week a few venal newspapers of small circulation are brought into line for the adminstraion candidate" (Collins). Does this apply to the Anoka Union? How about it, Brothers Pease and King.

New Editorship.

"The Home Magazine for May appears in new guise under new management, P. V. Collins, of Minneapolis, having purchased this popular Washington (D. C.) monthly and removed it to the metropolis of the West. It is brighter and more interesting than ever, and what strikes the observer at first glance, it is much improved typographically. All of the objectionable advertising is barred from its columns and all together it is a most desirable literary and domestic monthly. The May number begins a pretty serial "Polly in Japan," by Mabel Loomis Todd, and contains several short stories and many other features delightful especially to women. Among the historic romances are the story of Sacajawea, the Indian woman who guided the Lewis and Clark expedition, and a romantic sketch of Fort Snelling the first fort built by Americans after the Louisiana Purchase. There are several departments containing interesting reading on home topics. The price, only 25 cents a year, is ridiculously small for such a high class monthly.

The children's service at the Presbyrerian church Sunday evening was attended by a large crowd, and it was a thoroughly enjoyable program, consisting of music and selections, under direction of J. W. Rodgers, superintendent of the Sunday school. A collection of $12.20 is reported for Sunday school missions.

The Thief River Falls News says: "It is considered quite probable that the Great Northeern can be induced to build a new depot which would be located in a more central portion of the city than the present one. A meeting was held in the city hall last evening and a petition will be sent to the authorities in St. Paul."

Joe McCaffrey came up from St. Paul Tuesday morning to take his old job as stenographer and bookkeeper for the Ed. L. Healy Land company. Joe has been working for John L. Watson at St. Paul during the past six or seven months. His many friends are glad to see him back, for Joe is one of the best boys in town.

The report of the condition of the First State Bank, as called for by the public eximiner, is printed in this paper, and shows total resources of more than $227,000. The First State is the oldest and strongest bank in this part of the country outside of Crookston, and the steady growth of business testifies to the fact that the bank and its officials hold the esteem and confidence of the general public.

It is reported upon the authority of one of the Great Northern railroad contractors making headquarters at Thief River Falls, that it has been almost decided to build the extension through to Warroad this year instead of stopping at Greenbush, as was decided some time ago. Enough railroad iron and ties are on the ground to build the extension to Warroad and the contractors quoted feel confident it will be completed this year.

You should buy your coffees from the Big Store. They sell the Chase & Sanborn coffees, which have been the leading coffees for fifty years. Don't think that 20c, 25c or 35c will buy the same grade of coffee in any store. This is great mistake. Some merchants make 2 or 3 cents per pound more than others do. We sell our coffees at a very low profit, thereby insuring the customer big value for the money. We also sell Barrington Hall "Seal Cut" and "White House."

The Crookston ball club came over Sunday to cross bats with the local aggregation, and won a ten inning game by a score of 7 to 6. The game was a good one, and both clubs are to be commended for their excellent work. Barring a couple of unpleasant incidents in the way of embryo fights the spectators were given their money's worth. It seems almost impossible for a crowd of Crookston young men to get away from home without cultivating a desire to spill a few quarts of gore.

Announcement is made that Miss Elizabeth Stuart Hunt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Hunt, will be married to Dr. John E. Argue on June 29. It will be a home affair, at which only the relatives and intimate friends of the contracting parties will be present. Following the ceremony a reception will be held in honor of the occasion. The bride and groom are well known as popular and deserving young people, and all of the Red Lake Falls people will unite in extending their best wishes for long life of happiness and success.

The Crookston people have a spasm every time some other north country town gets something that Crookston wants. Just now the Times is mad because the teachers' training school for Polk and Red Lake counties is given to Red Lake Falls, notwithstanding the fact that Crookston had the school last year. It is certainly just as easy for the Polk county teachers to come to Red Lake Falls as it is for the Red Lake county teachers to go to Crookston. The Crookston people are certainly unwise in cultivating a habit of showing spite and envious criticism towards the other towns in the valley.

A parcel shower in honor of Miss Bessie Hunt was given Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. F. Marshall. About thirty young ladies were present and a most enjoyable time is reported. It had previously been arranged that Miss Bessie was not to be brought in the parlor until the guests were assembled, and as she entered the door the guests showered bundles of presents at her feet. Afterwards the packages were opened and each contained brief advice upon the proper manner to manage a husband. Luncheon was served and fun and frolic constituted the program for the remainder of the afternoon.

SKIN DISEASES THE OUTCROPPING OF BAD BLOOD

And while not always painful are aggravating beyond expression. With few exceptions they are worse in spring and summer when the system begins to thaw out and the skin is reacting and making extra efforts to throw off the poisons that have accumulated during the winter. Then boils and pimples, rashes and eruptions of every conceivable kind make their appearance, and Eczema and Tetter—the twin terrors of skin diseases—Nettle-rash, Poison Oak and Ivy, and such other skin troubles as usually remain quiet during cold weather, break out afresh to torment and distract by their fearful burning, itching and stinging. A course of S. S. S. now will purify and enrich the blood, reinforce and tone up the general system and stimulate the sluggish circulation, thus warding off the diseases common to spring and summer. The skin, with good blood to nourish it, remains smooth and soft and free of all disfiguring eruptions.

I suffered with Eczema of the hands and face for over a year, it was not only annoying and painful but very unsightly, and I disliked to go out in the streets.

I tried at least a dozen soaps and salvse and became very much discouraged until I read in the paper of the cures performed through the use of S. S. S. I had little faith at first but determined to give it a month's fair trial at least. I am pleased to state that I soon noticed a slight improvement, sufficient to decide me to keep it up. After the use of six bottles my skin was as smooth and soft as a baby's. This was a year ago and I have never had any trouble since.

SUDDEN DEATH OF LEVI Z. LEITER

WELL-KNOWN CHICAGO MILLIONAIRE PASSES AWAY AT BAR HARBOR, ME.

Heart Failure the Cause—Begins Active Life as Poor Boy in Chicago in 1854—Leaves Fortune Between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000.

Bar Harbor, Me., June 10.—Levi Z. Leiter, of Chicago, died of heart failure early Thursday, at the Vanderbilt cottage here, which the Leiters had taken for the season. Mr. Leiter had not been well for a long time, but up to Wednesday he was able to take his usual drive. A weakness of the heart developed shortly after midnight, and death occurred at 3:40 a. m. Mrs. Leiter and two daughters were by the bedside at the last. Mr. Leiter was 70 years of age. He was the father of Lady Curzon, of Kedleston, wife of the viceroy and governor general of India. Mr. Leiter was long identified with the growth of Chicago. His fortune is estimated at from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000. He held an executive power in many financial institutions.

Although holding interests more broadly scattered than any other western capitalist, with the possible exception of his former partner, Marshall Feild, Mr. Leiter was little known in the field of speculation until the plunge made by his son, Joseph, six years ago, in a sensational effort to corner wheat against Armour and the world. When Joseph Leiter was all but ruined his father went to his rescue, turning over a fortune to him—said to have been much as $7,000,000—and even placing heavy mortgages on property to prevent his financial collapse. When the deal was over the Leiters withdrew from the speculative field permanently.

Following is a brief chronology of the life of L. Z. Leiter:

Born in Leitersburg, Md., 1834.

In 1853 went to Springfield, O., where he entered the store of Peter Murray, where he remained for one year.

Came to Chicago in 1854.

Soon after arrival in Chicago entered store of Downs & Van Wyck, remaining until January, 1856.

In 1865, with Marshall Field, purchased a controlling interest in the business of Potter Palmer, and continued the business as Field, Palmer & Leiter.

In 1881 Mr. Leiter sold his interests to his partners, and devoted himself to traveling and study.

Reunion of Confederates.

Nashville, Tenn., June 13.—This is Confederate week in Nashville. Tennessee's capital is decorated as never before in honor of the veterans, who meet in reunion here from Tuesday to Thursday. Aside from the grand parade on Thursday, the laying of the corner stone of the confederate memorial on Wednesday will be a distinctive feature. It will be accompanied by masonic ceremonies, and Henry Watterson, editor of the Louisville Courier Journal, will deliver the address.

Force Reduced.

Susquehanna, Pa., June 13.—The Erie Railroad company has discharged ten per cent of its working force of 108 men from its shops in this place. Like discharges were made in all the shops on the system. This is the second discharge of ten per cent. within 30 days. The company is reducing expenses in all directions.

Died at the Age of 110.

Washington, Pa., June 13.—Mrs. Maria Cooper (colored), born a slave at Winchester, Va., died here aged 110.

A SUDDEN CALL.

Abner McKinley, Brother of the Late President Passes Away at Somerville, Pa.

Somerset, Pa., June 13.—Abner McKinley, brother of the late president, was found dead in a chair in his home at eight o'clock Saturday morning. His death came without warning to his family. His colored servant, who slept in his room, was up with him at two o'clock, and it is not known at what time Mr. McKinley got up again, as he did not waken the servant. Mrs. McKinley walked into his room at eight o'clock and found him sitting in a chair cold and apparently dead. A physician was summoned, who said death had probably occurred two or three hours before. A widow and one daughter survive him. Mr. McKinley's death was due to Bright's disease, which developed shortly after the death of his distinguished brother, three years ago.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Farmers' Institutes.

A new schedule of farmers' institutes has been prepared for the next two months by Supt. Hoverstad of the state experimental station. It will call for institutes to be held in Pelan June 7; Badger, June 8-9; Roseau, June 10; Hallock, June 21; Stephen, June 22; Argyle, June 23; Warren, June 24; Ada, June 25; Halstad, June 28; Fisher, July 1; Bemidji, July 2. Among those who will take part in conducting them are Prof. Kaufman of Fargo agricultural college; James A. Wilson of the pure food commission at St. Paul and Col. R. A. Wilkinson of St. Paul. Mr. Hoverstad has been fortunate in securing the consent of these men to act as assisstants, and he hopes to secure one or two others before the institutes are closed.

Burned to Death.

Devotion to her children cost the life of Mrs. A. L. Hauser, Minneapolis.

Mrs. Hauser was heating a can of varnish on her cook stove preparatory to applying it to the floor. The fire from the stove ignited the varnish and it began to blaze.

Mrs. Hauser, having a mother's thought for her two children who were asleep upstairs, attempted to throw the burning can outdoors, but in doing so her clothing took fire and soon she was a living torch.

Her cries brought the neighbors, but before they could smother the fire the woman was burned so badly that nothing could be done to save her.

Killed in Elevator.

Nick Reinart, was buried in a bin of screenings at Elevator K, Twenty-ninth street and Garfield avenue, Minneapolis, and his body was not recovered for three hours.

It was thought that when he was recovered that the spark of life had not been entirely smothered, but after working over him for some minutes it was discovered that he was dead.

The accident was due to the fact that the chute leading from the bin was clogged up, and when Reinert entered the bin to ascertain the cause the screenings started and sucked Reinart to the bottom of the bin. He leaves a wife.

Farmer's Wife Held Up.

While Peter Schaust, who lives about one and a half miles north of Delano, was attending church a masked robber entered his home and compelled Mrs. Schaust to give up what money was in the house. At first she refused, but he drew a revolver and fired a couple of shots, one of which just passed her head and frightened her so much that she gave him the money on hand, amounting to nearly $300. The constable and sheriff were at once notified and are working on the brief description Mrs. Schaust could give of the robber, who they think was no stranger in that vicinity.

Girl Disappears.

Considerable excitement has been caused at Crookston by the disappearance of the 14-year-old grandchild of Mr. and Mrs. Edward O'Neal from their farm, a few miles from there.

She has been absent several days and no trace of her has been found. She disappeared Saturday evening, and the following morning buggy tracks were found at one corner of a pasture fence not far from the house.

The entire neighborhood has been searched and the grandparants are distracted.

Arrested by Hackdrivers.

Through the persevering efforts of four St. Paul hackdrivers, a young man who calls himself Donald Stewart was was arrested there after a long chase early Sunday morning.

Stewart is accused of having stolen $24,000 in certificates of deposit from J. E. Hall of Duluth formerly a railconductor.

It was afterward found to be a mistake and Stewart was released.

Suicide.

Mrs. Frank DeBilson of Foley, age 28, committed suicide by taking carbolic acid because she had a little difference with her husband. About the last words she said to him were: "Kiss me, Frank; it will be the last time."

She formerly lived in Minneapolis. Her parents reside at New Ulm, and the be taken there for burial.

Wakeful?

Sleeplessness Is a Sign of Nerve Trouble and Should Be Looked To.

There are three different manifestations of sleeplessness.

First, hardly to sleep a wink all night, second, to lie awake a long time before falling asleep; third, to fall asleep soon, waking up after several hours and then find it hard to sleep again.

They mean that somewhere in the nerve fibres, somewhere in the brain cells, somewhere in the blood vessels that carry blood to the brain, something is radically wrong, and must be righted, or the end may be worse than death.

To right it, take Dr. Miles' Nervine.

Some other symptoms of nerve trouble are: Dizziness, Headache, Backache, Worry, Fretfulness, Irritability, Melancholy, Lack of Ambition.

They indicate diseases which may lead to Epilepsy, Fits, St. Vitus' Dance, Nervous Prostration, Paralysis, Insanity.

Nothing will give such quick and lasting relief as Dr. Miles' Nervine.

"My husband had been sick for weeks, could not sit up to have his bed made. With all the medical help we could get he continued to grow worse. He could neither sleep or eat. Our baby girl was sent away, and all callers barred, because he could not stand a bit of talking. I read of a case of nervous prostration cured by Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. We began giving it to him, and in a few days he was able to be dressed. From that time he steadily improved. Nervine saved his life."—MRS. A. G. HASKIN, Freeville, N. Y.

JAPANESE TRAP RUSSIAN FORCE

EIGHT HUNDRED OF CZAR'S MEN KILLED IN BATTLE NEAR PULANTIEN.

LATTER ARE DUPED BY CLEVER FEINT

Bombardment of Port Arthur Already Lasting Seven Days Reported—Rumor of Naval Battle in Which Six Ships Have Been Sunk.

Newchwang, June 14.—Information has been received here through heretofore reliable channels that part of the Japanese force left at Pulantien to checkmate the Russians' southward movement to relieve Port Arthur was attacked southeast of Shungnmao Saturday. After slight fighting the Japanese made a false retreat, the Russians hotly following them, when the Japanese made a flank movement, catching the Russians in a trap. The Russian losses are placed at 800 men. They then fell back on Kaichou and began to retreat along the Balmatgu-Tsaichou road.

About 2,000 Russian infantry from Kaichou passed through Newchwang Sunday morning accompanied by a large supply and hospital train. Several carts contained bandaged men. The troops appeared to be fagged out and showed every indication of a long, forced march. The officers refused to furnish any information, but a non-commissioned officer said that all the troops were retreating from Tsaichou. Before he could say anything further he was reprimanded by a captain.

Port Arthur Bombarded.

London, June 14.—According to the Rome Tribuna's Chefoo correspondent, Port Arthur has been bombarded incessantly for the last seven days. All the western portions of the town, it is stated, have been destroyed. Several Russian warships have been damaged, the Japanese squadron backing up the land assaults, but keeping out of range of the fort guns.

Dispatches from St. Petersburg by way of Paris announce that, despite the semi-official assurances that nothing of exceptional gravity has occurred at Port Arthur in the last few days, the wildest rumors continue to circulate at the Russian capital. According to these rumors, the Japanese already have occupied the advance defense works. The Russians are reported to have blown up the battleships Retvizan, Czarevitch and Pallada to prevent their capture.

Great Naval Battle Reported.

St. Petersburg, June 14.—Rumors are in circulation here to the effect that a great naval battle has taken place off Port Arthur in which two Russian and four Japanese battleships were sunk.

The Russian consul at Chefoo reports the persistence of rumors there of a sea fight near Port Arthur. His report is on a line with previous reports to the effect that two Russian and four Japanese ships have been lost. The ultimate result of the fight is not stated. As there is no confirmation of the report from any other source the authorities express doubt as to its accuracy.

Mysterious Jap Movements.

The Japanese advance of columns north and south of Fengwangcheng is causing considerable mystification. The preponderance of military opinion still inclines to the belief that the movements in both directions are feints, although the opinion that Gen. Kuroki has begun a serious advance by both flanks against Liaoyang does not lack supporters. Renewed skirmishing is reported in the neighborhood of Siuyen, but there is no confirmation officially of the engagement reported at Haicheng Sunday night, as having occurred 30 miles southeast of Haicheng, in the direction of the Fengwangcheng road, which was reported to have resulted in the loss of two Japanese battalions. Should this report turn out to be true it would show that the Japanese are advancing toward Haicheng by two roads, as the column reported engaged must have been different from the one which drove out the Russians from Siuyen on the road further south.

Absolute confirmation is not obtainable of the report that Gen. Kuropatkin is dispatching troops from Mukden against the enemy's right. Extreme reticence is manifested at the war office regarding the military situation, which is generally interpreted as foreshadowing important developments in the immediate future. While the iminence of a decisive battle between the two main armies is distinctly discouraged news of fighting of a rather heavy character is anticipated. The lack of official dispatches from Kuropatkin during the last 48 hours is regarded as significant.

Russians Retire.

Seoul, Korea, June 14.—According to Korean official reports received here the Russian forces which were at Ninyong have retired to Changjin.

Silver Anniversary Celebrated.

Northfield, Mass., June 14.—Exercises in celebration of the silver anniversary of the founding of Northfield seminary were held here Monday. They were also a feature of the opening of the summer season of conferences. Addresses were delivered by W. R. Moody and P. H. Moody, sons of the late Dwight L. Moody, who founded the Northfield summer schools. There was a large attendance of visitors.

Comptroller Issues a Call.

Washington, June 14.—The comptroller of the currency Monday issued a call for the condition of national banks at the close of business June 9.

TRADE REVIEW.

Little Change in Situation Is Disclosed, But Confidence in the Future Is Growing.

New York, June 11.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "Current trade conditions are without change and collections continue slow as a rule, but there is growing confidence in the future, dealers exhibiting an inclination to prepare for fall and winter on a larger scale. There is still much complaint that the weather is unseasonable for retail distribution, and payments are not prompt. Reports regarding the building trades are almost uniformly favorable, structural work increasing as the season advances, and transporting prospects are brighter on the lakes. The decline in the cost of living has continued without interruption since March 1.

"Commercial failures this week in the United States are 227 against 220 last week, 226 the preceding week and 215 the corresponding week last year. Failures in Canda number 20 against 20 last week, 17 the preceding week and 14 last year."

Bradstreet's says: "Trade and industry are quiet as a whole and interest centers largely on the progress of the crops. This latter situation is not clearly defined as yet, and spotted conditions are in evidence, but with the general trend in the direction of improvement."

ELIAS WOMAN FREED.

Charge of Extortion Falls to the Ground—Rearrested in Civil Suit to Recover $685,000.

New York, June 11.—Mrs. Hannah Elias was discharged late Friday afternoon on motion of Assistant District Attorney Rand, acting for District Attorney Jerome, at the conclusion of the testimony of John R. Platt, the aged millionaire, who caused her arrest for extortion. Mr. Platt proved a disappointing witness. To question bearing directly on the charges on which the woman's arrest had been made, he answered repeatedly: "I don't know." His helplessness and his apparently unreliable memory surprised those who attended his examination. He did not remember whether he had given Mrs. Elias large sums of money during the past ten years, as charged, and did not remember signing certain of the papers in connection with his charges against her. Mrs. Elias was rearrested on a writ in the civil suit originally brought against her by Mr. Platt to recover $685,000. She was released a few minutes later on $20,000 bail.

KNOX GOES TO SENATE.

Attorney General Selected to Fill Quay's Place—Will Remain in Cabinet Till December.

Harrisburg, Pa., June 11.—Gov. Pennypacker Friday appointed Philander C. Knox successor to the late United States Senator Quay. Gov. Pennypacker also announced that he will not call the legislature in extra session. This means that the appointment of Mr. Knox is for the unexpired term, ending March 4, 1905.

Washington, June 10.—Just before Attorney General Knox left Washington a few days ago he called on the president and told him that he had been tendered the appointment of United States senator to succeed the late Senator Quay, and that if the president was willing he would accept. The president is greatly pleased that Mr. Knox will accept the position. The latter probably will not resign as attorney general until congress convenes next December.

NO HOTEL FOR DOWIE.

The Famous Zion Leader Is Unable to Secure Accommodations in London.

London, June 13.—John Alexander Dowie arrived here Saturday morning from Holland and made a tour of the hotels, accompanied by his wife and son and escorted by deacons, in search of accommodation. Everywhere he met with refusal, as the hotel managers are afraid of a repetition of the rowdyism which marked Dowie's former stay here. Ultimately, being unable to find lodging, Dowie proceeded to the Zionist headquarters. These have been connected with the police telephones, in anticipation of a possible onslaught by the mob.

A MORNING WEDDING.

Henry N. Johnson and Miss Delia Toupin Plight Their Troth.

Henry N. Johnson, of Park River, N. D., was married to Miss Delia Toupin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Toupin, at the bride's home, Rev. Father Fayolle officiating, this morning at 6 o'clock. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Johnson left on the Northern Pacific train for Grand Forks, going from there to Minneapolis and Chatfield, where they will visit for a week or ten days with relatives of the groom.

The announcement of the marriage at this time was somewhat of a surprise to the Red Lake Falls people, as the groom had informally given it out to his friends that the important event was scheduled for next Wednesday, the 22nd. However as "Jing" had officiated as master of ceremonies at several successful chivaris within the last year he probably deemed it wise not to run any chances whereby the victims of his machinations would have the opportunity of "playing even."

Both of the contracting parties are popular young people who are known to everybody in Red Lake Falls. The bride was born and reared in Red Lake county, is a graduate of the high school and a talented vocalist. She possesses all the charm of manner and graces of womanhood to make a model wife, and Mr, Johnson is entitled to hearty congratulations on his selection of a better half.

The groom is agent for the Robertson Lumber company at Park River, and formerly filled that position in Red Lake Falls. THE COURIER, in company with a host of friends, wishes for Mr. and Mrs. Johnson that they may "live long and prosper."

Samuel Miller, a prominent farmer living about three miles east of town, lost his residence and all of the contents by fire Monday forenoon. The loss is about $1,000, with an insurance of $500. No one knows just how the fire was started. Mrs. Miller had built a fire in the kitchen stove preparatory to getting dinner and went to the garden to get some vegetables for the meal. On her return the house was in flames and only a few articles were saved. Mr. Miller was in town at the time. The loss is a severe one.

The Northern Minnesota Milling company has opened a feed and exchange store in the Boughton building on Main street, with Walter Johnson in charge. This store supplies all the products produced by the mill and will exchange for wheat.

The Meehan personal property tax case was settled yesterday by the payment of the amount of the supreme court judgment, $951.

DEMOCRATS IN CONVENTION

Delegates to State Convention Selected—John Morgan Endorsed for District Delegate.

The Democrats of Red Lake county met in convention at the court house at Red Lake Falls Saturday afternoon, being called to order by John E. King, chairman of the county central committee. K. M. Hansen of Thief River Falls was elected secretary of the convention, and on motion committees were appointed as follows:

Credentials—Dr. George Tupper, W. B. Fuller and Daniel Linnihan.

Permanent organization—John Morgan, N. W. Tarrant and James Sutor.

The report of the committee on credentials shows the following persons entitled to seats in the convention:

Thief River Falls—First ward—K. M. Hansen, George Andrew Erickson, C. C. Jackson; second ward—W. B. Fuller, Dr. George Tupper, John Morgan; third ward—Frank Cernosek, S. F. Staples.

Red Lake Falls—First Ward—M. Skala, Joseph Tschirhart, N. W. Tarrant; second ward—J. H. Paradis, Daniel Linnihan, Fred Krueger, William Zaiser; third ward—W. P. O'Brien, James E. Ford. W. T. Spillane, John E. King, J. T. Knight.

Polk Center—James Sutor, Jacob Boutain.

The committee on permanent organization reported in favor of making the temporary organization permanent. The chairman then addressed the convention in part as follows:

"We meet today as representatives of the Democratic party of Red Lake county for the purpose of exercising our prerogatives in the selection of a candidate for chief executive of this section. The Republicans have assured us that there really is no occasion for this meeting—that the Democratic party is dead beyond hopes of resustication. But we have heard that cry before; the Democratic party has been dead scores of times in the opinion of our friends, the enemy. However, the party has the aggravating habit of rising up in its coffin, doffing its grave clothes, and chasing the Republicans to the tall woods with a butcher knife every once in a while. At the close of the Civil war they said the Democratic party could never hope to again come into power. Inside of ten years we had a majority of nearly a hundred in the national house of representatives, and in 1876 we elected to the presidency that matchless statesman, the sage of Greystone, Samuel J. Tilden. That he was robbed of his office shows to what depths of depravity the Republicans of that day were willing to go in order that they might remain in control of the nation. In 1884 it was the boast of Republican speakers and papers that not a state north of Mason & Dixon's line would cast its electoral vote for the Democratic candidate but New York, Indiana, Connecticut, New Jersey and West Virginia came to our rescue. In 1892 more than six-tenths of the voters of the nation were Democratic, and even in the last two campaigns, with dissension in our own ranks, the plurality given the Republican candidate on the popular vote was so slender that a few thousand distributed in four or five states would have elected William J. Bryan. Today they say there is no possibility of Democratic success. But we have got out of the habit of relying upon Republican prophecies. If they tell us that all the patriotism and all the honesty of the nation is centered in the Republican administration, we can ask them if the recent disclosures in the postoffice department are a sample of their peculiar brand of honesty. If they tell us that the Republican party intends to curb the rapacity of the trusts let them explain to us why the high officials of the steel trust only the other day engineered the deal whereby the Hon. Philander C. Knox, the alleged trust buster, is to succeed the late Senator Quay. Does the steel trust want Mr. Knox in the senate in order that the plain people of the nation may be given their rights? If the Republicans say they are going to destroy the trusts, may we not be permitted to inquire why they have not given us some relief in the past? If they tell us they are going to revise the tariff, let us tell them that this promise has been made and broken so often that we have suffered beyond endurance. Even in Minnesota, where there is crying need of tariff reform, not one of our senators or representatives has dared to question the stand-pat policies of the eastern trust magnates. Our own congressman, who pledged his best efforts to reciprocity with Canada and tariff revision, now calmly tells us that this is no time for agitation.

"Everything looks favorable for a Democratic victory this fall. Recent elections all tend to foretell it. New York City, which at the previous election went Republican, reversed the order and returned to Democracy. Chicago, Cinicinnati, Cleveland, St. Paul and Duluth all went Democratic. Republican Minneapolis not only has a Democratic mayor, but for the first time in its history has sent a Democrat to congress, and the people are so well pleased with his record that they have already conceded him a second term. The broad-minded liberty-loving people are aroused and they are going to do something. Recent exposures of postal frauds and scandals, the largest appropriations ever made in the history of the government, the appalling increase in the number and the power of the trusts and the positive refusal of the "stand-pat" Republicans to lower the excessively high Dingley tariff schedules, causes us all to feel that we have a message to send to the national Democratic convention at St. Louis.

"You meet today as representatives of the Democratic party. Let us hope and believe you will act wisely, and that you will select persons to carry your message to Duluth in whom you have implicit faith and confidence; men who are intensely and all the time interested in Democratic success, and will do all in their power to insure that success.

"The Democratic party prides itself upon the fact that it is representative of the American spirit. It believes in majority rule. As aherents of such a party we should not at this time anticipate the action of the national convention, further than we should ask that the platform be Democratic, and that the standard-bearer of the party should be a Democrat under whose leadership we can march with pride and admiration. And there are a hundred such men.

"Let us believe that bygones are bygones. Let us campaign on living issues. And then let us go to work and do our best to duplicate the handsome majority Red Lake county gave four years ago to William J. Bryan and John Lind. Let us take heart from the cheering message brought from other states. Let us remember that the Democratic party is as enduring as the nation itself, and the principles it advocates, and the reforms it demands will be political issues until they have been enacted into law. We have no apologies to offer. Some of our notions may be old-fashioned, but we have been told by the Republicans that the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States are old-fashioned and out of date, and we presume that the strenuous president will soon give us a new Sermon on the Mount, but as long as the spirit of the Revolution thrills the American heart; as long as the ideals of Jefferson and Jackson and Tilden and Bryan find lodgment in the human heart, so long will the Democratic party remain as a strengthening and vitalizing force in American politics."

The convention than proceeded to the work of selecting delegates to the state convention, to be held at Duluth on June 22, and on motion the following were chosen:

W. B. Fuller, Dr. Geo. Tupper, K. M. Hansen, George Williams, John Morgan, Daniel Linnihan, M. Skala, J. T. Knight, John E. King, W. P. O'Brien and E. M. Hoff.

The alternate delegates are Andrew Erickson, Matt Barzen, C. C. Jackson, Joseph Johnson, James E. Ford, A. L. Reichert, Joseph Tschirhart, J. H. Paradis, James Sutor and Otto Zaiser.

The delegates were instructed to use all honorable means to secure the election of John Morgan of Thief River Falls as district delegate to the national convention at St. Louis. A motion was also carried to the effect that the Democrats of Red Lake county look with disfavor upon the candidacy of William Randolph Hearst.

John Morgan was recommended as a member of the Democratic state contral committeee, and Dr. George Tupper was made chairman of the delegation to the state convention.

Under the above heading the Crookston Daily Journal eays: "It is rumored in lumber circles that St. Hilaire is destined to lose the lumber mill owned by the Crookston Lumber company which is now located there, but whether or not the change in location will occur in the immediate future is not known. An official statement in regard to the matter is wanting but private parties are authority for the statement that one of the new towns on the Clearwater, and possibly one owned by Julius Pleth will be favored with the industry, and will provide lumber for the new string of towns along the Soo line."

JOHN A. JOHNSON TO SPEAK

Famous St. Peter Editor and Orator to Deliver the Fourth of July Address.

The Fourth of July committee has engaged Hon. John A. Johnson, former state senator, and for the past twenty years editor of the St. Peter Herald, to deliver the address on the Fourth of July.

Mr. Johnson has an established reputation as an orator. He is witty, polished and persuasive, and can be depended upon to do full justice to the occasion. He is one of the most prominent men of the state, and in the editorial profession has few equals as a trenchant and convincing writer. Down in southern Minnesota a public function is considered woefully lacking if John is not on hand to make a speech. Mr. Johnson was formerly president of the state editorial association, and the Democrats are now trying to induce him to become their candidate for governor.

If you want to hear a good speech come out and hear John Johnson at Red Lake Falls on the Fourth of July.

Grand Forks County Fair, Great Red River Valley Exposition

For the above occasion the Great Northern railway will sell tickets at rate of one fare plus fifty cents, for the round trip. Dates of sale July 20th to 23rd inclusive, good to return until July 25th.

MINNESOTA IS FIRST.

Its Butter Exhibit RanKs Htghest in Every Class.

A report received in from St. Louis tells of the success that had attended Minnesota butter in the June scoring in the national educational contests, inaugurated by the national department at the St. Lonis exposotion.

Minnesota took first in the June contest in nearly every class in which its product competed.

The Minnesota exhibit captures first place on creamery butter, first on dairy butter and first on print butter. Its exhibit, in point of number of entries, far outstripped any other state, and it was feared that his fact, coupled with the further fact that the scoring was delayed in starting, would militate against the success of the Minnesota product.

The exhibit from this state was in charge of representatives of the state dairy and food commission.

Reflections of a Bachleor.

New York Press: It's a poor rule that won't spank both ways.

Rain is a good thing to help you find the leak in the roof.

Every woman believes in corporial punishment for children when she hasn't any.

A girl can never decide whether she'd rather be married and not in love or in love and not be married.

Only fools suicide or take to flight,

FIRST STATE BANK.....

THE EVER GLORIOUS FOURTH

Celebration at Red Lake Falls to Be a Magnificent Affair in Every Detail.

Arrangements for the Fourth of July celebration are being pushed forward as rapidly as possible. Over $600 has been subscribed to the general fund, and all of it will be expended in providing a good time for our visitors. There will be all kinds of entertainment, good music, a speech by a first-class orator, parades, base ball game, contests and races of every description, bowery dances, etc. This will without question be the most elaborate celebration ever attempted in Red Lake county, and every body should be here to enjoy the festivites of the day. By next week it is hoped to give a complete program.

Red Lake Falls has the reputation of fulfilling her promises to the people, and everyone can bank upon the fact that the town will make every effort to give its visitors a royal good time.

Standpatism.

Martin County Sentinel: Massachusetts Republicans are organizing to kick down the high tariff wall which bars them from doing business with their Canidian neighbors and their is a good prospect that stand-patter Lodge will be buried in the ruins. In the mean time, the Canadian, incensed at American trusts which wreck their infant industries by selling goods at a less price than they can be bought by American consumers, propose to build the wall still higher and the most popular phrase across the line is "The United States be d—d," a sentiment echoed by every great commercial nation with which we do business. After Americans are shut out from the markets of the world Republican high tariff advocates may catch a whisper of the voice of McKinley, once raised to warn them of the disaster they would bring upon the country.

HEARSTITES ARE DEFEATED

Congressman John Lind Heads Delegation to Democratic National Convention.

At the Democratic state convention at Duluth yesterday the anti-Hearst people won a signal victory, electing three of the delegates-at-large and at least eight of the district delegates.

The Hearst people won out in the preliminary organization, electing Major J. M. Bowler of Minneapolis temporary chairman by a majority of eight votes. However, from that time the Hearstites were beaten on every proposition that came up and no attempt was made to instruct for Hearst, nor was his name mentioned in the resolutions adopted.

The platform is practically a repetition of the one adopted by the Nebraska convention written by William J. Bryan.

The delegates-at-large are Congressman John Lind, C. D. O'Brien Leonard A. Rosing and H. L. Buck.

The delegates from the Ninth district are Alexander Thompson, of Crookston and C. A. Nye of Moorhead both anti-Hearst- The alternates are John Morgan of Red Lake county and W. F. Kelso of Kittson.

The Farmer and the Trsut.

Northfield News: With the combination of a large percentage of the farm machinery manufacturers known as the International Harvester Trust, and the laying off of hundreds of men for convenience sake, it would seem that trust made machines had ought to come down a little in price. But not a bit of it, and what is more the farmer is asked to give quicker settlement than under the old plan. Another case of how the trust helps the farmer.

Important Courtship Decision.

Milton Evening Standard: A Montgomery county judge has rendering an important decision—of especial interest to girls. He has declared that it was not an offense for a girl to sit on her lover's lap, and in charging the jury said: "If every girl in Montgomery county who sits upon her lover's lap were to be judged of ill repute, we should have to blush for our country." The judge is all right.

MORE LITTLE RED SCHOOLS.

Minnesota is Building Schools at the Rate of $500,000 a Year.

Little red school houses on the hill are being built in Minnesota in large numbers if the school loans made by the State Investment Board are an indication of the number of new structures. The board loaned approximately $500,000 in the fiscal year ending July 31 1903, and the amount will be greater in 1904. This sum includes loans to counties and townships, but a large part of it is to school districts for building new school houses or repairing old structures.

The state auditor has no information as to the character of the new school-houses, but it is learned from other sources that the buildings erected this year are generally more substantial and more commodious than those built in previous years. Many districts take pride in having better schoolhouse accomadations than their neighbors, and as a result, attractive steam heated, well ventilated and convenient buidings are supplanting the old style structures in which doors and windows constitute the sole sytsem of ventilation and a wood stove the only heating apparatus.

The improvement in the condition of the school houses in Minnesota is due largely to the system of state aid, by which districts are required to have well ventilated and properly heated buildings. A district that gets $550 a year for graded school $250 for semi-graded school and $125 for a rural can afford to errect better schoolhouses than if it received no aid from the state.

ST. HILAIRE MILL TO BE RUN

No Josh This Time—Workmen Now Getting the Plant Ready for Operation.

The St. Hilaire lumber mill is to be started in a few days. This rumor has been in circulation several times this spring, but it is an assured fact, and workmen are alread at work getting the plant ready for operation. On Saturday an accident to the Crookston plant put that mill out of operation for a monht or more, and in order to fill the order for lumber the company is obliged to start up the mill at St. Hilaire. It is likely that about 250 men will be employed until the fore part of November.

This is good news for the people of St. Hilaire, as business has been very dull at that place since the mill closed. The pay roll of the mill amounts to several thousand dollars every two weeks and puts a lot of money in circulation.

LUMBER COMPANY LOSES.

Iver Johnson's Verdict is Sustained By the Supreme Court.

Iver Johnson, who was awarded a $200 verdict against the Crookston Lumber company for alleged breach of contract by the district court of Red Lake county last fall, has won his case in the supreme court, the decision having been handed down last Friday. It is as follows:

Syllabus; First-Under alleged contract of employment whereby plaintiff was to work for an entire season for agreed daily wages which was disputed, held, upon the evidence, that it was sufficient to sustain the conclusions that such agreement had been made and that plaintiff had been wrongfully discharged before its termination.

Second-The issue of fact as to the existance of such contract rested upon the testimony of plaintiff which was contradicted; held, that the exclusion of evidence showing defendant's custom in hiring other employes was immaterial to rebut plaintiff's statement in this respect.

Third-That the discrection of the trial court in refusing to allow repetition of evidence to show a custom in hiring employes to corroborate the evidence for plaintiff was properly exercised.

Fourth-With reference to certain instructions, held, first, that the court was justified in assuming that plaintiff had been discharged; second, that the court's refusal to instruct the jury that defendant's belief that plaintiff had quit was proper. Order affirmed. Lovely J.

THE FIRE CROWD.

As a Rule It Likes a Big Blaze and Crashing Walls.

"There is one curious thing connected with fires," said a thoughtful man, "and that is the fact that while the fireman is always a hero in the public estimate and while men and women have all kinds of admiration for these brave fellows they yet want to see them get the worst of it in the fight against the flames. It is an interesting fact that the average man and woman are not at all anxious to see the firemen get the fire under control. They would much rather see the flames spread until the affair developed into an immense conflagration. Mind you, the trait is not at all vicious. There is no malice in it. It is simply the love of excitement and adventure, things that are so deep rooted in human nature that we may not control them at will. Besides, we want to develop our heroes to the limit. We want our firemen to fight a good fight against long odds and under great difficulties. We cannot quarrel with this feeling in the human makeup. After all, it is what one may call the poetry of human nature, and without it this old system of ours would be dull and prosaic indeed. Of course, you will always find a few persons around a fire who are directly concerned in the fight the firemen are making. They want to see the flames put out. In the case of some of the spectators it means bread and meat. It means the loss of a position or maybe the loss of home. But I was speaking of the vast majority of men and women who gather to witness a fire. The fire is the thing with them. They want to see a big blaze and hear the crash of the walls and all that sort of thing. Did you ever take the trouble to analyze a fire crowd? In the first place an alarm of fire will draw a crowd quicker than anything in the world. Whenever the bells begin to clang and the engines go rushing down the street you will see men, women and children rushing this way and that in order to see as much as may be seen of the fire and fire fighters. The hour of day or night does not make so much difference. The crowd will get there in some way and for some reason, though the great majority of the persons have no sort of interest other than idle curiosity. Once on hand, they want to see a good fire, and that's why I say they want to see the flames get the best of the firemen. They will go away and talk about what a game fight the fire laddies made. Human nature is a curious thing, is it not?"—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Never Occurred to Him.

"I don't know why it is," said Mr. Glossup as he came downstairs red eyed and sleepy and greeted his guest, "but I never can get used to the striking of that clock in our room.

"It has such a loud, insistent 'bang' when it strikes the hours that it wakes me up nearly every time. We've had it in the house two or three years, but I can't become accustomed to it. We would have put it in the attic long ago, only it's a present from my wife's mother, and that would never do. Good clock, too, aside from that, but it worries me nearly to death. I wish I knew what to do with it."

"Why don't you wind merely the timekeeping part of it," said his guest, "and let the striking part go unwound?"

"Johnson, you have saved my life!" exclaimed Mr. Glossup joyfully. "I never thought of that."

FEMALE WEAKNESS

542 1-2 Congress St.
PORTLAND, MAINE, Oct. 17, 1902.

I consider Wine of Cardui superior to any doctor's medicine I ever used and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pains would shoot through my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt discouraged for I seemed to be beyond the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment I menstruated without suffering the agonies I usually did and soon became regular and without pain. Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish that all suffering women knew of its good qualities.

Wilhelmina Snow
Treasurer, Portland Economic League

Periodical headaches tell of female weakness. Wine of Cardui cures permanently nineteen out of every twenty cases of irregular menses, bearing down pains or any female weakness. If you are discouraged and doctors have failed, that is the best reason in the world you should try Wine of Cardui now. Remember that headaches mean female weakness. Secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui today.

WINE OF CARDUI

MOODS AND TEARS.

One Woman's Views About Weeping at Theatrical Performances.

"There is just this about crying at the theater," said the average woman—"you'll cry if you're in the mood for it and you won't if you're not, no matter how harrowing or nonharrowing the play may be. Like most average women, I rarely cry either at the theater or anywhere, but I long ago discovered that it depends entirely upon my mood at the time. I once went to a genuine comedy and found the tears filling my eyes just because I happened to be blue at the time, and I've been at many a play with all the women round me mopping their eyes and drying their pocket handkerchiefs on their fans while I, being for some reason or other uplifted, sat there dry eyed, almost smiling.

"No matter what my mood, however, the thing sure to keep me from weeping at the theater is any emotional display on the part of her who is with me. I can attend the weepiest kind of a play unmoved with my sister, for she starts in way ahead of time, making me feel more like laughing than crying, and then when the true lachrymose opportunity arrives it finds me pathos proof. This is the only way by which I may make myself immune from weeping at theaters upon all occasions."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

TIPPING IN LONDON.

No End to the Fees to Servitors In Restaurants.

As an old Londoner I have seen changes in the manners of the city which amount to a complete transformation. I remember well the time when there wasn't really a good restaurant in all London and when men had to be content with dining and supping in the back parlors of public houses. You got very good food in those dark, low ceilinged, stuffy rooms, and I remember when you were considered to be doing very well when you handed the somewhat time worn and ill clad waiter twopence or threepence as a tip.

Nowadays you go into a restaurant which is palatial, and you see men, especially if they belong to the Stock Exchange, giving huge tips that in olden times would have paid the price of a whole dinner for half a dozen friends. And the tipping never seems to end. You tip one waiter for one thing and another for another, and you tip the carver, and then you tip the man who gives you your wine, and as you are leaving you tip the porter who puts on your coat and the other porter who calls your cab. It is, in fact, becoming almost impossible for men of moderate means to go to most of the restaurants of today.—M. A. P.

HEAT AND MOTION.

Various Theories About the Connection Between These Agents.

The idea that heat is a kind of motion was entertained by Plato, who makes Socrates say: "For heat and fire which generate and sustain other things are themselves begotten by impact and friction, but this is motion. Are not these the origin of fire?"

Bacon defined heat to be "a motion acting in its strife upon the smaller particles of bodies." Newton, Boyle and Hooke considered heat to be motion. Locke described it as "a very brisk agitation of the insensible parts of the objects which produces to us that sensation from whence we denominate the object hot; so what in our sensation is heat in the object is nothing but motion. This appears by the way heat is produced, for we see that the rubbing of a brass nail upon a board will make it very hot."

Many scientific men have held heat to be matter, and in spite of Rumford's vigorous exposition of its fallacy this material theory held its ground until a comparatively recent date, when Sir H. Davy took up the subject and by his experiments proved conclusively that this view is unsound.

Causeway of Bending Pillars.

Nature has hewn many upright pillars from the rock at various prehistoric periods, but so far as is known she has completed but one group of bending pillars. The causeway at Staffa, in Scotland, is after this original design. The stone shafts rise perpendicularly to a height of fifty or sixty feet, when they curve inward in a long, sweeping line at once graceful and massive. In some places a perfect Roman arch has been formed in this way. The formations are so symmetrical as to suggest the hand of the architect.

Antiquity of Pins.

Pins of various sorts have been in existence ever since our "first parents" clothed themselves in palm leaves which grew wild in the garden of Eden. As a matter of fact, pins claim a very high antiquity, the earliest form being a natural thorn, which is still used to some extent for fastening the dress by the peasant women of upper Egypt. In prehistoric times pins were also made of the small bones of fish and animals.

Of Course Not.

"Marriage," remarked the moralizer, "is a lottery."

"Yes," rejoined the demoralizer, "but it's one of the games of chance that clergymen do not try to discourage."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Red Lake Indian Reservation Homesteads

February 20th, 1904, Congress passed a bill authorizing the opening for settlement of the ELEVEN TOWNSHIPS of the Red Lake Indian Reservation which are situated in Red Lake County. These lands will be thrown open for settlement within the next four months.

These lands will be disposed of to the highest bidder, and cannot be sold for less than $4 per acre. A payment of one-fifth of the purchase price in cash will be required. and the balance divided in five equal annual payments, without interest.

We have secured a limited number of copies of the Smiley map of Red Lake County and the Red Lake Indian Reservation. These maps are 28x38 inches, and show the grade and quality of each and every quarter-section of land in the portion of the Reservation to be opened for settlement; it gives the number of acres of timber and the kind of timber on each quarter. This map was compiled from the personal notes of Mr. Smiley and from the Government notes thereof. Everyone who intends to be present at the opening should have one of these maps, as it will save you the price of a locater's fee.

STEAMER SAILS ON VOYAGE OF DEATH

LOADED WITH EXCURSIONISTS THE GENERAL SLOCUM BURNS IN EAST RIVER, NEW YORK.

The Total Number of Bodies Recovered Is 632—Over 300 Persons Are Still on the List of the Missing.

New York, June 20.—More than 100 hours after the smoldering wreck of the big excursion steamer General Slosum had sunk off Hunt's Point, in the East river, the full extent of the disaster to the St. Mark's Lutheran Sunday school picnickers had not been learned.

Sunday's harvest of dead numbered 49, bringing the total number of bodies so far recovered up to 632. Of these, 559 have been identified, while 40 of the victims now lying at the morgue have not been claimed by friends or relatives. While the list of missing has been cut down somewhat by the identifications made Sunday, 11 new names were added to that roll, thus leaving the total of missing almost as large as it was on Saturday—something more than 300.

Many Funerals.

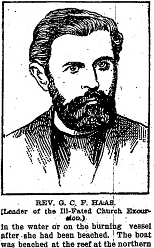
The funerals of nearly 100 of the victims of the disaster were held Sunday. In many instances two caskets were carried in the same hearse, and in some cases two and even three hearses bore away the dead of a single family.

The Awful Disaster.

New York, June 17.—The three-decked excursion steamer General Slocum, of the Knickerbocker Steamboat company, burned to the water's edge off North Brother island, East river, at the entrance of Long Island sound, Wednesday morning, resluting in the death through burning or drowning of at least 700 persons, mostly women and children.

Carried Excursion Party.

The Slocum, with the annual Sunday school excursion of St. Mark's German Lutheran church of this city on board, was proceeding up the river to one of the many resorts of Long Island sound. When near One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, persons on shore saw smoke and flames spring from the upper part of the crowded steamer. A panic ensued on the boat almost instantly. The crowds on the forward deck began to spring overboard or to crowd to the after part of the boat. The screams of the terrified passengers could be heard on shore and hundreds of small boats immediately put off to the rescue. Owing to the rocks on either side of the channel at this point, it had been impossible to beach the vessel. The captain stuck to his post at the wheel and headed the vessel straight up the river for North Brother island, where she was put aground in the shallow water. Several hundred feet of open water still lay between the burning steamer and the shore and many persons perished either in the water or on the burning vessel after she had been beached. The boat was beached at the reef at the northern end of North Brother island, where she rapidly burned to the water's edge.



REV. G. C. F. HAAS.
(Leader of the Ill-Fated Church Excursion.)

Decks Give Way.

It was just before she beached that the hurricane deck, the supports of which had burned away, fell with its load of women and children, adding to the panic and horror of those on the deck below. Very soon after parts of the second and third decks also caved in. But before this happened the tug Walter Tracey had come alongside the burning steamer and been lashed to it. Many of the passangers were taken off by the crew of the Tracey, which remained alongside the steamer until the tug's pilot-house took fire.

Many Frightfully Burned.

Many of those picked up alive in the river will die in the hospitals. Most of them were frightfully burned, having delayed leaping from the boat until their clothing was on fire. Some died in the improvised ambulances in which they were hurried from the shore. Every man on board who could swim went overboard loaded down with children. Many of these heroes lost their lives, because, burdened as they were, they could make no headway against the overpowering swirl of the tide as it rushes from the East river into the sound.

Many May Be Safe.

There are a number of places where the living may have landed, and it is believed that many that are now reported missing are safe, and eventually will be heard from by the officials who have the rescue work in hand. Indeed, a surprising number of persons reported to these officials that they had been saved, thus cutting the list of missing down considerably, as well as the probable mortality list.

Many persons who were injured in the panic that followed the breaking out of the flames on the General Slocum, and at least 200 persons were taken to the hospitals. Not a death has occurred so far among these, and many of them have already been discharged.

A Remarkable Experience.

Perhaps the most remarkable case in the many appalling experiences of those who were on the Slocum was that of Miss Clara Hartman, who was picked up for dead, towed behind a boat for several miles, wrapped in a tarpaulin and tagged as dead, and then recovered consciousness at the Alexander avenue police station. It is now believed she will recover.

Relief Sadly Needed.

Mayor McClellan on Thursday, after receiving messages of condolence from many sources, visited North Brother island, and later visited the morgue. He issued a proclamation to the citizens of New York, and appointed a relief committee of prominent men, and relief will be sadly needed in that little East side territory which the vast majority of those that perished were accustomed to call home.

Criticism for Crew.

There is open criticism of the failure of the Slocum's officers and crew to meet the emergency, but as yet no formal action has been taken by either the municipal or federal authorities. Capt. Van Schaick and the two pilots are under arrest, but are held only as witness. That there was terrible failure to meet the responsibilities is undoubted. No effort, as far as can be learned, was made to launch the life rafts or boats and no concerted attempt made toward equipping the helpless women and children with life preservers. There is very general criticism of the captain and pilots for their failure to turn the vessel ashore the moment they were informed that the fire had gained headway. Engineer Conklin, who, it was reported, perished, is now said to be alive and in hiding. A search is being made for him.

TRADE REVIEW.

Leading Crops Show Marked Improvement—General Trade and Industry Quiet.

New York, June 18.—Bradstreet's, reviewing the state of trade, says: "Favorable features this week are the further improvement shown in leading crops and the ending of the tie-up on the great lakes. Wheat, oats and cotton have improved, but corn is still backward, owing to the cool weather. General trade and industry have remained quiet, and may be said to have "marked time." The notable underlying feature of the entire situation is the feeling that with an average crop of wheat and large yields of the other cereals and of cotton now in prospect, a good fall and winter business is to be looked for. Pending further progress in this direction the tendency is to await events. Railway earnings reflect current quietness in business, and the decreases of three-fifths per cent. of gross in May and of six per cent. in April net, indicated last week, are confirmed by fuller details. Transportation business generally is better than in 1902. Bank clearings, a more immediate reflection of current business, show an enlargement over last week, but grand totals will still show recessions from a year ago."

R. G. Dun & Co., in their Weekly Review of Trade, say: "Industry suffers from an epidemic of ultra conservatism, emanating apparently from the theory that a season of depression must come every ten years, while the coincidence of a presidential election furnishes another precedent. As a result stocks of merchandise have been reduced, railway traffic is lessened, preparations for future business are curtailed and less money is distributed in the form of wages; while those having capital to invest confine their attention to the highest classes of bonds or hold back for still lower security prices.

"Failures this week numbered 257 in the United States, against 213 last year, and 16 in Canada, compared with 24 a year ago."

Verdict Upheld.

Toronto, Ont., June 18.—The high court of justice has upheld the verdict for $5,000 in favor of the plaintiff in the case of Delehanty versus the Michigan Central Railroad company, tried recently at Welland. Edward J. Delehanty, a professional ball player, was expelled from a train of the defendants at Bridgeburg, and lost his life by falling off the bridge across the Niagara river connecting Bridgeburg and Buffalo. The action was brought by the widow and daughter of the deceased.

American Derby Winner.

Chicago, June 20.—In the presence of close to 50,000 people, and out of a field of 16 starters, Highball won the American derby, with Woodson second and Rapid Water third. Time, 2:33 flat.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Big Cattle Show.

Three great cattle breeders' associations will hold shows at the Minnesota state fair. The displays of the American Shorthorn Breeders' association and of the American Hereford Cattle Breeders' association are well known to patrons of the fair, but the American Aberdeen Angus Breeders has not been as prominent. The breed is constantly growing in favor, and Aberdeen Angus cattle are now extensively raised on the Minnesota stock farms. Recognizing the value of this breed the board of managers of the state fair have devoted a generous premium classification to the Aberdeen Angus breeders, which is supplemented by 50 special premiums offered by the American Angus Breeders' association, about $1,000 in cash prizes being offered for Aberdeen Angus cattle. C. F. Curtis, of Ames, Ia., will judge the Aberdeen Angus cattle this year.

The Minnesota state fair opens Aug. 29 and closes Sept. 3. Half fare rates have been secured on all railroads leading to the Twin Cities.

Well Pleased.

James Wilson, secretary of agriculture, was in St. Paul on a visit of inspection to the Minnesota experiment station. Secretary Wilson was enthusiastic over the work which is being done at the state farm. He says that the Minnesota station hardly has its equal in the world; that the work in research and agricultural experiment which is being done there is of the greatest value, and that it will revolutionize many ideas in regard to agricultural methods. The experiments in regard to the development of dairy products and the feeding of dairy animals are among the most important which are being done at the station. The results of the investigation concerning the feeding of dairy animals going on at the institution will be made public soon, and will astonish the authorities on the subject. The department at Washington is entering into hearty co-operation with those in charge of the experiment station.

The Little Red School House.

Little red school houses on the hill are being built in Minnesota in large numbers, if the school loans made by the state investment board are an indication of the number of new structures. The board loaned approximately $500,000 in the fiscal year ending July 31, 1903, and the amount will be greater in 1904. This sum includes loans to counties and townships, but a large part of it is to school districts for building new school houses or repairing old structures. The state auditor has no information as to the character of the new school houses, but it is learned from other sources that the buildings erected this year are generally more substantial and more commodious than those built in previous years.

A Little Hero.

Perishing in trying to save his younger brother from drowning in the Mississippi, at Minneapolis, John Otter, aged 10 years, died a hero.

Several boys were swimming near Thirteenth avenue NE. when Mathias Otter, aged 8 years, ventured beyond his depth and cried for help. His brother hurried into the water and caught the little fellow. He managed to push him to the shore, but was so fatigued that the current was too much for him and he was himself carried beyond his depth. Before his companions on the shore realized what was happening, the young hero sank and drowned.

Will Improve Power.

C. C. Cokefair, general manager of the General Power compang, owner of the water power on the St. Louis river at Duluth has returned from the East and announces that the bonds of the company have been placed and plenty of money will shortly be forthcoming to develop the water power. The company is making preparations to award the contracts at once for the construction and machinery. The installation of the first thirty horsepower will cost $3,000,000. The plan is to use water power to develop electrical power for transmission.

Prohibition Ticket.

The prohibition party of this state held its convention in Minneapolis, and placed in nomination a state ticket, headed by C. W. Dorsett of Minneapolis, for governor. Mr. Dorsett had no opposition in the actual balloting, although George F. Wells of St. Paul was also nominated and withdrew his name in favor of the Minneapolis man. J. F. Heiberg, of Heiberg, was named for lieutenant governor; L. J. Von Fossen, attorney general; H. A. Rigg, secretary of state; Delbert U. Wells, treasurer; F. R. McManigle, auditor.

News Notes.

The Third regiment of infantry, Minnesota national guard, went into camp at Lake City.

The thirty-second annual convention of the Minnesota State Fireman's association met at Pipestone.

Francis Burbage, the 2-year-old son of Frank Burbage of Minneapolis, was found dead in the outhouse on the place.

Wm. Ellingsworth, aged about 45, residing in Elysian township, Le Sueur county, hanged himself today. No cause for the deed is known.

William Nelson, an old settler and prominent business man, shot and killed himself this afternoon on a vacant lot in the outskirts of Ely.

During a session of the district court at Preston a verdict was returned in the case of Moore vs. Schmidt, a suit for $1,000 damages, giving the plaintiff $6 to cover the cost of his false teeth broken during the assault upon which the suit is based.

SOMEHOW the Collins organs are not circulating James J. Hill's letter to E. A. Nelson as a campaign document.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT disavows a desire to manage the campaign, but it is evident that he wants to manage the campaign manager.

A LOT of Minnesota editors are wondering what the state did with that $100,000 appropriated for the St. Louis exposition.

THE Minneapolis Tribune calls the Van Sant regime "a piece of worn-out and discredited political machinery." And the Tribune isn't pro-merger, either.

"SOME women never live long enough to know which worries them most—their heart-strings or their corset strings," observes Ed. Huntington, the Windom philosopher.

THE call for the Democoatic state nominating convention will be issued in a few days. The convention will be held in St. Paul or Minneapolis sometime during the latter part of August.

THE great campaign of 1904 is now in progress. One of the great political parties has named choice for president and vice president and the other convention comes within two weeks.

THE recognition of the Addicks faction by the Republican national convention is not evidence that the party has reformed. If Addicks possesses a single attribute of statesmanship the public press has greatly maligned him.

THE Republican national convention in session at Chicago this week excites less interests than any gathering of that kind in the last twenty years. The certainty of the renomination of President Roosevelt removes the sensational features of a contest.

THE present year seems destined to break the record in the number holocausts and other death-dealing casualties. The burning of the ship in New York Harbor, in which one thousand people perished is as frightful in its consequences as the Iroqouis thetre disaster early in the year.

THE last action of the Minnesota State Optical association before it adjourned last week was the adoption of a permanent title for the members of the profession practicing optical work within the state of Minnesota, and from now on the title of optometrist will be used in place of optician.

CONGRESSMAN FRANK M. EDDY, one of the candidates for the Republican nomination for governor of Minnesota, has announced his platform. One of the planks is: "One wife at a time, and no more, for one man." That plank ought to help m some, says the Superior Telegram unless the other fellow goes him one better and proposes a plank to prohibit the ice man from winking at the cook.

REV. PIERSE PINCH, of Chicago, takes the other side of the divorce discussion as follows:

> Ministers are not compelled to say that all persons divorced for anything but the "one cause" shall not marry again. They are free to teach what obvious justice and humanity require, and not a harsh law that Jesus never gave. If, for example a woman refuses to live with a man who makes himself a drunken brute, and gets a divorce from him, and later marries a decent man, no preacher is bound to denounce such marriage.

THE Republicans have only a week more of anixiety over the outcome of the gubernatorial fight, as the state nominating convention will be held next Thursday in St. Paul. Both of the leading candidates. Hon. Robert C. Dunn and Judge Collins, are expending all their effort in Hennepin county. Collins must have that county in order to make any kind of a showing at the convention. The Dunn people figure that their candidate will win without help from Minneapolis, but they want to be sure of the vote cast by that county.

THE Wisconsin Republicans appear to be between the devil and the deep blue sea, and they stand to lose by choosing either horn of the dilemma. In regard to the situtation the Minneapolis Times Says: The Wisconsin voters will haye something to say in November about the turning down of the La Follette delegation by the national committee, but just as much would have been said if the Spooner crowd had been shown the door. It is a dilemma."

"LOUNGER" of the Blue Earth Post, suggests in the following, that the pulpit might furnish a fair elementary training for the newspaper business:

> "The conntry editor has a larger audience each week than any minister in his town. He has an opportunity to mold public opinion that the preacher cannot possibly enjoy. His paper circulates among those who do not attend church, and if his paper is of good moral tone it will find its way to the families of the church members. Thus it will be seen that he reaches not only the best, but all classes of society. The minister, as he stands in his pulpit, sees his entire audience and knows just who are "drinking in" his message. The editor prints his thoughts weekly and sends them out. They go into the highways and byways. If that editor is a man good enough to become a Methodist minister he is none too good to remain in the editorial harness. There is just as great a demand for good, Christian men to edit our country newspapers as for the ministry.

THE following dismal picture is drawn from Winnipeg and would indicate that the Canadian boom is rapidly going to the bow wows, or has already gone. The report says:

"The way the immigration department and the manufacturers association are bringing skilled mechanics to this country is a digcrace," said a prominent member of the Trades and Labor council today. "We estimate that there are at least five men for every job in Winnipeg today. There are thousands of men unemployed walking the streets of Winnipeg with small chance of getting employment. Bricklayers, plumbers and printers are most numerous. Every train from the east brings in a number of skilled workmen despite the fact that there is no work for those now here. Many of these new comers will have a hard time, as few of them have money and are unaccustomed to the country."

DOCTOR ADVOCATED OPERATION —PE-RU-NA MADE KNIFE UNNECESSARY.

MRS. EVA BARTHO.

Mrs. Eva Bartho, 133 East 12th street, New York City, N. Y., writes:

"I suffered for three years with leucorrhea and ulceration of the womb. The doctor advocated an operation which I dreaded very much, and strongly objected to go under it. Now I am a changed woman. Peruna cured me; it took nine bottles, but I felt so much improved I kept taking it, as I dreaded an operation so much. I am to-day in perfect health and have not felt so well for fifteen years."—Mrs. Eva Bartho.

It is no longer a question as to whether Peruna can be relied on to cure all such cases. During the many years in which Peruna has been put to test in all forms and stages of acute and chronic catarrh no one year has put this remedy to greater test than the past year.

If all the women who are suffering with any form of female weakness would write to Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio, and give him a complete description of their symptoms and the peculiarities of their troubles, he will immediately reply with complete directions for treatment, free of charge.

DAIRY DEPARTMENT.

Edited by Geo. L. Austin, Manager of the Red Lake Falls Creamery.

Protect the Cows.

Now that the hot weather is near at hand the following advice from a writer on dairy topics is timely:

Our creamery patron readers should fully appreciate the necessity of furnishing the stock with plenty of shade and water for the hot days which are coming. An ideal spot for a pasture is a meadow adjoining a lake of pure water surrounded with timber. Then the cattle can drink and lie down in the shade as best suits their fancy. Of course there are few farms where such an arrangement is possible, but in a great many instances better accomodations can be furnished than those which the stock now enjoys. Many a herd is compelled to stay in the pasture all day during the hot weather without protection from the hot sun and the flies and without water. Such treatment of dumb animals is inhuman and unprofitable and the farmer who is guilty of the crime ought to be punished. It is but the work of a few hours to erect a temporary shed out of any material which is the most convenient and is time and money well expended. At the proper time trees ought to be planted so as to furnish shade for the furture. Under this temporary shed or shade trees should be a tank of fresh pure water to which the cattle may have aecess.

Country Editors and Parcels Post.

Commercial Bulletin and Northwest Trade: In the Red Lake Falls, (Minn.) Gazette, a weekly paper published in a thriving county seat town, is an editorial copied from another paper favoring the parcels post. In the same department is an editorial urging the merchants to advertise.

This is a good illustration of the consistency shown by a large number of editors who do not think. They are ready to clip their editorial thought on the parcels post from the literature sent out by mail order concerns which attacks the interests of the home merchant at the same time pretending to defend the interests of the farmer.

They forgot, however, that the mail order concern does not support local newspapers and that the interests of the local newspapers and the local merchants are identical.

Merchants themselves are greatly to blame for the spread of this sentiment. They know it is wrong and they know the editor is likely to make mistakes through not understanding the situation. Not one-half of the weekly newspaper editors in the northwest understand the retailers' position on the parcels post. If they did there would be less catalog house editorials published.

When the catalog houses endeavor to make the postal department their ally under the guise of a parcels post and helping the farmer, it is easy for an unthinking editor to fall into the trap and talk parcels post, as he imagines, in the interest of the farmer. If the local merchant explains to him how a parcels post can end the prosperity of the smaller towns by sending the business to the big centers and that the farmer has as much to lose in this as the merchant or the business men of the small town, the editor would take a different view.

The farmers of this country are not in a position to trade a good local market and its influence on the value of their land for the chance to use a parcels post for the second class merchandise shipped by some catalog house.

Wanted Panama Canal Machinery.

It is estimated that, owing to the effect of the moist atmosphere on iron and steel along the Panama canal, the original French company sacrificed at least as much as $50,000,000 in machinery. Proper care in storage and protection might have saved this, just as proper care of the body and systematic use of golden grain belt beer saves many a man from nervous depression and collapse. This excellent tonic is brewed from the choicest barley malt and hops and makes an appetizing and gratifying beverage for regular use in the home. When you read your local paper and find items you think should have appeared, missing, remember the makers of the paper regret it more than you do. If you can hand items occasionally your kindness will be reciprocated. Newspaper people believe thoroughly in rewarding their friends and letting the other fellow hustle for himself.

Ed. L. Healy has been keeping the COURIER's job presses busy this week on several long runs of advertising matter. Mr. Healy is advertising his lists of land at the Thief River Falls sale this week, and it is not unlikely that a great many of the disappointed bidders will come down to this part of the country to invest in improved farms.

J. H. Runnings, traveling passenger agent of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railway was a visitor to the city Saturday. His road will run excursions to the shrine of St. Anne on July 21, and he was here to interest the Canadians of these parts in the matter. A rate of $25 for the round trip from Duluth is made, with a return limit of forty days.

Crookston Journal: Mrs. Marshall, the postmistress at Red Lake Falls and Frank Hunt, one of the prominent Red Lake Falls business men drove down from that place early yesterday morning to attend business matters in this city. The start was made from Red Lake Falls at 5 o'clock and the drive down in the cool of the early morning was a very pleasant one.

Our baseball boys drove to Thief River Falls Sunday to play a game with the club at that city, and came back with victory perching on the banner of the other fellows. The score is reported to be 9 to 3. Red Lake Falls has an excellent club this year, but it seems to be followed by a persistent hoodoo. The season is young, however, and we will all hope the boys will open up on a winning streak that can't be stopped by a forty-mule team.

E. T. Winship, representative for Hart, Schaffner & Marx clothing, was in the city last Saturday selling the fall line of these popular line of fall goods to Berthon & Armstrong, the clothiers. No line of clothing in the country is better known than the famous H., S. & M., and in Red Lake county no one could fail to be familiar with its merits. The success that has been won by the Surprise store is a tribute to the quality of goods handeled to the efforts put forth in letting the people know of the bargains offered.

Carl Garmolus, the farmer hear Ada who was killed in a runaway about a week ago, less than a year before his death encountered a smooth insurance agent, who by false representation had induced him to take out a life policy for $50,000. Finding himself in an undesirable position, Germolus made a kick, with the result that the general agent of the company came to see him and a compromise was made, whereby the policy was reduced $10,000. Now the company is sorry they did not let him off entirely.

The new Soo town in Poplar River township, which is to be exploited by L. C. Simons, is to be called Brooks, and it is likely that the postoffice of that name will be moved to the site of the new town in the near future. Remi Lefaive, of that township, has made application for a liquor license, and there is likely to be another thirst parlor before many weeks. The saloon and the gospel go hand in hand wherever civilization plants its standard, but the saloon is usually several weeks ahead in the race.

Thief River Press: A deal was closed this week by which P. and J. Meehan disposed of their entire holdings in this city and vicinity to a Minneapolis firm of which Howe Paige is the active member and will be resident here. The real estate to change hands consists of many lots in the city and nearly 80 acres of land adjoining the town limits on the north. The consideration is understood to have been $15,000. Mr. Paige will open an office here and will keep the real estate on the market, he having made the deal believing the investment to be a good one from a speculate point of view.

The Soo town over east has been located on the southeast quarter of section 9, Emardville township, and already there is a rush for business openings. At the time of this writing (Tuesday) two applications for saloon licenses have been filed with the county auditor, the applicants being H. L. Veigel and Brown and Buskirk, all of Red Lake Falls. The latter already have ths lumber for their building hauled. The probabilities are that every line of business will be overdone, as is usual in new towns, and a whole lot of the first rush of business men are apt to be disappointed. It is given out that two general stores will be put at once, and a Minneapolis man is figuring on a hardware.

The concert given by the band orchestra Friday evening was probably the most successful musical entertainment ever given in the city. Unfortunately a storm threatened that evening and a large number were deterred from going on that account. The principle feature was was a cantata by a chorus of twenty-five voices, with incidental soprano and alto solos. J. B. Armstrong rendered one of his exquisite baritone solos, and the male quartette contributed a number to the program. The music furnished by the orchestra was of the highest grade and won many compliments from the audience. It is the wish of a great many of the people that the program might be repeated in the near future in order that more of the people of the city may have an opportunity of hearing it.

Arrangements for the Fourth of July celebration are rapidly being completed. The following committees have been appointed to assist the executive committee: On decorations, Dr. F. F. Fletcher, Chmn., A. G. Bjorneby, Geo. F. Hennings; on floats, S. M. Sivertson and Ed. L. Healy; on sports, Frank Jeffers, Chmn., M. A. Converse, A. L. Reichert; A. Mercier; J. J. Padden; F. A. Grady; on calthumpians, Verne Healy; Wm. Hunt; Orson Doe; Albert Lizee and Ernest Toupin. Mrs. J. A. Duffy will have charge of the liberty float assisted by several of our ladies. The personnel of the above committees is a sufficient guarantee that the work assigned to them will be carried through with promptness and that everything will be in first class condition when wanted.

Rheumatism
"THE PAIN KING."

Those who have ever felt its keen, cutting pains, or witnessed the intense suffering of others, know that Rheumatism is torture, and that it is rightly called "The King of Pain."

All do not suffer alike. Some are suddenly seized with the most excruciating pains, and it seems every muscle and joint in the body was being torn asunder. Others feel only occasional slight pains for weeks or months, when a sudden change in the weather or exposure to damp, chilly winds or night air brings on a fierce attack, lasting for days perhaps, and leaving the patient with a weakened constitution or crippled and deformed for all time.

An acid, polluted condition of the blood is the cause of every form and variety of Rheumatism, Muscular, Articular, Acute, Chronic, Inflammatory and Sciatic, and the blood must be purged and purified before there is an end to your aches and pains. External applications, the use of liniments and plasters, do much toward temporary relief, but such treatment does not reach the real cause or cleanse the diseased blood; but S. S. S., the greatest of all blood purifiers and tonics, does cure Rheumatism by antidoting and neutralizing the poisonous acids and building up the weak and sluggish blood. It is safe and reliable in all forms of Rheumatism. It makes the old acid blood rich, and the pain-tortured muscles and joints are relieved, the shattered nerves are made strong, and the entire system is invigorated and toned up by the use of this great vegetable remedy.

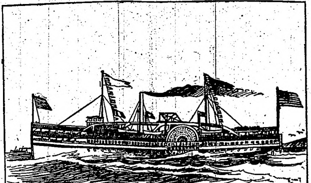
ILL-FATED STEAMER GEN. SLOCUM.



The General Slocum was built for an excursion boat, and when not chartered for special excursions ran between New York and Rockaway Beach. It was owned by the Knickerbocker Boat company, which also owns the excursion steamer Grand Republic. At yacht races the great size of the boat made it prominent in the fleet of excursion steamers that lined the course. The vessel was launched at Brooklyn in April, 1891. The keel was 235 feet, the deck 250 feet long. Its breadth of hull was 37 feet, overguard, 70 feet. The gross tonnage was 1,284 and the net tonnage 1,013. The boat had two boilers, each 23½ feet long and 9½ feet in diameter, and four furnaces.

STRICKEN DEAD BY LIGHTNING

BOLT STRIKES TREE IN PENNSYLVANIA UNDER WHICH FOUR BOYS STAND.

Three of the Youths Are Instantly Killed—The Fourth Dies in a Short Time as a Result of His Injuries.

Chester, Pa., June 20.—Four boys standing under a cherry tree on a farm near Felton, three miles from here, were killed Sunday by a stroke of lightning. The dead are: Ross Smith, aged 13 years, of Felton, son of the owner of the farm; Alexander Fullerton, 13 years, Felton; William Davis, 14 years, Upland; Samuel Clark, 15 years, colored, Chester. About a dozen boys went from Felton to pick cherries on the Smith farm. Farmer Smith told his son, Ross, who was about to go to Sunday school, to order away any boys he might see at the cherry trees. On the way young Smith met Fullerton, Davis and Clark. As they approached the cherry trees the dozen boys from Felton ran away. A storm was coming up and the four other boys went under one of the trees. They had been there only a few minutes when lightning struck the tree. Smith, Fullerton and Davis were killed instantly. The colored boy was so badly injured that he died on the way to a hospital.

St. Paul, Minn., June 20.—Sheriff G. D. Harris, of St. Croix county, Wis., was shot and killed Saturday night, while attempting to make an arrest on an Omaha train near Fall Creek, Wis. The man who did the shooting, and whose name is unknown, jumped from the moving train and escaped. Sheriff Harris had gone to Eau Claire on business, and when about to board the train for Hudson was informed by the chief of police of Eau Claire that a man suspected of burglary was aboard the train. The sheriff searched the train and finally located his man in the smoking car. He placed him under arrest and was about to handcuff him when the desperado drew a revolver and fired three times, shooting the sheriff through the head and killing him instantly. In the excitement which followed the shooting the murderer ran the entire length of the train, jumping from the rear coach while the train was going at a high speed. He then stole a horse and buggy and made his way to Augusta, where the animal was found Sunday, but all further clue to the fugitive's whereabouts is apparently lost.

SPURNED BY REVENGE.

Bandit Raisuli, in a Letter, Gives Reasons for the Kidnaping of Perdicaris.

London, June 20.—Revenge on the reason for the kidnaping of the American, Perdicaris, by Raisuli, according to a letter from the bandit. The correspondent of the Daily Mail at Tangier says that a letter from Raisuli was received there Sunday, in which the brigand recites the wrongs done by the governor to his tribe, and declares he harbors no enmity toward the Christians. The letter ends with the threat that the new bashaw must be just or the present troubles will be renewed.

TRAIN IS ROBBED.

Northern Coast Limited Held Up in Montana—Bandits Secure Sum of $65,000.

Bearmouth, Mont., June 18.—At 11 o'clock Thursday night two masked men held up North Coast Limited Northern Pacific passenger train, east bound, at about a mile and a half east of this station. After bringing the train to a stop they dynamited the express car, blew open the safe and secured all of its contents.

The robbers secured $65,000 from the Northern Pacific Express company's safe, which they dynamited. The safe was billed through from the coast to Chicago.

Johnson, Richmond, Va.; vice presidents, Emmett Rixford, San Francisco, and James Bell, Montreal; secretary, Dudley T. Allen, Cleveland; recorder, Richard H. Hart, Philadelphia; treasurer, R. S. Orders 50,000 Bee Stings.

Beeville, Tex., June 20.—A new apiary product comes to light by the receipt of an order from a Philadelphia firm of chemists for 50,000 bee stings. The acid which the poison sacks of bees contain is said to be valuable in the manufacture of a remedy for rheumatism.

Dam Bursts.

Fort Lyons, Col., June 17.—The Amity dam, completed last year at a cost of $100,000, has been torn out by the high water in the Arkansas river. The loss is total. Immense damage is feared to crops under the Amity canal, which cannot secure water until the dam is rebuilt.

A CRUSHING BLOW FOR THE RUSSIANS

JAPANESE MEET ATTEMPT TO TURN THEIR RIGHT FLANK WITH DECISIVE DEFEAT.

Gen. Stakelberg Forced to Retreat—Said to Have Lost 10,000 Men in the Engagement—Story Lacks Confirmation.

London, June 17.—The Russian army at Vafangow, 50,000 strong, has been crushed by Gen. Nodzu, with 60,000 Japanese troops. The Russians abandoned 13 guns, their supplies, their baggage train, their regimental colors, and their dead and wounded. They are in full retreat northward along three roads. The Japanese admit that they lost 1,000 men, killed and wounded. They say the Russians left more than 500 dead and wounded on the field. Gen. Kuroki is reported to have sent two divisions from Siuyen to intercept Stackelberg's retreat. As Stackelberg is 100 miles from Kuropatkin's main army at Liaoyang he may be compelled to surrender.

Places Loss at High Figure.

Paris, June 20.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the L'Echo de Paris says there is a report in Russian military circles that Gen. Stakelberg during his retreat from Vafangow lost 10,000 men in killed, wounded and captured. He adds that this news has created consternation.

Retreating on Foot.

London, June 20.—Gen. Stakelberg's shattered forces are retreating on foot toward Haicheng. Russian reports state that the railroad is unable to transport more than a few thousand men and the flight of the defeated army apparently is so urgent that there is no time to wait on the arrival of more trains. Besides the railroad has a large task in transporting the men wounded in the battles at Vanfangow and Telissu. Eleven hundred wounded, including 55 officers, have reached Liaoyang and 734 wounded men and 38 officers are in Mukden. The Russians estimate their total losses at 2,000 men. There seems to be every reason for Stakelberg's haste to get back to the main army. The St. Petersburg war office announces that Kuroki is at Siuyen with 30,000 men, but believes that he is too late to pocket Stakelberg.

Between Two Jap Armies.

London, June 18.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg stated that two Japanese divisions were marching from Siuyen to intercept Gen. Stakelberg's army. If this is true, and the Japanese army from Siuyen has reached Tashicao, as stated by the Daily Mail's correspondent, then Gen. Stakelberg's army is in a most critical situation, with 20,000 fresh Japanese troops blocking his way to the north and the 60,000 men of Gen. Nodzu's army pressing him from the south. He cannot retreat eastward. He must either withdraw toward Newchwang or fight.

Cruiser Reported Sunk.

London, June 18.—Reports reaching London indicate that the Vladivostok squadron has escaped with perhaps the loss of the cruiser Rurik, and that a Japanese army has attacked Gen. Stakelberg's retreating army north of Vafangow.

Race to Vladivostok.

The Vladivostok squadron—or a part of it, at least—was sighted early this (Saturday) morning off the western end of the Straits of Tsugaru, between the main island of Japan and the island of Yezo. This would locate the Russian vessels 400 miles due east of Vladivostok. Presuming that Vice Admiral Kamimura is in close pursuit, it is a quesiton of speed whether the Russians can get into safe harbor at Vladivostok without a battle.

Great Loss to Japanese.

Tokio, June 17.—The Vladivostok squadron apparently has escaped after a raid into the Korean strait, which cost Japan at least two transports and the lives of nearly 1,000 men. Vice Admiral Kamamura with a Japanese squadron is in hot pursuit. Heavy fogs prevail over the strait. As far as ascertained the net results of the Russian raid are summarized as follows:

Hatachi, transport, sunk with 700 men on board; all killed or drowned save 397 men.

Sado, transport, sunk with 700 men on board; 153 escape in boats.

Izuma, transport with soldiers and supplies; missing.

Jap Transport Destroyed.

Tokio, June 20.—In addition to the transport Hitaichi and shelling the Sado the Russian fleet sank the Idzumi, a transport homeward bound, carrying a few sick soldiers. Three boats from the Idzumi have reached shore. The losses on the Idzumi are not known.

Effect of Squadron's Raid.

St. Petersburg, June 20.—Vice Admiral Skrydloff's message to the emperor from Vladivostok, in which he details the operations of the Vladivostok squadron, indicates that he has accounted for at least three of the Japanese transports, besides a suspected collier. The message does not indicate the present whereabouts of the squadron. The fact that the collier was sent to Vladivostok under a prize crew might indicate that the news of the operations of the squadron was brought there by her and that the cruisers are still at sea. The destruction of an aggregate of 15,000 tons of shipping, besides troops and crews, and a valuable cargo of supplies, is considered here as being a good showing for the raid made by the cruisers.

Three of my brothers have died of heart trouble, and I thought I was going the same way, but about two and a half years ago I got a pamphlet about Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure and thought I would try a few bottles. GRANGER'S ISLAND

[Copyright, 1903, by C. B. Lewis.]

I had been sent to a hospital at Singapore with fever, and upon convalescing and while looking for another berth as mate I ran across an American named Granger. He had been, according to his statements, a passenger on a vessel cast away in the China sea, and all hands had been lost save himself.

A part of the island was sterile and rocky, and amid the rocks he one day found a pirate's cave. There were, he contended in the most earnest way, thousands of pieces of silk and other costly goods, boxes of pearls, chests of jewelry and kegs of coin. He roughly estimated his find to be worth $2,000,000.

What the American wanted was to charter a ship to fetch away the treasure, and when he learned that I was a navigator he made me an offer that I closed with at once. The man seemed to have plenty of money, and in the course of a week he got hold of a schooner which was for charter, and ten days later she had been fitted out for the voyage.

We cleared for a port in Japan and got away with a fair wind, and during the two weeks it took us to work up to the locality of Granger's island all went well with us. He had located the place on the chart as being about fifty miles to the east of the island of Hainan.

Granger had been swept ashore at night. He had landed on one side of the island and been taken off on the other. He claimed to remember certain landmarks, however, and for ten days we threaded the channels of the islands, and he took a close look at every one. It was on the twelfth day of our search that we came to his island, and the finding of it gave us all a queer feeling. There were no such landmarks as he described, nor was the lay of the land at all according to his drawings. It was a totally different island in size and appearance, and yet he stoutly maintained that it was the one we had come in search of, and that there could be no mistake. We carried deep water to within half a mile of the beach, and then the schooner was anchored, and we pulled ashore in the yawl.

We landed on a sandy beach, and Granger headed into the forest without hesitation. After walking for half an hour he said that he recognized certain landmarks, and that the treasure was not far away. Presently he remarked that something had worked into his shoe, and, telling us to keep right on till we reached the rocks, he sat down and began unlacing his shoe. We left him behind in a moment, as the bushes were thick, and though we walked for half a mile we found no rocks. In going a distance of less than a mile we struck the other shore.

Granger had not yet joined us, and after waiting fifteen minutes I sent one of the men back to ascertain the cause of the delay. Failing to find the man, the sailor kept on to the beach, and then returned to us with the announcement that the yawl was missing. All my suspicions were now aroused, and we broke into a run as we made for the spot where the boat had been beached and left to care for herself. We got to the shore to see her alongside the anchored schooner. Two men had been left aboard, and as we stood there we saw Granger drive them into the yawl at the point of a pistol and command them to row for the shore. We yelled and shouted and demanded explanations, but he gave us no attention whatever.

Well, there we were, eight of us, ashore on a small island and an insane man in possession of the schooner. He had firearms, and we had only our knives. It would have been no trick at all to go off to him in the boat, but with his pistols he could have shot every one of us before a man could have reached the deck.

Granger's conduct showed that he was out of his mind. He could not run away with the craft, but what we feared was that he would scuttle her or set her on fire. We made our beds on the sands that night and slept soundly enough, and when morning came and Granger still refused to answer our hails we made up our minds that something must be done before the day was out.

After two or three hours of watching on our part and having seen no stir aboard one of the men climbed a palm tree and from a height of fifty feet got a fair view of the schooner's deck. Nothing was to be seen of Granger. He might be watching us from the galley or the cabin, but we must take our chances of that.

It was soon after noon that we all got into the boat to scull quietly down on the anchored craft, each man being armed with a club. Had he appeared we were prepared to put back at once, but foot by foot we approached the schooner without any alarm, and at length we were alongside. Five minutes after getting aboard we found him hanging by the neck in the cabin, and the state of the body proved that he had been dead for hours.

Who was Granger? He had paid a round price to charter the vessel, and yet he had come on a fool's errand. He could never have been wrecked as he stated, and there was no treasure house. Why did he tell such a yarn? We knew that he had been a sea captain, and the only explanation of his strange conduct was to believe that he had gone treasure mad.

We sailed the schooner back to Singapore and made a report of the case and were subjected to a long legal examination, but, though thirty years have passed away, the identity of that man has not yet been established nor his singular conduct satisfactorily accounted for.

A Unique Tennessee County.

"The county of Franklin, in my state," said a Tennessee man, "has the unique distinction of being the only county that ever undertook to secede from the state to which it belonged. A great many people have doubtless forgotten that the people of Tennessee voted twice on the proposition to secede from the Union. At the first election in February there was an enormous majority—about 100,000—against disunion. A few months later, when the attack on Fort Sumter stirred the passions of men, another vote was had, and the earlier verdict was reversed by about the same decisive figures.

"But in Franklin county, where state rights and secession claimed the allegiance of the entire population, there was such intense disgust over the result of the first election that, led by the Hon. Pete Turney, afterward supreme court judge and twice governor, the citizens held a mass meeting and solemnly passed an ordinance of secession from Tennessee. Of course, when the state reconsidered in June, Franklin county was mollified and renewed its allegiance."—Washington Post.

Units of Measure.

The editor was taught by his governess that three barleycorns measured one inch, and at the mature age of six years he determined to test the accuracy of this statement. He had no difficulty in finding the barleycorns, but somehow no three grains that he picked up in the chickens' yard agreed with the formula. He never attempted the more scientific test which is thus described: "The length of a pendulum oscillating in a second in vacuo at sea level in the latitude of London is 39.13929 inches, and from the knowledge of this fact the standard of the inch, foot and yard can easily be obtained should the official standards at any time be lost or mislaid." When in 1834 the "standard" measure was destroyed by fire at the house of parliament an attempt was made to restore it by the pendulum test, but pendulums, like barleycorns, were found not to agree.—London Chronicle.

Did He Get Off?

The famous Liddell, who, with Scott, compiled Liddell and Scott's lexicon, was dean of Christchurch college, Oxford. It was whispered in regard to the lexicon that Liddell provided the money and Scott the brains. A young undergraduate was haled before the dean for some misdemeanor. "I hear, Mr. ——, that you have a pretty wit for impromptu verse," said the dean. "If you will write one on the lexicon I will let you off." The young man thought a moment and then said:

"There's a Lexicon written by Liddell and
Scott;
Some of it's good, and some of it's not.
The part that is good was written by
Scott,
The part that was written by Liddell is rot."

The Silk Spinning Oyster.

A mollusk that might take an important place in textile industries if it existed in sufficient numbers is found in warm seas, especially on the coast of Sicily. It is the pinna, a genus of wing shelled bivalves, of which one species attains a length of two feet. To attach itself to the rocks it spins a cable of strong filaments, called collectively the byssus. These threads are wonderfully strong, silken in texture and have been woven into various delicate fabrics. A pair of gloves from this material may be seen in the British museum, and fine mummy cloths made from it by the ancients are still preserved.

The Fate of the Stingy.

I sometimes wonder what will become of the stingy man in the hereafter. Certainly he can't get into heaven, and if the devil has left the first principles of a gentleman the stingy man will not get the entree in the other place. It is well to be thrifty and frugal, but when thriftiness runs to seed it becomes just plain, mangy, measly stinginess, and a man would much better get the smallpox.—San Francisco Bulletin.

His Effort.

Strutter—What did you think of my impersonation of Hamlet? Foyer—As genuine a piece of realism as ever I saw. Strutter—You flatter me. You surely cannot be in earnest? Foyer—Never more earnest in all my life. The fact that you were trying to act shone forth in your every word and every movement.—Boston Transcript.

Matter of Finance.

"Time is money, they say," remarked the chronic loafer as he bit off a fresh chew of tobacco.

"Well, maybe it is," rejoined the village grocer, "but if it's all the same to you I wish you would spend a little more money here and a little less time."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Mr. Thompson—Jones told me a secret today. Mrs. Thompson (anxiously)—What was it? Mr. Thompson—The one I told you last week. Mrs. Thompson—Oh, dear me; that Mrs. Jones is such a tattler! I'll never tell her anything again.—Judge.

SAILORS AND DRINK.

Odd Devices For Obtaining Intoxicants on Board Ship.

Sailors have more originality, more resourcefulness and more ingenuity in securing things to get drunk with than any other class of human beings. They are never at a loss to find some substitute for whisky and brandy when such conventional intoxicants are not to be had. The shellac carried upon men-of-war for varnishing purposes is such a common beverage among thirsty jack tars that it has to be kept under lock and key and used under guard. Jalap is put in the alcohol of liquid compasses to keep the thirsty from draining them. Cologne is quite a treat in a pinch, and the story is told of a surgeon on one of our old warships who, being a good deal of a naturalist, was at a loss to account for the decay of some snakes, lizards and other specimens he had preserved in jars of alcohol until investigation showed that water had been substituted for the liquid in the jars and the alcohol consumed by some stealthy sailors. I recall the case of a vessel where the ship's cook reported the steady depletion of his stock of yeast, and the master-at-arms as steadily reported cases of mysterious intoxication in the crew, the ship being far from land at the time. Again investigation was resorted to, resulting in the discovery that the jackies had been pilfering the yeast, which they subjected to a treatment yielding them a satisfactory intoxicating liquor.—San Francisco Town Talk.

AN INDIAN LEGEND.

The Diegueno Myth Concerning the Creation of the Earth.

The Diegueno (mission Indian) has no surmise concerning the creation of the earth. To him it is a primeval fact. Earth and sky existed in the beginning of things, but not as now, illumined by sun, moon and stars, informed with purpose and active with life. In the beginning all was shapeless, dark, inert, a chaos full of untried potencies. The sky power, brooding mystery, rested upon the receptive earth. Out of chaos came a voice, a song, ending in a long drawn sigh, signifying accomplishment, rest at the end of achievement; again, voice, song and sigh, and with each act of the first cause, an effect. The earth mother, Sin-yo-hauch, the mysterious name, brought forth to the sky power a god, Tu-chai-pa, the best, the firstborn, and then Yo-ko-mat-is, the lesser, the brother. Then did Tu-chai-pa, with the assistance of his brother, create man to inhabit the earth, and the sun, moon and stars to give light, first of all uprearing from its primal prostrate state the sky to be the arch of the heavens as we see it now above our heads.

The spirituality of this conception of creation, together with certain points of resemblance to the Hebrew story of Genesis, dignifies the Diegueno account and places it in a class by itself among Indian myths.—Southern Workmen.

Weights Started on the Farm.

By an English law enacted in 1266 it was provided that a silver penny, called a sterling, should equal in weight thirty-two wheat grains, well dried and taken from the center of the ear. From this it seems evident that the grain of wheat was the prototype of the standard grain. The weight now known as the grain is of course copied from governmental standards.

In 1826 certain weights and measures were legalized in England, and in 1827 copies of these were furnished our government, among them being the troy pound, equivalent to 5,760 grains.

The origin of the signs commonly used for the scruple, dram and ounce does not seem to be known. It is not unlikely that they are entirely arbitrary.—St. Louis Republic.

Reading the Lines at the Wrist.

The rascette, or magic bracelet, is, according to authorities on palmistry, to be found at the base of the hand and forms the line or lines which mark the junction of hand and wrist. One such line, if unbroken, deep and strongly marked, is supposed to foretell a happy life and to indicate calmness of disposition. If the line is chained—that is, crossed and recrossed by numerous small lines—the indication is of a life of labor. Two such lines indicate happiness and long life, while three form the magic bracelet, adding great riches to the other blessings. The addition of the third line to the other two is rare.

Why the Apple Is Healthful.

The acids of the apple are of signal use for men of sedentary habits whose lives are sluggish in action, those acids serving to eliminate from the body noxious matters which, if retained, would make the brain heavy and dull or bring about jaundice or skin eruptions and other allied troubles. Some such experience must have led to our custom of taking apple sauce with roast pork, rich goose and like dishes.

Not Pretty Then.

"Hateful thing, she is!" exclaimed Miss Pretty angrily. "I'm glad I'm not as mean as she is. I'm as much above her as—"

"Tut, tut!" interrupted her fiance. "Remember that rosebud mouth of yours ceases to be a rosebud when it begins to blow."—Philadelphia Press.

Paper of One Kind.

Glanders—It is said that paper can be used effectively in keeping a person warm. Gazley—That is very true. I remember a thirty day promissory note of mine once kept me in a perspiration for a month.

Experience teacheth that resolution is a sole help in need.—Shakespeare.

Women Sold by Auction.

An auction of unmarried ladies used to take place annually in Babylon. In every district they assembled on a certain day of every year all the virgins of marriageable age. The most remarkable was first put up, and the man who bid the largest sum of money gained possession of her. The second in personal appearance followed, and the bidders gratified themselves with handsome wives according to the depth of their purses. But, alas, it seems that there were in Babylon some ladies for whom no money was likely to be offered, yet these also were disposed of, so provident were the Babylonians. When all the beautiful virgins were sold, the crier ordered the most deformed to stand up, and after he had openly demanded who would marry her with a small sum she was at length adjudged to the man who would be satisfied with the least, and in this manner the money arising from the sale of the handsome served as a portion to those who were either of disagreeable looks or that had any other imperfection. This custom prevailed about 500 years before Christ.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Spencer and Beecher.

Herbert Spencer visited America in 1882 and on that occasion a banquet was given in New York in his honor. Henry Ward Beecher was one of the after dinner speakers.

"I am asked," said Mr. Beecher, "how I reconcile Spencer with theology. I don't.

"A man who has a baldheaded deacon watching everything he does or a gold spectacled lawyer—not a fat one" (looking at Mr. Bristow), "but a long, lean, lank one" (looking at Mr. Evarts) —"can't afford to talk Spencerism from the pulpit.

"It is to be borne in mind that when a man is driving a team of fractious horses that are just all he can manage anyhow he is not in a state of mind to discuss questions with his wife by his side, who is undertaking to bring up delicate domestic matters."

It had been said that Mr. Spencer had no sense of humor, but he joined heartily in the merriment which Mr. Beecher's speech provoked.

Pitt's Fondness For Port.

The ruin of Pitt's health was attributed to his physicians, who made him take port in large quantities in his youth, so that he could not do without it later. Lord Grenville has seen him swallow a bottle of port in tumblerfuls before going to the house. His hands shook so much that when he helped himself to salt he was obliged to support the right hand with the left. Stothard, the painter, happened to be one evening at an inn on the Kept road when Pitt and Dundas put up there on their way to Walmer. Next morning the waiter said to Stothard: "How much wine do you suppose they drank last night? Seven bottles, sir!"—Rogers' "Table Talk."

The Way They Do In Iceland.

Icelanders never think of "locking up" at night, and yet only two cases of thieving have occurred in many years. One was a poor man with a broken arm, who stole several sheep to save his family from starving. The punishment meted out to him was that food was provided for his family, he was placed under medical care and work was given him when his arm had healed. The other case was of a foreigner who stole seventeen sheep. The law demanded that he restore the value of the thefts and then leave the country or be executed. Naturally he left.

Playing a Trick on McCullough.

Will McConnell and John McCullough were playing "Virginius," and McConnell was doing Icilius. When he had to go up to John and shake hands with him he put a hard boiled egg into his palm and left it there, and McCullough, being in the center of the stage and alone, could not get rid of it. He discharged Will, as usual, that night, but he never stayed discharged, and he was taken on again when they found him on board the train on the way to the next stand.

How She Felt.

"I hope," said Mrs. Oldcastle, "that you didn't feel that you were de trop when you called the other day and found Mrs. Beezum present."

"Oh, no," replied her hostess. "That was just the back of my waist that I kept feeling. One of the hooks was loose, and somehow I couldn't help bein' kind of nervous about it."—Chicago Record-Herald.

An Irish Gem.

An Irish journal had this gem in answer to a correspondent: "We decline to acknowledge the receipt of your post card."

Which is very much like the Corkonian who traveled into Kerry to an insulting enemy to "tell him to his face that he would treat him with silent contempt."—London Tit-Bits.

Only Two Occasions.

"You always appear to be nervous," remarked the friend solicitously.

"But really," replied the housekeeper, "there are only two occasions when I am nervous. One is when I have a servant girl, and the other is when I haven't."—Philadelphia Press.

Carefully Brought Up.

"Were you carefully brought up, my lad?" asked the merchant of the applicant for a situation.

"Please, sir, yes, sir; I came up in the elevator, sir," said the respectful youth.

She Took Them at Their Word.

Kenka lake is one of the most attractive of the great chain of lakes in the interior of New York state. Bluff point at its head is a bold promontory which rises grandly and impressively. It was upon the banks of this lake that the famous "Jemima Wilkinson" founded a colony nearly three generations ago and announced that she could walk upon the water of the lake. A large crowd gathered to see her undertake the experiment. Turning to her followers, she asked, "Have you all faith that I can walk upon the water?" "We have! We have!" her followers replied. "Then there is no use in my undertaking to do so," she replied. "If ye have faith ye shall be saved without my walking upon the water."—Syracuse Telegram.

An Apt Quotation.

The readiness of repartee of Thomas B. Reed was never better illustrated than on one occasion when he went to visit a friend who lived at the top of a long and narrow flight of stairs. Half way up Reed missed his footing and fell to the bottom. His friend, hearing the racket, rushed to the door and shouted down the semidarkness of the hall, "Who is that?"

"'Tis Eiser rolling rapidly," drawled the man from Maine as he picked himself up.

Chickweed.

Like the plaintain, which the Indians called "the white man's foot" because it sprang up wherever the whites penetrated, the chickweed seems to follow the track of the white colonist, and in New Zealand the Maoris call it "the mark of the paleface." The little flower is a sort of barometer. It opens when fine weather is coming, remains closed if rain is in the air.

Both Artists.

PRETTY JUNETIME WEDDING

Dr. John E. Argue and Miss Elizabeth Hunt Married Yesterday at the Bride's Home.

At the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Hunt, yesterday morning occurred the solemnization of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Stuart, to Dr. John E. Argue, in the presence of about seventy-five invited guests. Rev. H. W. Knox officiated, using the beautiful and impressive ring ceremony of the Presbyterian church.

Previous to the ceremony Misses Etta Zaiser and Margaret Kaus sang the duet, "O Promise Me," which was followed by "The Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin, sang by a dozen or more of the girl friends of the bride. The bridal procession entered the beautifully decorated parlor headed by the ushers, Messrs. S. E. Hunt and R. E. Wyer. Then came the maid of honor, Miss Josephine Kaus, and the bridesmaid, Miss Mabel Wyer. The groom was attended by Dr. N. M. Watson and the bride was escorted by her father. After the ceremony Mrs. Thomas Germo played Mendelssohn's wedding march. Mrs. Germo officiated at the piano during all of the musical selections.

The bride was attired in white chiffon over white silk, and trimmed in Duchess lace, and carried bride's roses. The bridesmaid and maid of honor were gowned in white, and carried carnations. The parlors were artistically embellished by decorations of ferns and flowers.

From 9 to 11 a reception was held, and more than two hundred people took advantage of the opportunity to extend their best wishes and congratulations to Dr. and Mrs. Argue. Ice cream and cake was served.

A large number of presents was received, some of them from immediate relatives and close friends being of unusual value. At 12 o'clock breakfast was served to the bridal party, and Dr. and Mrs. Argue left on the train from Wylie for an extended trip. They will be at home after September 1 in the Klepper residence on the north side.

The bride and groom are among the most prominent and highly respected young people in Red Lake Falls, and will have the best wishes of all for a long life of happiness. May summer sunshine be with them always.

CLOSE FIGHT FOR THE GOVERNORSHIP

Collins Gets the Long End in the Credentials Committee Report--Dunn Men Confident They Have Enough Votes to Win.

St. Paul, 4:45 p. m.—The committee on credentials has brought in two reports, one favoring seating the Collins delegates from Ramsey, the other asking that the Dunn delegates be seated. The committee is evenly divided, and the temporary chairman, Senator Moses E. Clapp, must decide which will be the majority report. He will doubtless favor Collins.

The Dunn men claim they have plenty of votes to nominate their man without the Ramsey delegation. George A. Flinn estimates that Dunn has 640 votes in the convention. It is not likely that a nomination will be made today.

St. Paul, Minn., June 30, 4:30 p. m.—The Republican state convention is barely organized. The committee on credentials is equally divided between the supporters of Dunn and Collins. It is altogether likely that the convention will adjourn until tomorrow morning without accomplishing anything.

There is no truth to the report that there has been a bolt from the convention by the followers of either candidate.

St. Hilaire Mill Started.

The St. Hilaire mill was started Monday morning and will be run during the entire season. The breakdowns at the Crookston and Bemidji mills will greatly decrease the output of the company this year, but is figured that the mill at St. Hilaire can cut enough to make up the deficiency. From the testimony being given in the Shevlin brother vs. brother case at Minneapolis the St. Hilaire mill is apparently a "dummy" plant put in for the purpose of securing the bonus offered by the citizens of St. Hilaire. The enterprise according to Thomas Shevlin, has never been a paying one at St. Hilaire and his object in putting in the mill was to obtain the bonus.

"Rump" Convention.

The report comes that the Collins people at Thief River Falls organized a rump county convention Tuesday night and selected a full set of delegates to go to St. Paul and contest the seats of the regularly-elected delegates. Among the delegates chosen were John Eastman, C. L. Dobner and W. C. Smiley, of Thief River; Daniel Patterson, of St. Hilaire, and A. P. Toupin and S. S. Haislet, of Red Lake Falls. No information has been received whether or not the bolters have urged their claims on the state convention, although most of them went down.

Banker Prichard, of Thief River, was down to the county convention Tuesday just to see that things run properly. He expressed himself as being well satisfied with the outcome.

DUNN GETS RED LAKE SOLID

Dr. N. M. Watson on Top of a Tidal Wave in Republican Politics in Red Lake County.

The Republican caucuses Saturday night were interesting and hard-fought political events. A few weeks ago it was not thought that the election of Dunn delegates in this city would be contested, as the almost universal preference seemed to be for the Princeton man, but some two weeks ago A. P. Toupin, one of the best informed politicians in the county and a tower of strength to the Republican party, inaugurated a campaign for Collins, and although he was unsuccessful he made the Dunn people "go some." The Dunn organization was in charge of Dr. N. M. Watson, the hero of many a hard-fought political battle, and it was clearly a case of "Greek meet Greek." The Doctor's success entitles him to be called the Warwick of Republican politics in Red Lake county, and if the Dunn candidacy is successful no one in the Ninth district will be nearer the throne than the genial Doctor.

The first ward caucus was a one-sided affair. Eighteen votes were cast and every one of them was for S. M. Sivertson and J. L. Stewart, the Dunn candidates for delegates. S. M. Sivertson was chairman of the caucus and J. J. Padden secretary. The judges were George McConnell ahd W. M. Boyce.

In the second ward Dr. N. M. Watson and Theo. Garceau were elected delegates by a large majority of the vote. The Collins people had only one candidate for delegate, Frank E. Hunt, and this operated against their cause not a little, as the Dunn people voted a straight ticket while the Collins people voted for Mr. Hunt and one of the Dunn candidates. About 55 ballots were cast, of which Watson and Garceau received 38. S. S. Haislet was chairman of the caucus and H. B. Healy secretary. J. S. Grady and Omer Hall were the judges.

The tug of war came in the "bloody third," where the chances were largely in favor of Collins. Both sides worked hard, and every Republican in the ward was out. The delegates elected were J. B. Armstrong, J. A. Duffy, Dan Champoux and Simon Paul, all Dunn men. Duffy was on both tickets and was given almost the total vote. Jim Armstrong ran about twelve votes ahead of his ticket, while Paul and Champoux came under the wire by small pluralities. The Collins candidates were A. P. Toupin, Thomas Crompe and Leo Steinert. J. A. Duffy was chairman, S. L. Lewis secretary and R. H. Bourdon and Exerie Chatel judges.

In Red Lake Falls township J. C. Nauman and Eli Lasha, both Dunn men, were elected.

At St. Hilaire the Collins people, contrary to general expectation, elected the three delegates from that village.

At Thief River Falls seven Dunn and two Collins delegates were elected. Editor Eastman and Banker Dobner, both prominent in the councils of the party, failed to pull through.

DR. WATSON GATHERS FRUITS OF HIS VICTORY

Red Lake County Republican Convention is a Jollification Meeting for Robert C. Dunn---Only Nine Collins Delegates in the Convention.

DR. N. M. WATSON.
The "Dick Croker" of Red Lake County Republicanism.

The Republicans of Red Lake county met Tuesday under peculiarly favorable auspices. The day was ideal, and the exciting interest in the gubernatorial fight brought out practically a complete representation from every precinct. It was distinctly a Dunn crowd. The Collins shouters were not numerous enough to put up a semblance of a fight.

And it was Doctor Watson's day. He had triumphed in the primaries by a majority of six to one, and there was nothing that he could not have had within the gift of the delegates. In politics success brings its own reward, and the Republicans of the county unfortunate enough to be on the Collins side were sidetracked without a show of mercy. The car of Juggernaut rolled over them with remorseless impunity. The was no leniency for those who failed to get on the bandwagon of Robert C. Dunn.

The convention was called to order shortly after 12 o'clock, by the chairman of the county central committee, C. L. Dobner of Thief River, who in company with John Eastman, the veteran editor, fell outside the breastworks in Saturday evening's caucuses. On motion of D. P. O'Niell Dr. N. M. Watson was named for temporary chairman, and the suggestion prevailed unanimously.

In assuming the chair Dr. Watson congratulated the Republican party of Red Lake county on the magnificent showing made at the convention and recalled the time when it was almost impossible to secure a quorom for the transaction of business. He eulogized President Roosevelt and his consort, Senator Fairbanks, and predicted a Republican victory that would be as unanimous as the nominations at Chicago last week.

Lars Bakke of Thief River was named for temporary secretary. Another delegate nominated D. A. McDonald, editor of the Thief River Review, but it was discovered that the latter was not a delegate to the convention and Mr. Bakke was chosen without opposition.

On motion of J. A. Duffy the chair was authorized to appoint committees on credentials, resolutions and nominations, and the chair made the appointments as follows:

Credentials—J. A. Duffy, Red Lake Falls; J. B. Hebert, Poplar River; W. C. L. Demann, Lake Pleasant; D. P. O'Neill, Thief River Falls; Lars Bakke, Thief River Falls; Knute Nerland, Thief River Falls; George E. Bender, Equality.

Resolutions—S. M. Sivertson, Red Lake Falls; Chas. Johnson, Wylie; Joseph Bergeron, Lambert; Wiley Tindolph, Thief River Falls; Chan Fuller, Thief River Falls; D. B. Bakke, Thief River Falls; Ovide Moreau, Terrebonne.

Nominations—J. B. Armstrong, Red Lake Falls; D. P. O'Neill, Thief River Falls; Joseph Pidgeon, Poplar River; Lars Bakke, Thief River Falls; Matt Waldorf, Lake Pleasant.

The convention then took a recess until one o'clock, and upon reconvening the first business was a motion to make the temporary organization permanent. Here the Collins people interposed objection, and a roll call was demanded by W. C. Smiley of Thief River. But the convention did not want a roll call and voted down the proposition decisively. Smiley than called for a division of the house, which the chairman refused. Mr. Smiley insisted that he had not been given fair treatment and declared if gag rule was to prevail he would bolt the convention. As a matter of justice it might be said here that Mr. Smiley was entitled to a division on the question. It is quite likely that in the tumult the chair did not fully understand the nature of Mr. Smiley's request. The chair had five-sixths of the convention with him, and it not at all likely that he intended to be unfair in his ruling. However, both sides seemed to miss the main issue—that it was extraordinary and contrary to parliamentary usage to consider a motion on permanent organization until the committee on credentials had reported. Mr. Smiley left the convention, but he left alone. The chair did not even appoint a committee to escort him from the hall.

After quiet had been restored Chairman Duffy of the credentials committee reported the following delegates entitled to seats:

Red Lake Falls city—First ward—S. M. Sivertson, J. L. Stewart; Second ward—Dr. N. M. Watson, Theo. Garceau; Third ward—J. B. Armstrong, J. A. Duffy, Dan Champoux, Simon Paul.
Numedahl—H. E. Albue, Soren Sterns.
Bray—C. P. Swanson, Chas. Eklund.
Garnes—O. N. Skomedahl, G. Swanson.
Rocksbury—Chas. Gustafson, F. T. Satre.
Red Lake Falls township—J. C. Nauman, Eli Lasha.
Thief River Falls—First ward—H. Langseth, C. M. Evenson, Knute Nerland; Second ward—W. C. Smiley, Wiley Tindolph, Lars Bakke; Third ward—D. B. Bakke, C. A. Fuller, D. P. O'Neill.
St. Hilaire—T. J. Thorkelson, D. Patterson, Dr. J. C. Cummings.
River Falls—J. R. Carpenter, C. A. Hull.
Emardsville—Paul I. D. Ostby, Gilbert Pederson.
Lambert—Louis Falardeau, C. Lajambe, Jos. Bergeron.
Polk Center—S. J. Swanson, Chas. Johnson.
Equality—R. H. Green, Geo. E. Bender,
Lake Pleasant—W. C. L. Demann, Matt Waldorf.
Black River—Ed. Enright, Felix Anderson.
Sanders—Sander Engelbretson, K. T. Anderson.
Poplar River—J. B. Hebert, Joseph Pidgeon.
Gervais—George Orr, Thomas Carver.
Terrebonne—Ovide Moreau, Louis Mathews.

The report was adopted without objection. On motion J. F. Mathews was seated as a delegate from Louisville and O. J. Johnson from Wyandotte, caucuses not having been held in these precincts.

Banker C. L. Dobner, who was sacrificed on the Collins altar at Thief River Falls, held a proxy for H. E. Gusa, a delegate from Norden, and asked the committee on credentials to seat him. The report was adverse to Mr. Dobner's wishes and at his request the proxy was withdrawn and the committee made no report on the matter. The committee held that as Mr. Dobner did not reside in the town of Norden he was not qualified to appear as a representative of that precinct.

S. M. Sivertson, chairman of the committee on resolutions, reported as follows:

The Republicans of Red Lake county, in convention assembled, renew their unalterable allegiance to the Republican party, and to the principles upon which that party has stood during its long tenure of power accorded it by the people. The policies it has put into effect and the capacity it has demonstrated for rule and government commands the confidence and approval of the American people to a degree never equalled in history.

We hail with enthusiastic approval the work of the recent national convention of our party, which nominated to continue in the high office of president of these United States the man whom the American people, by common accord had already selected—that man who does things, Theodore Roosevelt. And also in the happy selection of his associate on the national ticket, a man who by distinguished public service has proved his fitness for the office of vice-president, Charles W. Fairbanks of Indiana. With Roosevelt and Fairbanks as standard bearers in the coming campaign the Republican party will march to a certain and decisive victory.

We heartily endorse and approve of the system of state drainage which has been instituted and carried on by the state, and we ask at the hands of the legislature and state authorities the greatest possible measure of state aid in prosecuting this needed work and aiding the farmer in the development and improvement of the newer settled portions of our state.

Recognizing the ability and stern integrity ever displayed in his long and honorable record of public service to the state, and that his vast experience will greatly aid him in the administration of the high office to which he aspires, we record the expressed choice of the Republicans of this county and endorse the candidacy for the office of governor of this state of the Hon. Robert C. Dunn, and be it resolved, that the delegates elected by this convention be and hereby are instructed to vote for and use all honorable means to secure the nomination of the said Robert C. Dunn for governor.

The reading of the resolutions were frequently stopped by applause, and when the name of Bob Dunn was mentioned the whole convention appeared to rise up and give vent to its enthusiasm. By this ime the few Collins delegates concluded to follow the lines of least resistance and offer no objection to the report.

J. B. Armstrong, chairman of the committee to nominate delegates to the state convention, reported the following names:

Delegates—Dr. N. M. Watson, J. A. Duffy, Ed Enright, S. J. Swanson, Nels G. Otterness, H. E. Albue, D. P. O'Neill and D. B. Bakke.

Alternates—Louis Falardeau, R. H. Green, Ovide Moreau, S. M. Sivertson, O. F. Post, Harry E. Ives, C. A. Fuller and D. A. McDonald.

The new county committee is made up as follows: Dr. N. M. Watson, chairman; D. A. McDonald, secretary; first district, S. J. Swanson; second district, Oscar F. Post; third district, W. C. L. Demann; fourth district, C. A. Fuller; fifth district, J. B. Hebert.

SHORT STOPS.

Yes, dear, it was a landslide.

A little bird whispers that Dr. Watson is on top.

Now is the time to get a Nelson map of Red Lake county.

The question is did John Eastman really get his bank book home?

The Collins delegates did not like the convention, but it is not often that the minority is satisfied.

No, the Republican party of Red Lake county did not "lay down" on the governorship proposition.

Handicapped by a "Democratic campaign manager" Bob Dunn did pretty well in Red Lake county.

The esteemed Gazette now has another opportunity to tell the people "where we stand" on the governorship.

Next time the Gazette gets into politics it should be sure it's right and then go ahead, but at all events go ahead.

Paul Ostby of Emardville says that Dunn won't get many votes in Emardville. And Paul means what he says.

The Dunn people are wondering why they ever entertained the suspicion that possibly Red Lake county was in danger.

The report that John Eastman will be a candidate for oil inspector under the Dunn administration is said to be unfounded.

The Republicans of Red Lake county evidently did not consider the fight on governorship too much of a "dirty scrap to mix into."

Wiley Tindolph: Well, we are beaten, but I am happy anyway. It does me good just to come down to Red Lake Falls and catch a glimpse of the young ladies.

We should be pleased to have John Eastman's opinion upon the wisdom of the convention in selecting D. A. McDonald as secretary of the county committee.

Collins had just nine delegates in the convention. Two of them were from Thief River Falls, three from St. Hilaire, two from River Falls and two from Emardville.

John Eastman carried Red Lake county for Collins about like he carried it for Valentine two years ago. When will Republican aspirants for office learn that John is a hoodoo?

Does the Gazette still consider Bob Dunn unworthy to be governor of Minnesota because Bob has the misfortune to be a friend of a Democratic editor in Red Lake county?

The shortest poem on record is the one which expresses the Gazette's position on the governorship:

"We're done,
So we're Dunn."

O. N. Skomedahl was one of the happiest Republicans in the convention. Bob Dunn did him a good turn at the land sale three years ago and Ole has never forgotten that he has a friend at court.

The convention presents some anomalies. For instance John Eastman and Banker Dobner, who have heretofore carried Thief River in their vest pockets, couldn't even be elected as delegates. The boys were on the wrong band wagon.

"Who killed Cock Robin?"
Asked the genial Smiley.
"I killed Cock Robin,
If you should ask me slyly."

It is said that the chairman of the county central committe is the unnamed party to the dialogue.

Jim Martin sent a telegram to a Red Lake Falls Republican just before the convention met claiming that Hennepin, Ramsey and St. Louis counties had all gone for Collins. The funny part of it is that the recipient of the telegram was unsophisticated enough to show it.

The election of D. A. McDonald, editor of the Thief River Review, as secretary of the county committee, does not arouse enthusiasm among many of the old time Republicans of Thief River. There's going to be something doing later on. It's easier to mix oil and water than to get harmony out of the Thief River factions.

A NAVAL BATTLE OFF PORT ARTHUR

RUSSIAN SQUADRON COMES OUT OF HARBOR AND BEGINS AN ATTACK.

Repulsed by Admiral Togo's Japanese Fleet—One Battleship Is Sunk and Two Other Russian Vessels Damaged.

Tokio, June 27.—Admiral Togo reports that on Thursday last, June 23, his patrol boat discovered the battleship Peresviet and seven other vessels accompanied by nine torpedo boat destroyers near the entrance of Port Arthur harbor. They warned him wirelessly and he immediately advanced his entire fleet except those engaged upon special duty. The admiral then discovered that the Russian fleet, which consisted of six battleships, five crisers and 14 destroyers, evidently planned a dash southward by sundown. The Russians stopped outside the entrance to the harbor and after nightfall a fleet of Japanese torpedo boat destroyers resolutely attacked the Russian ships and succeeded in torpedoing and sinking a battleship of the Peresviet type and disabled the battleship Sevastapol. A cruiser of the Diana type was observed being towed into the harbor on Friday morning, and it was evident she had sustatined serious injury. The Japanese ships sustained little damage. The torpedo boat destroyer Shirakumo was hit by a shell which fell in the cabin and had three men killed and three others wounded. The Chidori, a vessel of the same class, was hit behind the engine room, but no casualties resulted therefrom. Torpedo boats 64 and 66 were slightly damaged.

750 Drowned.

Rome, June 27.—A dispatch from Tokio to the Giornale d'Italia says the Russian Admiral Prince Uhtomsky and 750 men were drowned when the battleship Peresviet was torpedoed and sunk.

Preparing for Great Battle.

London. June 27.—The armies in Manchuria are lining up for the decisive land battle of the war, according to the reports from the Russian headquarters at Liaoyang. Gens. Oku and Kuroki, leading an army aggregating six divisions, or 130,000 men, are advancing upon Kuropatkin's forces, practically in battle formation, and prepared to precipitate a struggle which will be far greater than any conflict in the war up to the present time. Three times the number of troops engaged at the Yalu, Kinchow or Vafangow will take part, and the evident determination of the Japanese leaders is to accomplish Kuropatkin's complete defeat before the rainy season sets in, and it is due in a short time.

Report Russian Defeat.

Correspondents at Newchwang report a battle at Simenting, 40 miles east of Kaichow, last Thursday, in which 16,000 Russians were killed, wounded, captured or missing. The reports originate with Russian officers from the front and are in line with the numerous dispatches to the same effect which have come from various points during the last week. The Russian retreat is described as almost a rout, being saved by the good work of the Nineh East Siberian rifle brigade under Gen. Kondratsvitch, who protected the rear.

Jap Losses at Telissu.

Washington, June 27.—This cablegram was received at the Japanese legation Sunday from Tokio: "Gen. Oku reports that our casualties at Telissu were 247 killed, including seven officers, and 946 wounded, including 43 officers."

Russians Ambushed.

London, June 23.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail under date of June 21, from Newchwang, says:

While a Russian force of 8,000 under Gen. Kondratsvitch was traversing Wafungko ravine, nine miles southeast of Kaichou, June 19, it was surprised by concealed Japanese artillery. The Russians lost heavily, their casualties being 1,200 in number. Gen. Kondratsvitch extricated his men and led them in good order to an entrenched position.

Russians Driven Back.

Gen. Kuroki's Headquarters in the Field, via Fusan, Korea, June 24.—Russians from Samimak attacked the Japanese outposts in force Wednesday, apparently for the purpose of testing their strength. The Russian force consisted of two regiments of cavalry, one of infantry and one battery of artillery. The enemy were defeated and retired toward Shintailing. They are supposed to have sustained considerable loss. On the Japanese side Maj. Kubota was killed and nine men were wounded. A party of foreign military attaches who were on a visit to the outposts probably witnessed the fighting.

Have Joined Forces.

Liaoyang, June 25.—It is reported that Gens. Oku and Kuroki have joined forces and are attacking from the direction of Vafangow. There is talk of a serious engagement shortly. It is also rumored that the Japanese forces which were recently advancing in this direction have fallen back on Fengwangcheng.

Welcome to Senator Fairbanks.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 27.—After a triumphal journey from Chicago, during which he was greeted by crowds at every railroad station at which the train stopped, Senator Fairbanks, republican nominee for vice president, reached his home city early Saturday evening and was given a magnificent reception. On the trip from Chicago, at all points where the special train was scheduled to stop, enthusiastic crowds gathered and the senator spoke briefly.

Captives Are Freed.

Tangier, June 25.—Ion Perdicaris and Cromwell Varley, who were captured by the bandit, Raisuli, have arrived here. Perdicaris suffered many hardsips while in the hands of Raisuli, although he says he does not think that these were the fault of the bandit chief, and that he had every comfort possible under the circumstances.

TRADE REVIEW.

The Week's Developments Tend to Strengthen Confidence—Retail Business Improves.

New York, June 25.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "Aside from the strike of garment workers, developments of the past week have tended to strengthen confidence. The fiscal year is drawing to a close with national finance in sound condition, the small shrinkage in federal customs receipts being no cause for uneasiness. The most important trade influence just now is the progress of the crops, and the past week has brought no setback. Seasonable weather has stimulated distribution of merchandise, retail business improving very noticeably at fany cities.

"Failures this week numbered 227 in the United States against 223 last year, and 32 in Canada compared with 19 a year ago."

Bradstreet's says: "There has been some enlargement in demand at the west this week, but the betterment as yet is largely one of tone and is predicated upon the unquestionably better crop advices received from nearly all sections. Reports from the leading industries are not significant of any particular reaction from the dullness noted heretofore."

GAVE UP THE FIGHT.

Husband in Asylum, Facing Eviction, Woman Kills Self and Three Children.

Chicago, June 27.—Tucking in bed her three little sons, who she had bathed and dressed for death in clean night clothing, Mrs. Anna Kolodzik disrobed, put out the light, then turned on the gas again, opened the stop-cocks in a small plate stove and lay down with her children Saturday night to a sleep from which there was no awakening. Her husband in an insane asylum, warned of probable eviction by her landlord and dependent on a German charitable society for her food, Mrs. Kolodzik could stand her troubles no longer, and so she decided to escape them all and to take her little ones with her. The bodies of the four were found Sunday morning, cold and stiff in the bedroom of their little home at 965 North Robey street.

THE SLOCUM VICTIMS.

After Thorough Investigation Police of New York Give the Total Number as 1,031.

New York, June 27.—Just 1,031 women, children and men perished in the wreck of the General Slocum. This is the report made to Commissioner McAdoo by Inspector Schmittberger, after a thorough canvass made by 110 policemen. In a 27 page typewritten report, in which names, addresses and ages are given, 1,446 persons are accounted for, and it is believed that so far as ever will be known, these are all the persons who were on the ship. Only 415 of all the gay throng that started on the excursion lived through the day, and of these 179 are injured, some of them so badly that they will die.

Case Dismissed.

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 25.—The case against James Moran, managing editor of the Grand Rapids Evening Post, who was arrested last week charged with violating the postal laws by publishing an advertisement of a prize guessing contest, was dismissed by United States Court Commissioner Potter Friday on the advice of District Attorney Covell.

Deported Man Kills Himself.

Denver, June 24.—Emil L. Johnson, a miner who was deported from Cripple Creek by the military, committed suicide here Thursday. He was despondent because his wife and two small children were left destitute in Cripple Creek.

A NAVAL BATTLE OFF PORT ARTHUR

RUSSIAN SQUADRON COMES OUT OF HARBOR AND BEGINS AN ATTACK.

Repulsed by Admiral Togo's Japanese Fleet—One Battleship Is Sunk and Two Other Russian Vessels Damaged.

Tokio, June 27.—Admiral Togo reports that on Thursday last, June 23, his patrol boat discovered the battleship Peresvlet and seven other vessels accompanied by nine torpedo boat destroyers near the entrance of Port Arthur harbor. They warned him wirelessly and he immediately advanced his entire fleet except those engaged upon special duty. The admiral then discovered that the Russian fleet, which consisted of six battleships, five crisers and 14 destroyers, evidently planned a dash southward by sundown. The Russians stopped outside the entrance to the harbor and after nightfall a fleet of Japanese torpedo boat destroyers resolutely attacked the Russian ships and succeeded in torpedoing and sinking a battleship of the Peresvlet type and disabled the battleship Sevastapol. A cruiser of the Diana type was observed being towed into the harbor on Friday morning, and it was evident she had sustatined serious injury. The Japanese ships sustained little damage. The torpedo boat destroyer Shirakumo was hit by a shell which fell in the cabin and had three men killed and three others wounded. The Chidori, a vessel of the same class, was hit behind the engine room, but no casualties resulted therefrom. Torpedo boats 64 and 66 were slightly damaged.

750 Drowned.

Rome, June 27.—A dispatch from Tokio to the Giornale d'Italia says the Russian Admiral Prince Uhtomsky and 750 men were drowned when the battleship Peresvlet was torpedoed and sunk.

Printed Every Thursday Evening at Red Lake Falls, Minnesota.

THE Hearst Democracy of Hennepin county has done its work well. It has driven John Lind from public life and disorganized the party generally.

THE Democrats do not seem to have a monopoly of the acrimony and bitterness this year. Our Republican brethren are learning how to all names themselves.

THE candidates for Senator Fairbanks' shoes are going into the fray just as though there was no probability of a failure on the part of the Indiana man to land the vice presidency.

IT is declared that the president did not desire to dictate what should be done at the Chicago convention, but it may be assumed that he had a pretty clear idea of some things that would happen.

THE Democrats of the Second district are talking of pitting "Jones of Rock" against Congressman McCleary this year. Mr. Jones is an able speaker and a brilliant campaigner, and he would give the Mankato schoolmaster a lively chase.

THERE is an unmistakeable lull in general business, and everybody is watching the crop reports. Everything depends on the ability of the farmer to make the earth yield an abundance of the things needful to keep the wheels of commerce going.

THE Grand Forks Herald celebrated its silver anniversary Sunday and in honor of the occasion issued a 126-page special number detailing the growth and development of North Dakota and its leading city, Grand Forks. The edition is highly creditable from every standpoint, and we congratulate the Herald and its editor on the success of the undertaking.

CONGRESSMAN McCLEARY believes in revising the tariff—upward. We assume that the schoolmaster congressman believes the tariff is not high enough, and that the people are not paying enough for their household needs. McCleary at least is logical: If the tariff is a good thing why not give us lots of it? If a fifty per cent. tax is beneficial why shouldn't a hundred per cent. tax be better?

THE Minneapolis Journal has lost prestige with a large proportion of the Minnesota people. The Journal has had a reputation for fairness and conservatism in its news reports and editorial columns, but the disreputable tactics employed in the effort to defeat Bob Dunn are unworthy of a great newspaper and are sure to lose the Journal the respect and confidence of a large constituency which has heretofore regarded it as fair and unbiased.

"NERVOUS AND IRRITABLE."

Celia Harrington.

Miss Celia Harrington, 303 Second avenue, Detroit, Mich., writes:

"Weakness has filled many months of my life with suffering. Through carelessness I caught a severe cold two years ago which settled in catarrh and seriously interfered with the regular functions of the body, and made me nervous and irritable. I began taking Peruna and found in it a faithful helper, as it enriched my blood and invigorated the whole system. I have no pains now and am always well."

Female weakness is generally dependent upon catarrh of the pelvic organs. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman [illegible] Ohio, for free literature.

SWAN J. TURNBLAD, the famous Minneapolis Scandinavian editor, is mentioned as a Democratic candidate for governor. Mr. Turnblad is one of the most talented public men in the state, and there's no telling what might happen if the Republican party is hopelessly divided, which his not an improbable outcome of the late pre-convention struggle.

ACCORDING to the dispatches from the seat of war the movements of the Russian troops consist mostly of either retreating in good order or falling back fighting doggedly. It appears that when they fall back they at least manifest proper resentment about the action of the Japs. "Retiring in good order" is supposed to consist of throwing their guns away and striking out for the north pole like a fat men's race on Labor Day.

AT the Democratic state convention at Duluth last week Red Lake county was conspicuously honored by the selection of one of its citizens, Mr. John Morgan, of Thief River Falls, as an alternate to the Democratic national convention to be held at St. Louis next week. Mr. Morgan has for many years been a zealous aud faithful worker for the party's interests and an able advocate and defender of its principles. His recognition by the state convention stamps him as one of the leaders in the Ninth district and the people of Red Lake county, irrespective of political faith, may feel proud of the distinction he has won.

THE personality of John Lind is still a dominating influence in the Democratic party in Minnesota. At the late state convention the Hearstites were in control, having captured the temporary organization and the committee on credentials, and for the time it looked as though the convention would instruct for Hearst. John Lind made a speech and the Hearst people were demoralized. Without the aid of a single vote from his own county Mr. Lind was chosen to head the delegation to St. Louis by a majority of more than a hundred, and no attempt was made to insruct the delegates. Mr. Lind may never be a candidate for office again, but he will always be a tower of strength to the democratic cause.

SECRETARY SHAW has had to endure a good deal of criticism on account of his prayer at Wilmington early this month—"May the Lord deliver us from another period when living expenses are cheap." Economists have not failed to tell the secretary that he shows hopeless ignorance of economic laws. Humorous paragraphers have made fun at his expense—"Beef went up five cents a pound yesterday, and Secretary Shaw was filled with delight when he heard it." But worse than all this, we see numerous letters written by housewives, and telling Mr. Shaw in plain words that if he had to "go to market" with certain small specified sums he would revise his opinion as to the blessings of the present high prices. If the secretary is going to make any more tariff speeches during the campaign it would evidently be well for him to consider the point of view of those who have to fill the market basket.

ST. LOUIS AND THE EXPO.

A Brief Eulogy of the Famous "Thinside Inn."

Colonel Fitch of the Council Bluffs Nonpareil writes as follows of his experiences while seeing the sights at St. Louis:

"The Thinside Inn., St. Louis, Thursday.—I am comfortably situated in the Thinside Inn which is a pleasant little tavern about as big as Missouri Valley. It is built of lath, scantling, jute bagging, wall paper and paint and is very substantial. A heavy man can climb all over it. I saw three bell boys carrying the bill for the night's lodging up to the fourth floor just now and the beams didn't sag much. The management is careful, though. It puts all new guests on the ground floor. After they have paid their bill for the first day they put them on the second floor. By the time a man has paid his bill for two days he is light enough to go up on the third floor with safty. When he has stayed a week they have to put weights in his pockets to keep him from shooting up through the roof.

"I got into the Inn at 9 o'clock and I was 96th in the line. When I got to the clerk he turned me upside down and shook me. Then he counted what fell cut of my pockets, told me to register and handed me a blue ticket for a bell boy.

"'You have enough money for four days, he said. 'Go to the cashier and settle.'

"My room is No. 5,415, three blocks from the public square and a mile south of the buffet. When I got my receipt and my bell boy I sat down and waited an hour for a street car. But they told me there wasn't a line in the whole place—not even a hack line. I had to walk all the way to my room—wore out two bell boys on the way, but there were plenty more. There are more bell boys than there are guests in the Inn. They use 'em for change. When you give a clerk $5 for your room he hands you back $2 and a bell boy."

PRAISES OUR BAND BOYS.

Crookston Papers Speak Very Highly of Prof. Onstad.

A recent issue of the Crookston Times says: "Prof. A. Onstad, the director of the Red Lake Ealls band, C. LaBissoniere and Harry Healy of Red Lake Falls, were very valuable additions to the Crookston band at Hallock during the firemen's tournament June 21-24. A number of Mr. Riggs' musicians were unable to go and it is always very difficult to find musicians in the northwest who can handle the music played by the Crookston band, but the gentlemen from Red Lake Falls did themselves proud, and Bandmaster Riggs and the band men are very complimentary in their opinions of the musicians from our neighboring city. Prof. Onstad is considered by local musicians to be the finest clarinet player in the valley and is a polished, refined gentleman of unusual attainments. He is a college man born in Norway, having come to this country about eight years ago. He is an artist on the violin, clarinet and pipe organ and has received an excellent musical education in Europe. The Red Lake Falls band under his direction has been brought to a very high standard and is one of the best bands in northern Minnesota and that city should feel proud of her band director and band boys."

Prof. Riggs is quoted in the Crookston Journal as follows: Professor Onstad of the Red Lake Falls band is one of the best musicians it has ever been my pleasure to meet in the Northwest, and Red Lake Falls people are to be congratulated upon having secured such an efficient man to conduct their band. The Red Lake Falls band has improved wonderfully under Mr. Onstad's leadership. As a clarinet player he is without equal in the northwest."

Women and Great Music.

It is claimed that the reason women have not written any really great music like Schumann, Wagner and Brahms is because woman lacks that compelling inspiration which she herself furnishes to her brother composer. But the inspiration which golden grain belt beer gives toward hard work and full enjoyment of life's activities and opportunities is not denied her. It is a tonic which any women who will once give it a trial in the home will always remember and appreciate. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

DAIRY DEPARTMENT.

Edited by Geo. L. Austin, Manager of the Red Lake Falls Creamery.

Feed For The Dairy Cow.

Why should not the dairy farmer do something in regard to his business and feed his cows as they should be so as to keep up the milk flow and thus make the most money for the very least cost for feed consumed. It used to be our custom to feed the feeds grown on the farm and to feed all cows alike, regardless of how much milk they gave, and we usually fed during the time the cows were not on grass about all the concentrated feed each cow would eat up clean, very often running as high as 12 to 15 pounds daily. The feed usually was half and half my measure, corn and oats ground together, no matter how high either were in price. We thought that wheat bran was no better than oak leaves, and that to feed a cow very much chaffy oats was not the proper thing to do. We thought that a cow must have plenty of good, rich corn meal so her milk would be nice and rich in butterfat content as we were quite sure that corn meal contained a large per cent of oil and that the more oily feed you feed the cows the more rich her milk would be, but a little study along the line of "Feeds for Cows" and "Butterfat Cannot be Fed to the Cow," etc., set us to thinking and we changed the ration. We found that bran was not a bad cow feed after all. With oats from 35 to 40 cents a bushel and bran at $5 a ton it would pay to sell some oats and buy a few tons of bran, and when corn could be sold for 40 cents a bushel we could afford to buy a little oil cake meal at $25 a ton.

About this time we obtained from Prof. Haecker one of his Experimental Station Bulletins on "Feeding Dairy Cows," and we decided to try Prof. Haecker's way of feeding, but we could not make our cows do their best and hold out as we wanted them to on one-third the number of pounds of concentrate that they gave pounds of milk, so we fed one-half the number of pounds of concentrates that they gave pounds of milk. This we found was more than was really needed so the amount was reduced to two-fifths, which we believe to be just about right to keep the cows in normal flow and to obtain the best results and the most profit for the feed consumed.

Protein, we are told by those that know, is what goes to make up the white part of the milk, and if the feed does not contain sufficient protein to make all the casein needed in the milk for a certain flow, the flow will be cut down by the cow to such an extent as she has protein in her feed to make a certain amount of casein, that is to say, if a cow would normally give 40 pounds of milk and the protein content of her feed would be sufficient for a 30 pound flow, that would be all you would get. Still, you might be feeding her a very heavy feed of a carbonaceous character, but by selling part of the carbonaceous part of the feed such as corn, barley, etc., and with the money buy more wheat bran or oil cake meal, or in other words, some kind of protein feed with the same or less weight, and probably less cost, you could get 40 pounds of milk instead of 30 with the original feed used.

Care must be taken to not feed heavily before or after calving for a few days. Wait with the heavy feed until all danger of milk fever, or too much inflammation in the udder is gone. It usually is all right to begin to feed a cow reasonably heavy four or five days after calving; this will have to be left to the judgment of the owner of the cow.

CRUSHES OUT THE LIFE

The most loathsome and repulsive of all living things is the serpent, and the vilest and most degrading of all human diseases is Contagious Blood Poison. The serpent sinks its fangs into the flesh and almost instantly the poison passes through the entire body. Contagious Blood Poison, beginning with a little ulcer, soon contaminates every drop of blood and spreads throughout the whole system. Painful swellings appear in the groins, a red rash and copper colored splotches break out on the body, the mouth and throat become ulcerated, and the hair and eye brows fall out; but these symptoms are mild compared to the wretchedness and suffering that come in the latter stages of the disease when it attacks the bones and more vital parts of the body. It is then that Contagious Blood Poison is seen in all its hideousness. The deep eating abscesses and sickening ulcers and tumors show the whole system is corrupted and poisoned, and unless relief comes soon this serpent disease tightens its coils and crushes out the life. The only antidote for the awful virus is S. S. S. It is nature's remedy, composed entirely of vegetable ingredients. S. S. CHOSEN TO LEAD BY REPUBLICANS

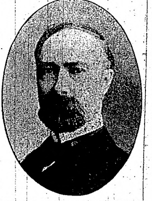
NATIONAL CONVENTION NOMINATES THEODORE ROOSEVELT FOR PRESIDENT.

Senator Charles Warren Fairbanks, of Indiana, Named for Second Place on the Ticket—The Platform—Synopsis of Proceedings.

Chicago, June 24.—Theodore Roosevelt was placed in nomination for president of the United States in the republican national convention Wednesday by Former Gov. Frank S. Black, of New York. When at 11:05 the orator named the candidate "Theodore Roosevelt" one of the most remarkable demonstrations ever seen in a national convention began. A roar from 10,000 throats filled the hall. Cheers, songs, whistling, megaphone discord and band music broke forth when Mr. Black finished his nominating speech and placed Roosevelt's name before the convention. A short time later a similar demonstration occurred when Senator Fairbanks, of Indiana, was named by acclamation for the second place on the ticket.



SENATOR CHARLES W. FAIRBANKS.
Nominated by Acclamation for Vice President by Republican Convention.

Hon. Joseph G. Cannon, of Illinois, speaker of the house of representatives, was the permanent chairman of the convention.

The report of the committee on credentials interested the convention only so far as it dealt with the Wisconsin situation. Senator McComas, of Maryland, chairman of the committee, read a report of the investigation of the contest. The report, which was adopted, closed with a declaration that the "stalwart" faction, led by Senators Spooner and Quarles, Representative Babcock and Judge Emil Baensch, the four delegates-at-large, is the regular republican party in Wisconsin. This national endorsement of the faction headed by the two United States senators from that state evoked prolonged applause.

The Platform.

Following is a synopsis of the platform:

The platform declares it to be the duty of the party to uphold the gold standard and the integrity and value of our national currency; favors legislation which will encourage and build up the American merchant marine; says a navy powerful enough to defend the United States against any attack, to uphold the Monroe doctrine, and to watch over our commerce is esential to the welfare and safety of the American people; promises a continuance of the republican policy with reference to the exclusion of Chinese labor; declares that the civil service law shall be thoroughly and honestly enforced; favors ample pensions for soldiers and sailors, and liberal administration of pension laws; favors international arbitration; pledges the party to insist upon just and equal protection to American citizens in foreign lands; commends the "open door" policy in the orient; eulogizes the late President McKinley and expresses deep sorrow at his death; commends in strong terms the administration of President Roosevelt. On the question of race discrimination the platform says:

"We favor such congressional action as shall determine whether by special discrimination the elective franchise in any state has been unconstitutionally limited, and, if such is the case, we demand that representation in congress and in the electoral colleges shall be proportionately reduced as directed by the constitution of the United States.

The platform says: "Combinations of capital and labor are the results of the economic movement of the age, but neither must be permitted to infringe upon the rights and interests of the people. Such combinations when lawfully formed for lawful purposes are alike entitled to the protection of the laws, but both are subject to the laws and neither can be permitted to break them."

The tariff plank is as follows: "Protection which guards and develops our industries is a cardinal policy of the republican party. The measure of protection should always at least equal the difference in the cost of production at home and abroad. We insist upon the maintenance of the principles of protection, and therefore rates of duty should be readjusted only when conditions have so changed that the public interest demands their alteration, but this work cannot safely be committed to any other hands than those of the republican party. . . . We have extended widely our foreign markets, and we believe in the adoption of all practicable methods for their further extension, including commercial reciprocity wherever reciprocal arrangements can be effected consistent with the principles of protection and without injury to American agriculture, American labor or any American industry."

CAR STRIKES AUTO.

Terrible Accident in Suburb of Chicago—Man and Wife Are Killed.

Chicago, June 27.—An automobile outing terminated in instant death Sunday morning for Mr. and Mrs. George E. Dixon, well known residents of La Grange and leading members of the Episcopal church of that suburb. They were killed in Austin avenue, in Austin, when their automobile collided with an electric car on the Aurora, Elgin & Chicago railroad. Immediately following the collision the gasoline tank of the automobile exploded, and the flaming fluids saturated the clothing of the two victims. Before the fire could be extinguished both bodies were burned almost beyond recognition. As a dramatic climax to the double tragedy, the brakes of the electric car became unmanageable and the car, crowded with horror-stricken and fear-benumbed passengers, ran wild of its own momentum for almost a mile.

The circumstances of the collision are not clear. Neither Motorman Frank Bates nor Conductor Thomas Hughes could explain more than the fact that the automobile ran directly in front of the rapidly moving electric car, and that the collision occurred before there was any opportunity to apply the brakes or reverse the power. Both the motorman and the conductor were arrested, but later in the day, at the request of George E. Dixon, Jr., son of the victims of the accident, they were released.

The accident is said to have been due in part to the construction of the electric motor car. The arrangement of the motorman's compartment does not permit of a clear view on the left side. The car was east bound, and the Dixons approached from the north, on the left, so that the motorman had no sight of them until the automobile was on the track in front of the car. It is supposed that Mr. Dixon either lost control of the automobile or believed that he could cross the track ahead of the car. Mr. Dixon was president of George E. Dixon & Co., manufacturers of steam appliances at 64 and 66 West Monroe street.

The noose was placed about the negro's neck by the little Wilson girl, who positively identified him as her assailant. The negro was then placed upon the back of a black horse and, at a signal from the leader of the mob, the little Wilson girl led the horse from under him. Over 3,000 persons, white and black, witnessed the hanging.

DIVERS AFTER PEARLS.

Their Work Is Deadly, and They Do Not Live Long.

Pearl fishers do not live long. They often dive to a depth of 100 feet or more, and the strain wears them out before their lives are half over. From these depths a diver usually brings two oyster shells each "trip." It is on the mother of pearl in these that the European depends for his sure profit. Pearls are "plums," which only occasionally fall to his lot. Divers work for a wage, and all the shells brought up are the property of the employer. In "Studies In Brown Humanity" Hugh Clifford describes Malay pearl fishers. They anchor on the oyster beds or as near them as possible, he says, and the diving takes place twice a day.

"All the boats are manned at morning and evening, and the Sulu boys row them out to the point selected for the day's operations. The white man in charge always goes with them in order to keep an eye upon the shells, to resuscitate exhausted divers and generally to look after his own interests.

"Presently a man lowers himself slowly over the side, takes a long, deep breath, and then, turning head downward, swims into the depths, his limbs showing dimly in froglike motions until, if the water be very deep, he is completely lost to sight.

"In a few minutes he comes into view again, his face straining upward, yearning with extended neck for the air that he now needs so sorely. His hands cleave the water in strong downward strokes; his form grows momentarily more distinct, until the fixed, tense expression of his staring face is plainly visible. Then the quiet surface of the sea splashes in a thousand drops of sun steeped light as his head tears through it, and his bursting lungs, expelling the imprisoned air, draw in the breath which they crave in long, hard gasps. If the dive has been a deep one a little blood may be seen to trickle from nose and mouth and ears. At times even the eye sockets ooze blood, the result of fearful pressure to which the diver has been subjected."

CHILDREN ARE SANE.

But Grownup People, Most of Them, Are More or Less Insane.

There is one disadvantage which is involved in the very nature of education—that is, that we have to assume that grownup people are representative. We have even to go the length of assuming that grownup people are sane. When we talk about encouraging health in children and discouraging morbidity, when we talk of such and such a child being abnormal or interesting or neurotic or a genius, we are all the time taking for granted that we ourselves have attained to what is profitable and eternal in human nature. But there is at least something that may reasonably be said upon the other side. It may at least very plausibly be maintained that it is children who are, age after age, sane and reliable and grownup people who are, age after age, more or less fantastic and disconcerting. The great majority of grownup people in any age will be in all probability slightly insane; for since no human philosophy is perfect, and since every human philosophy naturally treats itself as if it were perfect, the chances are in every generation that the majority of educated people will be ecstatically certain of something that is quite untrue. Children, on the other hand, it might be maintained, represent the actual primary and untouched human nature. Whatever agrees with that is sane; whatever disagrees with it is eccentric. Children are always children, or, to limit the matter with more precision, babies, at any rate, are always babies. But few will be so paradoxical as to maintain that men are always men or women always women.—Black and White.

An Eloquent Peroration.

"And," said the rising young politician as he reached his eloquent peroration, "I predict that our candidate will, when the votes are counted, be found to have ridden to success upon a tidal wave of glory that will have swept all before it like wild fire breaking in flying spray upon the strand where the sun of victory shall blaze forth its most effulgent rays upon the close of one of the most noble, most memorable campaigns that have ever been launched upon the sea of politics to gather strength and carry all before it like the cyclone sweeping across the broad prairies from which even the orb of day has disappeared in terror."

Simplicity.

Simplicity is the crowning jewel of all virtues. Great messages, great truths, great discoveries and great events are ever simple in their elements. Simplicity makes the great nobler and lifts the obscure to places of eminence. It is the bright charm of innocent childhood and the radiant gem of the old and learned.—Maxwell's Talisman.

A Deep Scheme.

Mr. Deepe—I want you to sit right down and write to Mrs. Jenks inviting her to view the parade from our house.

Mrs. Deepe—I thought you said the route was almost sure to be changed, so that our house will be cut out?

Mr. Deepe—It will be changed, and the parade will pass her house now.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Costly Scenery.

A young wife's rainbow smile—the kind that comes after a shower—is beautiful, but it is also the most expensive bit of scenery produced on the human face.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Every man has at times in his mind the ideal of what he should be, but is not.

CRUSHES OUT THE LIFE

The most loathsome and repulsive of all living things is the serpent, and the vilest and most degrading of all human diseases is Contagious Blood Poison. The serpent sinks its fangs into the flesh and almost instantly the poison passes through the entire body. Contagious Blood Poison, beginning with a little ulcer, soon contaminates every drop of blood and spreads throughout the whole system. Painful swellings appear in the groins, a red rash and copper colored splotches break out on the body, the mouth and throat become ulcerated, and the hair and eye brows fall out; but these symptoms are mild compared to the wretchedness and suffering that come in the latter stages of the disease when it attacks the bones and more vital parts of the body. It is then that Contagious Blood Poison is seen in all its hideousness. The deep eating abscesses and sickening ulcers and tumors show the whole system is corrupted and poisoned, and unless relief comes soon this serpent disease tightens its coils and crushes out the life. The only antidote for the awful virus is S. S. S. It is nature's remedy, composed entirely of vegetable ingredients. S. S. DIVERS AFTER PEARLS.

Their Work Is Deadly, and They Do Not Live Long.

Pearl fishers do not live long. They often dive to a depth of 100 feet or more, and the strain wears them out before their lives are half over. From these depths a diver usually brings two oyster shells each "trip." It is on the mother of pearl in these that the European depends for his sure profit. Pearls are "plums," which only occasionally fall to his lot. Divers work for a wage, and all the shells brought up are the property of the employer. In "Studies In Brown Humanity" Hugh Clifford describes Malay pearl fishers. They anchor on the oyster beds or as near them as possible, he says, and the diving takes place twice a day.

"All the boats are manned at morning and evening, and the Sulu boys row them out to the point selected for the day's operations. The white man in charge always goes with them in order to keep an eye upon the shells, to resuscitate exhausted divers and generally to look after his own interests.

"Presently a man lowers himself slowly over the side, takes a long, deep breath, and then, turning head downward, swims into the depths, his limbs showing dimly in froglike motions until, if the water be very deep, he is completely lost to sight.

"In a few minutes he comes into view again, his face straining upward, yearning with extended neck for the air that he now needs so sorely. His hands cleave the water in strong downward strokes; his form grows momentarily more distinct, until the fixed, tense expression of his staring face is plainly visible. Then the quiet surface of the sea splashes in a thousand drops of sun steeped light as his head tears through it, and his bursting lungs, expelling the imprisoned air, draw in the breath which they crave in long, hard gasps. If the dive has been a deep one a little blood may be seen to trickle from nose and mouth and ears. At times even the eye sockets ooze blood, the result of fearful pressure to which the diver has been subjected."

CHILDREN ARE SANE.

But Grownup People, Most of Them, Are More or Less Insane.

There is one disadvantage which is involved in the very nature of education—that is, that we have to assume that grownup people are representative. We have even to go the length of assuming that grownup people are sane. When we talk about encouraging health in children and discouraging morbidity, when we talk of such and such a child being abnormal or interesting or neurotic or a genius, we are all the time taking for granted that we ourselves have attained to what is profitable and eternal in human nature. But there is at least something that may reasonably be said upon the other side. It may at least very plausibly be maintained that it is children who are, age after age, sane and reliable and grownup people who are, age after age, more or less fantastic and disconcerting. The great majority of grownup people in any age will be in all probability slightly insane; for since no human philosophy is perfect, and since every human philosophy naturally treats itself as if it were perfect, the chances are in every generation that the majority of educated people will be ecstatically certain of something that is quite untrue. Children, on the other hand, it might be maintained, represent the actual primary and untouched human nature. Whatever agrees with that is sane; whatever disagrees with it is eccentric. Children are always children, or, to limit the matter with more precision, babies, at any rate, are always babies. But few will be so paradoxical as to maintain that men are always men or women always women.—Black and White.

An Eloquent Peroration.

"And," said the rising young politician as he reached his eloquent peroration, "I predict that our candidate will, when the votes are counted, be found to have ridden to success upon a tidal wave of glory that will have swept all before it like wild fire breaking in flying spray upon the strand where the sun of victory shall blaze forth its most effulgent rays upon the close of one of the most noble, most memorable campaigns that have ever been launched upon the sea of politics to gather strength and carry all before it like the cyclone sweeping across the broad prairies from which even the orb of day has disappeared in terror."

Simplicity.

Simplicity is the crowning jewel of all virtues. Great messages, great truths, great discoveries and great events are ever simple in their elements. Simplicity makes the great nobler and lifts the obscure to places of eminence. It is the bright charm of innocent childhood and the radiant gem of the old and learned.—Maxwell's Talisman.

A Deep Scheme.

Mr. Deepe—I want you to sit right down and write to Mrs. Jenks inviting her to view the parade from our house.

Mrs. Deepe—I thought you said the route was almost sure to be changed, so that our house will be cut out?

Mr. Deepe—It will be changed, and the parade will pass her house now.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Costly Scenery.

A young wife's rainbow smile—the kind that comes after a shower—is beautiful, but it is also the most expensive bit of scenery produced on the human face.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Every man has at times in his mind the ideal of what he should be, but is not.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Hurrah for Our Butter.

Minnesota has captured everything in sight in the first butter scoring at the world's fair.

Butter men say her record in this event is phenomenal, and compliments are being showered on the Bread and Butter State for the great showing made, and state representatives there are just touching the high places as they blushingly receive the compliments.

Minnesota wins first and second place for creamery butter as follows:

M. Sondergard, Hutchinson, W. F. Stahman, Loretta, and L. Larson, Darwin, each 98½ points; L. B. Anderson, of Albert Lea, and H. H. Jenson, Clark's Grove, each 98¼ points.

Print Butter: Mrs. J. C. Joslin, of Winstead, first place with 97½ points.

Dairy butter: Mrs. L. M. Holmes, of Owatonna, first place, with 96½ points.

Thirty five other Minnesota entries scored 96 points or better, which places them in gold medal claim, and over eighty scored for silver medal. The judges were:

Oscar Douglas of Boston, John Middlestead of Chicago and B. D. White of New York, who, without knowing whence the butter came, pronounced it the finest lot they had ever tested; it being the highest average ever attained by any state in such a contest.

They agreed that such results could only be attained by excellent pure food laws carefully enforced, and praised the state dairy and food commission and the commission for the many entries and care shown in making exhibit.

That three men from one state should come within a quarter of a point of the record score for the United States is considered remarkable, and is the topic of conversation among dairy interests.

Wisconsin took third place for creamery butter, with a score of ninety-seven.

North Dakota had nineteen entries in the creamery class. Miller of Ellendale, Knowlan of Wishek, Sutherland of Hemple and Miller of Forman being highest, with 93½ points each. The balance were between that and 86, the judges knocking all samples on account of wild onion flavor, otherwise the points were high.

State Fair Races.

Nominations for the Minnesota State Fair races must be placed with Secretary E. W. Randall, Hamline, Minn., very shortly, as the entries positively close at 11 p. m., July 1. Last year's records on the Minnesota track, as well as the very large number of entries and the enormous attendance at the fair, have added to the reputation of this annual meet, and horsemen everywhere are now talking of the probabilities for the meet of this year, which opens on August 29. Interest has been heightened by the increase in the amount of money offered by the state fair management. The purses have always been liberal, there having been for a number of years past none less than $1,000 for harness horses, but this year the management has added $3,000 to the total, which now reaches the handsome sum of $25,000.

Is Not Game.

The inmates of the state institutions will not eat caviare sandwiches as a result of the seizure by the game and fish commission of 600 pounds of caviare at Beaudette. Officials in the attorney general's office held that caviare is neither game nor fish, and that under the law the game and fish commission is not obliged to turn over the caviare to the state institutions. The state board of control did not want the caviare, so Mr. Fullerton will sell it. Caviere costs about 80 cents a pound.

Executive Agent S. F. Fullerton, of the state game and fish commission, says that through the co-operation of game wardens of Minnesota and Canada illegal sturgeon fishing in Rainy river and Lake of the Woods has been reduced to the minimum.

Lightning's Work.

A bolt of lightning struck the house of L. Thomas at St. Paul Park and injured Mrs. Minnie Thomas, of Great Falls, Mont., and her 15-year-old son. A gash three inches wide was burned from Mrs. Thomas' left shoulder to her hip. The wound, while not deep, is exceedingly painful, and she is kept in her room from the effects of the shock. Her son Vernon was seated on a sofa. He and the sofa were hurled across the room. The boy was rendered unconscious, and it was fully fifteen minutes before he was brought to.

News Notes.

South St. Paul starts a movement to have the county seat moved from Hastings.

Commissioner McConnell says the other states formed a pool to do up Minnesota in the World's Fair butter contest.

The Crookston city council has selected a site for a public market, a plan which might well be adopted by many other towns.

Siver Peterson, a resident of Red Wing, visiting in St. Paul, jumped into the Mississippi river to escape from three highwaymen.

Three barns near Crookston were struck by lightning and burned. Three houses were struck in Crookston; two horses were killed for C. A. Tullar, near Angus, and several cows killed for William Tripp, near Warren.

The twentieth annual convention of the Minnesota State Pharmaceutical association met in Winona with 200 delegates in attendance.

Only 13 of the 83 counties in the state have reported June tax settlements to the state auditor. Officials of the auditor's office say that county auditors are unusually slow in sending in the settlements this year.

The Great Northern announces that a special train will run from Crookston to Red Lake Falls on the Fourth, and a rate of one fare and a third for the round trip will be made. This train will accommodate the people of Crookston, Wylie, St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls. It will arrive here at 12 o'clock noon, and returning will leave Red Lake Falls at 10 p. m. It is expected that large delegations from all of the towns in this vicinity on the Great Northern will take this opportunity of visiting Red Lake Falls on the Fourth.

Too Regular.

"For ten years," observed the new boarder, "my habits were as regular as clock-work. I rose on the stroke of 6; half an hour later was at breakfast; at 7 I was at work; dined at 1; had supper at 6; and was in bed at 9:30. Ate only plain food, and hadn't a day's illness all the time."

"Dear me!" said a hearer in sympathetic tones, "and what were you in for?"

You don't like that old Fountain Pen; it never did suit, with its old finger-soiling ink joint just where the hands hold it; its doubtful flow; its loose or over tight cap. We allow liberally for an old pen in exchange for the up-to-date Middle-joint "Modern" Pen. made and guaranteed by A. A. Waterman & Co. It opens easily and can be filled full. VETERAN EDITOR DEAD.

S. S. Haislet Sr. Passes Away Tuesday at Ord, Nebraska.

Editor Haislet of the Gazette received yesterday the sad intelligence that his father, Sam S. Haislet senior, had died at Ord, Neb., at the home of his daughter, Mrs. C. C. Spaulding. The deceased received a stroke of paralysis about four years ago and has never recovered from the long and trying illness which followed. He was upward of eighty years of age, and a man of great ability and the highest integrity. Mr. Haislet was one of the pioneer newspaper men of the Mississippi valley, and was connected with a number of the earlier Iowa papers at Dubuque, McGregor and Decorah. For eighteen years prior to his illness he was publisher of the Adrian Guardian, and the writer of this inadequate tribute knew him for ten years as a competitor and as a friend. The sharp-angled walls of controversy were always fragrant with the flowers of friendship, and we do not believe that either ever forgot that he was ready at any time to do the other any service in his power.

Mr. Haislet leaves two sons and two daughters, O. M., of Sioux City, Iowa; Sam S., of Red Lake Falls; Mrs. C. C. Spaulding and Miss Stella, of Ord, Neb. The funeral was held today at Ord, and it is quite likely that the remains will be removed later on to Adrian, where so many years of his long and useful life were spent in the service of the town and county.

The city board of review has been in session this week looking over the assessor's books. A few unimportant changes only are reported.

Anthony L. LaFreniere, editor of the Northome Record, arrived in the city Saturday accompanied by his bride, who was formerly Miss Rose Schumacher, of Redwood Falls. The ceremony was performed last Thursday at the home of the bride's parents. They expect to go to housekeeping at once in a new home the groom has prepared. The many Red Lake Falls friends of Mr. LaFreniere will extend their congratulations.

UNCLE SAM MAKES MONEY

Receiver George of Crookston Land Reports That the Sales Aggregate Over $400,000.

According to Receiver A. F. George of the Crookston land office, who has been in constant attendance at the auction sale of Red Lake lands says the present sale far exceeds the expectations of the government officials, both in volume of bidders and the amount of money offered for the various parcels.

Mr. George states that the sum total of all moneys received so far on account of the sale would foot up nearly $400,000 and that the daily deposits were keeping the amount on the increase. The bidders apparently are a middle class of people who have snug deposits in their banks and large sized wallets with them, hence the idea that the land would go by default in large quantities is not seriously considered by the land office officials.

The men are purchasing the land as a speculation anticipating, and perhaps with reason, that the value will be doubled and tripled within the next ten years and that they will be able to reap handsome profits from their present investments and what little hardship may be incurred by the residence necessary to perfect titles. The railroads running through the country should develop it at a wonderful rate and the hopes of the land purchasers will doubtless be fullfilled. Mr. George is of the opinion that many of the men who bid seemingly extravagant prices for prime soil were possessed of rare good judgment and that in the end they will come out well to the good on the transactions despite the present cry of craziness and imbecility.

Squaw Point and various other tracts of land upon which extensive improvements have been made, and which have been withheld from the regular sale, will be offered for sale on July 14th and very hot bidding is expected on several of the tracts.

The interest in the sale at Thief River Falls continues to maintain fever heat, although the immense crowds which characterized the opening day have vanished. The present bidders have their minds made up on certain tracts of land, are willing to pay fairly good prices for it and as a rule bid reasonably.

Hidden Water Supply.

The investigation of a neglected spring or rivulet may bring to light a valuable supply of water for gardening or domestic purposes. A surprising quantity is often obtainable by installing a ram at some seemingly insignificant source. A ram is cheap, because the first expense is the last, there being no cost of maintenance, and it is satisfactory, because the ram requires no attention. Once started, it takes entire care of itself.—Country Life In America.

Twenty Shots In His Head.

At the present time there is a keeper on a Hertfordshire estate who has about twenty shots in his head. Nearly thirty years ago this man was accidentally shot by an under keeper, and there were twenty-two holes in the hat he wore, which is preserved to this day. The injured man never had the shots extracted, was long between life and death and completely lost his hearing.—London Standard.

Qualified Approval.

"How did you like the opera?"

"First rate," answered Mr. Cumrox. "I didn't care much about the tunes they played, but it was a great comfort to have enough noise to drown the vacuous conversation that was going on around me."—Washington Star.

The theatrical treat of the season will be the Hindoo magician at the opera house next Thursday evening.

P. K. Olson has secured the contract for clearing off the brush on the new Soo townsite in Emardville townsite, and left this morning with a dozen men to commence on the job.

Crookston Journal: James E. Ford, county auditor of Red Lake county, who has spent the past week in Minneapolis on business, arrived in the city yesterday morning on his way home. Mr. Ford when seen by a Journal man expressed himself as well satisfied with the conditions existing in Red Lake county. Crops in Red Lake county this year, according to Mr. Ford, will pay off the mortgages and leave the farmers financially independent.

AMUSEMENTS

"Joshua Simpkins," a four act New England play, will be presented at the Metropolitan opera house Friday evening, July 1. The climax of stage realism, it is asserted, has been reached in the presentation of the stirring saw mill scene in "Joshua Simpkins," and will be presented in this city by a peculiar mechanical contrivance which has never been introduced here before. This saw mill scene is claimed to be a vast improvement over many attempts in a similar line. The company also boasts of a splendid orchestra, which is carried complete by the organization, to aid in the proper presentation of the play, which is said to abound with musical and dancing specialties of a high order. To assist "Joshua Simpkins" in popularity, a band of music is also carried, and a concert is given which is said to be far in advance of anything usually heard with a traveling musical organization. The parade will leave the theatre at the usual time and take the usual route, making a burlesque parade. Prices, 25c, 35c and 50c.

George McConnell, who has been head miller at the Red Lake Falls Milling company for a number of years, has purchased an interest in the O. K. mill at Thief River Falls, and takes possession about the first of August. Mr. McConnell is recognized as one of the best practical millers in the state and will be a valuable man for the Thief River mill. Red Lake Falls people will regret the removal of this estimable family.

FIRST COMMENCEMENT OF ST. JOSEPH'S SCHOOL

GRADUATES.

Class Motto:—"Onward, Upward."

HENRY C. DEROCHER	ALBINA M. DELAGE
ROSE E. MOREAU	EVA M. PARADIS

LAURA M. CYR	ALGINA E. GUILLEMETTE

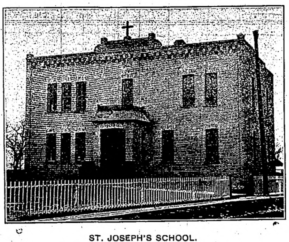
The first commencement exercises of the St. Joseph's parochial school took place at the Metropolitan opera house yesterday afternoon. Owing to the limited capacity of the hall only the families of the graduates and a small number of outside friends were invited. The school now has upward of 250 pupils enrolled, and it requires quite a large seating capacity to accommodate the scholars.

The program was arranged during the past week, and for the limited time the graduates acquitted themselves very creditably indeed, and their work shows that the instructors are thorough and painstaking.



ST. JOSEPH'S SCHOOL.

The program opened with an invocation hymn by the class, followed by a reading entitled "Le Renegat," by Miss Eva Paradis. Miss Rose Moreau gave a piano solo, "Ballet des Papillons," and Miss Elsie Manly a reading entitled "Papa and the Boy."

Not the least meritorious number on the program was the song "I am a Little Flower Girl," by ten little girls carrying baskets of flowers, one of which at the conclusion of the song was handed to each of the graduates.

The class recited "The Polish Boy," and Miss Rose Moreau gave the valedictory in French, followed by a piano solo "The Little Red Rose," by Miss Eva Paradis.

Very Rev. Father Fayolle told the audience something about the progress and development of the school and apologized for the program because of the short time for preparation, but we are sure the audience was well satisfied, since every number was well rendered and elicited the warmest applause. Father Fayolle told something of the purposes of a parochial school, explaining that it was their desire to educate the heart as well as the head, firm in the belief that education without religion did not fit the pupils for all the duties of citizenship and especially for the duties they owe to the church. With regard to the work accomplished by the school the speaker referred to the fact that out of some forty papers sent to the state examining board last year nearly two-thirds of them received markings of 75 per cent. or better, and that a much better showing was expected this year. Next year Father Fayolle promised that there would be a larger graduating class and a more elaborate program.

To each of the ten graduates Father Fayolle presented a diploma, and Miss Elsie Manly received the special distinction of a diploma from the Boston School of Penmanship, she having stood the highest in her class in this study.

The exercises closed with a song in French by the class.

Political Pot-pourri

Now that state politics is out of the way for a time county candidates will receive some consideration, and during the coming few weeks it is likely that a number of announcements will be made. So far the field is rather barren, although it is probable that numerous citizens have been nursing embryo booms which will be sprung at no distant date. Most of the present county officers will doubtless aspire to a re-election, and in most instances there is little likelihood of a vigorous campaign against them.

James E. Ford, who is serving his first term as county auditor, is acknowledged to be one of the most efficient and obliging public officials in the state. Naturally he expects an endorsement of his good work at the hands of the voters this fall, and whoever has the hardihood to make the race on the opposition ticket will realize at the end of the campaign that he was up against an invincible proposition. Mr. Ford will, or at least should get every Democratic vote in the county, and at least half of the Republicans know him to be an able official and a deserving young man and will cast their votes for him.

N. W. Tarrant has looked after the affairs of the probate office during the past year and a half to the satisfaction of everyone having business before his court. Mr. Tarrant, although not a lawyer, has a good knowledge of common law, particularly as applied to his office. He is also a genial, popular official, and there isn't the remotest chance of defeating him. So far no one has been proposed in opposition to him.

Daniel Linnihan, who was appointed sheriff upon the death of Sheriff Sampson last year, will again be a candidate on the Democratic ticket, and during his incumbency has performed the duties of the office satisfactorily and made many friends. Mr. Linnihan has every qualification for the office, and will have strong support regardless of political lines. A good officer is entitled to a second term.

It is hinted that possibly Register Gibeau will seek another election on the Populist ticket if it is deemed expedient to resurrect that party during the campaign. It is only fair to say that Mr. Gibeau has made a good official. His office is in the best of share, and he gives personal attention to the details of the work of the office. He is acknowledged to be a good campaigner, and has a host of friends in all parts of the county. J. J. Weeks, of Thief River Falls, is announced as a Republican aspirant for the office and will probably secure the nomination at the primaries.

For county attorney the Republicans will undoubtedly name Thomas Germo, the Red Lake Falls lawyer who made a remarkable chase for the place two years ago, having been defeated by the present incumbent by the slender majority of five. Mr. Germo has had a splendid measure of success in the practice of law. He is honest, competent and enterprising, and if elected will make a good officer. So far there has been no mention of any candidate in opposition, although it is possible that County Attorney Grady will conclude to make the race again, probably as an independent. It is but fair to say that Mr. Grady has conducted the office with signal ability.

For county superintendent of schools E. L. Quist of Thief River Falls and J. B. O'Brien of St. Hilaire are mentioned on the Republican side. Mr. Quist is a graduate of Gustavus Adolphus college of St. Peter, one of the leading inland educational institutions of the state. Two years ago he represented his school in the inter-state oratorical contest and it is said that he is a good speaker and an accomplished scholar. He has had practical experience in school work, and is a clean, able young man, who would bring to the office ability, enterprise and modern methods. Mr. O'Brien is the principal of the St. Hilaire schools, a position he has had for many years. It is said that some of the people of St. Hilaire will not urge him to be a candidate because they do not want to lose him as superintendent. The Democrats as yet have proposed no candidate for the place. The present incumbent, Frank Jeffers, may be a candidate on the Populist ticket or as an independent, but the general feeling seems to be that since Frank has held the office eight years it is about time to make room for new blood.

For the minor offices of surveyor, court commissioner and coroner there has been no talk, and of course but little interest is felt. The present incumbents probably can have a re-election without much effort.

In this district there has been no talk as to county commissioner. The local Republican organ has proposed Mr. Demann, the present member, as a candidate for another term, but whether or not it has Mr. Demann's sanction is not stated. In the Thief River district W. W. Prichard, cashier of the First State Bank, and one of the leading citizens of the place, is an avowed candidate, and Daniel Shaw is mentioned as a probable opponent. The Democrats will probably have a candidate, too, as Thief River is strongly Democratic. The commissioners in the other districts hold over.

L. C. Simons seems to have the field to himself as a Republican candidate for representative. He is the present member, and was elected two years ago by a large majority. Dr. Tupper, of Thief River, is mentioned as a Democratic possibility. The Doctor is a genial young man, capable and enthusiastic, but whether he would care to give up his medical practice temporarily to make the fight we do not know.

Getting Close.

A citizen of an adjoining state who had never said a good word for a fraternal order, and who was always opposed to providing for the future for his family, was dying. "How do you feel?" asked the doctor, who was on hand to afford relief if possible. "All looks bright before me," gasped the dying man. "I thought so," returned the doctor, "you'll see the blaze in about ten minutes."—Loyal Workman.

BRYAN STILL A DEMOCRATIC IDOL

Pandemonium Rages for an Hour on His Entrance to the Convention Hall This Afternoon.

Judge Parker Likely to be the Nominee for President Tomorrow---Turner for Vice President.

St. Louis, July 7, 4 p. m.—The Democratic national convention assembled this morning at 10 o'clock, but as neither the committee on credentials or resolutions was ready to report adjournment was taken until after dinner.

When the convention re-assembled at 2:30, a notable demonstration took place upon the entrance of William Jennings Bryan. The audience and half the delegates went wild with enthusiam. They tore down every Parker banner in the hall save that held by the Georgia delegation. The Georgia people ran for the stage with their Parker banner and nailed it to the wall, declaring that the man who tore it down would do so at his own peril. For nearly half an hour the cry was "Bryan! Bryan! hurrah for Bryan! The band just now is starting up "My Maryland," and the crowd is wild again.

No nomination will be made today. It is probable that the resolutions committee will report tonight. It is thought that Parker will be nominated tomorrow on the first ballot. There is still talk of Senator Turner, of Washington, for second place, although many delegations give out that they will vote for Hon. John W. Kern, of Indiana.

NEW LAWYER IN TOWN.

F. L. Farley, of Waseca, Decides to Locate at Red Lake Falls.

F. L. Farley, of Waseca, has moved to Red Lake Falls, and is preparing to open an office in the Healy land building. Mr. Farley is an attorney of eleven years' experience, is a graduate of the Minnesota law school, and comes here with an excellent reputation as a lawyer and as a citizen. Mrs. Farley and daughter are expected within the next week. Red Lake Falls people extend a cordial welcome to the Farley family, and trust they will never regret casting their lot with us. Regarding Mr. Farley the Waseca Radical-Herald says:

"Attorney F. L. Farley has sold his law business in this city and will leave in a week or so for Red Lake Falls, in the northern part of the state. While attending to some land business some weeks ago Mr. Farley paid Red Lake Falls a visit and was strongly impressed with the many business advantages of this thriving little city and after a thorough investigation decided it was an ideal location for the practice of his profession.

"The country up that way is settling up rapidly and that Red Lake Falls has a bright future before it is conceded by all who have visited the place.

"Mr. Farley is an able attorney and during his long residence here has proved himself to be an excellent citizen, public-spirited, upright and honest with all his dealings with his fellow-men. We regret to see him and his estimable wife go from our midst but wish them abundant success in their new home.

"Mr. Farley says that leaving Waseca is like "pulling teeth" but that he feels he cannot afford to miss the opportunity presented at Red Lake Falls."

SCHOOL MA'AMS HERE.

Large Enrollment at the Teachers' Training School Now in Session.

The Red Lake county teachers' training school is now in session at the high school building, and up to the present time about sixty teachers from Red Lake and Polk counties are enrolled. It is expected that this number will be increased to at least a hundred by the fore part of next week. Prof. E. E. McIntyre, superintendent of the Crookston schools, is in charge of the school, and he is assisted by Superintendent C. S. Yaeger of Fosston. Next week Miss Lydia Fletcher will commence the model class demonstrations.

The training school is conducted under the auspices of the state department of public instruction, and all the expenses are paid by the state. County Superintendent Frank Jeffers has general supervision of the work.

RAPP CASE APPEALED.

Bertha Pederson Still Insists Upon a Share of the Estate.

Attorneys H. W. Lee of Thief River and J. K. Hannay of St. Hilaire were in the city Saturday on business before the probate court in connection with the Rapp will case. Mr. Lee, as attorney for Miss Pederson, has appealed to the district court from the order issued by Judge Tarrant a few weeks ago.

It will be remembered that Miss Bertha Pederson of Thief River alleges to be the widow of the late Chas. G. Rapp by virtue of a common-law marraige, claimed to have been contracted in California over a year ago. Judge Tarrant held that she had no right to a share in the estate, taking the ground that sufficient proof of marriage had not been adduced and that common-law marriages are not recognized by the courts of California.

The case will come up for trial in the district court at the coming October term.

BACK FROM CONVENTION.

Red Lake County Cuts Some Ice at Republican Gathering.

The Red Lake county delegates to the Republican state convention returned home Sunday, most of them driving over from Crookston. The delegates were happy. They were all Dunn men, and were proud of their part in one of the greatest fights ever made in the state. In talking with two or three of the delegates, the COURIER learns that the contesting Collins delegation received no consideration at the hands of the committee on credentials. Although the committee contained seven Collins adherents and one Eddy man, the committee was unanimous in deciding that the regularly-elected delegates should be seated. The appeal on behalf of the Collins contestants was made by W. C. Smiley of Thief River Falls. The only argument advanced was that the chairman of the convention was unfair in refusing to give a division of the house on the vote making the temporary organization permanent. All of the members of the credentials committee agreed that a division of the house cannot be demanded under the circumstances existing at the Red Lake county convention. The point was purely technical at any rate, and was unworthy of consideration, as the Dunn men were in control of the convention by a vote of 55 to 9.

Dr. N. M. Watson made a statement on the part of the regular delegation, and the arguments he advanced seem to have been so convincing that the committee refused to give further consideration to the claims of the Collins people.

The Red Lake county delegation was on the winning side every time. They voted for Young for attorney general, and for Jaggard, Elliott, Brown and Lewis for supreme court judges. All of the delegates say the convention was a lively affair, and that Senator Clapp made an ideal chairman and was eminently fair with the contending factions.

MADE THE EAGLE SCREAM

Fourth of July Celebration at Red Lake Falls Enjoyed by an Immense Crowd.

The Fourth of July committee got on the right side of the weather man and the atmospheric conditions could not have been more propitious had they been made to order. The day was fair and cool, just the sort of weather that makes a fellow feel like having a good time and throwing away care and anxiety for the time.

And the celebration was a success. There was not a hitch in the arrangements. Everybody had a good time, and the program was pulled off on schedule time without delay or accident.

The program started with a street parade at ten o'clock and this feature was the most elaborate ever attempted in this section. About twenty-five of the business houses and lodges were represented in the display of floats, and most of them represented a considerable expenditure of time and much ingenuity. In the award of prizes Anderson & Healy took the blue ribbon. The second prize went to the Woodman lodge, third to the Northern Minnesota Milling company and fourth to the Daisy sewing society.

At eleven o'clock the parade reached Clearwater island, where the patriotic program was given. The band gave several selections, "America" was sung by a chorus of fifty children representing the living flag, and Hon John A. Johnson, the St. Peter editor and orator gave an address. Mr. Johnson was at his best and the people who heard him are enthusiastic. They say it was the best speech ever given in the county on a similar occasion, and if John ever gets up this way again he will not find it difficult to find an audience. A portion of his address is reprinted on another page of today's paper for the benefit of those of our readers unable to be present. Mayor Duffy was president of the day.

At noon the parade came up town to meet the Great Northern train, on which over four hundred visitors from Thief River, St. Hilaire, Wylie and Crookston arrived.

After dinner the ball game between Red Lake Falls and Thief River took place, a purse of $75 being the stimulating force. The score was 6 to 0 in favor of Thief River. A more detailed account of the game is given elsewhere.

The foot races, tug of war, egg race, sack race, etc., were given on Main street. All of them were interesting events, and the sporting committee is entitled to great praise for the good order maintained and the satisfactory manner in which the races were conducted.

The fireworks in the evening attracted all of the people in town, and for the time Main street was practically deserted. The display was excellent, and everybody enjoyed this feature of the program. Later in the evening a free dance was given at the Metropolitan opera house, and the young people, and some who are not so young, enjoyed the dizzy maze of the dance until the early hours of morning.

It is conservatively estimated that nearly five thousand people participated in the celebration, and if one of the number was dissatisfied with the program or with the treatment accorded by the Red Lake Falls people we have yet to hear of it.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: It cost a lot of money to get married and more to be it.

It's really remarkable what an amount of blonde hair a chorus girl can support on a small salary.

It's queer how nature goes around distributing dimples on girls in the very spot you pick out for a kiss.

It's a great comfort to a mother to think that if her boy was good looking and had brains he might not be such a good son.

A woman always has an idea that the reason her husband isn't prouder of the baby is because he doesn't know how to dress it.

THE LESSON OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION

Address Delivered by Hon. John A. Johnson, of St. Peter, at the Fourth of July Celebration at Red Lake Falls--An Able Speech.

It has been said that there is nothing new under the sun. That may or may not be true, but one thing is certain; there is only one kind of a Fourth of July, and we don't want it changed. On this day we do not want to know of art, science, literature. We want told again and again the story of the Boston tea party, Bunker Hill and Valley Forge. We want to hear of Washington, Stark, Putnam, Ethan Allan and the other heroes who won the right to immortality. During the remainder of the year we can talk of the tariff, the banking system and the currency question. To-day there is one, and only one text—the Declaration of Independence. We want to know what it was, who uttered it, who secured it and what it brought it to us. There is scarcely need to go into detail. Every school boy knows the story, Every man and woman ought to know it as they know their alphabet. And yet we like on this day to talk of the cruel wrongs practiced by the mother country upon the colonists; how they grew weary of the wrongs; how our forefathers burned with righteous indignation and declared that all men were created free and equal; how they threw off the yoke of oppression; how they were ready to fight for freedom and willing to lay down their lives for it.

Then, too, we love to read and think how it was all brought about; how the minute men sprang up day and night and made war upon the invading foe. We love to dwell upon the heroes at Bennington and Bunker Hill, at Ticonderoga, Concord and Lexington, and the other battlefields where honor was won and independence established. The world has no parallel to it in all its history. Rome had her heroes, Greece had her men who fought for their homes and their country. Romantic France had her revolution which stands out in the sky of history like a lode star. Poland and Switzerland reared their Tells and Kosciuskos, but in no country and at no time was freedom bought at such a cost as ours, nowhere was it gained against such odds, and nowhere were the results so complete, so lasting and so extensive. It must have been a divinity which shaped our ends. The god of destinies was arrayed with Washington, with Paul Jones, with Adams, Franklin, Randolph, Henry and Jefferson. There was never such a congress as the old Continental congress, never such patriots as those who fought for the independence of America, never such a country as America.

And what can be said of America? The infant among the nations, born but little more than a century ago, she has grown to be the Colossus of all the nations of the world. There have been none like her before, there will be none like her again. Rome was great, but she fell; Greece was once the light of the world, but she is now but a wilderness of marbled ruins; Charlamange created an empire as broad as civilization, but it decayed. Spain discovered our world and might have been an enduring nation, but she has become decrepit and ruined. And so with all of them. Their decline was due to the fact that the favors were for the few, the burdens for the many. Here all are equal, opportunity is open to all alike. No nation can live and be truly great where injustice reigns. A century ago this nation had three millions of people, to-day it has eighty millions. To-day we are an empire. The past has been wonderful, the future will be more so. Here in this Red River valley you have an empire stretching to the north and east. Boys need not follow the will-o'-the-wisp into the swamps of the cities. Big men are not created in the cities. They are developed amid scenes like these. Here in this vast opening Eldorado the boy has only to form his ambition, go out and work and realize it. The future of your country is in your hands and you can make it great by energy and those other channels through which success is reached.

There was a time when statesmen were patriots—when politicians were patriots. Changes have taken place in our economic system. From the continued malfeasance in office politics is now regarded either a charity or a crime. Some men are kept in office through pity or because they cannot earn a living in the regular channels of labor or commerce. Others hold office because they buy their way in and sell their birthright for other pottage to continue to buy office. All men are not thus. There are still pure, lofty, patriotic men, who honestly discharge their duty. But when we read of the bribery of Minneapolis, the rottenness of Chicago, the corruption of Pennsylvania, wide as the state itself, we stand aghast and fear for the future of the Republic. We hear sometimes that a river cannot rise higher than its source: that if public servants are corrupt it is because the people themselves are lacking in honesty. That is false. The people as a rule are honest, and the fact that public servants are untrue is because of the apathy of the people In politics we are an indolent and a lazy people. We are content to let things take there own course and allow selfish men to transact the business we ought to do and because we are too lazy to pay attention to the details of our own business. Our country is cursed by a slavery to partizanship. I warrant that less than ten per cent. of the people are familiar with the constitution of the country. Less than that number study the platforms of their party and an equally small number know why they are Republicans or why they are Democrats.

An ideal state of civilization comes only from a quickened intelligence and the education of the masses. No people ever became great through ignorance and superstition. No party can become permanent so long as the few can dominate the many by cant, hypocrisy and misrepresentation. The greatest power ever given to any people is an equal right with the ballot. No power is so often rendered useless by using it without intelligence. Some men shun political heresy through the fear of ridicule. No man is so weak as the voter without the courage of his convictions. The independent voter, the man who votes as his conscience dictates, is the ideal citizen. The hope of the nation is in all the people aroused from the sleep of party bigotry, armed with the breast-plate of conviction and carrying the sword of Conscience and Truth.

America has just cause for pride in her educational system. Other countries and their rulers have purposely kept their people in ignorance and superstition that they might the easier be governed by passion and fear. In our country every boy and every girl has the right to an education. The state not only offers it but urges it. And every boy in this state should grasp the prize held out to him. True dignity is in education. Education is the key that unlocks opportunity. Because some men have succeeded in business without education is no argument in favor of ignorance. Ten succeed through education where one fails. Ten ignorant men fail where one succeeds. The poor boy must have brains to compete with the rich man's influence. The start in life is unequal, but the poor boy with an education will eventully outstrip the rich man and his prestige. In this age there is no excuse for any boy going through life without an education. No boy is too poor to have an education and no boy makes a mistake who seeks and gets an education.

What we need in this country is men of character. Character is the greatest thing in the world. It is as old as the world itself. Character is that something ingrown into the man—that something which makes him kind to his neighbors, generous to his family, honest in the payment of his debts and honest in public life. It is not that which makes him honest when in the sight of other men, but honest when he is alone. Character is what a man is, not what he seems. Character is what you actually are, not what your neighbors think you are. Character, as Moody once said, is what a man is when he is in the dark, what he actually thought and did when alone. Alexander the Great, before he died, ordered that his hands be left uncovered by his funeral shroud in order that the people might know that he took nothing from this world or from his people. Some of our public servants of today fail to make such a provision. We want character in our neighbor. We must have character in ourselves.

The Philippine Exhibit.

The government's Philippine show at St. Louis, which was expected to cost $250,000, has cost nearly a round million up to date, so that we are quite positive that the exhibit is most typical in all its aspects, just as golden grain belt beer is most typical of what a family tonic and beverage should be. As a tonic its effect upon the bodily and nervous functions is sure if used systematically, and as a beverage it is so delightful that systematic use is practically assured if it be given a trial. THE HOME IN FRANCE.

It Is Mainly an Adjunct to Life on the Outside.

The father and mother in Paris eat at home when they do not eat out, but absolutely no informal social intercourse invades the apartment, which is more than anything else a sort of factory in which is produced whatever the family needs for life outside. A vast amount of sewing is done here. French girls of even wealthy parents, after they finish school, attend courses of dressmaking and millinery and to a great extent the industry which turns out the French woman as a model of good dressing, to be followed by the world, is carried on by the women of the family in what would be the home if the French knew the meaning of the word.

A reception day is rigorously kept, and much entertaining at dinner and dejeuner may be done, but always of a formal character. A person having the penetrating qualities of a book agent might venture to try "dropping in" on a French woman on a day when she is not regularly receiving, but in the natural course of ordinary social experience in Paris this would never happen, says Flora McDonald Thompson in Harper's Bazar.

Such order of living readily permits great economy. One has not to waste time, good clothes or house room in daily preparation for the unexpected guest. Six days of the week a French woman may run her sewing machine in the middle of her salon if she likes, secure from the interruption of chance callers. It is said that the chief function of the petit salon of a Paris apartment is to provide storage room for ball gowns which on reception days are taken down from the chandelier and locked up in a bedroom till the guests have departed.

Keeps Us Out of Mischief.

Perhaps to waste our time is wrong,
But also this is true:
If we were busy right along
What mischief we might do!

Still In the Dark.

"What would you say if I were to ask you to marry me?"

"You might ask me and find out."

Red Lake Indian Reservation Homesteads

February 20th, 1904, Congress passed a bill authorizing the opening for settlement of the ELEVEN TOWNSHIPS of the Red Lake Indian Reservation which are situated in Red Lake County. These lands will be thrown open for settlement within the next four months.

These lands will be disposed of to the highest bidder, and cannot be sold for less than $4 per acre. A payment of one-fifth of the purchase price in cash will be required. and the balance divided in five equal annual payments, without interest.

We have secured a limited number of copies of the Smiley map of Red Lake County and the Red Lake Indian Reservation. These maps are 28x38 inches, and show the grade and quality of each and every quarter-section of land in the portion of the Reservation to be opened for settlement; it gives the number of acres of timber and the kind of timber on each quarter. This map was compiled from the personal notes of Mr. Smiley and from the Government notes thereof. Everyone who intends to be present at the opening should have one of these maps, as it will save you the price of a locater's fee.

BURNING A WIDOW.

The Story of a Witness of This Cruel Indian Custom.

I had the opportunity of seeing a young widow burn herself by the side of her deceased husband. The funeral pile was about ten feet high. In the middle of the pile lay her deceased husband, an old and miserable looking man. The devoted victim was a young creature about seventeen, dressed in white, with all her jewels on. There was a confused noise of singing and shouting, intermixed with the sound of tomtoms and at intervals the hollow and sonorous sound of gongs and trumpets. The priests and her friends crowded round her, all speaking to her at once, apparently to distract her attention and to prevent her shrinking at the last moment from sacrificing herself.

There was a small tank of water close to the funeral pile. They led her to this. I was very near her when I saw her quietly take the jewels from her ears, her nose, unclasp her gold bracelets as well as the bangles from her ankles and every ornament she had on, which were received by her relations.

She then stepped into the water, divested herself of her clothes of pure white and replaced them with clothes of a yellow color. She then performed her ablutions, came out of the water and, unassisted, walked three times round the pile, followed by the priests and her friends, who at this period appeared to be more urgent and loud in their discourse to her to distract her attention. She then, unassisted, mounted the pile, laid herself down by the side of her husband and put his head under her arm, turning herself toward him.

Then they sprinkled large quantities of oil and straw on the pile. The fatal fire was then applied, and amid loud shouts and while the fire reached her I distinctly heard her utter the words "Nirva! Nirva!"

I was very near her during the different parts of the ceremony and could have saved her life by merely touching her, as she would then have been defiled and would not have been permitted to have the honor of sacrificing herself.

But in saving her life I stood the chance of being torn to pieces, and I certainly should have been brought to a court martial for disobedience of orders, for the English in those days were strictly forbidden to meddle with the customs and prejudices of the natives.—Georg Ebers' "Memoirs."

PITH AND POINT.

In order to be popular forget to say a good deal.

Wisdom is always conceded to a rich man until he loses his riches.

Do not emphasize your own virtues by enlarging on the failings of others.

A safe way to judge a man is to ascertain just what friends he doesn't make.

A genius is a man who refuses to believe in the impossibilities of other people.

The claims to wisdom of owls and a multitude of men rest upon their looks, and nothing more.

To get rid of a bore ask him to repeat his longest and favorite story twice. Even he cannot stand that.

Only a smart man can conceal from a woman the fact that he isn't as smart as he would wish her to think he is.

One of the curious things about a man who wants to borrow money from you today is his eager determination to repay it tomorrow.

There are three stages in the existence of the average man when he is of particular interest to his community—viz, at his birth, marriage and funeral.—Success.

Another Way Out.

In one of Glasgow's finely laid out cemeteries a rich citizen, who was notorious as a skeptic, had erected a massive mausoleum on what he terms "his ancestral plot." One day he met a worthy elder of the kirk coming away from the vicinity of the imposing mass of masonry, so he said to him, "Weel, Dauvit, ye've been up seein' that gran' erection o' mine?"

"Deed, hiv I, sir."

"Gey strong place that, isn't it? It'll tak' a man a' his time tae raise out o' yon at the day o' judgment."

"Hoot, ma mon," said David, "ye can gie yerself little fash aboot risin' gin that day comes. They'll tak' the bottom oot of o't tae let ye fa' doon."—Spare Moments.

Forestalling Trouble.

Sam Tate at one time owned a big cotton plantation on the Mississippi river. Once Tate called on the governor of Arkansas and said, "Governor, if you're not too busy this morning I'd like to have a pardon."

"Who for?"

"For myself."

"Ah, for yourself! And what for?"

"Killing a nigger."

"When did you kill him?"

"Oh, I haven't killed him yet—thought I'd get a pardon in advance, so there wouldn't be any trouble about it."

Publicity Has Its Disadvantages.

"You weather prophets make a great many mistakes," said the man who sneers.

"Yes," answered the observer, "and if other people had all their mistakes published in the daily papers as we do I suspect that our record would seem pretty good."—Washington Star.

BAKED APPLES.

The Way to Make a Convenient and Delicious Dessert.

The difference between apple sauce stewed quickly over the fire and that baked slowly for several hours in a moderate oven is so great that one could easily believe that different fruits had been used. Each method, if carefully followed, produces a delicious result, and, while some persons have a strong preference for one or the other, to my mind it is difficult to decide which is the better way. Therefore it is well to use both methods, cooking the first apples that come in midsummer by stewing, and later, when the cool days of early autumn make a fire less objectionable, trying the baking.

The dish for baking is as important as that for beans baked properly and also for Indian puddings, and should be the same in style and material. Cut the fruit (and you may use in this way any kind of apples or pears which are too green or hard to use uncooked) into quarters; then remove the cores and skins. Allow one cup of sugar and one-half cup of water to two quarts of fruit. The amount will vary with different apples, and it is important not to use too much sugar, for the long cooking seems to develop the natural sweetness of the fruit. Cover them closely and cook in a slow oven four or five hours or until they have a deep rich red color. If they cook too fast, the steam will cause them to burst and run over the edge and result in a mushy sauce, but a moderate heat, long continued, will leave each quarter distinct in the clear sirup. Let it cool in the pan and turn it out without any stirring of the fruit. This may be poured at once into sterilized jars and sealed the same as canned fruit, if you are not likely to use it all soon. As a sauce for a breakfast or dinner it is acceptable; with cream and hot biscuit for supper it is delicious, and as a filling for pastry shells it is convenient.—Home Science Magazine.

THE CAVE OF GHOSTS.

This Is One of the Wonder Places of New South Wales.

One of the curiosities of Oakley creek, N. S. W., is a cave which very few people care to enter. It is of the usual order of stalactite and stalagmite shapes and figures, but in order to get inside it the visitor must crouch down and squeeze himself through a narrow opening and grope his way in the inky darkness for a few yards till he can stand erect and light a torch.

As soon as he has done this he sees faintly the weird shapes assumed by the water dripping from the limestone and he hears a whirring noise. He feels inclined to make his exit at once, but he hears something moving all round him, and presently something touches him.

He concludes that there are uncanny spirits about, and this sensation is multiplied many times in intensity when on turning to retrace his steps he finds himself confronted by a tall, ghostly figure.

If the visitor has a strong nerve or has been forewarned, which is not always the case, he recognizes that the ghostly figure is a senseless block formed by the dripping from the limestone, and that the moving creatures are bats.

There is one part of the cave which no man has dared to explore. It is called the blowhole. One adventurous visitor was about to squeeze himself through this narrow aperture when it occurred to him to throw a stone through. He did so, listening for the stone to touch bottom, and the dull sound that finally reached him convinced him that there was a sheer drop of 200 feet on the other side of the blowhole.

Condensed For Four Days.

"There was a good old lawyer of the good old southern type," said a judge, "who had a most eloquent way of pleading. His brief for three days had been a marvel of classical allusion and legal erudition.

"The judge, however, became a trifle impatient and, as gently as he could, intimated that the docket was somewhat crowded, and it might be to the client's interest if the lawyer could contrive to end his plea. And, do you know, the old barrister declared that the last four days of his argument were a marvel of condensation."

COST OF HONEYMOONS

HOW THOSE SPENT IN WASHINGTON MAY VARY IN EXPENSE.

Bridegrooms, as a Rule, Are Regardless of the Price of Things on Bridal Tours—How $300 a Day Was Spent In a Hotel In the Capital.

Why is it that so many bridal couples come to Washington to spend their honeymoons? Perhaps the question cannot be satisfactorily answered, but the fact remains that the capital is a great Mecca for the newly wedded. Some people say that it is because Washington is restful and that at this one period in their lives men and women do not care for bustle. They want to be able to devote some thought to each other without fear of personal accident. Whatever the reason, the fact remains that the annual influx of brides and grooms amounts to at least 20,000 persons.

The manager of one of the hotels of the city was asked in regard to the expenses of a honeymoon.

"Is a honeymoon in Washington too expensive for a man with a moderate salary," the reporter asked, "or can it be reduced to an economical basis without displaying the limitations of the bridegroom's purse should he happen to be of the less wealthy class?"

"That question need not be a vexed one," replied the affable manager. "A honeymoon in Washington can be as costly as the purse can buy or it can be spent on an amazingly small amount, if you will, of course, consider the luxury afforded by our modern hotels.

"At this moment I have in mind a man from Chicago who brought his bride here on their wedding trip. Their living expenses amounted to something like $300 a day, that amount being spent in the hotel. But, then," the manager added, "this man had an almost unquenchable thirst for rare old wines and things in season and out of season. But there is just one thing I wish to say in connection with the American bridegroom. I cannot recall one instance where the quality does not hold good, be he a man of wealth or one of modest income. He never questions the price of things. This even proves true concerning the engagement of our apartments. He spends his money generously and without consultation.

"I remember we had as guests at the same time with our $300 a day couple a newly wedded pair from New England. Their daily expenses were $10. Now, using these figures, which are entirely accurate, one can quickly see that luxurious living—it can be purchased for the latter amount—is not so frightfully expensive as our out of town friends picture. Really the amount of money to be spent is more a matter of taste than the condition of one's purse."

At this juncture the manager reached and threw open the door of the state bridal suit, displaying a veritable glimpse of fairyland. This chamber is the most expensive room in the hotel. Its size does not differ materially from the less elegantly furnished rooms, but in magnificence it rivals the most gorgeous bedchambers of European palaces. One speedily realizes that to comprehend its beauty color temperament becomes a necessity.

Investigation reveals walls of plain moire damask, the color of which deepens from the faintest shade of shell pink to the rich blush of the rose. This effect is continued in the less rich hangings and draperies of the same tints, while the carpet reflects the same lines, which become lightened by windows covered with rare old lace. The furniture is of Louis XIV. period, the color scheme is carried out in the upholsterings of figured damask in dainty floral designs and scroll effects, while the four poster bedstead, with its canopy, is said to be an exact copy of the original at Cluny, the cost of the bed alone being enormous.

"But how do you make the expenses run up to $300 a day?" inquired the reporter.

"Quite easily enough. This room, including bath, is $25 a day. Such guests as occupy an apartment of that sort demand a private dining room, the latter ranging in price according to the elaboration of the room and the table furnishing, say $25 for the dining room a day, and $50 is disposed of at once. Now, $100 for three meals for two people is not so much, after all, when priceless wines are served with luncheon and dinner.

"Game, fruit and vegetables out of season are worth their weight in gold, so $100 is a mere bagatelle. The remaining $150 is paid for drawing room, room and board for maid, exclusive of carriage."

Meanwhile the couple from New England were serenely content in their apartment—a bright room, with adjoining bath and every comfort, which cost them $3 a day. Their meals, being ordered judiciously from an elaborate menu, amounted to $6, while the combined tips of husband and wife reached the sum of $1, making the total $10. These two young people enjoyed the life in the public dining room, seeing well dressed guests at table, which frequently proves one of the most pleasing sights of their trips. There they had music, lights and flowers galore, which they were as much at liberty to enjoy for their $10 a day as the western couple for their $300 a day.

"True, our state bridal suit is in constant demand, still a honeymoon can be spent in Washington on a wonderfully small amount of money without displaying penurious qualities, a trait of character from which the average American bridegroom is absolutely free."—Washington Post.

It is about time the straw vote man was getting busy.

Van Santery, according to the Minneapolis Tribune, has run its course.

Judge Collins can reflect upon the old axiom that a man's fool friends can do him a lot of damage.

From the general outlook we are of the opinion that Bro. Eastman does not regard the political outlook as quite satisfactory.

The main trouble about the weather this summer is that we have to buy next winter's coal before we commence to worry about the summer heat.

The Windom Reporter notices that it is easier for some folks to give ten dollars to the heathen than it is to give a pleasant smile to the poor around them.

The St. Peter Herald remarks that John Lind will head the Democratic delegation to St. Louis, and he will not represent the steel trust or the Standard Oil company.

The Duluth News-Tribune, editorially paragraphed by a woman, says: "Keep women out of politics. Out in Colorado suffrage has shown that she's no better than her husband."

Many state papers are asking for a direct primary to nominate candidates for state offices. But, after all, is the Minnesota primary law a a success as applied to county and district officers?

Editor Stevens of the Warren Register has discovered that the would-be politicians who attempt to carry water on both shoulders often succeed in giving themselves a good drenching.

Mary McFadden wonders if John Johnson didn't come to Red Lake Falls to make his formal entry into the gubernatorial arena. We don't know, Mary, except that John refuses to acknowledge that he has political ambitions.

Mary McFadden wants to know: "Did you ever feel the thrill of a telepathic kiss?" and adds feelingly: "Well, you can keep it!" The natural inference is that Mary prefers the homely, old-fashioned way, without any new-fangled thrills.

The nomination of supreme court judges before the governor didn't seem to prevent political trading in these offices. The only departure from previous conditions seems to be that the judges could insist on having the goods delivered first.

John Lind is in great demand as a candidate for governor from the Collins people. Mr. Lind, however, has announced that he has retired from politics, and it is extremely improbable that he can be induced to make the race against Bob Dunn.

The Republicans who were so bitter against Judge Gresham when he accepted a post in Cleveland's cabinet because he was a Republican are not expected to comment on the fact that Paul Morton, the new secretary of the navy, was a Democrat until less than three months ago.

By the way, what is to become of Sam Johnson and his reports? Will Governor Van Sant still insist that the public examiner continue the work of digging up flaws in Bob Dunn's record? As these reports were not prompted by political motives we suppose of course the state administration will let the good work proceed.

Bob Dunn was not good enough to be supported for the nomination, but the Gazette avers that it will support him for the election, notwithstanding there may be a "nasty fight." This is where the country newspaper gets the deserved appellation of "moulder of public opinion." It also demonstrates how splendidly independent is the country editor.

Jim Martin's crowd has not saved anything from the wreck, not even honor. Judge Collins loses his berth on the supreme bench, likewise Douglass, and the triumvirate of Sams—Van Sant, Fullerton and Johnson—are utterly routed and discredited. Then besides there's a host of good fellows on the Collins hearse who have passed to the shades of obscurity so far as state politics are concerned.

Disaster on sea and land continues to be a marked feature of the present year. Following on the heels of the Slocum tragedy comes the news that a Danish emigrant boat, bound for New York, crashed against the rocks off the coast of Scotland, carrying down to a watery grave 600 men, women and children. There has been so many awful tragedies during the past year that the hearts of the people have become more or less hardened, and they fail to make the profound impression one would naturally expect.

The Minneapolis Journal announces that it is not responsible for the nomination of Bob Dunn, and will refuse to be responsible for his election or the results of his administration. This is taken to mean that if the Journal does not actually bolt the ticket it will not be active in its support. It is strange how the Journal can refuse to support as able and competent a man as Bob Dunn, and yet offer no complaint on the nomination of such a notoriously unfit personage as "Holy Ray" Jones for lieutenant-governor.

William E. Rowe, of Crookston, announces that he will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for congress from the Ninth district. Mr. Rowe tells the Crookston Times that he has been given plenty of assurances of support and expects to win. There is talk of John L. Townley, the tall pine of Fergus Falls, also being a candidate. It would seem that if a Ninth district Democrat came out on a platform favoring absolute free trade with Canada he ought to receive the support of every farmer in the district. When the people of Northern Minnesota can trade with their Canadian neighbors without tariff restrictions both sections will be immensely benefitted.

The war news is again a mass of rumor and cantradiction so far as the land operations are concerned. On the sea, there appears to be no reason to doubt that Admiral Togo has again inflicted serious damage upon the Port Arthur squadron. In the Liao-tung peninsula what has been going on, so far as can be learned, is that the southern Japanese army has advanced northward on the west coast to within a few miles of the Russian right at Kaiping. General Kurok's army is converging upon the same point from the east. According to these calculations, the next war news should either tell of an important battle in the neighborhood of Kaiping and Haicheng or of another retreat by the Russians northward. At all events, a crucial test of General Kuropatkin's plan of campaign is at hand, or, perhaps, has already taken place.

THE NOMINATION OF DUNN.

The nomination of Robert C. Dunn for governor was accomplished last Friday night after one of the fiercest primary campaigns in the history of the state. It was a fight on the part of the Van Sant office-holders to perpetuate their lease of power, while the rank and file of the party was arrayed on the side of Dunn. Both sides appeared to have sufficient funds to prosecute a vigorous campaign, and more bitterness was engendered and stronger charges made than is usual between candidates of opposing parties. At one time the breach was so wide that it was not thought possible to heal the wounds inflicted, and a bolt by the defeated faction was freely predicted. But Minnesota Republicans have learned well the lesson of party loyalty, and to them the worst Republican is infinitely better than the best Democrat.

A notable feature of the convention was the thorough elimination of the anti-merger issue. It is true that the platform endorses the administration of Governor Van Sant, but this is due to the fact that the platform was adopted before the candidate for governor was named and the Dunn forces did not care at that time to show a test of strength on that issue. Afterwards the convention proceeded to chop off the head of every aspirant for office who had been in any way affiliated with Van Sant or the merger question. Attorney General Douglass, who had prosecuted the merger, was beaten ingloriously as a candidate for supreme court judge, and Donahower, seeking re-election as attorney general, a position to which he had been appointed by Van Sant, received equally small consideration.

Dunn was nominated by the delegates from the country. Outside of St. Paul and Minneapolis he had a clear majority. This also marks a notable change of sentiment. Two years ago the anti-merger strength came from the country districts, while the cities were supposed to be overwhelmingly for the merger.

This feature of the results will not be regretted. Van Sant's position was illogical and hypocritical. Few voters believe now that he was sincere in his fight on the railroads. And in any event success of the issue would have afforded no relief. If rates are too high, or if the railroads are transgressing the law, the proper way to remedy the evil is for the state board of railroad and warehouse commissioners to take up the matter and insist upon the people securing their rights. That Minnesota has had for several years past and still has an incompetent and trust-ridden railroad board is her misfortune, for which the people themselves are wholly responsible, and on the voters of the state must rest the burden of the blame.

The Last Straw.

It was Saturday night, and owing to the temporary absence of his wife it fell to Mr. Brown to attend to the usual process of giving his eight-year-old son a bath and putting him to bed. He had left his evening paper with a man's reluctance and had hurried matters along with more speed than the little chap was accustomed to. However, he endured it all without a protest until it came to the prayer. It was his habit after "Now I lay me" to ask the divine blessing upon a long list of relatives and friends, calling each by name.

"Please God," he began, "bless papa and mamma, grandpa and grandma and Aunt Edith and Uncle George and"—A pause. His father, thinking to curtail the list of beneficiaries, softly insinuated an "Amen." Not heeding the interruption the little supplicant drew a long breath and continued, "And Aunt Alice and Cousin Annie and—and"— Again his father said "Amen."

This was more than flesh and blood could stand, and, lifting his little head, he exclaimed, with tears of indignation, "Papa, who's running this prayer; you or me?"—Harper's Monthly.

Bravery Immortalised.

At an entertainment at which Nelson met Benjamin West just before he went to sea for the last time he remarked to the artist, "I never pass a printshop where your picture of the 'Death of Wolfe' is in the window without being stopped by it." West, of course, acknowledged the compliment, and Nelson went on to ask why he had painted no more like it. "Because, my lord," answered the artist, "there are no more subjects." "Blank it," said Nelson, "I didn't think of that," and asked him to take a glass of champagne. "But, my lord, I fear your intrepidity will yet furnish me with another scene, and if it should I shall certainly avail myself of it," the painter observed. "Will you," said Nelson, pouring out bumpers and touching his glass violently against West's—"will you, Mr. West? Then I hope I shall die in the next battle." He sailed a few days later, and West painted "The Death of Nelson."—London Chronicle.

Like the Lost Pins.

"Where do dogs which are out of style go to?" asked a dog fancier. "We have rages of poodles, pugs, coach dogs, St. Bernards, bulldogs and greyhounds, and so on. And, yet, as each has his day the others disappear, and the one predominating style has the walk. Where do the others go to?

"You can't make over a bulldog into a poodle; you can't reduce the size of a St. Bernard. And yet as dog fashions call for a certain kind of a canine he can be had in numbers sufficient to supply all demands, I deal in dogs, and yet the problem puzzles me.

"I only know that when pug dogs are the correct thing I have a large number. When the demand falls off, I find I am stocked with another breed.

"What becomes of the others?"—New York Times.

The Memory Machine.

Amnesia, or loss of memory, is chiefly interesting to the psychologists as throwing some light on the nature of memory itself. A perfect act of memory consists of three distinct acts—preservation or fixation of certain states of the nerve cells, reproduction of these and, perhaps most remarkable of all, recognition of them as reproductions in their relations. Morbid states of the memory may refer to any of these phases of an act which is as marvelous as anything in nature. There are about 3,000,000,000 nerve cells in the surface of the human brain. They never die in health, and they are never replaced or added to. This is memory's machine.

The Dilettante Society.

An interesting old organization which formerly existed in London—the Dilettante society—originated with certain gentlemen who, having traveled in Italy, tried to encourage at home what they had enjoyed abroad. This society of lovers of the fine arts lasted 130 years. Walpole does not seem to have looked upon it with a very favorable eye, for he says, "The nominal qualification was to have been to Italy; the real one was being drunk."

Animals and Seasickness.

A French authority on seasickness makes the statement that cattle and giraffes are almost immune. Monkeys suffer considerably, but are cured by eating a raw onion. Horses suffer much, and some of them die from its effects. Tigers and elephants are also easily affected, whereas ice bears, accustomed to the movement of ice floes, are never so happy as when on shipboard.

Believed In Skilled Labor.

"The organist's wife told me this morning," said Mrs. Thornton, "that several of the pipes of the organ were out of order."

"Well," replied Mrs. Hadley, "I hope they'll get Mr. Jones, our old plumber, to fix them, and not those new plumbers that have just set up on the corner."

Accounting For It.

"I see," said his colleague, "that there were some questions asked at the trial to which you didn't object."

"Were there?" said the lawyer. "Perhaps I was out of breath."—Puck.

A Novelty to Him.

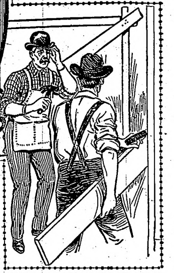
"Why do you always pick out the homeliest women to talk to?"

"I never saw any before. I come from Cincinnati, you know."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

She Got It.

He (time 11:30 p. m.)—And you will think of me when I am gone?

She (suppressing a yawn)—I'll try to if you ever give me an opportunity.



MR. GEO. A. HUGHES
SAYS:

"I FEEL AS GOOD AS I DID AT 20."

Many Suffer With Catarrh and Don't Know It.

The Phase of Catarrh Most Prevalent in Summer is a Run Down, Worn Out Condition Known as Systemic Catarrh.

Mr. Geo. A. Hughes.

"Pe-ru-na is the Medicine for the Poor Man."

Mr. Geo. A. Hughes, 808 Mass. Ave., Indianapolis, Ind., writes:

"Peruna has done me more good than anything I have ever taken. I am forty-five years old now, and feel as good as I did at 20. I was very thin and run down, but Peruna acted just right in my case. I am a carpenter and some times need a tonic. Peruna is the medicine for a poor man."--Geo. A. Hughes.

A Congressman Uses Pe-ru-na in His Family.

Hon. Thos. J. Henderson, Member of Congress from Illinois, and Lieutenant in the Union Army for eight years, writes from the Lemon building, Washington, D. C., as follows:

"Peruna has been used in my family with the very best results and I take pleasure in recommending your valuable remedy to my friends as a tonic and an effective cure for catarrh." ---Thos. J. Henderson.

Catarrh assumes different phases in different seasons of the year. In the early summer systemic catarrh is most prevalent. That tired, all worn out feeling in nine cases out of ten is due to a catarrhal condition of the mucous membranes. Peruna cleanses the mucous membranes and cures the catarrh wherever located.

There are no remedies for catarrh just as good as Peruna. Accept no substitutes.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

The following letters remain unclaimed in the postoffice at Red Lake for the week ending July 2, 1904: Maria J. Olson, E. H. Gallagher, A. P. Thompson, Dr. Wm. Moore, Geo. Thosson. In calling for the above please say "advertised."

Hon. John A. Johnson who spoke here on the Fourth, is an old friend and neighbor of the C. F. Johnson family, and during his stay here they took occasion to renew the acquaintance. Mrs. C. F. and John A. were schoolmates at St. Peter a quarter of a century ago.

The Great Northern train brought in over four hundred people on the Fourth, three-fourths of the crowd being from Thief River. The generous outpouring from the up-river city is appreciated by the folks down this way, and the favor will be reciprocated during the fair at that city next month.

Over three hundred people from Thief River Falls came down to Red Lake Falls to celebrate Monday, and all of them said they had a good time. This turn-out on the part of the up-river people is greatly appreciated, and the residents of this section will reciprocate during the fair at that city next month.

The daily papers report that Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Tenney, of Ada, were seriously injured in the Wabash wreck at Litchfield, Ill., last Saturday. Mr. Tenney is a brother of T. E. Tenney, formerly agent for the St. Hilaire Lumber company at this place, and both he and his wife were visitors here last summer.

The German Evangelical church, recently completed, was dedicated last Sunday. Revs. Schleder of Fisher, Stark of Ada, and Luttman of Thief River Falls, assisted at the services, and a large crowd was present at the exercises. Rev. Val Kern of Wylie is the pastor of this church, and it has a flourishing and influential congregation.

Samuel Gibeau and wife returned yesterday from their visit to the St. Louis exposition. Mr. Gibeau says they had a splendid time and that the big show affords plenty of interesting sights to keep a man busy for several weeks. The weather down there has been very cool, making their stay more pleasant than it otherwise would have been.

A rumor is persistent that the division point on the new Soo line will be at the new town in Emardville township. The company has recently purchased several hundred acres of land in that vicinity, and this gives ground for the belief that the division will be located there. If the report is true the Emardville town may look to the future with confidence.

Rev. Father Tapin, of Chicago, has been assigned to the pastorate of the Terrebonne church, and arrived this week to assume his duties. The reverend gentleman is recommended very highly as a speaker and as a talented gentleman. No doubt the Terrebonne people are glad to have the church in such competent and what promises to be permanent hands.

Rev. Father Grandchamp, the beloved Catholic rector at Crookston, died this morning at St. Vincent's hospital of dropsy of the heart. Father Grandchamp has been at Crookston a great many years and was universally beloved by all the people regardless of church affiliation. No announcement has yet been made with regard to the funeral arrangements.

All of the towns in the county were liberally represented at the celebration. It was the largest crowd ever assembled on the Fourth in Red Lake county, and all of the visitors were greatly pleased with the exercises of the day. Red Lake Falls certainly did all in its power to make the celebration a success, and the committee in charge of the arrangements is entitled to a great deal of credit.

A crowd of men and boys were tapering off on their Fourth of July celebration Tuesday night by disposing of their surplus sky rockets and Roman candles about town, and one of the rockets broke through the front window of Delorme & St. Marie's store and set fire to the goods in the display window. It was promptly extinguished, and there is little loss save the breaking of the window.

On the retirement of George McConnell from the position of head miller at the Red Lake Falls Milling company next month we learn that Arthur Zaiser, the capable assistant, will be advanced to the place. Arthur has been in the employ of the company for many years, and is competent to perform the more arduous duties of head miller with entire satisfaction. It seems to be the policy of the company to stand by their employees and give them every chance to advance.

Crookston Journal: Little John McKinnon is at Wylie visiting his grand-parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Powers. Mr. Powers, who spent Sunday and Monday in the city as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Allen McKinnon, was accompanied upon his his return by the little fellow who will enjoy several weeks of farm life upon the Powers farm. Mr. Powers reports the crop prospects in the vicinity of Wylie as the brightest in years, and the entire countryside happy with the visions of a bountiful harvest.

The Great Northern has installed a mail car on the Red Lake Falls run, the order going into effect on July 1. This improvement is a great convenience to the post-offices along the line, as well as to the public generally. It is now possible to mail letters on the train, giving about twenty minutes' more time to get out mail on this line. Mrs. Marshall, the local postmistress, is in large measure responsible for the improved service. On the whole Red Lake Falls is enjoying the best possible postal accommodations.

A tennis tourney was held on the Fourth between representatives of this city and Thief River. In the doubles R. E. Wyer and Rev. H. W. Knox contested honors with H. G. Dobner and W. A. Murphy, the first-named team winning both sets by scores of 9 to 7 and 6 to 4. In the singles R. E. Wyer played H. G. Dobner, and Red Lake Falls again carried off the honors, Mr. Wyer winning both sets by the score of 6 to 2. Red Lake Falls has a number of splendid tennis players and is ready for a bout with any of the neighboring towns at any time.

The ball game on the Fourth resulted in a shut-out for the local team, the score being 6 to 0. The Thief River boys put up a splendid article of ball this year, and they are fortunate in having a number of new players this year who are among the best amateur base-ballists in this section of the state. The game Monday was free from jangling, and it was a splendid exhibition. It is noticeable that although Red Lake Falls and Thief River are in a sense rival towns they get along very harmoniously when it comes to base ball and other sports. This is the proper spirit, and we hope it will always be so.

CATARRH A COMMON COMPLAINT.

Catarrh begins with a stubborn cold in the head, inflammation or soreness of the membrane or lining of the nose, discharge of mucus matter, headaches, neuralgia and difficult breathing, and even in this early stage is almost intolerable. But when the filthy secretions begin to drop back into the throat and stomach, and the blood becomes polluted and the system contaminated by the catarrhal poison, then the sufferer begins to realize what a disgusting and sickening disease Catarrh is. It affects the kidneys and stomach as well as other parts of the body. It is a constitutional disease and as inhaling mixtures, salves, ointments, etc., are never more than palliative or helpful, even in the beginning of Catarrh, what can you expect from such treatment when it becomes chronic and the whole system affected? Only such a remedy as S. S. S. can reach this obstinate, deep-seated disease and purge the blood of the catarrhal poison. S. S. S. purifies and builds up the diseased blood, and the inflamed membranes are healed and the excessive secretion of mucus ceases when new, rich blood is coming to the diseased parts, and a permanent cure is the result.

I had a continual headache, my cheeks had grown purple, my nose was always stopped up, my breath had a sickening and disgusting odor, and I coughed incessantly. I heard of S. S. S. and commenced to use it and after taking several bottles I was cured and have never since had the slightest symptom of the disease. Miss MARY L. STORM, Northwest Cor. 7th and Felix Sts., St. Joseph, Mo.

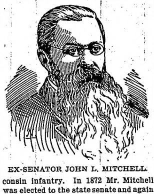
CLOSE OF LIFE OF JOHN L. MITCHELL

EX-UNITED STATES SENATOR FROM WISCONSIN DIES OF INTESTINAL TROUBLES.

In Addition to His Political Career He Was Prominent in Business Life, and was Known as a Great Financier.

Milwaukee, July 1.—John L. Mitchell, former United States senator, is dead at his home, Meadowmere, in the town of Greenfield. The end, which was not unexpected, came Wednesday after 48 hours of unconsciousness. Death was due to intestinal troubles. Senator Mitchell was ill since January and in March underwent an operation. He rallied from this, but experienced a sudden relapse on Friday, heart failure complicating the original trouble. His family was at the deathbed. Besides the widow, there are Capt. William Mitchell, U. S. A.; David Ferguson Mitchell, John L. Mitchell, Jr., and the Misses Martha, Janet, Harriet, Ruth and Catherine Mitchell.

Senator Mitchell was the son of Alexander Mitchell and was born in Milwaukee in 1842. After graduating from college he spent six years abroad, but hurried home at the outbreak of the civil war and took part in the struggle as a lieutenant in the Twenty-fourth Wisconsin infantry. In 1872 Mr. Mitchell was elected to the state senate and again was elected in 1876. In 1890 he was elected to the United States senate after a hard fight, succeeding Senator Philetus Sawyer. Senator Mitchell long had been prominent in the business and financial life of Wisconsin and the northwest. At his death he was vice president of the Marine National bank and vice president of the Northwestern Insurance company. He held positions on the directorates of a number of state and public institutions.



EX-SENATOR JOHN L. MITCHELL.

Jurist Hangs Himself.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 2.—The body of Louis Bruemmer, county judge of Kewaunee county, Wis., was found hanging to a tree in a ravine in Wauwatosa, a suburb of this city, Friday. Judge Bruemmer had been suffering from nervous collapse and was under treatment at a sanitarium in Wauwatosa, from which he disappeared a few days ago. He is supposed to have hanged himself while demented.

National Bank Closed.

Washington, June 28.—The First national bank of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., was closed Monday by direction of the comptroller of the currency. A run was started on this institution on Saturday, and as it was not in a condition to meet its demand liability, the examiner was instructed to not permit the bank to reopen Monday morning, if there was any indication of a renewal of the run.

Scatters Husband's Ashes.

New York, July 1.—In compliance with her husband's wish, as expressed in his will, the widow of Gustav Rix, a well-known builder and botanist, who died in 1902, has distributed in the Bronx park botanical gardens half of the ashes of her late husband. The remainder will be sent to Germany and scattered there according to instructions in the will.

CABINET PLACES FILLED.

Recent Appointees Take the Oath of Office and Assume Their Duties.

Washington, July 2.—Paul Morton formally assumed the duties of secretary of the navy Friday, succeeding Mr. Moody, who becomes attorney general of the United States. Mr. Morton was accompanied to the department Friday morning by Mr. Moody, where, in the presence of the retiring secretary and Assistant Secretary Darling, the oath was administered by Solicitor Hanna, of the judge advocate general's office, thus completing the formal transfer of the department to new hands, and marking the induction of the new secretary. Mr. Morton at once took up his new work, finding a batch of mail awaiting signatnre. Later he accompanied Mr. Moody to the cabinet meeting.

Mr. Moody was sworn into office as attorney general a short time before Mr. Morton became secretary of the navy. The oath of office, which was administered by Mr. Traves, the appointment clerk of the department of justice, was taken in the presence of Mr. Knox and the chief officials of the department.

Victor H. Metcalf, former representative from California, was sworn in as secretary of commerce and labor to succeed George B. Cortelyou, who resigned to become chairman of the national republican committee. The ceremony occurred at the white house at 4:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, the oath being administered by Executive Clerk Latta. The president, Secretary Cortelyou and Secretary to the President Loeb were present.

DISASTER IN JAMAICA.

Water Turned on and Thirty-Three Men Are Killed in a Conduit.

Kingston, Jamaica, June 28.—Thirty-three persons were killed by an accident which took place near Spanish Town (ten miles west of Kingston), Monday morning in the main conduit of the West India Electric company, which operates the street cars from Kingston. Nearly 100 laborers had been detailed to remove sand from the enormous pipe, which is a mile long and which conveys water from the intake on the Rio Cobre to the turbines of the power house. The work had practically been completed when orders were given to allow a small quantity of water to enter the conduit. Through misapprehension, accident or carelessness, the full force of water was turned on and a mad struggle to escape by means of the manholes ensued with the result that 33 persons were killed.

Vandal Damages Airship.

St. Louis, June 29.—Some time during Monday night the gas bag of Santos Dumont's airship was cut and slashed in such a manner as to preclude all possibility of its being repaired in time to allow an ascension on July 4. The work was apparently done with a jackknife. There are at least 20 long rips in the bag, and Prof. Carl Meyers, who has charge of the aeronautic contests, declared Tuesday that it will take at least two weeks to repair the damage.

Twenty-One Russians Drowned.

St. Petersburg, June 30.—The submarine boat Delfin sank at her moorings in the Neva, off the Baltic shipbuilding yard, at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning, with the loss of an officer, Lieut. Cherkasoff, and 20 men. The accident was due partly to the excessive number of the crew, mosty inexperienced men, and chiefly to the unfortunate attempt of a man to escape while his comrades were screwing down the manhole.

Whipping Post Revived.

Lexington, Ky., June 29.—In accordance with Police Judge John Riley's whipping post decision, recently delivered, John West, a 14-year-old colored boy, was given 50 lashes in the public square Tuesday. His coat was removed and the lad was whipped with a buggy whip in the presence of over 1,000 citizens. Injuring private property was the charge against him.

GREAT DISASTER OCCURS AT SEA

BIG STEAMER NORGE FOUNDERS IN NORTH ATLANTIC.

WAS LADEN WITH EMIGRANTS

Over 700 Lives Thought to Have Been Lost—Vessel Strikes a Reef off the Coast of Scotland.

London, July 4.—Over 700 Danish and Norwegian emigrants bound for New York are believed to have been drowned in the North Atlantic on June 28. Out of nearly 800 souls on board the Danish steamer Norge, which left Copenhagen June 22, only 27 are known to be alive, and for the rest no hope is held out. When last seen the Norge was sinking where she struck on the islet of Rockall, whose isolated peak raises itself from a deadly Atlantic reef some 290 miles off the west coast of Scotland.

Struck a Reef.

Early on the morning of last Tuesday the Norge, which was out of her course in heavy weather, ran onto the Rockall reef, which in the distance looks like a ship under full sail. The Norge was quickly backed off but the heavy seas poured in through a rent in her bows. According to the survivors, the moment the vessel struck the engines were reversed and the Norge came back into deep water. The rent in her bows was so large, however, that she began to fill rapidly. The vessel's eight boats were swung over the sides rapidly and the women and children were put into them first. There was a heavy sea running and in lowering the boats all but two of them were smashed.

Story of a Survivor.

The steam trawler Salvia put into Grimsby late Sunday night with 27 rescued Scandinavians aboard. Only one of them could speak English. He said:

"We left Copenhagen June 22. There were 700 emigrants, Norwegians, Swedes, Danes and Finns on board. The crew numbered about 80. All went well until June 28. I lay in my bunk waiting for breakfast. We heard a little bump, then another bump and then I rushed on deck. I saw at once that something serious had happened and I made a dash below to gather up my few belongings. Scores were rushing on deck and the hatchway was crowded with emigrants. They were launching boats and rushing into them but there was no panic. Four or five were in the boat into which I got and we cleared the ship. Luckily for us, in our party was the only seaman from the Norge who escaped and he was able to navigate our little boat. We saw two other boats capsize owing to the heavy weather and because no one could navigate them. We made straight away and when we last saw the Norge a large number of emigrants were on the deck. Capt. Gundel stood on the bridge. Dozens of passengers had jumped into the sea. They wore life belts, but were drowned before our eyes. After 24 hours the Salvia bore down and picked us up. About 700 must have been drowned."

THE POPULISTS.

Watson, of Georgia, and Allen, of Nebraska, Are the Leading Candidates.

Springfield, Ill., July 4.—A movement was started Sunday night to make the standard bearer of the populist party of 1904 Thomas E. Watson, of Georgia, and ex-Senator William V. Allen, of Nebraska. As to which one of the gentlemen shall head the ticket there seems to be little preference among those who are behind the movement. Ex-Senator Allen arrived Sunday afternoon, accompanied by a large delegation from Nebraska, and it was not long until his boom was launched for the head of the ticket. J. A. Edmiston, vice chairman of the fusion wing of the populist party, is leading the fight for Allen.

One hundred delegates from Missouri, Arkansas, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia arrived Sunday afternoon, headed by Jo A. Parker, national chairman of the people's party, who at once started a boom for Watson, of Georgia, for first place on the ticket.

It is understood that Watson will not attend the convention, and the friends of Allen believe that after he makes his Fourth of July speech to-day, at the state arsenal, there will be a stampede among the delegates to the Nebraskan for president. Allen is taking no part in the movement to make himself the nominee, and refuses to discuss the question, but his friends declare he will accept the nomination if the convention decides to nominate him.

S. W. Williams, of Indiana, is an active candidate for the nomination for president, and has the delegates from his state instructed for him. He is also claiming the solid support of Illinois and Iowa, and scattering votes from other states. The Indiana delegation is working hard for Williams and F. J. S. Robinson, chairman of the Indiana state central committee, says their candidate will poll a surprising vote on the first ballot.

Beaten to Death.

Muncie, Ind., July 4.—Edward Zimmerman, 22 years old, was beaten to death Saturday night during an encounter with Samuel Sharp and Hele and James Ely. Sharp's wife, who claims to have witnessed Zimmerman's death, furnished the information to the police.

Of course that's easy.

St. Paul, July 1.—The republican state convention for the nomination of candidates for state offices held two sessions yesterday at the Metropolitan opera house. United States Senator Moses E. Clapp, of St. Paul, was made temporary chairman at the morning session, and after his speech the convention adjourned to 2 o'clock. At the afternoon session a committee on credentials was appointed, consisting of seven Dunn men, seven Collins men, and Senator G. B. Ward of Alexandria, an Eddy man, as chairman. The convention then adjourned until 9 o'clock this morning to give the committee on credentials time to prepare its report.

The whole fight for supremacy hinged on the contested delegations.

The roll call of the counties showed eleven contests, as follows: Anoka, 11 delegates; Beltrami, 10; Benton, 8; Cass, 9; Hennepin, 113; Ramsey, 67; Red Lake, 8; Roseau, 8; Sherburne, 9; Traverse, 8; total, 251 delegates.

St. Paul, July 2.—The convention convened yesterday morning at 9 a. m., but as the committee on credentials was not ready to report and adjournment was taken until 2:30 p. m.

The credentials committee entered the convention hall at 3:45, and after a few minutes delay waiting for all members to appear and sign the hastily prepared report, Senator G. B. Ward of Alexandria, the chairman, read the majority report. The report recommended that no delegation be seated from Roseau county, and that the following delegations be recognized:

Dunn—Anoka county, 11 votes; Benton, 8; Clearwater, 7; Red Lake, 8; Sherburne, 9; Traverse, 8; total 52.

Collins—Beltrami, 10; Cass 9; Hennepin, 113; Ramsey, 67; total, 198.

W. B. Anderson of Winona then read the minority report of the Dunn members. The report reviewed the Hennepin county contest, the evidence submitted to committee in the form of affidavits as to contesting delegation to the county convention, and the seating of the sufficient Collins delegates to give them a majority in the convention. Detailed statements of misuse of ballots by Collins men in certain precincts was givem.

The minority report was adopted which seated the Dunn delegation from Hennepin.

James A. Peterson, of Minneapolis nominated R. C. Dunn for governor. James A. Martin, manager of the Collins campaign moved to make it unanimous. The motion prevailed amid cheers.

The naming of the rest of the ticket took but little time.

SYNOPSIS OF PLATFORM.

President Roosevelt is commended for his efforts to weed out corruption, for his efforts to enforce the law against unlawful combinations, for his position on the Panama canal, and for numerous other acts.

Competition between the railways of the state is commended as more beneficial to the state than the consolidation of railways. The president and the governor of the state are thanked for their timely anti-merger litigation.

The platform calls for the regulation and supervision of both the organization and operation of large corporations.

The doctrine of protection set forth in the republican platform of 1904 and the reciprocity as advocated by William McKinley, James G. Blaine, are approved.

A liberal pension policy is advocated.

The whole republican delegation in congress is commended and indorsed for ability and courage in bringing added glory to the honor of the state.

The platform recommends an eight-hour day, with abolishing of Sunday labor wherever practicable, the use of union labor on state supplies and urges the board of control to give preference to Minnesota products.

Legislation expediting the construction of the isthmian canal is urged.

A uniform system of good roads throughout the state is favored as of material advantage to the whole state.

Chinese exclusion laws and the enforcement of immigration laws excluding unworthy and undesirable emigrants were demanded.

The platform closed by demanding equal taxation and the extension of the rural free delivery system.

Governor Van Sant is commended as an efficient and fearless official.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Driven by Hunger.

Driven to desperation by the pangs of hunger, Frank Hickey, about 20, and a recent arival in Minneapolis, snatched a purse from a woman as she was standing in front of the show window of a Nicollet avenue department store.

After getting the purse Hickey made a plunge through the crowd, dodged around a show case that stood in the doorway, but was hemmed in and apprehended before he could make his escape.

Hickey cried bitterly when locked up, saying that he had never been in trouble before and laid the blame to the desperate straits he had been in since his arrival in the city.

The woman whose purse was taken heard the story Hickey told the officers and declared that she would not prosecute the young man.

"The purse contained only two dollars," she remarked, "and I believe he is telling the truth and I haven't the heart to prosecute him."

All Women.

The convention of the Ladies Catholic Benevolent association, which will be held in Saint Paul, July 19-20, will be an event of more than usual interest. The association is a fraternal insurance society for Catholic women, and the fact that it is managed entirely by women makes it unique among the larger successful business enterprises of the country. All of the supreme officers of the association, with the exception of supreme spiritual adviser, are women and there are no men connected with the association in any capacity except as medical examiners. The men would be probably excluded from these positions were it possible to secure in all places competent women physicians.

At the Fair.

Arrangements are being made by the state fair managers to make the live stock department and the race program more attractive than ever. The premium list for live stock and the race program have been revised and amplified by the managers for the next fair, which will open Aug. 29. The race program will be enlarged by two purses of $1,000 and $2,500, making the total of purses offered more than $25,000. The meet is expected to be the most important held in the west this season.

The most interesting departure in the live stock department is the offer of a score of premiums exclusively for sheep owned in Minnesota.

Found in the River.

The body of a young woman was found in the river by workmen at the St. Paul boom. It was afterward sent to the county morgue, where it remains unidentified. There are indications of foul play, but as Coroner A. W. Miller is out of the city no official investigation has been made.

A long, narrow neck scarf, such as is worn by women, was tied tightly in four knots about the neck, the skin was broken and the tongue protruded from the mouth. It is supposed that the woman was either strangled before being thrown into the river or had attempted to strangle herself, and failing to accomplish her end, jumped into the river.

Accidents.

A brace of accidents have been recorded near St. Cloud. Martin Kelly, foreman of the large Whitney farms four miles from there, is lying at death's door as the result of a scythe falling from a tree and striking him in the neck. A gash requiring ten stitches was cut and the walls of the carotid artery penetrated. Jacob Bier of St. John's university at Collegeville fell from a machine shed, eighteen feet to the ground, breaking both arms below the elbows, fracturing his nose, and sustaining other injuries which make his recovery doubtful.

Injured by Torpedo.

Mrs. John Swenson was badly injured by flying sand from a torpedo while riding on a Minnehaha car in Minneaplis. Some boys bombarded a street car. One of the torpedoes went off inside the car and the sand flew in her eyes. She was taken to her home by her friends and the police were asked to find the boys.

News Notes.

Zutic Quesnel, aged 56, a former resident of St. Paul, was found dead in bed at his home in Centerville.

The St. Paul Postoffice Clerks' association will give its annual picnic at Forest lake on Sunday, July 17.

Donaldi Nicolet, an Italian miner, 28 years of age, was killed in the open pit at the Cypress mine near Hibbing.

The visit of the rivers and harbors committee of congress to St. Paul and the headwaters of the Mississippi has been postponed until some time in August.

After twenty years of railroad service without a mishap, William J. Foley, yard foreman at the union station, St. Paul, stepped in front of one passenger train while trying to avoid another, and was fatally injured.

Charles A. Pitts, employed by the Diamond Fuel company, was run over by a Fourth avenue car at Third street and Second avenue south, Minneapolis, and his left leg was cut off between the ankle and the knee.

Hereafter only married men will be given work on the streets of Minneapolis.

A fire which started in the Girard flats, St. Paul, rendered seven families homeless, caused a loss of $5,000 and resulted in serious injury to Miss Alga Henderson, 65 West College avenue, and the injury of Mrs. C. R. Capron.

FIERCE ASSAULT ON PORT ARTHUR

JAPANESE MAKE DETERMINED ATTACK ON CITY FROM LAND AND SEA.

Naval Battle in Progress—Army Carries Heights on Outskirts of Stronghold After Three Fierce Charges —Other War News.

Chefoo, July 2.—What should prove to be a decisive naval engagement was in progress Friday afternoon midway between Chefoo and Port Arthur. The steamer Chefoo, which has arrived here, passed within 15 miles of the Japanese fleet, consisting of two battleships and five cruisers, all actively engaged. The Russian fleet was not seen, but the distance of the Japanese from land precludes the possibility of any attack on the land batteries. The captain of the Chefoo says he heard a terrific explosion, but was unable to discern whether a Russian or a Japanese ship was affected.

Heights Are Taken.

Mukden, July 2.—Heavy fighting is reported to have occurred near Port Arthur June 26, resulting in the Russian withdrawal from Guinsanshan, after severe losses on both sides. The Japanese fleet approached Siaopingtao, midway between Port Dalny and Port Arthur, on the morning of June 26, and bombarded the coast north of the bay so far as Uitseloshan. Strong Japanese forces which had been landed then attacked the neighboring heights, which were occupied by Russian riflemen. Three times the Japanese were driven back with heavy losses, but the Russians were forced to retire from their main position near Guinsanshan. The Japanese reinforced their advance guard and pressed the attack. After several fruitless assaults on Guinsanshan, the Japanese commander sent a strong column along the central road from Dalny to Port Arthur, with the object of turning the Russian left, forcing the Russians to retire. The Russians lost seven officers and nearly 200 men killed. The total Japanese loss was 1,000 men. The Russian loss at Dalin pass, June 27, was 80 men killed. The Japanese losses were heavier.

How Pass Was Captured.

London, July 1.—A dispatch to the Japanese legation from Tokio Thursday gave a few details of the operations at Fenshui pass. It says the Russians left 90 dead on the main road, while the number left elsewhere is not yet estimable. Six Russian officers and 82 men were captured. The total casualties of the Japanese are estimated at 170.

The report, which was sent by the commander of the Takusan army, says the Japanese army, in three columns, commenced operations June 26 for the occupation of Fenshui pass where the Russians had constructed semi-permanent fortifications, with forts, entrenchments, wire entanglements and abatis. The Russians stubbornly resisted, but after a fierce engagement the Japanese succeeded in surrounding the Russians and finally captured the pass June 27.

Three Forts Captured.

Tokio, June 30.—It is unofficially reported that the Chikwanshan Chitanshan and Sochoshan forts, southeast of and part of the Port Arthur defenses, were captured on Sunday after an artillery duel. Sochoshan, it is added, was first captured and the other forts fell soon afterwards. The Russians retreated west, leaving 40 dead. The number of wounded had not been ascertained. The Japanese force consisted of all branches of the service. The Japanese lost three officers and a hundred men killed or wounded and captured two guns and a quantity of ammunition. The officials here do not confirm the report.

Regiment Annihilated.

Shanghai, July 1.—A battle has taken place about ten miles north of Port Arthur. The Japanese have occupied the Wolf mountains after desperate fighting. A Russian regiment was almost annihilated. The next line of defense is close to Port Arthur.

Gensan Bombarded.

London, July 1.—An official dispatch from Tokio says the Japanese consul at Gensan, Korea, reports as follows:

"Early Thursday morning, June 30, six Russian torpedo boats entered the port, fired about 200 shots upon the settlement, sank a steamship and a sailing vessel, then rejoined their ship outside the harbor and disappeared. Two Koreans and two soldiers were slightly wounded. The damage done to buildings is insignificant."

Says Story Is False.

St. Petersburg, July 2.—Maj. Gen. Pflug, telegraphing from Mukden under date of July 1, says: "The reports from foreign sources that the Japanese fleet sank several of our squadron on June 23, and that our loss included Rear Admiral Prince Ouktomsky and 700 sailors, was absolutely untrue."

The Public Debt.

Washington, July 2.—The monthly statement of the public debt shows that at the close of business on June 30, 1904, the debt, less cash in the treasury, amounted to $967,231,774, a decrease for the month of $8,060,860, which is largely accounted for by a corresponding increase in the amount of cash on hand.

Three Killed.

Philadelphia, June 28.—Three persons lost their lives and a half dozen others were injured late Monday as the result of an explosion of a small bundle of fireworks in the store room of the Diamond Fireworks company at 826 Arch street.

Johnson for Governor.

Red Lake county people, who heard Hon. John A. Johnson speak on the Fourth, will be interested in the following political item from the Minnneapolis Journal:

"Many Democrats are anxious to see John A. Johnson of St. Peter come out as a candidate for governor.

"The St. Peter editor is one of the strong men in the Democratic party of the state, with a good legislative record, and known to be conservative and cool-headed. He is a good debater, and his only disqualification is that he is not a man of wealth to contribute to the campaign, which is likely to be a fundless movement.

"Mr. Johnson has many Republican friends who have already been urging him to get into the field. There is some talk of bringing him out as an independent candidate, without the name of "Democrat," in order to draw more strongly from the Republican vote, and to allow Republicans to appear prominently in his campaign. This, however, is a touchy subject with Democrats, who will insist on having a candidate of their own, and if Johnson should make up his mind to run it would be doubtless with a straight party designation."

A Plain Hair Cut.

A blustering self-important man walked into a barber shop at Sherburn the other day and wanted his hair cut. Just a plain hair cut, and he wanted it right away. The mild and unpretentious gentlemen in the shop attempted to explain, but was roughly told to go ahead without a word. After the job was finished the old man who knew everything looked into the glass and was horrified at his appearance. He fairly stsrmed around, and indignantly asked the gentleman if he called that a hair cut. The old man replied: "I don't know. You must ask the barber. He'll be in presently. I am the editor of the village paper, and was waiting for a hair cut myself, but you wouldn't give me a chance to explain."—Jackson Republic.

Lambert is Prosperous.

Phil Gibeau was in from Lambert on business yesterday. He was accompanied by Adelard Hince, who is probating his father's estate, and the Courier is indebted for a call from both gentlemen. Mr. Gibeau says the crops are looking fairly well in his vicinity, and unless a hail storm comes along they are sure of a good yield. He says, too, that the farmers are making improvements about their premises, and before many years Lambert township will be one of the finest farming countries in this section of the state. Just now the farmers out that way are going in for windmills, and Mr. Gibeau says he can see four of them from his door-yard. Alex Bergeron has put up a new one this week.

Man Who Wrote "Dixie."

The man who wrote "Dixie" is dead. An old-time minstrel, he passed away at his home in Mount Vernon, O., at the ripe age of eighty-eight, say the Record Herald.

It is not known whether Dan Emmett ever composed anything else or not, but if he did it was lost in the tumultuous acclaim that greeted the stirring notes of "Dixie" from one end of the Union to the other.

It is true that there was a time when the band that was bold enough to play "Dixie" in certain northern cities would have been greeted with the kind of applause that meant battered horns and broken noses. But times have changed. When the band suddenly swings into "Dixie," North or South, it is now the signal for vociferous cheers. It fires the heart and arouses and audience to the highest pitch of enthusiasm where-ever played. None can resist its music or its sentiment. It goes along with "Union Forever" and "The Star Spangled Banner."

It was the marching music for the confederate armies of the South. It quickened the step and thrilled the heart of the weary and tattered follower of Lee. Nothing could better illustrate the passing of all sectional bitterness and hate than the cheers that are given to "Dixie" by a northern audience. The voice of the minstrel is stilled, but the music of "Dixie" will never die.

MOODS AND TEARS.

One Woman's Views About Weeping at Theatrical Performances.

"There is just this about crying at the theater," said the average woman—"you'll cry if you're in the mood for it and you won't if you're not, no matter how harrowing or nonharrowing the play may be. Like most average women, I rarely cry either at the theater or anywhere, but I long ago discovered that it depends entirely upon my mood at the time. I once went to a genuine comedy and found the tears filling my eyes just because I happened to be blue at the time, and I've been at many a play with all the women round me mopping their eyes and drying their pocket handkerchiefs on their fans while I, being for some reason or other uplifted, sat there dry eyed, almost smiling.

"No matter what my mood, however, the thing sure to keep me from weeping at the theater is any emotional display on the part of her who is with me. I can attend the weepiest kind of a play unmoved with my sister, for she starts in way ahead of time, making me feel more like laughing than crying, and then when the true lachrymose opportunity arrives it finds me pathos proof. This is the only way by which I may make myself immune from weeping at theaters upon all occasions."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

TIPPING IN LONDON.

No End to the Fees to Servitors In Restaurants.

As an old Londoner I have seen changes in the manners of the city which amount to a complete transformation. I remember well the time when there wasn't really a good restaurant in all London and when men had to be content with dining and supping in the back parlors of public houses. You got very good food in those dark, low cellinged, stuffy rooms, and I remember when you were considered to be doing very well when you handed the somewhat time worn and ill clad waiter twopence or threepence as a tip.

Nowadays you go into a restaurant which is palatial, and you see men, especially if they belong to the Stock Exchange, giving huge tips that in olden times would have paid the price of a whole dinner for half a dozen friends. And the tipping never seems to end. You tip one waiter for one thing and another for another, and you tip the carver, and then you tip the man who gives you your wine, and as you are leaving you tip the porter who puts on your coat and the other porter who calls your cab. It is, in fact, becoming almost impossible for men of moderate means to go to most of the restaurants of today.—M. A. P.

HEAT AND MOTION.

Various Theories About the Connection Between These Agents.

The idea that heat is a kind of motion was entertained by Plato, who makes Socrates say: "For heat and fire which generate and sustain other things are themselves begotten by impact and friction, but this is motion. Are not these the origin of fire?"

Bacon defined heat to be "a motion acting in its strife upon the smaller particles of bodies." Newton, Boyle and Hooke considered heat to be motion. Locke described it as "a very brisk agitation of the insensible parts of the objects which produces to us that sensation from whence we denominate the object hot; so what in our sensation is heat in the object is nothing but motion. This appears by the way heat is produced, for we see that the rubbing of a brass nail upon a board will make it very hot."

Many scientific men have held heat to be matter, and in spite of Rumford's vigorous exposition of its fallacy this material theory held its ground until a comparatively recent date, when Sir H. Davy took up the subject and by his experiments proved conclusively that this view is unsound.

Causeway of Bending Pillars.

Nature has hewn many upright pillars from the rock at various prehistoric periods, but so far as is known she has completed but one group of bending pillars. The causeway at Staffa, in Scotland, is after this original design. The stone shafts rise perpendicularly to a height of fifty or sixty feet, when they curve inward in a long, sweeping line at once graceful and massive. In some places a perfect Roman arch has been formed in this way. The formations are so symmetrical as to suggest the hand of the architect.

Antiquity of Pins.

Pins of various sorts have been in existence ever since our "first parents" clothed themselves in palm leaves which grew wild in the garden of Eden. As a matter of fact, pins claim a very high antiquity, the earliest form being a natural thorn, which is still used to some extent for fastening the dress by the peasant women of upper Egypt. In prehistoric times pins were also made of the small bones of fish and animals.

Admitted to Practice.

Dr. V. Pleth, of Chicago, who already has license to practice in Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, Pennsylvania and California, was this week admitted to the state of Minnesota also, which he fonnd necessary to do, due to the numerous calls he has had in this state during the last three years, and it is barely possible that he may locate in Minneapolis, where he would be nearer to the northern part of this state where he has a great deal of surgical work to do through local doctors. As Dr. Pleth for years has, and still does, devote his entire time to surgery, he has acquired quite a reputation in that line and is considered quite an expert, and, of course, can perform operations that the majority of country doctors are unable to do, as they have not the practice nor the opportunities to perform or witness such operations in the hospitals in the big cities.

BARTHOLOMEW SCHUSSER.

Demise of An Old Resident Last Thursday.

Bartholomew Schusser, an old and respected resident of Red Lake Falls, died last Thursday evening after a long illness from paralysis. He was taken with another stroke of the disease about two weeks ago, and it was soon apparent that he could not recover. The funeral service was held Saturday morning from St. Mary's church, Rev. Father Ansgar officiating, and the remains interred in the Catholic cemetery east of town.

Mr. Schusser was born in Austria in 1838, and came to America in 1858, locating at Marysville, Wis. In 1885 he moved his family to Red Lake Falls, where they have remained since that time. Mrs. Schusser and eight children survive him. The children in the order of seniority are: Joseph; Mrs. William Lennon, Crookston; Mrs. Paul Holzknecht, Missoula, Mont.; Sophia; Michael; Mrs. Pat Roark, Thief River; Carl and Tony. All but Mrs. Holzknecht were present at the funeral.

Mr. Schusser was a good husband, a kind neighbor and citizen, and an indulgent father.

Mrs. Schusser and children desire to extend their thanks to the many good friends who have tendered assistance in the dark hour of bereavement.

HE LIKES OUR TOWN.

Hon. John A. Johnson Says Nice Things of Red Lake Falls.

Hon. John A. Johnson, who spoke at Red Lake Falls on the Fourth, has the following to say in his paper, the St. Peter Herald, regarding Red Lake Falls and northern Minnesota:

"The writer spent the fore part of the week in the northern part of the state, sojourning at Red Lake Falls for a couple of days. Red Lake Falls is one of the growing towns of northern Minnesota, has the finest water power of any city north of Minneapolis and with the settlement of the great empire north of there the place is destined to be a large city. C. F. Johnson and family reside there and their old friends back here will be pleased to hear that they are prosperous and their "lines lie in pleasant places." Mr. Johnson is one of the owners and is the manager of a large flouring mill there which is being rehabilitated with new machinery and which promises to be a large institution. Their oldest son graduated from the high school at Red Lake Falls last spring.

"E. L. Quist, class of 1902, G. A. C., is located in Red Lake county and informed us that he was a candidate for the Republican nomination for superintendent of schools and friends there say there is no doubt of his successs at the primaries and at the polls.

"John King, well known thruout southern Minnesota, conducts the leading paper in Red Lake Falls, and in fact in the county and section. John is prospering and succeeding and it serves him right.

"We had a glorious time but that doesn't interest the reading public. But we can't refrain from saying that the country up there is going to have a glorious future and it isn't far away. Crops are backward but they are looking fine and people about here who have lands in the Red River country are assured that the prospects for the year is a most promising one."

CROOKSTON'S BIG CARNIVAL.

Promises to Eclipse all Previous Efforts in Magnificence.

At 7 p. m. Monday, July 18th Crookston's spectacular parade, headed by its city officials in decorated carriages and followed by the Crookston band, Military company, magnificent floats and the Great Mundy shows of 300 people and paraphernalia will inaugurate the opening of Crookston's monster carnival.

There are 25 distinct attractions with the Great Mundy shows which furnish the attractions. Among the most interesting features of this mammoth exhibition are the magnificent Hagenback 100 trained animal show that has been featured the world over. The beautiful reproduction of Creation which is a distinct feature of the St. Louis World's Fair. The Lotta Electrical show, brim full of fun and frolic; the $50,000 golden riding Gondolas; the finest selection of free arts ever seen with an aggregation of this character, including Diavolo looping the loop, the most sensational feature ever placed before the public. He is truly rightly named Diavolo, the Latin for Devil. The wonderful Millman trio in their high slack-wire preformance, including Chas. Bigney, the man who dives 100 feet into a tank of water 5 feet deep, and turning a complete somersault.

There are lots of other attractions too numerous to mention. If you want to be happy and contented and have one week of fun, mirth and merriment commencing July 18th and ending July 23rd, come to the Crookston carnival.

One fare for round trip on all railroads within a radius of 125 miles.

This is the same Great Mundy shows that furnish the attraction for the Winnipeg's Industrial exhibit for two weeks, commencing July 25 at a cost to them of $20,000.

Cost of Living.

Just a few figures on the increased cost of living. Farm products have increased all the way from 5 to 29 per cent. Thirty-five articles of food have increased from 5 per cent for bread to 72 per cent for pepper. But you can buy a case of golden grain belt beer at the same old price and the investment will bring you such substantial returns in health and quiet nerves that you would pay more if necessary. Just try it once and you'll know what an ideal family beverage it is. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

THE COUNTY BOARD.

Commissioners Hold a Two Days' Session This Week.

The board of county commissioners has been in session this week and considerable business was disposed of.

H. L. Veigel, W. G. Brown and Erick Iverson were each granted license to sell intoxicating liquors at the new town of Scotland, and Remi Lefaive at Brooks.

The sum of $250 was appropriated to the Red Lake County Agricultural society at Thief River Falls.

A new school district in Lake Pleasant was established.

The county tax levy for the current year was fixed at $24,000, apportioned as follows: County revenue, $15,000; poor, $1,500; road and bridge, $3,500; court house and jail, $1,000; bond and interest, $3,000. A local school tax of one mill was levied.

DOOLEY ON THE CONVENTION.

The Irrepressible Irishman Takes Notes at the Republican Gathering.

Mr. Dooley came down from Thief River Falls to report the recent Republican county convention, and writes to the Thief River News his observations as follows:

"Hinnesy, wood ye belave it? I attended the Republican convention at Red Lake Falls and I must say it was shurprisingly conducted. There was my old friend Dobner a thrying to call the convention to orther, when, be dad, a big Scotch Docthur in the name of Watson plumped into the chair and run the whole business through to the quane's taste. He said: 'We are here to-day to nominate that good friend of the people of Owld Ireland, Bob Dunn,' and before the Collins' men had time to find a dacent place to sit down in the owld barracks of a court house he appointed committees on this and that and the other thing and marched them around like a drill seargent. The committee on resolutions reported that all Collins' men should kape their chin music quiet or be kicked out of the convention; and that Red Lake Falls was the only place for the county seat, and only residents of Red Lake Falls should be illigible to hould any office of emmolument or profit.

It was distrissin to see that big Docthur tramping with his brogans upon every parlement rule, besides crushing to a pulp all rules of political dacency. The was me owld friend, Dan Patterson, completely ignored like a noninity, afthur standing by the party through all the times of distress, and the Docthur would not even recognize the St. Hilaire druggist the least bit, —told him to keep his political medicine for himself. It was edifying to see how me dimocratic friend, Dan O'Neill, was lordin it in that convention, and even Harry Ives, the Populist wid his whiskers on the wrong end of his mug, was pulled out from under a St. Hilaire snow drift and let crawl under the Republican tint by way of a lame divils alternateship."

Small waists are no longer in style It's the round plump waists that comes by taking Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea; that's all thego. 32 cents. Tea or tablet form. A, L. Reichert.

WILL FINISH AT CROOKSTON

Land Sale at Thief River Falls to Close To-day—Adjourned to October 3 at Crookston.

The sale of the Red Lake Indian reservation lands, which has been in progress at Thief River Falls for the past month, will be adjourned to-day. The sale will be resumed on Monday, October 3, at Crookston, when the schedule of lands unsold will be taken up and disposed of. This information was contained in a telegram from Commissioner Richards to the receiver at the Crookston office, as follows:

"By the authority of the Secretary of the Interior you are hereby directed to adjourn the sale at Thief River Falls of the Red Lake ceded lands, when all the lands embraced in the printed schedule have been offered on July 14, to Monday, October 3, 1904, at 9 o'clock at Crookston, Minn., when all the unsold lands will be again offered according to another schedule to be prepared of which due notice will be given by publication.—W. R. RICHARDS, Commissioner."

On the whole the sale has not been particularly successful. Less than half of the land has been bid in, and it is said that a good many purchasers who have made the first payment will default. Locaters, hotel men, etc., at Thief River, have made very little money out of the sale. They expected much larger crowds and more spirited bidding. After the postponed sale at Crookston the land unsold will be subject to homestead by any one desiring to pay $4 per acre.

A Good Story, Anyaway.

Thief River Review: Red Lake Falls can, at least, take the banner for having the most conscientious officer in the county. It is reported that one of her citizens was appointed jailor while Sheriff Linnihan was away on business the Fourth. The jailor refused, firmly, to tip the bowl all day, but in an unguarded moment in the evening, the bowl was tipped and later on he found himself far beyond the sober line, officially. What does he do? He declares himself under arrest, gets two friends to take him to jail, locks himself in and the next morning lets himself out, goes to Justice Toupin and pleads guilty. As a reward for his conscientious principles and honesty the justice suspended sentence, advising him to depart in peace and do so no more.

The Middle Joint "Modern" Fountain Pen.

You don't like that old Fountain Pen; it never did suit, with its old finger-soiling ink joint just where the hands hold it; its doubtful flow; its loose or over tight cap. And yet you probably paid a high price for it in an ordinary size even. That's frequently the way with "has been's". We allow liberally for an old pen in exchange for the up-to-date Middle-joint "Modern" Pen, made and guaranteed by A. A. Waterman & Co. It opens easily and can be filled full. Incompatibility in Officers.

It was recently decided in Polk county that town clerks may also hold the office of assessor and that the positions are in no way incompatible. The nature of the two positions is entirely dissimilar, and town clerks are not members of the board of review under the laws. Incompatibility in offices exists where the nature and duties of the two offices are such as to render it improper, from consideration of public policy, for one incumbent to retain both. It is, prehaps, of interest to the readers, says the Office Blotter, to know which have been held as incompatible and which not by the attorney general.

These are incompatible:

County attorney and deputy county treasurer.

County attorney and judge of probate.

County auditor and county superintendent of schools.

County auditor and clerk of the district court.

County commissioner and overseer of the poor.

Clerk of the district court and county treasurer.

County commissioner and deputy county treasurer.

County auditor and county treasurer.

County auditor and deputy county treasurer.

Sheriff or deputy and notary public.

Members of the legislature and justice of the peace.

Trustee of school and teacher.

County attorney and justice of the peace.

Clerk of court and justice of the peace.

County commissioner and appraisers of public lands.

County commissioner and justice of the peace.

Game and fish commissioner and game warden.

Justice of the peace and town supervisor.

Justice of the peace and president of the village council.

State legislature and member of the board of education.

State legislature and state oil inspector.

State senator and school district treasurer.

Constable and justice of the peace.

Village clerk and justice of the peace.

Member village council and village marshal.

Village trustee and deputy sheriff.

Following are not incompatible:

Justice of the peace and county auditor.

County attorney and county superintendent of schools.

County attorney and register of deeds.

Register of deeds, clerk of court and judge of probate.

County attorney and deputy oil inspector.

Coroner and county surveyor,

Deputy oil inspector and village alderman.

Justice of the peace and member board of education.

President village council and county commissioner.

Village assessor and justice of the peace.

Village clerk and member board of education.

An Appreciative Patron.

An exchange say: A rural carrier in a neighboring county where the system has been but recently established was considerably surprised to receive the following letter from an appreciative patron: "Friend Fred—As you run the free delivery by my house I would like you to bring me on your next trip a barrel of salt and two sacks of flour also a ton of coal and three spools of wire; then throw in a set of wiffletrees and an evener under the seat. When you come by Martin Walker's get two of his largest coops and bring them along then, I can have my turkeys all caught so you can take them to town. It'll detain you but a few moments, and as I have eight loads of wood to haul to town, had I better get it along the side of the road or will you go into the woods after it? I think this delivery is a great thing for the rural people."

The Work of Lightning.

According to a writer in the Boston Transcript more than 700 persons were killed by lightning in the United States in 1903; east of the 100th meridian thunder storms occur all over the country, but west of it, except in the Rocky Mountains, the frequency of storms diminishes until on the Pacific coast there are practically none. The greatest number of storms occur in Florida, in the middle Mississippi valley and the middle Missouri valley. The greatest number of deaths in any single state (1896-1900) was 186—in Pennsylvania. Ohio came next with 135, Indiana and Illinois and New York having 124 each. As to city and country, the more population the smaller the rate to the 1,000,000 of population. Besides this the metal roofs, telegraph wires, etc., of the cities serve as conductors. Lightning rods, as usually put up, are of no use. A tin roof with gutter spouts leading to the ground is much more effective. Barns with green hay seem to invite lightning.

Red Lake Indian Reservation Homesteads

February 20th, 1904, Congress passed a bill authorizing the opening for settlement of the ELEVEN TOWNSHIPS of the Red Lake Indian Reservation which are situated in Red Lake County. These lands will be thrown open for settlement within the next four months.

These lands will be disposed of to the highest bidder, and cannot be sold for less than $4 per acre. A payment of one-fifth of the purchase price in cash will be required, and the balance divided in five equal annual payments, without interest.

We have secured a limited number of copies of the Smiley map of Red Lake County and the Red Lake Indian Reservation. These maps are 28x38 inches, and show the grade and quality of each and every quarter-section of land in the portion of the Reservation to be opened for settlement; it gives the number of acres of timber and the kind of timber on each quarter. This map was compiled from the personal notes of Mr. Smiley and from the Government notes thereof. Everyone who intends to be present at the opening should have one of these maps, as it will save you the price of a locater's fee.

ANCIENT ENGLISH INNS.

Some Have Been In Existence For Nearly a Thousand Years.

Round and about London and its ever extending suburbs there may still be seen inns and taverns of great age and interesting associations.

The Angel inn, Highgate Hill, dates back to the time of the reformation. Originally it was called the Salutation inn. It is built entirely of wood.

Another famous inn is the Bald Faced Stag at Edgware. Nobody knows when it was originally built, and it would seem as though each successive proprietor has endeavored to place his mark on its architectural aspect, for many parts of it have evidently at different times been rebuilt. In the stables, it is alleged, Dick Turpin had his horse's shoes turned, so as to make his pursuers imagine he had gone in an opposite direction.

Among the very oldest of suburban London inns are the Plough, at Kingsbury Green, and the King James and Tinker inn, at Enfield. The first is said to be 850 years old, and the latter was reputed to have been first built as an inn and under another name 992 years ago.

Its present name is derived from an encounter which King James I. is said to have had with a tinker at the door of the inn. The tinker's conversation so pleased the king that he made the mender of kettles "a knight, with five hundred a year."—London Mail.

THE SURGEON'S PROBE.

See That He Sterilizes It Before He Uses It.

It frequently happens that the doctor has occasion to probe a wound or a sore.

Notice him when he does it. He opens his case of instruments. He takes out a long, slender silver or hard rubber rod which is from six to ten inches long, with a smooth, round end. Some of them are as small as a darning needle. Others are as large as a pencil.

Watch the doctor closely when he takes this probe and attempts to use it. If he does not take the precaution to clean it, stop him. Don't allow him to touch your sore with it. He has been using it on some one else and may poison you if you allow him to use it.

Call his attention to the fact that he boils an instrument when he operates on any one, and he should also boil his probe before he uses it on you either for a sore or wound. Make him do it. Tell him you will furnish him with hot water, and he can dip it in it and clean it carefully before he uses it.

Otherwise he will use it on you and slip it back in his surgical case and use it on the next person. In this way he scatters infectious dirt.—Medical Talk.

ORIGIN OF ORATORIOS.

They Were First Introduced In the Sixteenth Century.

St. Philip de Neri, a Florentine priest, born 1515, first introduced dramatic services in his oratory. In order to draw the young or careless to church he and others who followed his lead had hymns, psalms and spiritual songs or cantatas sung either in chorus or by a single favorite voice as special attractions.

These pieces were divided into two parts. Sacred stories or events from Scripture written in verse and by way of dialogue were set to music, and the first part was performed before the sermon, which the people were induced to stay and hear that they might not miss the performance of the second part.

The subjects in early times were the "Good Samaritan" and the "Prodigal Son," which by the excellence of the composition, the band of instruments and the performance brought the music of oratory into great repute.

Afterward any such rendering of sacred musical drama obtained the general appellation of "oratorio." The first oratorio in England was performed in London in Lincoln's Inn theater in Portugal street in 1732.

How Rocks Grow.

Rocks do not grow in the sense that a plant grows. They may increase by accretion, and they may undergo chemical change. The old sea bed, being lifted up, becomes sandstone and limestone. The volcanic ash and lava strewn over the plains become tufa, hard enough for building stone. The pebbly shore of a river becomes conglomerate. The simple mineral does grow, however, when it takes a crystal form. The sparkling prism of quartz increases from an atom to a crystal as large as a forearm by a process of addition and assimilation, wonderfully slow, but beautifully regular, exactly as crystals of ice form on the window pane.

The Fragrant Lemon.

Lemon trees of California are a thing of beauty and a joy forever. The lemon is the emblem of productiveness. At all seasons of the year can be found on the lemon tree the blossom, the tiny formed lemon and lemons in all stages of growth to the full grown fruit. It is a perpetual bearer. The blossom, the leaf, the wood, the fruit and all parts of the tree are delightfully fragrant.—Country Life In America.

A Lover of the Mountains.

"Do you like mountain scenery?"

"I might as well."

"'Might as well?' I fear I don't get your meaning."

"I might as well like it, for I can't change it."—Houston Post.

HOW SHOT IS MADE.

One Case In Which Man Cannot Improve on Nature.

"Did you know the method of making shot has never changed? No? Well, it's a fact," said the shot maker. "Hundreds of years ago shot was made in just the same way it is made now. Seems strange, doesn't it, that with all the improvements in other lines none has been made in this? Oh, yes, plenty of men have tried to find some better way, but they all have had to give it up and go back to the old shot tower. They wanted to get rid of the high tower, for that is the most expensive part of the plant.

"You know, shot is made by pouring a melted composition of lead and arsenic through a screen or from a big ladle with a serrated edge at the top of the tower and letting it fall into a tank of water. The drops of lead get perfectly round on their way down just like raindrops, and by the time they reach the water they are cold enough so they do not flatten out when they strike. Then the water finishes the cooling process.

"They have tried dropping the lead through a big tube, with a blast of cold air against the outside, and they have tried dropping it through glycerin, but none of these ways seems to work. Why can't they improve on it? Well, I suppose because the fellow who started making shot found the right way. It's just following the course that Nature takes in making hail, and I don't suppose they can beat her at her own game."

THE SAMOYEDS.

A Mongolian Race That Sometimes Resorts to Cannibalism.

Samoyeds, a race of Mongolians inhabiting the shores of the arctic ocean, maintain themselves by hunting and fishing. They make use of the same implements in bone and stone, besides cherishing the same superstitions, as were current in the stone age among the inhabitants of western Europe. They clothe themselves in reindeer skins. In fine weather they wear the hair outside, and when it is wet the tunic is reversed. This interesting race is gradually dying out owing partly to the scourge of smallpox which makes ravages among them and also to their fondness for raw spirits, which leads them to degradation and misery, as the Russian merchants take advantage of this to cheat them when bartering for valuable skins and walrus teeth. In fact, to such an extent do these traders dupe them that the Samoyeds sometimes are reduced to a state of famine and have recourse to cannibalism. This seems to account for the name Samoyed, which was given them by the Russians and which signifies in their language self eating. Every year in mid-Lent these queer looking people travel down in their reindeer sledges from Archangel to St. Petersburg and take up their abode temporarily on the frozen river Neva, where they build themselves circular huts composed of a framework of poles, over which are stretched reindeer skins. Here they traffic for the products of civilization.

Remedy For a Cold.

"We desire a remedy for a cold," says the Baltimore News, "and for the information of those who may make suggestions we mention that we have already taken the following: Quinine, rock and rye, lemon hot, hot toddy, Irish moss tea, beef tea in quantities, hot milk, mustard plaster (externally), mustard plaster (infernally), hot water bag, steam bath, hot irons, X's mixture, bronchial troches, hot baths ad infinitum, flaxseed, nausea, all the ten minute remedies, Stickem's corn cure, Bump's sure cure for hog cholera, Dover's powders and two different prescriptions of unknown character.

"We will be genuinely obliged for a long list of other things to take.

"N. B.—We have also taken a fresh cold."

Gordon at Gettysburg.

Major Robert Stiles, author of "Four Years Under Marse Robert," thus describes General Gordon at Gettysburg: "His face was radiant, his figure erect, mounted on a splendid ebony charger, with gleaming eyes and proud arched neck. The rider fairly stood in his stirrups and, bareheaded, waved both hands, while his sonorous voice rolled out such exhortations as only he knew how to make to soldiers. Thus they charged, with the great black charger joyful in the midst of the flashing muskets."

"No, thank you," said Miss De Mure. "I don't care to meet any new young men."

"No," replied Miss De Mure glancing dreamily at her new ring. "I've merely been selected all of a sudden."—Philadelphia Press.

FOR the sake of argument we will admit that Minnesota is apt to go for Roosevelt. But on the other hand there is Texas.

AT least two Republican newspapers in Red Lake county are not showing undue enthusiasm over the head of the state ticket. Crow is bitter, but it might as well be taken gracefully.

AMONG the Republican office-seeking possibilities this week are the informal announcements that C. C. Eckfund of Bray will be a candidate for register of deeds and H. E. Albue of Norden for county auditor.

WILLIAM J. BRYAN is still one of the leading figures in the Democratic party, and he has not lost in prestige or power as a result of the late national convention. He succeeded in getting a platform on which both factions of the party can stand.

THE current issue of the Princeton Union, Bob Dunn's paper, shows traces of deep seated joy. The editorial writer, Mr. Wright, says: "The Union office towel took a bath to celebrate the victory, and the office force has given it a ten days' leave of absence on full pay."

JUDGE PARKER had enough respect for his office to refuse to discuss political questions while wearing the judicial ermine. But the judge will resign in a few days, and when he is officially notified of his nomination for president the people will not be kept in ignorance of his views.

THE St. Cloud Times thus humorously describes the departure and return of the Collins special from that city to the state Republican convention at St. Paul: "The 'special train' went to St. Paul on Wednesday in the full glare of sunlight and music. The 'swearing train' arrived Friday—at midnight's holy hour, when graveyards yawn and give up their dead—political hopes."

FRANK DAY gives it out that "Holy Ray" Jones' timber record will be published broadcast throughout Minnesota this fall if he is obliged to go down to Washington himself and dig up the evidence from the departments. If the people of the state elect a self-confessed timber thief to the office of lieutenant governor it will not be because they are not familiar with the details of his operations.

THE Gazette doubtless over-estimates the influence of the COURIER upon the Republican primaries, but the charge carries with it the admission that the Gazette's influence as a political exponent is nil. Perhaps after while the Gazette will learn that it doesn't pay an amatuer to turn sommersaults in midair. There is not always a feather-bed at hand when the law of gravity gets in its deadly work.

IT costs the government to pay its bills 64 million dollars every day; $85,000 every hour; more then $150 every minute and more than $60 each second. John Rockefeller is reputed to be not only the richest man in the world, but the richest man who has ever lived. His fortune is estimated at 500 million dollars. But if John were to undertake to pay all the bills of the government out of his private purse he would be bankrupt within eight months.

CHARLIE NYE, the Moorhead attorney who was one of the delegates from the Ninth district to the Democratic national convention, went back on the pledges made by his friends at the state convention. Those authorized to speak for Mr. Nye assured the Red Lake and Polk county delegations that he was not a Hearst man. A Moorhead man told the writer that Mr. Nye was a friend of John Lind and favored him as chairman of the state delegation. Mr. Nye is placed in an unenviable light by reason of his vote at St. Louis against Lind as a member of the committee on resolutions.

THERE are six presidential tickets in the field. The prohibitionists have nominated Swallow and Carroll, the Social Democratic ticket, Debs and Handford, was named two months ago, the Populists in Springfield, Illinois, and the Socialist Labor party in New York made their nominations last week, thus completing with the Republican and Democratic nominations, a list of six national tickets. Judging by past experience and the conditions surrounding this year's contest, the minor parties will cut so small a figure as to be scarcely worth considering. Out of a total vote of 13,961,556 in 1900, all but 393,597 ballots were cast for the Republican and Democratic tickets, and there is no reason to suppose that the figures for this year's election will be materially different.

THE promised battle of a decisive nature in the far east has not taken place. Instead there has been a continuation of the purely strategical movements on the part of both armies that have been going on ever since the Kinchow fight. The Russians say that the Japanese are withdrawing southward, abandoning or being forced out of the valuable positions they had gained at great cost all along the left of the Russian line of advance. Japanese accounts tell a different story, reporting Russian movements which indicate an intention on the part of General Kuropatkin to fall back upon Liaoyang, await reinforcements, and allow the rainy season to play havoc with the Japanese forces. At Port Arthur, the Japanese have made important gains by capturing the eastern fortifications three miles from the town.

PARKER AND DAVIS.

The Democratic national convention which finished its labors at St. Louis last Saturday night was one of the historic gatherings of the century. It marks an epoch in American politics—the transformation of one of the great parties. The fetish of free silver, for eight years the foremost doctrine of Democracy, has been cast aside, and no one can gainsay that the Democratic party is today a gold standard party. Out of the one thousand votes in the convention it is not likely that one-tenth of them could have been secured for the reaffirmation of the Kansas City platform of four years ago. The party has come to the sensible conclusion that free silver is no longer an issue. Whatever demand or necessity for free coinage may have existed eight years ago does not now exist, and it is to the credit of the Democrats of the nation that they have discarded for all time an issue upon which the party was divided and which is no solution of the monetary problem.

Outside of this single feature the platform is not essentially different from the platform of four years ago. The party demands a revision of the tariff, government supervision of corporations, and opposes imperialism. The candidates selected, so far as personality and ability is concerned, probably represent the best ideals of American citizenship, and both are men of whom all Democrats can be proud.

And there is going to be a great fight. The men who have won Democratic successes in the past are certain of victory. The southern and border states are solidly Democratic, and it is alleged that New York will surely fall in line for Parker. President Roosevelt has never shown that he is strong in the East, and a battle royal will be waged in New Jersey, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Indiana.

It will be no walkaway for either party, but the experienced political writers—like Walter Wellmann for instance—admit that the chances favor the election of Parker.

If Parker is elected president there will be no cause for alarm. He represents the conservative, level-headed type of American citizenry. He is honest, capable and tactful. He is a man for whom every advocate of Democracy can vote with a sense of duty well performed.

WARM JUNE REPORTED.

Hardly Seems True—But the Bureau Says it is a Fact.

According to the monthly report of the weather bureau at Minneapolis, the June just passed was the warmest in Minnesota in three years, and this after a backward spring. It is also the wettest June in three years.

There was only one entirely clear day during the month. Twelve were partly cloudy, and seventeen were cloudy. On exactly half the days in the month rain fell.

The average temperature for the month was 68 degrees. The hottest day during the month was the 23d, when the mercury rose to the 83d point, and the coldest day during the month was the 6th, when the temperature was 48 degrees above zero.

The prevailing winds of the month were from the south, and the total movement was 7,560 miles. The highest velocity was reached June 23, when the average was 48 miles an hour.

While June was a very wet month, it was within two degrees of the average June temperature for the past fourteen years. The one entirely clear day was June 15. The total precipitation for the month was 3.81 inches, as compared with 1.02 inches last year.

Anna and Edna Cooke, the Wonderful.

In speaking of the exquisite and altogether inimitable bare back riding of the Cooke Sisters, Anna and Edna, there is no language too strong to proclaim their merits, nor is it claiming to much to aver that they are, beyond all question, the most daring, the most accomplished, and in every way the most finished equestriennes the world has ever produced. Their riding is a revelation and a poem, Beautiful and as graceful as a fawn, Anna and Edna accomplish on their flying coursers numberless feats none else ever dared attempt, and backward and forward somersaults are to them the merest bagatelle. There are many equestriennes in the profession, but there is none that can compare with Anna and Edna Cooke, who are with the Pan-American Shows which will exhibit at Red Lake Falls on June 16 1904.

For nearly four years I suffered from ovarian troubles. The doctor insisted on an operation as the only way to get well. I, however, strongly objected to an operation. My husband felt disheartened as well as I, for home with a sick woman is a disconsolate place at best. A friendly druggist advised him to get a bottle of Wine of Cardui for me to try, and he did so. I began to improve in a few days and my recovery was very rapid. Within eighteen weeks I was another being.

BIRTH OF A FLOWER.

The Pretty Legend That Tells the Origin of the Narcissus.

Years and years ago and ever so many years before there lived far away in a lovely country a youth who was the most beautiful man in the world. His name was Narcissus, and he had a sister as beautiful as himself, whom he loved very dearly. Narcissus often used to go hunting in the woods with his sister. Each of them knew that the other one was very beautiful, but they did not know the same about themselves. You see, they had no looking glasses in those days at least—only the mermaids had them, and they never lent them to any one else. One day the girl died, and poor Narcissus was very unhappy, and after that he had to go hunting by himself. Once when he was thirsty he came to a stream and was just bending down to drink when he saw his own face in the water. He had never seen it before and thought it was the face of his dear sister. So he tried to catch hold of her, but could not. When he had tried for a long time he was so disappointed that he killed himself. Then the fairies came in the night to bury him, but they only found a pretty white flower, which is still called narcissus.—London News.

WORMS AS CANNIBALS.

One Member of the Baby Brood Eats Up All the Rest.

The adult earthworm is one of the most peaceable and respectable creatures in existence, feeding chiefly on earth, though not disdaining little bits of vegetable or animal matter. The latter might possibly include pieces of defunct friends or relatives, but there would be no malice in the matter. Yet this same creature is invariably a cannibal of the worst type when it begins life.

The parent worm lays quite a number of eggs in a little horny cocoon, which also contains a nutritious fluid for their benefit. On this they feed when hatching takes place. One member of the brood, when this supply is used up, turns its attention to the remainder and devours them all. This unscrupulous and voracious young worm then comes out of the cocoon and for the rest of its existence tries by a blameless life to atone for its juvenile atrocity. In some creatures of the jellyfish kind the very egg itself is addicted to this revolting practice. It is an irregular particle of living slime, by which its weaker sisters are engulfed and digested.

A CHANGE OF AIR.

Why It Proves Beneficial When a Person Is Ailing.

To maintain the balance of perfect health in a body so complex as man's, where the circulatory, respiratory, muscular and nervous systems interact so much upon one another, there is need of very frequent adjustment, especially in such a busy age as this.

One great benefit of change of air is that the great law of contrast enforced upon us by all natural phenomena is allowed fuller scope for its beneficent work. The various organs of the body are very really rested by slight changes in diet, cooking, water, new surroundings, people and amusements. The same monotonous daily round of duties tries them as it tries us, and change of work is actual refreshment.

If specific ailments have manifested themselves, then the seashore for a tonic and general stimulant, mountain air for its aseptic property, a sandy district for its dryness or a sea voyage to invigorate the whole system will be calculated to ward off what would otherwise spell serious illness.

The First Coal In England.

It was to supply the wants of smiths and lime burners that English coal began to be systematically dug about A. D. 1200. This mineral fuel suited the requirements of their crafts even better than wood. An unwonted and widespread demand for fuel for these purposes doubtless sprang up at this period in connection with the numerous feudal castles and ecclesiastical buildings which were being erected throughout the kingdom. Not only were smiths and lime burners the sole patrons of coal at this early stage, but for a long time subsequently they continued to be its principal consumers.—Contemporary Review.

There Was Plenty.

One day a fussy creature met the famous Father Healy of Dublin by the seashore and thus accosted him: "Father Healy, I'm undergoing a cure, and I take a tumbler of sea water three times a day. Now, I've had my full allowance today, but do you think I might have one, just one, tumbler more?" Father Healy put his head on one side and looked at the ocean, lost in thought. "Well," he said at last, with a gravely judicial air, "I don't think it would be missed."

Strong Stock.

"What kept you so late at business last night, Archibald?" demanded Mrs. Popham.

"Taking stock," replied Popham.

"I knew it," she replied. "Smelled it on your breath the minute you came in. You'll keep on taking it till you get in the workhouse, and then, I hope, you'll be satisfied."

Getting It Straight.

"So your husband tells you that he never plays cards for money," said the neighbor, with a sneer.

"No," answered young Mrs. Torkins. "Charley didn't say exactly that. He said he never gets any money by playing cards."—Washington Star.

Trouble, like cayenne pepper, is not very agreeable in itself, but it gives zest to other things.

THE PORCUPINE.

Only Known Creature That Eats the Foliage of the Hemlock.

"You don't have to skirmish around much to get feed to fatten one of these hemlock porcupines on," says an old woodsman. "Just sprinkle some salt over a stick of cordwood or saw log for that matter, and he'll eat the whole business and enjoy it as you would mince pie." The customary diet of these animals is hemlock browse. They make themselves a home in a hollow log or under the roots of some old tree, but always within reach of a big hemlock.

The hemlock is their pasture, and they make beaten paths going to and fro between the tree and their home. Once up in a tree the porcupine goes out on the big limbs and, pulling the small branches in with one paw, browses on the pungent leaves. In going through the woods you will find little piles of these fine leaves on the ground under hemlock trees. That means that a porcupine is feeding in the tree, the leaves on the ground being dropped from his feast.

Sometimes a porcupine will remain in a hemlock tree for a week at a time, hugging close to the trunk at night and feeding during the day. This curious little beast is the only known living thing that eats the foliage of the hemlock.

DANGER SPOTS IN A STORM.

Places to Avoid When the Lightning Is Flashing.

Out of doors trees should be avoided in a thunderstorm, and if from the rapidity with which the explosion follows the flash it is evident that electric clouds are near at hand a recumbent posture is the safest. It is seldom dangerous to take shelter under sheds, carts or low buildings or under the arch of a bridge, and a distance of twenty or thirty feet from tall trees or houses is an eligible situation, for should a discharge take place these elevated bodies are most likely to receive it.

It is well also to avoid water, for it is a good conductor, and the height of a human being near the stream may determine the direction of a discharge. Within doors we are tolerably safe in the middle of a carpeted room or when standing on a thick hearth rug. The chimney should be avoided on account of the conducting power of the carbon deposited in it, and gilt moldings or bell wires are sources of risk. In bed we are tolerably safe, since blankets and feathers are bad conductors.

It is injudicious to take refuge in a cellar, because the discharge is often from the earth to a cloud, and buildings frequently sustain the greatest injury in their basements.

Thursday, August 11, is to be Red Lake Falls day at the Thief River fair. A special train will be run and the Red Lake Falls band will accompany the delegation from this city. It is highly probable that half the town will go up on this occasion. The fair will be much more elaborate than last year, and besides there will be a splendid program of sports and good speaking.

The new town on the Soo in Emardville, of which Julius Pleth is the promoter, is to be called Scotland. As there isn't a "bonnie Scot" within a dozen miles of the place the significance of the name is not apparent. As soon as the engineers complete the plat a number of buildings will be commenced, and by the time the cars commence to run Scotland will be quite a burg.

The following is said to be a successful method of ridding the house of insect pests of all kinds: Dissolve common alum, one pound in two quarts of hot water; when thoroughly dissolved apply hot to pantry shelves or any other place about the house. It will absolutely banish ants, bed bugs, spiders, cockroaches and troublesome insects of all kinds. The remedy is simple and cheap and surely effectual.

Inside of a few weeks Red Lake county will boast two more state banks, one at each of the two new Soo towns in the east part of the county. One of them will be the State Bank of Brooks, of which L. C. Simons and Chas. N. Bourdon are the promoters and largest stockholders. The other will be the State Bank of Scotland, of which Julius Pleth, the townsite boomer, is the organizer and cashier. Both banks will have a capital stock of $10,000.

There is prospect of a creamery and dairy picnic at Red Lake Falls the fore part of August. Commissioner McConnell is being communicated with, and it is probable that a number of good speakers will be secured for the occasion, among them Mr. McConnell. If the picnic can be arranged all the farmers in Red Lake county will be invited, and it is probable there will be a large attendance. Besides a day of recreation the people will have an opportunity to absorb plenty of information relative to the dairy industry of the state.

Julius Pleth of St. Hilaire is expecting his brother, Dr. V. Pleth, of Chicago, here next week on his annual vacation to spend a month or so with him which he has done for the last three years. It will be remembered that Dr. Pleth on each vacation performed a great many difficult and successful operations here and also at Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls, and this year found it necessary to come earlier as there are a number of operations awaiting him in all three places. The doctor is always welcome here and has a number of friends who will be pleased to see him.—St. Hilaire Spectator.

Monday morning all the stores at Crookston were closed from 10 o'clock until 12 during the funeral of Father L. J. Grandchamp. Offices of dead were recited by priests at 9:30, public services at 10 o'clock. Rev. Father Corbett of the cathedral of Duluth pronounced the funeral eulogy in English, Rev. Father Fayolle of Red Lake Falls spoke in French, Rev. Father Fournier of St. Mary's hospital at Duluth was celebrant, Father Roy of Lambert was deacon, Father Theillon of Gentilly was sub-deacon and Father Hufnagle of Crookston was master of ceremonies. The occasion called out the largest crowd that ever attended a funeral in Crookston. The funeral procession was over two miles long.

*The total of 659 votes received by Judge Parker did not constitute a nominating majority, but before the result was announced Idaho changed its six votes and West Virginia added three, giving 667, the necessary two-thirds majority.

Davis for Vice President.

Henry G. Davis, of West Virginia, was nominated for vice president, the choice not being made till after one o'clock Sunday morning. The other candidates were ex-Senator George Turner of Washington, Congressman J. R. Williams of Illinois, and ex-Senator W. A. Harris of Kansas. They received but slight support. Illinois voted for Congressman Williams, as did Indiana, North and South Carolina, and Rhode Island. That, however, was all he could muster. The other candidates also received purely local support. Before the result of the ballot was announced Ohio moved that the nomination be made by acclamation, and this was so done without dissent. The vote before the nomination was made unanimous stood: Davis, 536; Williams, 165; Turner, 100; Harris, 58.

Parker Creates a Sensation.

A situation unprecedented in American political history was created in the convention Saturday evening. Judge Alton Brooks Parker, the nominee for president, telegraphed the convention that he believed in the gold standard and that unless the convention knew his belief and still favored his candidacy he must decline to be the standard bearer of the party. The convention was just ready for the roll call on the nomination for vice president when the telegram from Judge Parker was received by William F. Sheehan, a personal representative of the nominee. The telegram was as follows:

Judge Parker's Attitude.

"Esopus, N. Y., July 9.—Hon. William F. Sheehan, Convention Hall, St. Louis, Mo.: I regard the gold standard as firmly and irrevocably established by law, and I shall act accordingly if the action of the convention to-day is ratified by the people. Inasmuch as the platform is silent upon this subject, I deem it necessary to make this communication to the convention for its consideration, as I should feel it my duty to decline the nomination except upon this understanding.

"ALTON B. PARKER."

Convention Paralyzed.

The work of the convention was paralyzed at this critical juncture, the delegates being in a consternation of doubt whether or not they had a presidential nominee. A conference of party leaders hurriedly assembled in the rear of the hall, with hundreds of anxious delegates held at bay by sergeants-at-arms and police. In a stormy session Senator Tillman denounced Parker's action, and Senator Hill strove to find a solution. At 5:30 o'clock, with all uncertainty, the convention was adjourned until nine o'clock.

Delegates Angry.

Overthrow of Parker and a new nomination for the presidency was threatened. Parker's telegram to the convention was interpreted by some as a repudiation of the platform. By others it was characterized as an attempted dictation to the party. Friendly interests argued that Parker simply desired that his belief in the gold standard be known.

A Warm Debate.

When the convention reassembled at nine o'clock Senator Hill and other Parker adherents offered as a solution a telegram to Parker stating that the monetary standard had been ignored in the platform because it was not considered an issue in the campaign. A resolution making the telegram to Judge Parker the answer of the convention by which the incident should be closed was made the subject of thrilling debate by the giants of the party. All the fierceness of the original factional fight of the party over platform and nominees was thrown into the debate on the resolution. William J. Bryan rose from a sick bed and appeared on the platform, pale and weak, to speak against the sending of the telegram. The most intense suspense and interest of the convention marked the session, every man, from the humblest delegate to the most important leader being impressed by the remarkable crisis. Parker was saved from retirement and his declaration for the gold standard accepted by vote of the convention. The resolution sending the message to Judge Parker passed the convention on roll call by a vote of 774 to 199.

The Convention's Reply.

Following is the text of the telgram sent to Judge Parker:

"The platform adopted by this convention is silent on the question of the monetary standard because it is not regarded by us as a possible issuo in the campaign and only campaign issues were mentioned in the platform. Therefore, there is nothing in the views expressed by you in the telegram just received which would preclude a man entertaining them from accepting a nomination on said platform."

AN ALL-NIGHT SESSION.

Wild Scenes Follow Representation of Candidates' Names.

St. Louis, July 9.—The morning session of the democratic national convention on Friday was very brief, adjournment being taken until evening to receive the report of the committee on resolutions. At the opening of the evening session the platform was adopted, and then began a call of the states for presidential nominees.

Martin W. Littleton, of New York, placed Judge Parker in nomination. For 25 minutes the delegates and the galleries cheered, shouted and yelled for Parker, while banners were carried in struggling processions to the blare of bands and the singing of men.

E. M. Delmas, of California, nominated Hearst. For 35 minutes delegates and galleries yelled, shouted and cheered for Hearst, while men marched in processions and carried banners and flags to the music of bands.

L. Irving Handy of Delaware proposed Judge Gray's name. David Overmeyer of Kansas nominated Gen. Nelson A. Miles, Richard Olney of Massachusetts was nominated by Mayor Collins of Boston, and Mayor Rose of Milwaukee presented the name of Mr. Wall, Wisconsin's favorite son. Senator Cockrell's name, presented by Champ Clark, set the convention wild again at two o'clock in the morning. the scene was well night unprecedented. Ten thousand people in round numbers were still in the big hall at 2:10 a. m., pounding, cheering, yelling at the name of a venerable senator whose nomination before the convention was nothing more than the merest formality.

After nine hours of oratory, confusion and wild scenes Bryan made a dramatic and pathetic appeal for the party principles he represents, closing in tears and arousing his hearers to great enthusiasm. The conservatives, however, were in control, and after the roll was called and two minor states changed to Parker, the New Yorker had two-thirds of the total vote, the nomination being made unanimous on motion of Gov. Dockery, of Missouri, amidst great cheering.

THE PLATFORM.

Comprehensive Synopsis of Party's Declaration of Principles.

The platform was adopted without debate, by vive voce vote. Following is a synopsis of the very lengthy document:

It affirms devotion to the essential principles of democratic faith—local self-government and national amity—freedom of press, of conscience and of speech; equality before the law of all citizens; the right of trial by jury; freedom of person defended by the writ of habeas corpus; liberty of personal contact untrammeled by sumptuary laws; the supremacy of the civil over military authority; a well-disciplined militia; the separation of church and state; economy in expenditues; low taxes, that labor may be lightly burdened; the prompt and sacred fulfillment of public and private obligations; fidelity to treaties; peace and friendship with all nations; entangling alliances with none; absolute acquiescence in the will of the majority.

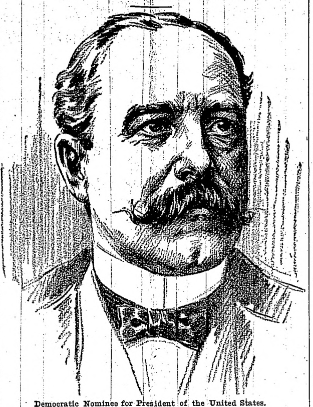
The proposed platform insists upon strict economy and the enforcement of honesty in every branch of the public service; favors thorough legislative investigation of every department suspected of corruption, and punishment of corruptionists; believes that all government officials should return to Jeffersonian simplicity of living; favors election of a president trained in the ways of the constitution who shall set his face sternly against executive usurpation of legislative and judicial functions; pledges that the democracy when intrusted with power will construct the Panama canal speedily, honestly and economically; favors maintenance of the Monroe doctrine in its full integrity, a liberal trade treaty with Canada, reduction of the army and army expenditures, statehood for Oklahoma, Indian Territory, Arizona and New Mexico, and a territorial form of government for Alaska and Porto Rico.

Capital and Labor.

It favors enactment and administration of laws giving labor and capital impartially their just right; denies right of any executive to disregard or suspend any constitutional privilege or limitation; condemns employment of the military for the summary banishment of citizens without trial or for the control of elections.

The [illegible] sist upon the just and lawful protection of our citizens abroad; favors generous pension policy, not by an arbitrary executive order, but by legislation which a grateful people stand ready to enact; denounces the ship subsidy bill passed by the senate, and favors the upbuilding of a merchant marine without new or additional burdens upon the people, and without bounties from the public treasury; demands honest, just and impartial enforcement of the principles of civil service reform; demands extermination of polygamy within the jurisdiction of the United States, and complete separation of church and state in political affairs; for liberal appropriations for the care and improvement of waterways.

JUDGE ALTON BROOKS PARKER.



Democratic Nominee for President of the United States.

Imperialism.

The resolutions favor the preservation of the open door for the world's commerce, without unnecessary entanglement in oriental and European affairs; denounces an indefinite, irresponsible, discretionary and vague absolutism and a policy of colonial exploitation; insists that we ought to do for the Filipinos what we have done for the Cubans, and announces the intention of the party, as soon as it can be done wisely and safely for the Filipinos themselves, to set the Filipino people upon their feet, free and independent, to work out their own destiny.

The Tariff.

On the tariff question, the resolutions favor a revision and a gradual reduction of the tariff by the friends of the masses, and for the common weal, and not by the friends of its abuses, its extortions and its discrimination, keeping in view the ultimate end of "equality of burdens and equality of opportunities," and the constitutional purpose of raising a revenue by taxation, to support the federal government in all its integrity and virility, but in simplicity. They favor a tariff limited to the needs of the government, economically administered against any industry, class or section, to the end that the burdens of taxation shall be distributed as equally as possible.

The Trust.

The platform recognizes that the gigantic trusts and combinations, designed to enable capital to secure more than its just share of the joint products of capital and labor, and which have been fostered and promoted under republican rule, are a menace to beneficial competition and an obstacle to permanent business prosperity. A private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable. Individual equality of opportunity and free competition are essential to a healthy and permanent commercial prosperity, and any trust, combination or monopoly tending to destroy these by controlling production, restricting competition or fixing prices, should be prohibited and punished by law. It especially denounces rebates and discrimination by transportation companies, as the most potent agency in promoting and strengthening these unlawful conspiracies against trade. It demands strict enforcement of existing civil and criminal statutes against all such trusts, combinations and monopolies; and we demand the enactment of such further legislation as may be necessary to effectually suppress them.

On the race question the platform declares that to revive the dead and hateful race and sectional animosities in any part of our common country means confusion, distraction of business and the reoponing of wounds now happily healed. It deprecates and condemns the Bourbon-like selfish and narrow spirit of the recent republican convention at Chicago, which sought to kindle anew the embers of racial and sectional strife, and we appeal from it to the sober common sense and patriotic spirit of the American people.

Appeal to the Country.

The existing republican administration is strongly denounced for its policies. In conclusion the platform says: "Conducting the campaign upon this declaration of our principles and purposes, we invoke for our candidates the support, not only of our great and time-honored organization, but also the active assistance of all our fellow citizens who, disregrading past differences upon questions no longer in issue, desire the perpetuation of our constitutional government as framed and established by the fathers of the republic."

THE FIRST DAY.

Address of John Sharp Williams, Temporary Chairman.

St. Louis, July 7.—The democratic national convention met in the Coliseum Wednesday, listened to an extended speech from Representative John Sharp Williams, its temporary chairman, appointed the committees necessary to perfect a permanent organization, and adjourned. In a session lasting two hours and 50 minutes, one striking incident overshadowed all other proceedings. That was the enthusiastic and prolonged cheering which greeted the name of Grover Cleveland. Hats, handkerchiefs, fans and arms were waved, delegates and spectators stood on their chairs and the last semblance of order was turned into confusion which convention officials were powerless to subdue. The demstration lasted for eight minutes.

THE SECOND DAY.

Bryan's Determined Fight for Illinois Contestants Lost.

St. Louis, July 8.—The democratic national convention on Thursday adopted the report of the committee on rules, credentials and permanent organization. The session opened at ten o'clock, an hour later took a recess until two p. m., and adjourned at 6:20 until ten o'clock to-day. During the day several speeches were made, chief of which was William Jennings Bryan's effort to overthrow the report of the credentials committee and seat contesting delegates from Illinois. The controversy was ended by the rejection of the minority report of the committee by a vote of 647 nays to 299 ayes.

The ovation given Mr. Bryan was one of the greatest ever transpiring at any of the notable events for which the immense coliseum is famed. It was begun before the afternoon session of the convention had been called to order and continued for 12 minutes with so much furor that Temporary Chairman Williams and all of his assistants, including 100 policemen, were unable to restore order.

When the result of the contest was announced the report of the committee on permanent organization was made. Representative Champ Clark, who was chosen permanent chairman, addressed the convention. Adjournment was then taken until ten a. m. Friday.

BATTLE IN A STORM.

Russians Surprise and Annihilate Japanese Outpost—Latter Lose 1,000 Men.

London, July 8.—The Central News has a dispatch from St. Petersburg stating that early Wednesday morning Gen. Kashtalinsky's troops surprised and attacked the Japanese outposts at Lantyansan. Advancing through a terrific rain storm, the Russians reached the outlying videttes of the Japanese without an alarm being raised and finally rushed the camp of the outpost, killing every one in it. The Japanese were reinforced and made three fierce attacks, but were repulsed. The advance of the second Russian battalion enabled the first to retire in safety. The Russians had 300 casualties. The Japanese casualties are reported to have been 1,000.

Rome, July 11.—A dispatch from Liaoyang says that a fierce battle has been fought at Hoang, near Liaoyang, between a force of Russians numbering 4,000, led by Gen. Keller, and a supposedly superior number of the enemy. Although the Russians struggled valiantly they were compelled to retreat before determined assaults by the Japanese and left 350 dead upon the field. The Japanese showed great bravery. The battle ended in complete rout of the Russians. The loss of the Japanese is unknown.

St. Petersburg, July 11.—Lieut. Gen. Sakharoff in a dispatch to the general staff confirms the report of the Japanese occupation of Kaichou. He says that the Russian loss did not exceed 150 killed or wounded. Gen. Sakharoff adds that the Japanese are on the Yinkow road.

Fixes Number of Deaths at 25.

Litchfield, Ill., July 11.—The jury selected by Coroner William A. Gray, of Montgomery county, to investigate the Wabash wreck at Litchfield on Sunday, July 3, has fixed the number of dead at 25. Twenty of the dead were identified, one unidentified, and four missing.

Wife of Bishop Robbed.

Cooperstown, N. Y., July 8.—Mrs. Henry C. Potter, wife of the bishop, on Thursday was robbed of three boxes containing jewels valued at $50,000.

Chicago's Population.

Chicago, July 11.—The publishers of the Chicago City Directory, to be issued soon, estimate the city's population at 2,241,000.

SCROFULA A DISEASE WE INHERIT.

Scrofula manifests itself in many ways. Swelling of the glands of the neck and throat, Catarrh, weak eyes, white swelling, offensive sores and abscesses, skin eruptions, loss of strength and weakness in muscles and joints.

It is a miserable disease and traceable in almost every instance to some family blood taint. Scrofula is bred in the bone, is transmitted from parent to child, the seeds are planted in infancy and unless the blood is purged and purified and every atom of the taint removed Scrofula is sure to develop at some period in your life.

Scrofula appeared on the head of my little grandchild when only 18 months old, and spread rapidly over her body. The disease next attacked the eyes and we feared she would lose her sight. Eminent physicians were consulted, but could do nothing to relieve the little innocent. It was then that we decided to try S. S. S. That medicine at once made a speedy and complete cure. She is now a young lady, and has never had a sign of the disease to return.

MRS. RUTH BERKLY,
150 South 5th Street. Salina, Kan.

No remedy equals S. S. S. as a cure for Scrofula. It cleanses and builds up the blood, makes it rich and pure, and under the tonic effects of this great Blood Remedy, the general health improves, the digestive organs are strengthened, and there is a gradual but sure return to health. The deposit of tubercular matter in the joints and glands is carried off as soon as the blood is restored to a normal condition, and the sores, eruptions, and other symptoms of Scrofula disappear.

SSS

S. S. S. is guaranteed purely vegetable and harmless; an ideal blood purifier and tonic that removes all blood taint and builds up weak constitutions. Our physicians will advise without charge, all who write us about their case. Book mailed free.

Three of my brothers have died of heart trouble, and I thought I was going the same way, but about two and a half years ago I got a pamphlet about Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure and thought I would try a few bottles. MINNESOTA NEWS.

Death in a Launch.

Death and destruction was abroad on the waters of Lake Minnetonka when the gasoline launch Eleanor exploded, leaving in its wake Mrs. Geo. Upton, who died at the White House at Excelsior, and seven other occupants, who were seriously injured.

A party of eight, including Lewellyn Christian, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Merriman, their two children, Harry and Prudence, Mr. and Mrs. Upton and Mrs. W. P. Devereaux, were on board the boat, which is owned by Mr. Upton, when the explosion occured.

The force of the explosion hurled far out into the lake Mrs. Devereaux and the Merriman children, while the other occupants were forced to jump into the lake to escape the flames.

Killed by Live Wire.

Aug. Brandt, a lineman in the employ of the street railway company, Minneapolis, picked up a live wire while working on new construction and received injuries from which he died a few hours later. Brandt, who had been with the company eight years, was working with a crew in 8th street, near Third avenue, SE.

He was stretching a new wire and was just about to draw it tight when he came in contact with the regular wire which was charged with 2,300 volts. The shock threw him to the ground and he was badly burned. He was taken to St. Barnabas hospital in the patrol wagon and died after four hours of intense suffering. He lived with his family at 1513 Fifth street south.

May be Delayed.

The legislature of 1905 may not meet in the new state capitol. It will depend on whether the Italian marble columns of the grand stairway arrive so that they may be put in place before next January.

"The work is progressing satisfactorily," said Chairman Channing Seabury, after the meeting of the capitol commission. "We hope to have the building completed so that it may be occupied when the next legislature meets. There is still a great deal of work to be done, and I am not sure that it can be completed by that time. Some of the contractors feel certain that, without accident, the building will be ready for occupancy in January.

A "Pike" at the Fair.

Right up to date and abreast with the times the Minnesota state fair has discarded the "Midway" and will come out this year with a full-fledged "Pike."

It is to be the genuine article, too, and any man who goes over the "Pike" at the next state fair will have seen everything worth while that might be seen at the Louisiana Purchase exposition in the similar department. In fact, many of the most attractive features of the "Pike" at St. Louis will be reproduced at the big Minnesota show.

The "Pike" will be west of the center of the grounds and will be in a great inclosure, large enough to contain a mile of pike and forty or fifty shows. Some of the shows will be free, while others will charge a 10-cent admission. A few will be 25-cent affairs and will be worth seeing.

Help for Fire Companies.

Cities and villigaes in Minnesota that have fire departments or fire relief associations will receive $91,197.51 as the 1903 apportionment of the 2 per cent tax paid by insuranee companies on premiums on Minnesota business. This amount is reckoned on premiums amounting to $4,559,876.24 and is twice as much as was apportioned last year. The increase is due to a law passed by the last legislature providing that all of the 2 per cent tax, instead of half of it, be paid to cities and villages having fire departments.

State Forestry Board.

The state forestry board has set aside 20,000 acres of government land near Ely and it will probably be used as a game and fish preserve.

The tract is two-thirds covered by a small growth of timber. The rest is s to be planted with seedling trees. There are a number of splended lakes in the tract and they will probably be stocked with fish.

If the tract is used as a preserve it will be turned over to the state game and fish commission.

An Old Settler.

Simon Stevens, the first white man to settle upon the shores of Lake Minnetonka, is dead. He came to Minnesota in 1849 with his brother, the late Col. John H. Stevens, who built the first house in Minneapolis, and in 1855 he founded the town of Clearwater, where he died. He was the youngest of ten children, and he was aged 77 at the time of his death.

TOWERMAN MAKES A FATAL BLUNDER

DROPS HIS SIGNAL TOO QUICKLY AND CAUSES TERRIBLE COLLISION AT MIDVALE, N. J.

Passenger Train Crashes Into Rear of Coaches Loaded with Excursionists—Seventeen Persons Killed—Fifty Injured.

New York, July 11.—Seventeen persons were killed and about 50 injured in a collision which occurred at Midvale, N. J., just before noon Sunday, when a regular passenger train on the Greenwood Lake branch of the Erie railroad ran into an excursion train that had stopped to take water. All the dead and injured lived in Hoboken, Jersey City and New York.

The Victims.

Henry Otterstedt, Hoboken; William Weidemeyer, Hoboken; William Rutz, New York; Mrs. Anna Lemkohl and daughter Agnes, New York; William Lane, Hoboken; Henry Becker, Hoboken; William Rohfing, Hoboken; William Winderknechl, Hoboken; George Scheer, Hoboken; Isadore Mauser, Hoboken; Frank Holnweddell, Hoboken; George McDermott, Hoboken; William Wiston, Hoboken; E. K. Kelley, Jersey city; boy, name supposed to be Batterson.

A Fatal Blunder.

The accident is believed to have resulted from a tower operator having lowered his signal too soon, and this was admitted by D. W. Cooke, general passenger agent of the Erie railroad, who gave out a statement in which he said: "The operator in the tower failed to set the block signal against the train following."

The train which was run into was a special carrying members of the First Plattdeucher association, of Hoboken, on their annual outing, and had 800 passengers.

It is claimed that the engineer of the regular train had slowed down to about ten miles an hour before he crashed into the special, but his engine tore through the rear car the greater part of its length and drove the forward end of that car into the car ahead. The killed and injured were in these two cars. The wreckage did not catch fire and the work of taking out the dead and maimed was accomplished quickly.

POWDER EXPLODES.

Town of Marblehead, O., Is Badly Wrecked — Loss, $150,000 — One Hundred Persons Hurt.

Sandusky, O., July 11.—The little town of Marblehead, on the peninsula across the bay from this city, was wrecked by a terrific explosion of dynamite and powder Saturday night, every house and building in the town being damaged and possibly 100 people injured. No one was killed. Lightning struck the magazine of the Kelley's Island Lime & Transport company, a Cleveland corporation, and the contents of the building, including about 25 tons of dynamite and 200 kegs of powder, let go in a terrific explosion, or series of explosions. But a half hour before several hundred men had quit work in the vicinity. The loss is estimated at $150,000. There is not a whole pane of glass in the town and houses were literally lifted from their foundations and moved several feet.

SWEPT OVER NIAGARA.

Employe of a Power Company at the Falls Meets a Horrible Death.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., July 11.—Alfred Langue was far out on the cut of the cofferdam surrounding the wheel of the Toronto & Niagara Power company running a pump, when suddenly he was seen to slip and plung into the river, the current of which runs at 30 miles an hour at this point. Once in the grasp of the current there was no hope for him, and within a few minutes his scores of companions were horrified to see his body swept over the brink of the horseshoe fall. Among those who witnessed his awful fate was his father.

City Not Liable.

Chicago, July 8.—Litigation to the probable aggregate total of $8,000,000 was discouraged Wednesday when Judge Holdom, in the superior court, ruled that the city of Chicago was not liable in any degree for the Iroquois theater fire. A suit by Eva Catherine Gibson for $15,000 damages because of a broken arm and an injured spine was the case decided. Sixty other suits are pending and had the decision been against the city hundreds of other actions probably would have been filed.

Heiress Is a Suicide.

New York, July 11.—Despondent since the death of her father, who left her a fortune of $5,000,000, Miss Bertha Dolbeer committed suicide Saturday by jumping from a ninth-story window of the Waldorf-Astoria. Nearly every bone in her body was broken and death was instantaneous. She was 25 years old, the daughter of the late S. F. Dolbeer, of San Francisco, a millionaire lumberman and real estate owner.

The World's Greatest Diver.

The greatest, longest, highest diver the world has ever seen, Capt. Santiago. Promptly at 10:30 a. m. and 6:30 p. m., every day, on the grounds free. The Captain will fairly astonish all who behold his fearful, high, backward and headlong dives. The height will surprise you, the decent will appall you, the finish will make you wonder why the whole does not finish the flying, falling, tumbling, somersaulting, intrepid, dashing and daring, death defying diver himself, to be seen with the Great Pan-American shows at Red Lake Falls June 16, 1904.

Painful.

Johnson—Does your wife speak French?

Thompson—She thinks she does.

"You don't speak it, do you?"

"No."

"Then how do you know she doesn't?"

"I watched a French waiter's face the other day when she was talking to him, and I'll be blamed if he didn't look as if he had the toothache!"

Unreasonable.

Magistrate (severely)—Prisoner, how did you have the audacity to break into this man's house at midnight and rob him?

Prisoner (piteously)—But, your honor, last time I was before you you wanted to know how I could have the audacity to rob a man in broad daylight. When do you expect me to get in my work?

The Baby Humorists.

"Of course," said Mrs. Extrygood, "you are fond of bright, precocious babies?"

"Oh, yes; certainly," replied Old Batch, "but I draw the line on the supposed smart sayings made up by the parents and loaded off on the poor infants."—Baltimore American.

Asking His Advice.

A little girl, aged nine, called her father to her bedside the other evening.

"Papa," said the little diplomat, "I want to ask your advice."

"Well, my dear, what is it about?"

G. Robidoux, who is in charge of the cheese factory at Lambert, received word this week that he had been given third place in the June scoring of cheese by the State Dairy and Food department. Mr. Robidoux's score, 94 per cent, being but a trifle below that of the winner of the first prize. This is simply another evidence that Red Lake county is rapidly forging to the front as a dairy county.

HALF A LOAF FOR A FORTUNE

[Original.]

Tabitha Longwell, an eccentric old lady, dying, left an estate in jewels. These she bequeathed to her adopted daughter Mabel, but the drawing of the will had been faulty, and the testator's nephew, Archibald Longwell, who without a will would have been her sole heir-at-law, considered himself entitled to the property. His weak point was that the jewels were in Mabel's possession. His lawyers had advised him that since possession was nine points of the law the first thing to do was to secure the property.

One evening the late Miss Longwell's manservant, Tom Clarkenwell, the only servant she kept, was in the kitchen scouring the knives and polishing the silver. Mabel, who had done the cooking, was also there making some bread.

"Miss Mabel," said Tom Clarkenwell, "the old woman was cur'us, wasn't she?"

"You mean Miss Longwell. Yes, she was singular, but she was a very good woman."

"I hear she left all her property in di'mon's."

"In precious stones."

"Where did she keep 'em—in the bank?"

The question was asked in a halting way that indicated self consciousness. Miss Mabel's suspicions were aroused.

"No. She kept them in a stocking."

"And where did she keep the stocking?"

"Tied around her waist under the skirt of her dress."

"Laws'a-mercy! What a queer place! She can't keep 'em there now since she's dead."

"No. I have them in charge now."

Tom did not think it prudent to ask any more questions, and Miss Mabel didn't enlighten him further. She put the dough she had been kneading into a pan and left it to rise. She then went upstairs to bed, but not to sleep. She was suspicious of Tom's interest in her aunt's property. There was an unused fireplace in the sitting room with an iron ornamental front. Mabel had taken out this front and stuffed the jewels up the chimney. While she was lying awake she saw a light in the hall through a crack in the door. Jumping out of bed, she was just in time to see Tom going in his stocking feet to the floor above. She listened to him hunting through the rooms till she heard iron scrape on stone and knew he was removing an iron fire front. She felt sure that if he did the same on the ground floor he would find the treasure. Slipping downstairs, she entered the kitchen, and, seeing the dough she had kneaded, it occurred to her to put her fortune in it. Gliding noiselessly into the sitting room, she secured the jewels and buried them in the dough, getting upstairs and into her room before Tom came down. When he did so he searched the second floor and after that the first, not omitting the fireplace.
